Mr. and Mrs. Frank Story, of Jackson avenue, have moved to 19 Somerset place.

AN ALL AROUND COMPLIMENT.

Wife's Pride in Husband's Success Had a Tinge of Regret.

The doctor and his wife had lived together four years. She was a widow when he met her. He was a physician of note. Their life together was a happy one and no quibbling had entered the home to set a bad example for their hopeful. But the wife had a reputation as a wit. Her witticisms and little sarcastic remarks were known far and wide. Her friends had all heard of them. They had all felt the sting of them. The physician had been working with a hard case. He had spent day and night at the home of his patient and had won the fight for life. And he was accordingly well satisfied with himself. On his arrival home one evening he turned to his wife, saying: "You see, wifey dear? I have pulled my patient through. He is now well on the road to recovery." "Yes, hubby, dear," returned the wife. "But you are such a perfect master of your profession. You are so successful. Ah, I wish that I had met you five years sooner than I did. Then my poor, dear Billy would never have died."

CLEVER TRICK OF THIEVES.

Use Offensive Odor of Onions to Aid in Shoplifting.

"Incredible as it may seem," said Lecoq, the detective, "there are a number of shoplifters who steal by the agency of the onion. These abandoned men, before setting out upon their contemplated crimes, eat of raw onions abundantly. Then they stroll into the silversmith's or the haberdasher's or the jeweler's that they propose to rob. Show me those large solitaires surrounded with pigeon-blood rubies, please,' says the jeweler child. The clerk brings forth the tray of gems and, bending over it, the thief sighs with admiration. His face close to the clerks, he sighs again. And the clerk's nostrils quiver and he turns away his head. The inspection of diamonds continues for some minutes. Throughout it the thief keeps breathing hard, the clerk keeps turning his head away and hence it is no wonder at the day's end that a couple of costly rings are missing."

A Dog Worth Knowing.

Two years ago a boy 14 years old named Edward Sweeney, living at Opelika, Ala., was followed home by a small dog. The animal was bobtailed and squint-eyed and by no means good looking, and the boy was laughed at for bringing him around. Within a week, however, the dog brought home a five-dollar bill in his mouth. The next week he brought a silver dollar. Then he brought a pocket knife, and followed that with a pocketbook. He has hardly been a week in these two years that the dog has not found something. He makes it his business to hunt the streets and highways, and often travels a distance of 30 miles. Up to the present date he has found and brought home $38 in cash, besides many useful things.

The doctor was asked what he would do if he had his life to live over again, and he replied he would be a minister of the Gospel and added that if God permits will still continue to do all the good possible. After the service, Dr. and Mrs. Buchanan held an informal greeting to old and new friends.

Women of Yezzo.

The women of the Island of Yezzo, whence it is supposed came the original inhabitants of Japan, have a very peculiar custom of making up their faces to look as though they have mustaches. These women are called Ainus, and upon the upper lip of each Ainu belle is tattooed something that resembles a long, flowing mustache. To possess an artistically tattooed ornament of this kind marks a woman as especially attractive and her chances of making a good matrimonial alliance are very small if she is not thus adorned. As a matter of fact, the men of the island choose their spouses more for the beauty of this tattooed design than the grace of form or charm of feature.

The Pet Animal Stage.

"Why don't you get you a cat?" asked her woman friend. "You wouldn't be half so lonely if you had some little live animal like that always around." "I haven't come to the animal stage yet, thank heaven," she replied. "When men and women lose all hope of human love they go to the animal kingdom, the men to the dogs, some literally, and the women to the cats; and they are right, perhaps, since faithfulness is to be found mainly among animals; but as I say, I haven't quite arrived at that stage of the game yet."

Her First Impressions.

"The first impression is the one you should always go by," the little grass widow advised. "I know by experience. I have never yet had a husband that I liked at first sight. He always had to win me. Then, after I had been married awhile, I invariably went back to my first impression of dislike that kept on getting worse and worse till I had to leave him. I shall never marry again, so finished," unless I fall head over heels in love with him the first minute I meet him."

Best Sleep of All.

"I see that an eminent physician declares that two hours of sleep before midnight are worth more than six after that the hour!" Two hours of sleep after you're called in the morning are worth more than anything else."

Dull Times.

"Hello!" said the funny man to Finnegan the undertaker. "I suppose your business is dead with you?" "Faith, it's worse than that," replied Finnegan. "Shure, I haven't buried a livin' soul in near a month."

PASTOR'S ANNIVERSARY

EDIFICE THRONGED

Services in celebration of the forty years' pastorate of Rev. Dr. Joseph C. Buchanan, now residing with his son, Dr. J. Herrey Buchanan, of Dover street, was held at the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, Sunday morning, of which congregation Dr. Buchanan was once the pastor. Among those present were representatives from four pastorates, widow of Dr. Brown, widow of Rev. Dr. James H. Park, Dr. Buchanan and Rev. T. Moore Smith, the present pastor.

On the platform with Dr. Buchanan were Deacons David Hand and William Archibold, the latter a deacon at the time of Dr. Buchanan's pastorate. Rev. T. Moore-Smith was in charge of the services and introduced DeaconArchibold, who paid a glowing tribute to his former pastor and told of the trials and blessings of forty years ago when services were held in the old building.

Deacon Hand followed and told in an amusing vein how he first came to be identified with the old church. He said that it was not Dr. Buchanan's preaching, but the fact that there was an old oak in the rear of the church, from the branch of which swung hooks for hanging and it was the custom of the boys to congregate there. Afterward he was impressed with Dr. Buchanan's constant preaching of redemption and the remission of sins and was finally converted.

Dr. Buchanan then made a short address, in which he said that he felt at home in the old church and among his former parishoners those of his first pastorate, he told of the kindly reception tendered him and his wife when they settled among them as strangers. The relations of the young preacher were overlooked and all joined in a common work for the Master—harmony prevailed, new members were added to the church and the new edifice was built.

Dr. Buchanan recalled the fact that during the first year thirty candidates appeared for baptism and were immersed in old Green brook, nearby. The doctor said that while the work was progressing he was possessed of a boyish idea. He made up his mind that he wanted the pastorate of a younger church in a growing community and for that reason accepted a call to the Baptist church at Pemberton. He remained there until a short time ago, when he resigned on account of ill health.

The doctor was asked what he would do if he had his life to live over again, and he replied he would be a minister of the Gospel and added that if God permits will still continue to do all the good possible. After the service, Dr. and Mrs. Buchanan held an informal greeting to old and new friends.

N. F. A. HOME SERVICES

Dr. Chambliss, G. A. Chapman and Miss Curry Take Part in the Meeting.

IN THE NEW PAVILION

The first service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home was held Sunday afternoon in the new auditorium. George A. Chapman was the leader. In former years meetings of this kind have been held at a great disadvantage, owing to the fact that the Home was without proper accommodations. The problem has been solved by the erection of the auditorium, a structure of the pavilion type. It was built by David W. Hand in memory of his two sons.

Mr. Chapman opened the meeting with a few words of welcome to the children and the mothers. He spoke in enthusiastic terms, praising the work of Miss Curry. The camp children sang alone, and this feature was followed by a duet, also rendered by two camp children, Rose and Helen Tudor. Mr. Chapman read the Scripture, which was followed with a prayer by David W. Hand. Twice during the meeting vocal selections were given by the Misses Hills and Hinz, of the choir of the First Baptist church.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss made the address. He took for his text the second Chronicles, 25:9: "But what shall we do for the hundred talents?" The speaker told the story of Amasiahs and showed that although the text is an old question, it is eternally new. In deciding between right and wrong, said he, it is not always a matter of money, but oftentimes position, rarity, and friendship. If we want to do God's will, he concluded, He will be with you every time.

A feature of the meeting was the interest shown by the children. The pale and pinched faces of the little East Side waifs shone with unusual sum as they followed the treat of the doctor's remarks. Occasionally he asked a question, and every time but once received a prompt reply in chorus. This exception was when he asked if any had ever shot craps. There was visible a slight hesitation on the part of the boys. Out of the 175 children assembled in the pavilion, five raised their hands in testimony as having been baptized.

In a few words Miss Curry responded to each one who had risen to speak. In terms of deepest appreciation she thanked all who had so generously assisted in the work last year, which had proved to be the most successful thus far. She said any who have even an hour or two to spare will be welcome at the Home, can be used to good advantage. Miss Curry concluded by asking for the help and prayers of the friends. In the closing remarks of Mr. Chapman he said that for every $60 in the treasury, last year, a child was brought from New York, kept ten days, and returned to his home.

A cornet solo was played by Whitney C. Frazee, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Chambliss.

A service for the purpose of arousing interest in the Netherwood Fresh Air Home was held last evening in the Park Avenue Baptist church. Miss Curry explained the work of the institution, showing clearly the great amount of good that has resulted from it. Rev. Dr. E. H. Rudd and G. E. Hall also spoke. Twenty of the little charges from the camp were present, and sang. Other music was furnished by the Intermediate Christian Endeavor choir. A violin solo was played by Arthur S. Mosher; a cornet solo by W. C. Frazee, and Mrs. William H. Sebring sang "The Lost Chord."

Trinity's Summer Services.

Reports that Trinity Reformed church will be closed during the last two Sundays in July and all of August are incorrect. The truth of the matter is that the edifice will only be closed on Sunday evenings during August and at all other regular times the stated services will be conducted as usual, excepting the last two Sunday evenings in July. On next Sunday morning and evening, Rev. Dr. Searles, of New Brunswick, will occupy the pulpit.

Dance at Truell Hall.

The customary weekly dance at Truell Hall, Netherwood, on Saturday night proved to be a particularly delightful affair. Sabin's Imperial orchestra furnished the music and those who preferred to promenade on the large porches enjoyed the pleasing airs as much as those who indulged in Terpsichorean pleasures. Both Saturday and Sunday there were an unusual number of auto parties for dinner.

Damaged Boats.

Three of the pleasure boats used by young people on South Plainfield lake were damaged by mischievous mischief-makers this week. The "Vim," the largest boat on the lake, had a large hole cut in it. Another had six holes cut in it and boards were broken from another. Justice of the Peace Smith has offered $5 reward for the conviction of the guilty persons.

ISAAC LEDERER IS DEAD

Former Local Merchant Passes Away in Hospital at Carlsbad.

TO BRING BODY HOME

Succumbed On June 21 But At His Request Family Was Not Notified By Cable—40 Years a Merchant.

Isaac Lederer, for nearly forty years one of Plainfielder's leading dry goods merchants, died in a hospital at Calsbad, on Thursday, June 21. Word of the death was received this morning by his son, Albert Lederer, from John Stuart Wells, the American Consul, who wrote a letter giving a few facts about Mr. Lederer and his illness. He was taken ill during the first week in June and his condition was such that it was necessary to remove him at once to a hospital. Everything possible was done for him, and Deputy American Consul Freund, a personal friend, remained almost constantly with Mr. Lederer until he died. Albert Lederer cabled this morning to Carlsbad for the purpose of ascertaining what arrangements can be made toward bringing the body home.

Isaac Lederer was born sixty-three years ago at Prague, Austria, and it was nearly forty years ago that he came to America and located in Plainfield. He first engaged in the dry goods business on Somerset street, where J. P. Humble's grocery is now. Later he removed to W. H. Shotwell's property on Lincoln place, and then for a time he conducted business where Chris. Gruechler's saloon is at Front and Somerset streets. Afterward he moved to the Conklin building on West Front street. It was just twenty-four years ago that he bought the property where Levy Brothers are now engaged in the dry goods business, and where he was in the same business until three years ago, when he sold out. Since that time he made three trips to Europe, combining pleasure with business.

Mr. Lederer sailed the last time on April 27 on the Amerika and he had been spending most of his time in Germany. He also visited his sister, Mrs. Mary Lederer, at Klattau, Austria. The family had received a letter from him during the past month and was greatly worried fearing that he was ill or that some accident had befallen him. According to his pre-arranged plan he was due to arrive home tomorrow or Wednesday, and only this morning, prior to receiving word of his death, Albert Lederer remarked to a friend, that his father would be home tomorrow.

In the opinion of the son, Mr. Lederer died of congestion of the lungs, probably brought on by a heavy cold, and owing to his advanced age and general condition was not able to overcome the trouble.

When Mr. Lederer sailed he assured his family that he would return home in ten weeks, and the news of his death is a great shock to the relatives and his many friends here. He was one of the oldest merchants in the city and during the many years he was engaged in business here he bore the highest reputation for dealing and was a man of sterling sense a successful business man.

Mr. Lederer is survived by a wife, two sons, Albert and Arthur Lederer and a daughter, Miss Josephine Lederer.

There is not much activity in the physical department during the heated spell, and his absence will not affect the department much.

STORM HITS PLAINFIELD

Lasted Only Short Time But Accomplished a Lot of Damage.

MANY TREES UPROOTED

Though it lasted little more than half an hour, a typical midsummer thunder storm which broke over the city shortly after 8 Monday night left damage enough in its wake to give the impression that a small-sized Kansas cyclone had drifted into Jersey. After ominous-looking clouds had given warning during the evening that something was about to happen, thunder and lightning in the third degree were turned loose and accompanied by a deluge of water and a gale of wind proceeded to tear up the town. Trees were struck and torn up, electric light and telephone wires were ripped from their poles and for some sections of the city and borough, raging torrents ran through the streets.

While the lightning was incessant and vivid, but little of it was of the striking kind and so far as can be learned no residences were damaged by it. On second place, a bolt struck a large tree and beside laying it prostrate, gave the entire neighborhood a large sized scare. The wind made up for what the lightning failed to do, and other trees were torn up by the roots and stripped of their branches. Two large ones in front of Mrs. Mail's residence on East Front street were started on the kindling wood route and others were reported down on Webster place, Franklin place, Putnam avenue and on South avenue at Scott place. As soon as the obstructions were noticed, the police department put out a supply of red lanterns to warn pedestrians and teams.

The local telephone exchange came in for a generous slice of the trouble and when the clouds began to drift away at 9 o'clock 145 "hello" machines were out of gear. The big gang of men which has been conducting the cut-over to the new building was put to work and by 9 o'clock this morning the number had been reduced to ninety. Most of the instruments affected were in the northern and eastern sections of the city which seemed to be the pivotal points of the storm. In the business section and the West End almost everything remained intact.

The Public Service Corporation was also reminded in a forcible way that the elements were in an angry mood and for the remainder of the night trolleys ran on a rag-time schedule and electric lights refused to shine. The cars were held up by prostrate trees and limbs and the extinguishing of the lights was brought about by crippled wires. Trouble in either instance was overcome as soon as possible but it was not until this morning that normal conditions were resumed.

It was reported that a lightning bolt ran down the trolley pole of a West Fourth street car and handed the motorman a healthy shock. His name was given as Wyckoff and he was said that he was down and out for some time. It couldn't have hurt him much, however, as he was seen drinking a glass of sarsaparilla in a Watchung avenue store shortly before midnight.

Over in the borough, the storm cut up high jinks with shade trees and wires and danger lurked in many sections because of prostrate electric light strands. These were down on Grandview and Mercer avenues and also at Manning and Watchung avenues.

Trees were uprooted on Johnston's Drive, *on Somerset street at Coding*ton avenue, in the Grace M. Episcopal church grounds, in Mercer avenue in front of Holy Cross church, in the yard of James Brown on Stone street and on Grandview avenue in the rear of Phillip Currin's grocery store. The only street lights in the borough that remained intact were those on Somerset street from Park place to Green brook. The police went out while the rain was still beating down and looked after the safety of people.

In the first onslaught of the storm, the fire bell went on a rampage and continued to ring until the mechanism ran down. The electrician was sent on the trail and located the trouble in a crossed wire.

A large limb was broken off a tree in an adjoining yard, crushing a lawn swing in the yard of James R. Blair, 78 Duer street. One of the large trees on the lawn of Andrew Lutkins on Somerset street, near Park place, was blown across the street, blocking travel for some time. There was a great electrical display on Duer street and Park place, where the limbs on two trees were broken, carrying down telephone and electric light wires on the Day and Bailey properties, and putting out the street lights on Duer street above Mercer avenue. The wires were not broken, but charged so low that they were grounded.

Lightning and wind united in reducing a small outbuilding, used as a storehouse by Horace G. Adams, of Johnston avenue, to kindling wood. A bolt struck the roof and ripped it to pieces, and before the frame was through shaking the wind knocked it flat. The structure was demolished.

REV. AUG. F. TODD DEAD

DUNELLENITE 21 YEARS

Rev. Augustus F. Todd, a retired clergyman of the Reformed church, died at his home in Dunellen, Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Todd was in his eighty-second year. He had enjoyed fairly good health until two weeks ago, when he was taken ill. The two extremely hot days last week seemed to weaken him greatly and no doubt hastened his death. For the last week he was frequently heard praying, repeating over and over again: "Oh, Father take me Home." He felt that his life-work was completed.

Rev. Mr. Todd was born near Somerville, on February 11, 1826. He was graduated from Rutgers College in 1855, and from the New Brunswick Theological Seminary in 1858. Among the Reformed churches of which he was pastor were those at *Athens, Pa., Piermont, N. Y., Boonton, N. J., Bloomingburg, N. Y., Schoharie, N. Y., and Bound Brook, N. J. From the latter place he re*moved to Dunellen, where he resided for twenty-one years. In May, 1885, he retired from the active ministry. For sixty-one years he was a member of the First Reformed church of Somerville.

Rev. Mr. Todd married Miss Merlhalt Toms, of Somerville, in September, 1858. She died five years ago. He leaves five children: Augustus F. Todd, Jr., John H. L. Todd, of Fanwood; Theodore S. Todd, of Brooklyn; Miss Merlhah G. Todd, and Miss Anna C. Todd.

For forty years Rev. Mr. Todd was an honorary member of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church of America. He was also a member of the American Seamen Friends' Society for forty years. The last active service in which he engaged was in May, 1900, ago, when he was a delegate from the Classis of New Brunswick, to the General Synod of the Reformed Church of America, which met at the Collegiate church in New York city. He attended the ensuing session of the Classis, also in the work of the Synod. During his residence in Dunellen, he was an active attendant at Trinity Reformed church, of this city.

The funeral will be held from his late *home, No. 205 Front street, Dun*ellen, Thursday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Dr. James Le Fever, an old classmate of Rev. Mr. Todd's, will officiate. Rev. Daniel Rapalje, also an old classmate, will take part in the service. They will be assisted by Rev. John Hart, of Scotch Plains, and Rev. Walter T. Griffin, of this city.

BREWIN BACK TO WORK

Brought to Plainfield Yesterday and Resumes His Position at Miss Brown's.

HAD TO BE INTRODUCED

Charles P. Brewin, the Burlington man who was lost to himself for four years and lived in the city during that period as Frank P. Johnson, returned to Plainfield Monday to reside permanently. He was accompanied by his wife and son, and the former will remain with him.

Brewin was at once taken to the dyeing shop of Miss Mary Brown, in West Second street, and his entrance marked further evidence of his wonderful dual personality. Though he had worked in the place with Miss Brown and other employes all the *time that he believed himself John*son, he failed to recognize any of them.

It became necessary to introduce him, and when he expressed his willingness to return to his old place, *Miss Brown had to show him the im*plement he had been using and where they were kept. Persons he had been accustomed to meeting and doing business with during the time they were passed unnoticed, and it was only when *they started speak*ing to him that he realized he had known them.

When questioned by a Daily Press reporter last night, Frank Brewin, the second name he has taken to be in excellent health and that the family was fully satisfied that he was completely himself again. It was he who broached the subject of returning to Plainfield and as Mr. Brewin was willing to come to this city it was arranged that the plan be followed out. They will board at Mrs. Dennis on Norwood avenue and Brewin will resume the position at Miss Brown's he held as Johnson.

In commenting on this strange case of dual personality, the Newark News had the following to say last night:

The case of Charles P. Brewin, of Burlington, the tailor, who lost his identity for four years, three of which he lived under the name of Frank G. Johnson, in Plainfield, has attracted sufficient attention to deserve comment. It is a very striking instance of what is often called dual personality, it is simple in comparison with other more noted cases—such cases, for example, as that of Rev. Ansel Bourne, who was restored to his original personality at the hands of Professor William James, of Harvard, by hypnotic suggestion and restrained from lapsing back into the second personality by post-hypnotic suggestion. Still more interesting is the case of Rev. Thomas Hanna, whose story is told for the last detail by Boris Sidis. In this case the two personalities came and went for a long period of time and were finally merged into one that has remained constant ever since. The case of Miss Beauchamp, a patient of Dr. Prince, of Boston, is even more remarkable than any of these for two reasons. In the first place three personalities appeared, known as "B1," "B2" and "Sally." And in the second place, while "B1" and "B2" were unacquainted with each other, as in the Brewin case, or with "Sally," yet "Sally" was perfectly familiar with "B1" and made life miserable for it in every way she could. For instance, "B1" would work industriously upon some knitting she was doing when "Sally" became dominant she would unravel it all and leave it for "B1" to do over again. Or she would take the trolley far out into the country, then disappear and leave "B1" penniless to return home as best she could.

There is not yet sufficient data for a complete understanding of these strange experiences, and yet they are so well authenticated and accepted as actual phases of psychic life that they have thrown light into unexpected places; a psychology has been written in account of them. Of course, no new personality is really formed. The whole process is largely one of amnesia. Our detached, forgotten memories do not become active and set up house keeping in our own behalf. Psychologically, multiple personalities, as they are called, are probably to be explained as tracts of consciousness, separated by gaps, by breaks, which cannot for the time being be bridged over. A tract of consciousness may be affected through some shock or through the influence of toxic or auto-toxic stimuli acting on the psycho-physiological system and bringing about dissociation in the mental continuity.

In the case of Mr. Brewin the trouble is traced to a sunstroke experienced during the Civil War. Probably a clot formed on some part of the brain, which occasioned his headaches and head pains. By the excitement attending his discovery in Plainfield the flow of blood may have been quickened sufficiently to wipe it away. It would not be unreasonable to presume that when certain parts of the brain refused to respond to stimuli because of the clot pressure, other and hitherto less active parts might become more susceptible to stimuli and respond with unwonted energy, in cases of interrupted consciousness through lapses of memory, hypnotic suggestion becomes a sort of artificial memory to lead the patient over the gap and restore the continuity of consciousness that will lead him once to his original self. This would be a perfectly legitimate field for hypnotism and an occasion when it would be joyfully welcomed. Multiple personalities are thus resolved into multiple consciousnesses, and it does not require a great deal of imagination to see how many of the results attributed to spiritism *may be explained when once we real*ize that there have been cases where the subject could transfer himself from one consciousness to the other at will, or be transferred by some influence, as in the case of Miss Beauchamp.

IRONSIDES DEFEATED BY CLINTON AVENUE

WELL-KNOWN NEWARK TEAM FALLS BEFORE STRONG PITCHING OF RANDOLPH H

Strong pitching by Randolph and heavy hitting by his team-mates resulted in the defeat of the crack Ironsides, of Newark, at the hands of the Clinton Avenue nine Saturday afternoon. The score was 8 to 0.

Randolph pitched in splendid form. He struck out thirteen men and the five hits garnered by the Newarkers were so scattered as to be an entirely negligible quantity. The game was *soured a bit by kicks from the Iron*sides on Walters' umpiring. Some criticism was due on ball and strike decisions, but the visiting athletes overdid their part to an extent that tried the most patient fan. They quit trying for the game with singleness of purpose after the second inning, and the madder they got the less they could hit. They made costly bungles in the field.

Clinton Avenue played snappily. The players went into the game expecting a gruelling battle and they were keyed up to a great pitch. They hustled tirelessly, let nothing get away, and clouted out thirteen hits, three of them two baggers. In the eighth inning, Schroeder replaced Ulrick in the box, but the change made no difference to the Plainfielders. Brit Martin got four hits.

TONS OF DIAMONDS.

Like all precious metals and stones, the unit of weight usually employed in regard to diamonds is the carat, of which 151½ go to make up a single ounce. To think of sacks of diamonds by the ton staggers the imagination; indeed, the average annual output of the Kimberley mines is not more than half a ton all told.

Statistics have been published recently at Cape Town giving the output for several years past of the Kimberley mines and the river diggings. These yielded in the three years 1903-05 nearly 7,250,000 carats, say a ton and a half. The monetary value of these diamonds was £10,450,000. Since the first diamond was discovered by the banks of the Vaal in 1867 down to the end of 1906 it is estimated that the total weight of diamonds extracted from the Griqualand mines is over 13½ tons, of a market value of fully £95,000,000.

If statistics of this sort can be trusted—and in the case of the South African yield they closely approximate to the facts—only 17 tons of diamonds had been mined all over the world to the end of 1901. With the same relative output since that year from Brazil and India the world's output of diamonds is now more than 20 tons.

The figure seems small, considering the ages diamonds have been worked in India and elsewhere in the east, and must be largely guesswork with respect to the output in antiquity. It is, however, certain that more diamonds have been placed on the market in the last 40 than in the previous thousand years.—Pall Mall Gazette.

INNS OF OLD ENGLAND.

Those who learn history from stones, those who travel to read the long account of races and nations in the time-scarred buildings of the past, will find in old inns one quality possessed in the same degree by no other remains of antiquity. They will find broad human nature.

Cathedrals will give you the history of the priest, castles and manors the story of the nobles, and cities the record of the guildsman and merchant. But it is at the wayside inn that all meet together. It is there, at the comfortable hostelry, that each, for a time, throws aside his calling and jostles with his neighbor as a wayfarer.

Inns have never been renowned for stiff-neckedness. It has ever been their pride to hold out welcoming arms to all who can pay their way, whatever their character or creed, and, indeed, they must run the risk of being cheated by those who have not a groat. They must find a room for the king, if need be, and a shelter for the polite stranger who nightly cuts purses on the king's highway.

The runaway couple must be worthily refreshed, while their smoking horses are led into the galleried courtyard, and within an hour mine host must screw up his face for a welcome to those who post in hot pursuit.—Indoors and Out.

Change of Scene for Holiday.

Too many people bear their tiring burden with them when they go away for rest. There must be a change of thought as well as scene. For the farmer there's nothing better than a glimpse of city life. But the city man should shun the summer resort. And that is where he is usually found. He has no plan about his vacation. Get away from the crowd. Get back to nature. Live in the open. Sleep in the open if you can. Make friends with the birds and trees and flowers. Rub up against rural nature and see what enlightenment will spring from it. Get the views of people who look at life clearly and frankly and at new angles. Get sunburned, get freckled, get tired and then get rested again.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Long in Public Life.

Judge John Y. Wright, of Tennessee, now an attorney in the general land office, at Washington, who was 80 years old in June, has been connected with public life for a greater period than any other living American. He is still as vigorous as a man of 60 and keeps up with the things of to-day without forgetting what has passed and gone.

King's Restricted Diet.

When King Edward VII. visits Marienbad for the cure his diet is much restricted. For breakfast he may partake of eggs, cold ham, rusks and coffee. Luncheon is served about 1:30, and the following diet is recommended: Fresh trout, chicken, veal and compote of plums, while white wine with Geisshubler water is drunk.

Odious Comparisons.

"The money that built this library," said the person who is inclined to be fanatical, "is tainted."

"May be so," answered the literary individual, "but if it keeps all the modern fiction on its shelves the money couldn't be nearly as bad as some of the books."—Washington Star.

Rule Working Both Ways.

An English judge expresses the opinion that husbands should have the legal right to inspect and revise their wives' visiting lists. The women probably would be glad to acquiesce, provided they were granted the same privilege in respect to their husbands' visiting lists.—Washington Herald.

CONFER ON BREWIN CASE

LETTER TO MISS BROWN

"Johnson" As Real Self to Be Put Under Hypnotic Influence—Seeking Alleged Relations.

Prof. James H. Hyslop, formerly of Columbia University, and head of the New York Society for Psychic Research, who became interested in the Charles P. Brewin case so far as the dual personality is concerned, spent Wednesday afternoon with the man's physician, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan.

He believes that the Brewin case offers a fine opportunity for the society to study the phenomenon of dual personality. The professor believes that this is the only logical explanation of Brewin's case.

"The case of Mr. Brewin," said Prof. Hyslop, "is like that of many others who have suffered from dual personality, but this case is remarkably clear one." He told every one with whom he talked here that the case is a most desirable one for scientific study. The scientist said that he would, to Camden first ask permission of Brewin's relatives to study the case by observing Brewin personally. He is anxious to subject Brewin to hypnotic influence, believing that the second personality might be induced to take the surface again and Brewin would live over again his life as "Mr. Johnson." With the second personality again dominant the professor believes that "Frank G. Johnson" might be able to recall how it was that he had become Johnson and not Tom Smith or Paul Jones. That, in the professor's opinion, is one of the most interesting phases in the case.

Friends of Brewin are now anxious to find two women in this city who were regarded by "Mr. Johnson" as his stepmother and his half-sister. With the return of his real personality a week ago, all recollection of these women faded from his mind. He now has no idea even when Anna C. Johnson, the beneficiary under his insurance policy, is or how he came to know her name. She is described in his Foresters' insurance policy as his sister, but he cannot recall her. Yet his friends say that when he was "Mr. Johnson" he frequently spoke of his step-mother and sister living in New York.

Another puzzling thing which Brewin's friends would like explained is a memorandum indicating that he loaned $700 to a New York man, when he was "Mr. Johnson." He cannot recall that incident now.

Thursday Miss Mary Brown received a letter from Mr. Brewin in which he thanks her and her sister, Mrs. Denton, for their kindness and care of him during his trouble, and again explains that it seems as though he had been away but a few days and that he does not seem to remember anything.

WEDDED AT ST. MARK'S.

Ceremony Unites Miss Margaret J. Rafferty and James H. Burns.

Miss Margaret J. Rafferty, daughter of Mrs. Charlotte Rafferty, of East Fourth street, and James H. Burns, of this city, formerly of Stonington, Conn., were married in St. Mary's church, Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Father Delehanty performed the ceremony in the presence of a gathering of friends.

UNION WANTS AUTO RACE

County Board of Freeholders Seeks to Have Vanderbilt Cup Event Here.

MR. ACKERMAN ACTIVE

Route Extends From Elizabeth to Springfield, to Fanwood to Westfield and Elizabeth Again.

Union county will make a strong official bid for the Vanderbilt Cup automobile race which, in the event of the amendment to the Frelinghuysen act and other proposed legislation, may be run in New Jersey. Attorney-General McCarter has already drafted a bill to permit the holding of the race in this State, and will introduce it into the Legislature at today's session, while Governor Sokes declares himself in favor of it in case he is supported by public sentiment.

At Wednesday afternoon's session of the Board of Freeholders resolutions were offered requesting the Legislature to pass favorably upon the bill and calling the attention of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey to a possible course in this county, and urging that it be inspected and accepted.

One of the proposed courses for the race extends from Elizabeth to Springfield; thence to Fanwood by way of Mountain avenue, to Westfield and back again to Elizabeth. This course would be about twenty-five miles long, and would have to be covered twelve time to complete the required distance of 300 miles.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman has received this telegram from W. F. Sadler, Jr., president of the Asso*ciated Automobile Clubs of New Jer*sey:

"Trenton, N. J.

"E. R. Ackerman,

"Elizabeth, N. J.

"Possible to get Vanderbilt Cup race to New Jersey. Would your county like to have it, and would you personally favor it?

"W. F. SADLER, JR."

Mr. Ackerman replied in the affirmative. The Union County Board of Freeholders on Wednesday adopted resolutions favoring the race.

Another route proposed is partly in Union and partly in Essex. It includes Springfield, Scotch Plains, Cranford, Orange and Millburn.

It is said that holding the Vander*bilt Cup race in this county would* save Union thousands of dollars in the care of roads. These would be repaved by the Automobile Associa*tion two months before the race in October.*

TRANSFER LICENSES OF OLD HOLSTERIES

JUDGE SCHENCK ALSO POSTPONES CONTEMPT PROCEEDING HEARING.

In the Somerset County Courts at Somerville Friday the licenses on two of the oldest hostelries in Somerset county were transferred by Judge Louis H. Schenck. The Washington House at Basking Ridge, passed from the hands of John W. Hoffman into those of Howell Gibbs and the Waldorf Hotel, in Somerville, will be in charge of Louis Rollier, instead of Lena Kuhn.

The matter of the contempt of court proceedings instituted against Joseph Sansone, of Raritan, by Prosecutor Reger, came up for a hearing and was postponed for one week, because the defendant's counsel, John A. Frech, had not fully answered all the interrogatories. Sansone has now been in jail for some time and there is talk that he will be admitted to bail today. He was subpoenaed as a witness in the Annie Salsberger case, she being charged with lewdness, but failed to appear in answer to the summons. His wife was also cited, but she proved she was too ill to appear at the time the Salsberger case was tried.

Judge Schenck announced that during July and August court would be held hereafter only on the last Friday of each month.

WESTFIELD.

Acting under instructions from the Street Committee of the Council, the chief of police will see that streets are kept free from weeds. The abutting property owners will be held responsible.

At the next meeting of Westfield Council bids will be received for building 2,000 feet of eight-inch sewer on Osborn avenue and Downer street.

Westfield Board of Education has appointed Edward F. Low to fill the unexpired term of J. R. Connolly.

Putnam & DeGraw, the dry goods merchants, are showing a fine line of goods for men and women; also dressmakers' materials, and goods for the children. Prices reasonable.

RUNNING RACE A WINNER

Mark Hoyt Resplendent in Gay Attire, but Another Mount Got First Money

LARGE CROWD ON HAND

One of the largest crowds that has attended a race meet at the Driving Park in recent years was on hand Thursday afternoon when the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club presented its holiday card. There were four events on the program, a 2:15 mixed trot and pace, a free for all, a 2:40 trot and a running race. The last named was a new feature for Fair Acres meets and did much to bring about the success of the day's sport.

The 2:25 trot and pace proved to be a good event and was won by J. S. Bornman's "Albert D.," taking three out of four heats. J. S. Irving's "Fred V." finished in the lead in the first heat. The free for all brought out four good entries and the heats were well contested but all went to Charles Brower's "Prince" in 2:23½, 2:23½ and 2:25.

Stonewall Jackson gave the spectators a good laugh in the 2:40 trot with a trotter that didn't trot, owned by Henry Weiss. He was entered under the name of "Grandpa," and showed by his actions that it was no misnomer. "Stony" had the time of his life trying to hold him down but he persisted in breaking every ten yards, just to show that grandfather horses can be skittish if they want to. He finished seventh in the race. There were seven entries.

The running race was in two heats, both of which were won by "Ida G.," owned by William Gross, of Fords Corner. Marcus Hoyt, mounted on Howard Woolston's "Red Squirrel," finished second ten lengths behind but got thee times the applause accorded the winner, "Mark" was garbed in one of the cutest rid*ing suits ever seen on the track* and the feminine portion of the grandstand was just positive he couldn't lose on its account, if nothing else. It was a cross between the garment *worn by Jack Wilmerding at the Dec*oration Day steeplechase and the London-made suit sprung on the Yale crew shoe by Coxswain Vanderbilt. "Ida G.'s" rider, who had a name so long nobody could cipher it out, came on the track in the same clothes he uses when molding bricks at Perth Amboy, helped out by a pair of bicycle socks to keep his overalls from flying, but he was the "candy boy" in the saddle. He rode with the supreme indifference of one of Buffalo Bill's Russian Cossacks and had time to figure up his winnings before the others came under the wire. Mr. I. P. Runyon kept the bookies away but it said "Red Squirrel" was backed heavily on the strength of "Mark's" uniform. The other entries were James Gethen's "Sligo Lass" and Lester Tingley's "Merry Sailor."

Albert D.	2	1	1
Fred V.	1	3	2
The Lawyer	3	2	3
Hartwood Belle	5	4	4
Billy Craig	4	5	5

Time 2:27½, 2:29½, 2:32, 2:33.

Second race, free for all:

Roan View	2	4	4

Time 2:23½, 2:23½, 2:25.

Artistic	2	3	3
Aleysia	4	4	2
Shamrock	6	2	6
Sidney Leland	3	5	4

SOUTH PLAINFIELD'S GREAT CELEBRATION

PARADES, SHAM BATTLE, FIREWORKS AND DANCE FEATURES.

South Plainfield's celebration of the Fourth, under the auspices of the Good Government Club and the Baptist church, was a most successful affair. It began at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasted until late at night. A large crowd of pleasure-seekers from this city and other nearby places was drawn.

Celebration headquarters was at the lawn of Thomas Van Ness and the adjoining orchard. The grounds and the lake were strung with lanterns at night.

Parades for decorated carriages and bicycles opened the celebration at 10 o'clock. The prize for the best decorated rig was won by the Young People's Social Club, and for the most comically decorated one by the "South Plainfield Society Belles." At 12 o'clock, William Stewart read the Declaration of Independence to the assembled crowd. His reading produced a marked impression.

In the afternoon athletic events were conducted. Horace Vail won the 100 yard dash, Fred Stover coming in second, and Alfred Springer third. Springer won the broad jump, Stover second, and Orlando Lounsbury third. Edward Teeple won the tub race.

At 7 o'clock a sham battle was fought back of the lawn by the Seventh Regiment of Polish Artillery. They didn't discharge their pieces, but made a fine showing in skirmishing and flanking movements. The sword skirmish was especially effective.

*There was a great display of fire*works at night. Refreshments and a dance at Washington Hall added to the enjoyment of the celebration.

Rev. C. W. Attlee was head of the committee. Mr. Frank Harris was secretary, and Mrs. Ida Harris was chairman of the dinner committee.

Bound Brook's Busy Fourth.

The 136th anniversary, as near as the season permits, of the winter encampment of Washington's army on Middlebrook Heights, one-half mile distant from Bound Brook, on ground now in the care of the Washington Camp Ground Association, was celebrated Thursday. A parade was reviewed at the Middlebrook County Club House by President C. C. Rawlings, of the association, and the mayors of Bound Brook and South Bound Brook. At the camp ground William H. Speer, prosecuting attorney for Hudson county, delivered the principal address.

SWACKHAMER AS ORATOR

Former Assemblyman Makes Patriotic Speech at Englishtown Observance.

CITIZENS' CELEBRATION

Speaker Frequently Interrupted By Hearty Applause of Big Audience—His Speech.

Former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, was the orator of the day at the citizens' celebration commemorating the Fourth of July at Englishtown Thursday. A great crowd heard the silver-tongued lawyer discourse on patriotism, his speech being frequently interrupted by the applause of the assemblage.

"If our forefathers had not been 'strong men with empires in their brains,' if they had not won our independence and erected the well proportioned columns of constitutional liberty, the sun would have shone as bright today, and the heavens smiled with the same beneficence; the majestic rivers would flow to the gulf as now; the mountains would be clothed with the same rich mantel of trees and verdure; the valleys would smile with the same fertility; the mountains would hide the same metal and mineral wealth, and on the prairies would wave, as followed the sons of wheat and corn'; but what would all this be worth if today we could not sing with joyous hearts, 'My Country 'tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty.'

"There is an inspiration in the sublime courage and heroic self-sacrifice of the founders and defenders of this Republic. A man may be courageous and face the lightnings of war when animated by a hope of glory. Hannibal could brave the icy Solitudes, and the slippery perils of the Alps, and venture so close to the gates of the Eternal City as to cast his sword over her walls, for he knew that the overthrow of the Roman Empire would write his name in fadeless characters on the imperishable wall of fame.

"With a country of boundless wealth and resistless power, in a time of profound peace and general prosperity, we are naturally lulled in the sense of security, and look with confidence to the future opening before us. We contemplate our nation's marvelous growth and development. We consider the inestimable privilege of equal rights and popular sovereignty; we may hold the flag, under whose folds the strongest must obey, and the weakest find protection, and we say, 'Here at last is the fountain of national youth, whence shall forever flow the blessings of civil and religious liberty;' but let us not be deceived. 'Eternal vigilance is the price of Liberty.'

"The rich fruitage of our fathers' sacrifices will crumble to ashes like the apples of Sodom if touched by the fingers of venality, or contaminated by the breath of luxury and corruption, unless the sons are animated by the spirit of the fathers; unless they are true to the great trust committed to their care; unless they foster the principles that give vitality and perpetuity to free institutions, the time will yet come when the virtue of Washington and Lincoln will share the fate of the republics that has gone before. The voice of God speaking by the pen of inspiration has said, 'Righteousness exalth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people.'

"Having enjoyed so rich a heritage, it is incumbent upon us to hand it down untarnished to the generations that are to follow. It is incumbent uppon us to cherish and maintain the principles of justice and equality. It is incumbent upon us to secure the due discharge of public duty by the cultivation of private virtue. It is incumbent upon us to prove worthy of the priceless blessings of American citizenship."

SEWER AGENT DISAPPEARS

POLICE CALLED OUT

The troubles which have from time to time held up the work on the Southside sanitary sewer, reached a climax Monday afternoon, when Thomas J. Cusack, who was acting as attorney for Peter Morgan, of Poughkeepsie, to whom the city gave the contract for the work, left the city. He failed to pay the gang of seventy or seventy-five Italians employed here a month's wages due them.

Patsy Miehle, of New York, who is a contractor of Italian labor, and who was here in charge of the men, learned of the absence of Mr. Cusack, and the Italians quickly discovered that something was wrong this morning when they reported for work. Failing to find Mr. Cusack, the Italians went to the home of H. H. Owen, 124 Watchung avenue, where J. H. Crow, a foreman, is boarding. Edward O'Neil, another foreman, boarding at Mrs. Hansen's at Washington and Second streets, was also sought, in the hope of getting the money due.

The gang at Mr. Owen's home was noisy and threatening violence and to prevent any trouble, police headquarters was notified. Sergeant Overbaugh was detailed on the case and he dispersed the crowd as soon as he arrived at Mr. Owen's home. In the meantime Street Commissioner Gavett was notified of the state of the affairs, first notifying the Metropolitan Surety Company, of New York, surety for Peter Morgan, then sending word to Mr. Morgan. The sewer work is now at a standstill, but it is expected that it will be resumed within a short time.

The gang of Italians are mostly concerned about the money due them. It is alleged that when Mr. Cusack left the city he not only failed to pay the men but forgot to settle for materials purchased, and it is estimated that the whole amount involved is over $2,000. Patsy Miehle is now representing the Italians in securing a settlement from the city. The number of every man employed on the work, together with his time is being tabulated with a view to ascertaining exactly the amount due them.

In addition to securing Italian laborers for the work, Patsy Miehle also provided accommodations for the men. A large shanty was erected on Randolph road and the Italians boarded there. It was the intention that when the men were paid off they would give their money to Miehle, who would deduct the amount due for boarding, giving the men the balance. For this reason Miehle is particularly anxious that the men shall receive all that is due them so that he may get his proportion for boarding them.

When the contract for the sewer was awarded, the street committee first gave Mr. Morgan an opportunity to come here and look over the ground and decide whether he wanted the work. After an inspection, Mr. Morgan informed the committee that he would take the contract. Soon afterward the death was reported of his wife. When informed that he went to a sanitarium at Clifton Springs, N. Y. Then word was received to the effect that Thomas J. Cusack, of Kingston, had been appointed an attorney for Mr. Morgan. This was accepted by the Common Council and the work proceeded.

Since that time the contractor has had more or less trouble with the Italians employed in building the sewer. First there was a complaint about the wages, the rate being lower than is usually paid for labor of this kind. Another complaint made by the men was that they objected to being paid once a month, claiming that they had to wait too long for their money. Then the various other rules adopted by the contractor served to keep the men in a constant turmoil. Several gangs went on a strike only to be succeeded by other men.

As the city is protected by the Metropolitan Surety Company, it will not lose anything as a result of the suspension of the work and the failure of Mr. Cusack to pay the men. It is expected that Mr. Morgan will come to Plainfield at once and arrange for the continuation of the work.

This afternoon it was reported that the Dunellen Cement Block Company, to whom has sub-let the contract for building the station for the pumping plant on Randolph road, had given up the contract, and that other arrangements must be made to complete this part of the work.

FELL 70 FEET TO DEATH

Rocco De Mazzi Killed at Wilson's Stone Quarry This Morning.

DEATH INSTANTANEOUS

By the splitting off of a ledge of rock loosened by his own bar, Rocco De Mazzi, an Italian employed in Wilson's stone quarry, fells seventy feet to instant death from the ledge on which he was working Monday morning. The accident happened at shortly after 8 o'clock. De Mazzi, with other Italians, was at work with a crow bar at the top of the quarry ledge, barring off the loose stone. In his work near the edge of the cliff of rock, De Mazzi, while attempting to dislodge out a large piece of rock, dislodged the entire side of the cliff for several feet, including the part on which he was standing. Unable to save himself, he toppled over the edge of the cliff and was hurled headlong to the road level, seventy feet below. Fellow workmen rushed to him, as he lay among the rocks at the foot of the cliff, and he was carried to the crusher. There it was found that death had been instantaneous. The body was horribly mutilated. His skull was badly crushed, his back broken and left arm and leg crushed and broken.

Foreman Snowden, in charge of the men at the quarry, summoned Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, but De Mazzi had been instantaneously killed. Subsequently Undertaker De-Mott was summoned, and the body removed to the undertaking rooms on Somerset street. The gang of Italians, numbering twenty men, who were working at the quarry at the time, were horror-stricken by the accident, and could not be induced to continue work.

De Mazzi, who had been in the employ of the company for nearly eight years, was forty-seven years of age. He leaves a wife in Italy and four children, three girls and a boy. He saw them last about two years ago, when he returned to Italy for a visit. He was living with other employes of the company near the crusher in a house owned by one of the men.

The funeral will be from St. Joseph's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

CITY JUDGE RUNYON ON CONCEALED WEAPONS

GREAT MENACE TO PUBLIC; AS TO FIGHTING FOR WOMEN.

"Concealed weapons constitute one of the greatest menaces to the public, not only of Plainfield, but in the country at large," said City Judge Runyon in passing sentence Monday on Robert Wilson, colored, arrested last night, on complaint of John Rivers, also colored.

Rivers and Wilson quarreled on Central avenue, after attending church. The fight started over a colored belle, and it waxed warmer with each minute. Rivers detected symptoms of razor-swinging, and he hustled for police assistance. At the station house two razors were found on Wilson.

Counselor S. S. Swackhamer appeared for Wilson, and made a plea for mercy. Judge Runyon made the statement quoted in replying to the plea. There was nothing very alarming in a fight over a woman, but the razors gave another tinge to the affair in hand.

"Men have fought over women," observed the Magistrate, "since Biblical times, and they will continue to do so until the end of time. In themselves, such fights give no cause for alarm, but when razors figure in them we must refuse to give them countenance. Wholly because he had the razors on his person, I must refer the appeal for leniency. Ten dollars or twenty days."

The fine was paid.

MET. TEAM GETS CUP.

Olympic Trophy Winners Make a 641 Score.

The Olympic Cup, open to teams of four, was won Monday by a team from the Metropolitan Golf Association on the course of the Euclid Golf Club, Cleveland, the winning score being 641 strokes. Robert Abbott was a member of the New Jersey Golf Association team, and although he returned next to the lowest score for his team, 82, 85—167, the best the team could do was 655 strokes.

This event, which was preliminary to the National amateur golf championship, which started today, was played in the teeth of a gale over the Euclid Club links. As a result of yesterday's play the Western Association lost the international trophy by seven strokes.

RUNAWAY CAUSES DEATH

WELL KNOWN HERE

W. H. Hayden, of Boston, advertising agent of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company, and formerly holding a similar position on the Jersey Central, died at the Littleton Hospital, at Littleton, N. H., Monday, as a result of injuries received in a runaway accident on Sunday.

Mr. Hayden was driving with Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Mears, of Boston, on the Mount Washington Base Road, near Twin River. The horse became frightened at something, and, giving a sudden start, threw Mr. Hayden out and over the edge of the bridge to the rocks on the banks of the river. His head was cut open and his chest and ribs were crushed. He was brought to Littleton on special train and taken to the hospital, where he died yesterday afternoon.

The other occupants of the carriage also were thrown out, but not seriously hurt. Mr. Hayden was about thirty-five years old and had a host of friends along the lines of the Jersey Central road. He formerly lived in Elm street, Elizabeth.

PLANS FOR ANOTHER CENTRAL JERSEY LEAGUE.

Plans are underway for the formation of a new baseball league in Central New Jersey, the idea being to take in Westfield, Bayonne, Elizabeth, Plainfield, Somerville and possibly Perth Amboy. Games will be played Saturday afternoons only.

S. J. Weidenhamer, of Bayonne, has taken the initiative in the matter, and it is his purpose to perfect the details of the organization this season so that everything will be in readiness for next summer. Herbert Martin, formerly of this city, but now the Bayonne correspondent of the Jersey City Evening Journal, is also interested in the project. At Bayonne there will be an enclosed field and there is now the nucleus for a strong team.

Mr. Weidenhamer intends to communicate at once with representatives in the various towns mentioned and it is supposed to hold a meeting in the near future to discuss plans. It is argued that all of the towns mentioned for the league being on the line of the New Jersey Central they will be easy of access and there will be a rousing rivalry among the fans in each place.

Trolley Rides for the Poor.

At this season when everyone is planning for cheap summer outings, from which not only pleasure, but benefit is derived, The Charity Organization Society is endeavoring to secure funds for free trolley rides for poor mothers and their children, who in this way get much pleasure and benefit. Will you not help by contributing to this fund? Donations sent to the agent, Miss Margaret C. Holly, 544 West Front street, will be greatly appreciated.

EXCISE VIOLATOR FIGHTS

30 DISREGARD THE LAW

Thomas Fitzgibbons, who keeps a saloon on Elizabeth avenue, between First and Front streets, Elizabeth, was held for the Grand Jury in police court at Elizabeth, Monday, charged with having violated the excise laws by selling liquor Sunday. His case will also be referred to the Excise Board.

Despite the activity of the police, due to the frequent presentment of the Grand Jury, saloon-keepers have not entirely got rid of the idea that liquor can be sold in Elizabeth on Sunday. As evidence of the way they views things was given late Sunday night, when Detective Brogan made a tour of inspection to see that everything was closed tight until midnight. When he attempted to enter a saloon at 153 Fifth street he was attacked by the saloon-keeper, Charles Fredericks, and several men who had been in the place and badly bruised before he got into the street again. Then the place was shut up tighter than the proverbial clam.

At Trumbull street and the Long Branch Railroad, where another saloon seemed to harbor suspicious activity, he met with the same treatment, being driven off by the proprietor, Charles Walters, and held outside until all those who had been inside escaped. Charges of assault and battery upon an officer were lodged against both Walters and Fredericks Monday before Judge Mahon, and the two men will be taken into custody today.

Nearly thirty violations of the screen law were noted by the police on Sunday. Fully half of them were in saloons where violations were noted last Sunday, and those proprietors have been summoned to appear before the Excise Board. It is said that there is an intention to contest the constitutionality of the law.

BOLD THIEVES GET STOREKEEPER'S $200

WHILE ONE MAN HELD HIM ATTENTION CONFEDERATE RIFLED THE TILL

Giuliano Cinquegrani, a fruit dealer whose place of business is on Watchung avenue near Fifth street, reported to the police Saturday afternoon that he had been robbed of $200 by bold thieves. Cinquegrani says he was alone in his store at 1 o'clock Saturday morning, when two well dressed men came in. One ordered some fruit to be delivered to Mrs. King in the Hand flats. He took Cinquegrani outside to the walk to point out the flats, leaving the other man alone in the store and within reach of the till. Cinquegrani noted the location of the Hand flats well, and then the two strangers left. A little while after that the fruit dealer discovered the loss of the $200.

The money was the proceeds of the sale of fireworks, in the purchase of which Cinquegrani and Louis Skelly, of North avenue, entered into partnership.

HUTCHINSON HELD UP.

Constable Stops Road Commissioner For Over-speeding.

State Road Commissioner Elijah C. Hutchinson, of Trenton, who inspects Jersey roads in a large State automobile, was held up at Magnalio late Sunday night by a constable, who charged him with exceeding the speed limit, and pulled a stop watch on the commissioner to prove it. Mr. Hutchinson denied that he was going too rapidly, and asserted that his speedometer showed he was running at a legal rate.

After a lively discussion the constable was asked what he proposed to do, whereupon he pulled out a book and asked the automobilist his name. He was much astonished when Mr. Hutchinson replied:

"I am the State Road Commissioner."

Quickly the officer closed his book and told Mr. Hutchinson he would send for him if he was wanted.

Funeral of An Infant.

The funeral of Joseph J. Marsit, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Martin, of Duer street, was held at the parents' residence Friday. It was conducted by Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. During the service Mrs. VonBrakle and Miss Pullinger sang two selections, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Beautiful Home." Interment was made in Hillside cemetery. The child's death followed a slight operation for an effection of the lip, its constitution not being able to withstand the effects of the etherization.

FREAK EUROPEAN PAPERS.

Plans to Win Readers Failed to Prolong Their Lives.

A French magazine writer who has been looking into the subject of freak newspapers thinks that one of the most remarkable of these was the Luminaria, published in Madrid. The ink with which it was printed contained a small percentage of phosphorous, so that the letters were visible and the paper could be read in the dark.

Next after this we find remarkable the case of the Regal, printed with an ink guaranteed nonpoisonous on thin sheets of dough. After absorbing all the information the sheet contained one could eat it, thus deriving from it nourishment for mind and body.

The publisher of a new Parisian journal, Le Bien 'Etre, promised to all subscribers for 40 consecutive years a pension and free burial. In spite of the inducement subscribers were so few that the paper died in a month. It was followed shortly after by a paper called Le Mouchoir, the handkerchief. It was printed on paper such as the so-called Japanese napkins are made of and might be used in the neighborhood to blow his handkerchief. It did not last long.

At two different French seacoast resorts newspapers called the Courier des Baigneurs (Bathers' Courier) and La Naiade, which doesn't need translation, were printed on waterproof paper, the supposition being that the bather could take his paper into the sea with him and read it while he enjoyed his bath.

The climax of utility seems to be reached in Norway, where some of the newspapers used so tough a quality of paper that it can be cut into strips and twisted into serviceable rope when the news is all read.

HAS REAL GRIEVANCE.

Prisoner Suffers Inconveniences in an Indian Jail.

A prisoner in Rampore Boalla jail has a clear grievance against the government. There are certain inconveniences inseparable from prison life which all reasonable criminals more or less unwillingly accept, but the most complete must draw the line at being marked down and clawed by a leopardess in the seclusion of the prison yard. The animal seems to have been inspired by a suffragette-like desire to get to the inside of a prison, and having got in by the high-lly irregular method of leaping the wall she ensconced herself among the low brick piers on which the old barracks are raised from the ground. In the afternoon she espied a prisoner in the yard clearing up, and, like the impulsive creature she is, promptly leaped upon him, striking him to the ground and clawing his back. Then, with the fickleness of her sex, she suddenly changed her mind, and in an access of shyness ran away and hid herself among the brick pillars. Now Col. R. R. Weir, inspector general of prisons, happened to be in the village, and to him the incident was reported. Though it cannot be said that the duties of an inspector general of prisons included the destruction of vermin, Col. Weir did not stop to consider technicalities, but borrowed a rifle. After some difficulty in getting within shooting distance of the intruder as she lay in her fastness, he succeeded in planting his first shot behind her shoulder, after which nothing remained to be done but to drag off the carcass and record its tale of slaughter—no more than seven feet.—London Daily Telegraph.

Among the Worst City Noises.

All American cities are afflicted with too many noises, most of them wholly unnecessary, and in the opinion of scientists this is the cause of many of the nervous disorders which are characteristic of the nation. Some, however, is so useless and annoying as the raucous yelling of the street peddlers who drive their carts at a snail's pace through the residence districts, shouting at the top of their voices from morning until night. The practice is offensive enough to well persons who have enjoyed a night's rest, but to the sick and to night workers who are compelled to sleep in the daytime it is an intolerable hardship from which they have a right to be protected by law.—Kansas City Journal.

Taking Necessary Precaution.

Neighbor—No one ever hears you and your husband exchanging words. Do you get along so excellently together?

Wife—Not at all; but we discovered that the maid listened at the door. Now we quarrel only on Sunday afternoons between three and six, when she's out of the house.—Fliegende Blaetter.

Asking a Good Deal.

Second Tramp—So would I; I wouldn't have the nerve to ask for a night's lodging, if the nights were six months long.—Smart Set.

Honeymoon on Desert.

During the honeymoon trip of Hon. William Bourke Cockran to Europe and Egypt, he spent part of the time with his wife in a tent on the desert of Sahara for the benefit of Mrs. Cockran's health.

His Wife—You needn't make any excuses, John. It's all right; you're just in time to walk the baby for an hour or two.—Puck.

DEATH BY GAS CRUELTY

Doctor Asks Mayor to Have Method Changed After Seeing Asphyxiation of Dogs.

MR. FISK WILL ACT

Prussic Acid Recommended By a Summit Physician—

A Painless

Death.

The method recommended by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for the killing of dogs, and which has been in force at the Rushmore Dynamo Works during the past two weeks, has been found to be unsatisfactory, and after witnessing a test of the method, which is asphyxiation by gas, Dr. T. S. Davis, in company with another member of the society, called on Mayor Charles J. Fisk, yesterday afternoon, and urged that some other system of disposing of the canines be adopted.

Dr. Davis visited the Rushmore Dynamo Works, yesterday, accompanied by another active member of the S. P. C. A. Six dogs were placed in the gas tank, and the physicians timed the death-killing process. After the canines had been in the tank twelve minutes they were heard to whine piteously, and the same condition existed a minute later. At the end of twenty minutes the tank was opened and one of the dogs was still alive and kicking, while there appeared to be some doubt as to whether the remaining five were actually dead. During the twenty minutes the full pressure of gas was turned on in the tank and in the opinion of Dr. Davis the method was far from being satisfactory and it does not provide painless death.

Mayor Fisk made notes of the report made to him and gave the members of the society every assurance that the matter would be fully investigated and that different arrangements would be made that would more fully meet the requirements.

Another way of disposing of the dogs quickly was suggested in the use of prussic acid. This has been recommended by Dr. Albert E. St. Ingloh, a well known veterinary of Summit. He says that a dose of the acid, after the dog's stomach had been given time to clear itself of undigested food, killed the canine the instant it struck the stomach.

The matter will receive the earnest attention of Mayor Fisk and he will consult with the society and others with a view to adopting some system that will meet with general approbation.

WIDOW CUT OFF IF SHE WEDS.

Thornley Also Leaves Son But $1 of Estate.

In his will, filed yesterday in Newark, George S. Thornley cuts his son, William, off with $1, for "unfilial conduct," and he attaches an anti-matrimonial string to a horse, left his widow. She is to enjoy the property until she takes unto herself another husband; then, according to the will, she must get out and turn it over to Robert, George S., Anna and Sarah Thornley, children; Patrick G. Stickney and Adam J. Rossback are named as executors.

'Phone Operated From New Building

The last of the party telephone lines were cut over from the old to the new building on East Fourth street, yesterday, and with the exception of one department, all are now installed in the new structure. All the city 'phones are now operated by the common battery system and there has been a noticeable improvement in the service, which the company hopes to still further improve as the equipment is adjusted to the new conditions.

Old Offender Gets Sixty Days.

John Giles, a regular caller in the police court on d. and d. charges who was recently exiled from the city, returned to town yesterday for the purpose of seeing a doctor. He got drunk instead and fell back in the body of his wagon allowing the horse to wander over handsome lawns on West Eighth street. Roundsman Higgins gathered him in this morning and Judge Runyon gave him sixty days straight.

Filed at County Clerk's Office.

The following local real estate transfer has been recorded at Elizabeth: John S. Cotter et ux. to John Tenney, Jr., northeasterly side Leland avenue, 97 feet northwesterly of George street, Plainfield, $1. This contract has also been filed: Chas. F. CONVICTED OF MURDER

Jury Returns Verdict of Second Degree in Case of Mrs. Edna Rash.

KILLED HER HUSBAND

The jury in the case of Mrs. Edna Rash, colored, charged with the murder of her husband, Charles Rash, white, retired at 12:40 o'clock this afternoon. While it was recognized that the State had made out a strong case against the woman for murder in the first degree, it was the opinion of many lawyers who attended the trial that the jury would probably find her guilty of manslaughter. The jury returned in an hour and a half with a verdict of "guilty in the second degree."

Mrs. Rash was defended by former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, the plea being self-defense. She claimed that when she failed to clean a fish, which her husband brought home for supper, the night of the crime, June 21, he threatened to kill her. Being afraid that he might take her life she secured a revolver to protect herself.

Rash had for ten years or more been employed as a farm hand by Freeholder Krouse, and at the time he was killed was occupying a house belonging to his employer. On the day of the murder Rash had been carting beer grains from the Rising Sun Brewery. On his last trip he brought back with him a mess of fish. He asked his wife to clean and prepare them for supper. Returning an hour later he learned that she had not touched the fish. He got a knife and began to do the work.

Seeing his wife sitting on the porch he walked toward her with knife in hand and ordered her again to clean the fish. Mrs. Rash ran into the house and came out a minute later, it is said, with a .32 calibre revolver in her hand, running up to where her husband stood, she fired two shots at him, one of the balls entering Rash's forehead and killing him instantly. As the man fell, his wife, as though to make certain of his death, sprang forward, grasped the knife, which had fallen out of her husband's hand and plunged it repeatedly in his back.

The jury in the case is composed of the following men: Uzal B. Crane, Plainfield; Lynus F. Walpole, Fanwood; B. S. H. Baker, Summit; George H. Dellar, Rahway; Alfred H. Miller, Cranford; John Porter, Elizabeth; Alfred Berner, Westfield; Carl Marz, Elizabeth; Hiram Fisk, Westfield; Daniel J. Leonard, Elizabeth; Gabriel H. VanDuin, Summit, and James H. Martin, Plainfield.

Colored Pastor's Address.

Rev. J. W. Turner, A. B. S. T. D., pastor of the First Baptist church, Graham, N. C., and principal of the Haw Valley Institute, delivered a lecture before the B. Y. P. U. of Mt. Olive Baptist church last evening. His subject was "After Enlistment, What?" The speaker likened the young people of the society to military recruits. Among the many things enumerated were preparation and enlistment. This, he said, was consecration. No soldier is fit for duty until he consecrates himself to the cause. Get the equipment, as a soldier must have his weapon and ammunition so must one have the sword of the spirit, which is the Word of God. Learn the tactics, be drilled by those who know the rules, obey orders, do your duty in time of battle, stay and prepare for inspection.

New Theatre Curtain Received.

The handsome new drop curtain that will form a part of the furnishings to be installed in the New Plainfield theatre before the opening next month arrived in the city this morning and was immediately put in place at the Park home. It is a beauty in every sense of the word and one of the costliest ever put up in this vicinity. The scene represents a coaching incident in Colonial days while handsome embellishments are all about it. The new asbestos curtain will arrive next week.

HARD SLAP AT PERKINS

Westfield Council Opposes Auto Race Advocated by Assemblyman who Lives There.

PASS RESOLUTIONS

First Municipality in Union County to Place Itself On Record Against Cup Contest.

The Westfield Town Council is opposed to the Vanderbilt automobile race being held in New Jersey and particularly in the county of Union. The Council put itself on record to this effect Monday night, when the following resolution was passed:

"Be it resolved, That the Council of the Town of Westfield is opposed to the proposed measure looking to *the suspension of the present auto*mobile law for the purpose of permitting any automobile races to be held in the State of New Jersey and particularly in the county of Union, and that the Legislature of this State and the Governor be and they are hereby requested to withhold their consent to the said proposed measure.

"Resolved, Further, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Governor of this State and to the President of the Senate and to the Speaker of the General Assembly."

This action upon the part of the authorities in the home town of Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, who has been especially active in urging the passage of the bill, comes as a sort of surprise. Councilmen Floyd and Gilby were absent from the meeting. Four councilmen voted in favor of the resolution and three against its passage. Those voting in the affirmative were Councilmen Pine, Holden, Russell and Mayor Alpers. Councilmen Berner, Wilson and Wilcox opposed.

RAILROAD FATALITIES TO BE WIRED AT ONCE.

Corporation Agents Ask State Commission to Exempt Trespassers.

The new State railroad commission met yesterday and got down to real business. Representatives of all the railroads in New Jersey met with *the commission in conference on pa*ragraph 7 of the act, which compels the reporting of all accidents to the commission.

These representatives asked what class of accidents should be reported, holding that in accidents were reported the dockets of the commission would be filled to overflowing. The commission first asked that every accident be reported immediately, and then asked the railroad officials to go in conference and work out a scheme and report to the commission. After some time, the railroad officials offered the plan to telegraph to the commission immediately all accidents where one or more persons lost their lives, and to mail to them promptly reports of accidents where the loss amounted to $500 or more.

Another provision is that no reports are to be furnished where the person killed is a tramp or trespasser on the railroad. *But this is like*ly to be turned down, for one of the commissioners called attention to the fact that some roads make a specialty in court of trying to prove that persons killed have been trespassers on the tracks. The scheme of the railroad officials will be acted on by the commission at its next meeting on August 6.

The report of Inspector McKelvey, on the accident at Bloomfield Junction was to the effect that a switchman turned a switch between the fourth and fifth car of a moving freight train, thus sending the rest of the train against an approaching locomotive. He recommended an interlocking switch at that point.

The commissioners appointed James Mayburry, Jr., of Passaic, as assistant inspector to be on duty in the State house daily from 9 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon, to whom reports of accidents can be made.

WANT PRESIDENT AS GUEST.

Elizabeth Will Invite Him to Her Old Home Week.

The members of the Old Home Week committee, preparing for the big celebration to be held at Elizabeth in October, are going to make an effort to have President Roosevelt attend the festivities.

In speaking of the plan yesterday the committee expressed confidence that the President would come of Old Home Week is not also a busy one at the executive mansion. The committee thinks the celebration is of such magnitude as to merit the attention of the President.

Governor Stokes and all the prominent officials of the State will be invited.

ELKS BY THE THOUSANDS

BIG DAY TOMORROW

With the Grand Lodge sessions formally started and the programme of entertainment in full swing, the Elks of the country began to fill the hours with the joyous shouts of their kind at Philadelphia yesterday and last night. Many hundred more of the fraternity arrived in the city today and every train adds to the crowd, so that all the streets are jammed with the merry throng. The Plainfield contingent that has been in attendance since Monday was swelled by nearly two score more this morning and tomorrow at least 100 will leave on the 7.13 train. They will participate in the big parade that begins tomorrow at 10.30 *and promises to be the greatest af*fair of its kind ever seen in the country.

The electric illumination of the city has aroused enthusiasm in every direction, and many visitors who have seen famous displays in all parts of the country agrees that it surpasses anything ever seen. Former County Register John P. Dexheimer, of Essex county, said today:

"The only objection or drawback I see to this great display is the pace it is setting for other cities to follow. I don't know what the next reunion city is going to do."

The feature of the grand lodge session yesterday was the selection of the candidates for office. It was like a great political convention as one after another of the candidates for grand exalted ruler was placed in nomination, and the speeches compared favorably with those of famous political speakers who have had the honor of naming Presidential candidates, running up hundred ballots were cast, and the clerks had the great task of tallying the vote, which occupied hours.

The grand lodge adjourned without having made any announcement as to the result of the elections. It is generally conceded, however, that John K. Tener, of Charleroi, Penn., has been chosen grand exalted ruler.

The only official announcement was that Dallas, Tex., had been chosen as the place for holding the next convention and grand lodge reunion. Milwaukee and Detroit were in the race but dropped out when it was seen they had no chance.

The feature of today's programme is to be the concert by the massed band of all the musicians attending the convention. They will number 3,000 in all and will first parade through the court of honor of Broad street. At the big clambake held in Washington Park, yesterday, "Tommy" Tlmbo, of this city, was one of the Grand Exalted Directors, paying particular attention to the serving of green corn.

Union Outing to Asbury Park Well Patronized.

The excursion today to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove included the Sunday-schools of the Crescent Avenue, Grace Episcopal, St. Stephen's, the Seventh-Day Baptist, Holy Cross, and Heavenly Rest churches and Bethel chapel. There were about 1,000 on the two sections of the train. The first section was in charge of Engineer James Smith, Conductor F. O. Webster, Fireman D. Burns, Brakemen William Crane, L. Johnson and E. C. Hall. Seven coaches of the second section were reserved for St. Stephen's, whose members got aboard at Netherwood. This section was in charge of Engineer H. Dumke, Conductor L. Brakeman, Fireman B. Schuester, Brakemen Charles Fox and William Davis.

Mayor Will Revoke Licenses.

When asked today what he thought of the grand jury's order for him to see that more than fifty inn and tavern licenses in Elizabeth were revoked because the proprietors had not complied with the law, Mayor Ryan, of that city, refused to make any comment other than that there was only one thing for him to do and that would be to revoke the licenses.

WAR ON HIDDEN WEAPONS

Judge in Sentencing Negro Says Habit of Carrying Concealed Weapons Must Stop.

SEVERE PUNISHMENT

Judge Runyon Declares That Law-Abiding Colored People Suffer Because a Few Negroes Carry Razors.

In the city court this morning, Judge William N. Runyon emphasized the fact that his crusade against the carrying of concealed weapons is for all time. When Samuel Hunt, colored, of East Third street, was arraigned before him on a charge of fighting Patrolman Meyers added the fact that the prisoner had a razor in his pocket when searched at headquarters. A fine of $15 or twenty days was passed upon him and in pronouncing sentence, the magistrate said:

"This court has declared itself against the practice of carrying concealed weapons and is going to do everything in its power to put a stop to it. I consider the fighting charge a secondary matter and because of the fact that you had a razor with you I am determined to take it seriously. The majority of law-abiding colored people in this city have to suffer because a few have caused the impression to prevail that every negro carries a blade and is ready to use it."

Hunt protested that he was taking the razor to a barber shop to be honed but the court cut him short by declaring that every man charged with the same offense gave a similar excuse.

The defendant was arrested at his *home last night, following a neigh*borhood quarrel in which he and his wife and his wife's brother pitched into Charles Barney, because the latter had gone to the Hunt yard for a pail of water and had let too much run to waste. Mrs. James Frisbie called the police and she was also in court to explain that the Hunts had called her names and that she wanted protection. Judge Runyon assured her that she would get it.

TRENTON CLUB BOOMS VROOM FOR GOVERNOR.

*Chairman of Democratic City Com*mittee Votes Against Resolution.

The boom for Governor of Judge G. D. W. Vroom was formally launched last evening at the Tenth Ward Democratic Club, of Trenton, where formal resolutions were adopted amid much enthusiasm. Erwin Marshall, chairman of the Democratic city committee, presided at the club meeting, and voted against the resolution.

It is current that former United States Senator Smith, Robert Davis, of Hudson county, and Leader Thompson, of South Jersey, have agreed on the candidacy of former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, on the liquor issue. The Democrats believe that they can win on that issue alone, and the taking of Katzenbach will lend the aid they require on such a platform.

Already the Republicans have begun to stir themselves. They do not like the nomination of Katzenbach, and if he is to run on the liquor platform they propose to put the issue squarely up to him and make his position clear, so that no one will be misled who wants the enforcement of the present closed Sunday law.

Believing that Katzenbach will be the nominee and liquor the issue, the Newark aldermen have passed an ordinance allowing the sale of liquor on Sunday between the hours of 1 and 11:30 p. m., in violation of the State law, and they are daring the sheriff of Essex county to close the saloons. Should Sheriff Sommer, Republican, do so, the Democrats say he will kill his own boom for Governor.

Drunken Farmer Fined $20.

With charges enough against him to warrant his going to Somerville as the county's guest for the next six months, William Saunders, the Warrenville farm hand who fought desperately against arrest Monday afternoon, was fined $20 in court last night. When arraigned before Recorder Dolliver in the borough court he admitted that he had been drunk and disorderly, that he had resisted arrest, drove through the streets recklessly and obstructed the highway. When he was requested to contribute the two tens to the borough treasury or spend sixty days in jail he quickly produced the money.

Enjoy Yourself at the Seashore.

The First Presbyterian, Congregational and Dunellen Presbyterian churches will go to Asbury Park tomorrow on their annual excursion. You cannot enjoy a day better than by going to the popular seaside resort. The trains will leave at the usual time in the morning.

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY AFTER TURNING IN ALARM;

SON ADMITS FIRING HOME "TO GET SQUARE"

John Sprague, Aged Twenty-four, Makes Startling Confession to Chief of Police.

SUSPECTED OF OTHERS

Young Man Cooly Starts Blaze In a Closet In His Father's Home —Kiely's Shrewd Work.

Within a few minutes after he had pulled a box for a fire in his father's home on West Front street, last night, John Sprague, twenty-four years old, was arrested by Chief Kiely on a charge of having started the blaze. Five minutes of "sweating" caused him to confess that he had committed the crime and to admit that he did so in order to "get square" with his father for a fancied grievance. He made an affidavit to this effect before Mayor Fisk and this morning was committed to the county jail to await the Grand Jury's action. It is the belief of Chief Kiely and Chief Doane that the prisoner may have had something to do with recent mysterious fires in the city and every effort will be made to get the truth from him.

Chief Kiely was standing in front of Police Headquarters shortly after 9 o'clock last night when the fire gong blew an alarm from box 12. As it is only a short distance away and located in the heart of the business section, he hastened toward it. Sprague was just turning away from the box as the chief arrived and in answer to a query said the blaze was in his house, situated in the upper part of the frame building at 215 West Front street, directly across from where they stood. The chief asked him just where it was and the young man replied it was in a closet on the third floor.

"Why, how do you know so well where it is?" inquired the officer.

Sprague shifted about uneasily and then replied that his mother had told him. His manner seemed quite suspicious to the chief and without further conversation he requested him to walk to headquarters. The questioning was then continued and in a short time Sprague broke down and confessed.

He asserted that his father had done something to him that he didn't like and that he had made up his mind to fire the house. He placed a lot of paper and inflammable materials in a closet and after throwing a lighted match into the heap went down stairs.

Mrs. Sprague discovered the blaze and screamed for some one to send in an alarm. The cause of the trouble is anticipating just such a call and rushed across the street to the box. He was waiting for the apparatus to arrive when Chief Kiely came upon him.

Sprague was arraigned before Judge Runyon, acting as a State magistrate, today, and was given an opportunity to plead in his own behalf. His only defense was that he was not sober when he planned the act and carried it out.

The young man is the son of William Sprague, who was for many years the foreman in the Boice-Runyon lumber yard. He had been working as a driver but recently has been out of employment. While he has been known to the police, he has always been looked upon as being quiet and orderly and with a record of only one case of drunkenness.

His arrest, however, has caused Chief Kiely to inquire further into his doings for the past few months as there are *circumstances that indi*cate that he might have had something to do with the several fires since last May that have had the police and fire departments puzzled. It was at his home that a slight fire occurred on the night of July 4 and for which no cause could be assigned. It is also said he had been about the Cadmus mill before its destruction last month. He was at one time employed at the latter place. Whether or not here is any truth in these statements will be a matter that Chief Kiely will attempt to work out.

The blaze at the Sprague home was nipped in time by the firemen and the loss will not exceed $50. Hydrant streams were laid in but only the chemical engine was used.

CONTRACT BROKEN BUT CITY WELL PROTECTED

MAYOR BELIEVES SURETY COMPANY WILL COMPLETE SEWER CONTRACT.

There are no new developments in the Southside sanitary sewer muddle and a majority of the Italians employed on the work are still in town awaiting a settlement of affairs so far as their wages are concerned. Mayor Fisk said this morning that he expected to hear from the Metropolitan Surety Company within a day or two as to what it intends to do.

Mr. DeLany, the representative of the surety company, who attended the conference here a few days ago, asked for another week to allow him to communicate with Mr. Morgan, his bondsmen and others interested, promising to communicate with Mayor Fisk as soon as he obtained the necessary information.

The Mayor believes that the surety company will make some arrangements to complete the sewer contract. When its representative together with other interested parties, went over the ground a few days ago, he was favorably impressed and did not seem to think the task a difficult one.

The surety company is protected by Mr. Morgan's indemnifier, and there is no reason, it is said, why Plainfield should lose any money as he result of Thomas J. Cusack's failure to complete the contract. The local officials have heard nothing from Mr. Cusack and in fact it makes but little difference whether they do or not.

MARTINE FOREMAN OF CORONER'S JURY

Formal inquiry into the death of Clarence H. Weeks, who was killed last Friday by grasping hold of an electric light wire that blocked his path on Berkeley avenue, was commenced yesterday afternoon when the jury impanelled by Coroner Lufburrow, by direction of the county physician, met for its first deliberation.

James E. Martine was elected foreman and the other members swore in are William Townsend, Henry Liefke, John J. Kenney, H. W. Marshall and Charles H. Frost. The jury viewed the victim's body and proceeded through the usual formalities in order that burial might be accomplished. The burns in the right hand, where the wire had evidently been grasped, were pointed out by Dr. Lufburrow and the general appearance of the body was noted.

After this procedure, adjournment was taken until next Tuesday morning at 10 a. m. when Public Service officials will be in attendance and the taking of testimony from witnesses will be commenced.

Struck By Awning Rod.

While playing with a number of other boys in front of the Schepflin building, last night, Harold Willard, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Willard, was struck on the head by an iron rod and severely injured. The rod was pulled from its place in a store awning by one of his companions and came down upon him with great force. He was taken to his home and Dr. Lufburrow was summoned. The boy was delirious all night and it is not certain yet as to how badly he was hurt.

Eagles Initiate Nine.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., conferred the third degree on nine candidates at a special meeting last night. Forty members of the Perth Amboy Castle were present and six candidates for the degree. After the meeting an informal time was enjoyed. Refreshments were served. The affair was in charge of the good and welfare committee which consisted of John Bicknel, chairman, Whitney Frazee, John Goff, Joseph Randall and Frank Neidig.

Painters' Dinner.

The Painters & Decorators' Union of New Brunswick visited the local union at the Trades' Council rooms last night. After the meeting the guests proceeded to the Arlington Hotel where a dinner was served.

"N. J. NOT FOR SALE" SUN

New York Paper Quotes Press Comment in Opposition to Race in This State.

UNWISE PROPOSITION

The following editorial appeared in Wednesday's New York Sun:

"New York roads seem to be unavailable for the Vanderbilt cup race for motor cars this year, and its promoters have turned to New Jersey, the State of good highways, in the hope that the contest may find a welcome there. 'Take us in,' they plead. 'You have splendid roads, and we shall spend a lot of money on the days of the preliminaries and of the final struggle. It's a good business proposition; turn your roads into a racecourse, and you will find a profit in it.' All that New Jersey needs to do is to line its pockets with the racers' money is to repeal or forget to enforce the statute regulating the use of automobiles. It is a simple plan; how does it appeal to the people of the State? Curiously enough, they seem reluctant to take advantage of this opportunity. The Daily Press of Plainfield says:

"'It is not surprising that the newspapers about the State have risen up in arms against the scheme to make the New Jersey highways a speed course for wealthy automobilists from other States. The Prelinghuysen law, which meets with the general approval of the inhabitants of New Jersey, is a most excellent measure. The fact is that it never occurred to any one that there was need of a suspension of its provisions until some enthusiastic race promoters discovered that they might have their apetite for bloody sport confined within the law by shortening the amount of money that would be spent in the State while the event is taking place. Surely what is not considered wise in New York could not be made to be proper in New Jersey. It is certainly to be a serious reflection on our good name if the race were permitted to be held here after the Empire State has placed a ban on it. The whole matter is a question of principle and not of dollars and cents.'

"Principle and a good name lives appeal more effectively to the Newark Evening News than the prospect of taking in a little money over the counter:

"'To permit them [the automobile racers] the use of the public high ways is unnecessary under any circumstances conceivable. Those highways are nowhere adapted to such a purpose, and they can at no time be devoted to it; no matter under what precautions, without doing vast injury to people prospering and placing the lives of many people in grave danger. Just one of the lives lost in the Vanderbilt race is worth a millionfold more than all the so-called advantages to be derived from all such contests that have been or will be held.'

"Vain is the money appeal to the Guardian of Paterson, which, strangely, seems to lack any feeling of awe when it considers the personnel of the crowd that follows motor car racing:

"'How would it look now to pass a special law to permit the speed maniacs to invade this State, simply because a bunch of millionaires are willing to pay for any damage done and raise a purse for the surviving family of any unfortunate who may be killed during the racing or preliminary practice?'

"'A bunch of millionaires!' One could not be more disrespectful to a band of bananas. The Guardian recalls that the highways belong to the people, and remarks that they should not be given over to any particular class, to the exclusion of others, for any period of time. The Elizabeth Journal, epitomizing the expressions of many newspapers, says:

"'It is the general opinion among the newspapers of the State, commenting on the proposed race, that the thing for the millionaires to do if they want the race held for a year or two is to buy a tract of land and build a racecourse. This is the only thing for them to do.'

"But the race promoters are pathetically anthropists who want to hold their speed trials where they may distribute their money among the public. Why force them to go as the owners of fast horses do? Of the purpose of roads the News of Perth Amboy says:

"'New Jersey has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in improving the roads throughout the State. This was done primarily to benefit the farmer and make it easier for him to reach markets with his truck. What, then, is the excuse for turning the roads over to a few millionaires that they may idle away a few hours of their time? The highways of New Jersey are for public use, not for private racing.'

"A most unbusinesslike refusal to consider seriously the principal argument advanced in favor of allowing the race—the money it would bring into the State—is apparent in the newspapers of New Jersey. Perhaps it is not the argument best adapted to the character of the population. Can it be possible that New Jersey is not for sale as a racecourse? Can there be another community besides New York in which public sentiment favors the exclusion from the highways of engines making from fifty to ninety miles an hour, and incidentally ruining the roadways, obstructing traffic and killing the unwary, weak, infantile or infirm among the inhabitants?"

RACE UPSETS THE 'PLAINS

Gang's Pursuit of Fleeing Constable Plays Havoc with Customary Silence.

RACKET WAS FEARFUL

Display of Revolver Stops the Chase and Now the Villagers Are Waiting For Developments.

The fractiousness of a gang of young hoodlums gave Scotch Plains' usual after-dark serenity a fearful jolt at about 10:20 last night and for a time the law-abiding residents throught an invasion of desperadoes was in progress. Swiftly moving figures sped up and down the main street and a succession of yells that rent the air brought everybody to the front windows, much the same as when the vamps respond to an alarm of fire and do a lot of unnecessary shooting to let folks know they're earning their exemption from taxes. It was nearly half an hour before the racket subsided and the timid heads of families screwed up enough courage to go outside and learn the trouble.

The excitement had its beginning, it is said, in one of the local hotels, which as everybody knows, are the social clearing houses after night fall in communities the size of Scotch Plains. It seems that Constable Gardner, a one time terror of evil-doers, incurred the displeasure of a village rough who, it is said, has more brawn than brain. He is alleged to have applied an epithet to the minion of the law that brought a reply in the shape of a fearful right-hand jolt just back of the ear and the brawny one bumped the floor with his head to make him forget that he was looked upon as an embryo Fitzsimmons and his first thought was to secure a weapon to wipe out the insult.

He hurriedly left the place with no such intention, it is said, of securing a gun but he returned in a few minutes without one but backed up by a gang of his friends. There were fifteen or twenty of them in all, most of them of the stamp, it is said, that do not like to work and gladly dispose of for anything from a barber's pole to a four-leaf clover. They came to see fair play, they said, and then directed their aggrieved companion just how to "finish up" the man who had struck him.

They found quite some pumpkins when it comes to handling his fists and he was in especially fine fettle last night. He gave his adversary all "he was looking for" and the fact dawned upon the phalanx in the door, it was just at this point that the upset was started and the neighborhood had its slumbers disturbed.

The two belligerents had by degrees adjourned to the street and it gave the gang an opportunity to circle around them. Realizing that he was outnumbered, one of them all, the constable waited for an opening and then beat it up the street, going so fast he only touched the high spots in the road. The entire delegation of plug-uglies took after him and bonds of high grade will not be as favorable as it is now, and that the advantage gained by a present purchase of notes will be lost in the necessity for buying bonds at an advance which will have taken place.

The same reply was met with at a dozen bond and banking houses, until one of the largest private banking concerns in the big city was encountered, where the answer was, by all means, be advertised to issue notes, a good industrial and railway companies, those which net about six and a half or seven per cent. at present prices. Then it was the so-called fatal objection to preferring these notes to bonds crept in, and the dealer, a sort of piece de resistance. The answer, however, was as complete and as satisfactory as could be wished. It was to leave the whole matter to the banker. When the notes have advanced a few points on the improvement of conditions that is sure to come, bonds will be found to have done the same thing, and the banker through whom one bought the notes would then sell the notes and put the money in other issues. Others who want a short-time investment, would get the notes which the seller would secure gilt-edged bonds on terms which would leave him as well off, relatively, as if he had bought them at the time he disposed of the notes.

"Do you see," concluded the banker, "some things can be done as well as others"—Newark News.

Cement Company's Stock.

Plainfield men play an important part in the incorporation of the new National Cement Company. Clarence Murphy is president, Dr. H. W. Emerson, treasurer, and Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow is a director. The company is organized with the intention of erecting and controlling producing cement properties. The demand for the product, it is said, is more than equal to the supply. Plans have been completed for the erection of a two thousand barrel per day plant at Carpenterville, N. J. The property has been extensively prospected and the various analyses of the rock show that it is well adapted for the manufacture of Portland cement. The offices are at No. 1 Wall street, New York. Instead of having the stock underwritten it is being freely offered for sale.

MARTINE BOOM WANES?

Katzenbach May Give Him a Run for Delegates in His Own District.

OTHERS IN LIMELIGHT

As Confidence Increases in Democratic Ranks There Is Less Disposition to Name Martine.

When the time comes to elect delegates to the Democratic State convention that will be held before many weeks have passed, and which will nominate a candidate for Governor, Republican, it will be found that James E. Martine, of Plainfield, cannot have the solid delegation from Union without a struggle or a dicker, according to several politicians in his own party. It is possible that Martine may get the support of all the delegates from his own county either by electing a majority of them who will enforce the unit rule, or even by overcoming at the primaries whatever opposition may have developed. It is declared no longer probable that he and his backers can sit quietly by and just watch Martine delegates being chosen.

Martine's stock rose rapidly above the time that the dinner was given in his honor in Elizabeth recently, when a testimonial to him by his neighbors had its effect throughout the State, and Martine as a possible nominee for the Governorship was seriously discussed in many newspapers and treated with mild satisfaction by those which did not like to become too enthusiastic about it. The confidence that possessed the Democratic ranks even then appears to be more deep-rooted now, and with this change in feeling has also come the belief that the party should nominate a man who is more of a known quantity than Martine.

Some Democrats do not take kindly to the suggestion that Martine is not an absolutely known quantity. Others argue that while his position as a campaigner may always be debated, it is uncertain what kind of a record he would make in the Governor's chair. Martine, they say, is a half lover of ancient conventions and an ardent exponent of new theories. He has blessings ready for the newest reformer and holds out the olive branch to the old bosses. All who discuss his candidacy admit that he is honest to the point of scrupulousness but many fear that he lacks constructiveness to the degree of courting chance. His tendency to avoid the things despised is recognized, but his ability to put together what is wanted is doubted it is alleged. As a picturesque executive it is said that he would be a success but as a business-like Governor it is declared that he would be a failure.

His record in his own county is cited by politicians as being in his favor and as being against him. Some point to the long string of defeats he has encountered as nominee for Governor as being a handicap; others maintain that the strong runs he has made under adverse conditions are sufficient to offset the fact that victory never smiled upon him.

In this dissection of his character by the politicians, his experience in sizing up good timber, there is noticeable a lack of agreement as to his availability. "Availability is the kind of ability we want this year," said one Democrat, "and Martine fills the bill. His view as to availability is combated by those who are most sanguine of success this fall, whether they are Martine men or not.

Friends of Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the former mayor of Trenton, believe that he is the proper shape for the Gubernatorial chair after January 1 next, and are doing some quiet work in his behalf. There is something more than a kindly feeling for Katzenbach among many Union county Democrats and it is said that when the proper time comes some of them will take off their coats to hustle for him.

General D. F. Colins is the chief sponsor of the Martine boom in Elizabeth, and at present, probably notwithstanding that it is losing ground still has the rank and file behind him. The general will stand for Martine till the last, it is declared, and will do some hard work to round up delegates for his favorite, if hard work becomes necessary.

Plainfielders Arrive Safely.

A cablegram received this morning announced the safe arrival at Liverpool, this morning of Corporation Counsel and Mrs. C. A. Marsh. They sailed on July 4 on the Arabic and had a pleasant voyage. Among the other Plainfielders on the boat were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murphy, of Watchung avenue. By a strange coincident the number of their stateroom was 26, while the one occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Marsh was 24. Neither party knew that the other had engaged passage on the Arabic.

CLAIMED WHOLE COUNTY

FOUND IN OLD SHOP

Vice Chancellor Howell, of Newark, while rummaging in a genealogical shop in New York in search for data for a historical paper he is writing, ran across a document of great interest and historical value. It is an answer to a bill filed in resistance to a suit taken from the then owners of all the land included in the territory embracing Newark, Elizabeth, the Orange mountains and intervening sections.

The document is written on parchment and is in an excellent state of preservation. It bears the signatures of more than 400 persons, some of whom were the founders of famous New Jersey families.

The document rightfully belongs to the archives of the court of chancery. It was lost, but how it fell into the possession of the owner of a New York curiosity shop is a mystery, the unraveling of which may shed considerable light upon the early history of what are now Essex and Union counties.

Vice Chancellor Howell will bring the matter to the attention of Chancellor Magie and Governor Stokes will be requested to lend his influence in securing the passage of a bill that will enable the State to purchase the old parchment. The present holders of the document want $1,500 for it. There are in all about 10 pages of writing.

In the early part of the 17th century a party of English immigrants purchased the tract in question from the Indians, giving in payment a small quantity of powder, shot and trinkets. In 1751 the landed proprietors, in the name of the crown, brought suit to nullify these transactions, claiming that the Indians had no title to the lands and could not sell it.

The parchment unearthed by Vice Chancellor Howell is the answer to the bill in that suit, the defendants being the original purchasers of the land or their heirs. All that is known is that the suit was dropped or sidetracked or lost sight of in some manner.

Vice Chancellor Howell regards the parchment as a great find, from a historical view point, and he said today he would try to have it placed back in the possession of the State.

BAPTISTS' BIG TIME AT THE SEASHORE.

800 On the Excursion But There is a $100 Deficit.

Despite the threatening weather conditions, the annual excursion of the First and Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-schools and Faith chapel to Asbury Park, Thursday, was fairly successful. There were 719 tickets disposed of, including those given to the members of the different schools and exclusive of the many children who did not require a ticket, making the total number carried about 800. It is estimated that the deficit will approximate about $100. This will be met by the three Sunday-schools.

The day was a pleasant one at the shore. By the time the excursionists arrived there it cleared off and everyone enjoyed a refreshing breeze. The bathing was exceptionally good, the water being the warmest in over a week. Harold Serrell was the chairman of the general committee, and he was ably assisted by representatives from all three schools. Not an accident occurred to mar the trip for a single excursionist.

Settles Claim Against Railroad.

Settlement has been made in the case against Miss Emily Kelly, mother of the late Edward Kelly, who died on August 14, 1896, from injuries received by the explosion of a flue on an engine of the Jersey Central Railroad. Kelly was the fireman on the train. The accident took place at Fanwood. His mother, a widow, took out letters of administration and placed the case in the hands of Coddington & Swackhamer. Mrs. Kelly resides in Somerville.

Tolbert, of New York, will preach at the Congregational church on Sunday, August 4, and Rev. J. F. Brodie, of Auburndale, on Sunday, August 11. No services will be held at the church on August 18 and 25.

Garretson and daughter, Miss Lillian, of Dunellen; Mrs. Peter Benward, of Piscataway; Miss Dorothy Dunbar, of Piscataway, and Mrs. Ephraim Bolce, of Orange. The feature of the day was a dinner.

BENJ. T. KISSAM DEAD; AGED EIGHTY-NINE YEARS.

Benjamin Tredwell Kissam, for many years one of the best known members of the New York bar, died Thursday night at his home, 1341 North avenue, Elizabeth, aged 89 years, after an illness of five weeks. He was for twenty-eight years a resident of Bayonne, and removed to Elizabeth in 1902.

Throughout his father, Joseph Kissam- he was descended from John Kissam, who settled in Flushing, L. I., in 1664. The Kissam family has furnished many men distinguished in all walks of lifes, in the church, as legislators, and was given to the State of New York one of its Governors.

Benjamin T. Kissam was graduated from Columbia College in 1838, and was at the time of his death the oldest, except one, of his class. After graduation he took up the study of law, and upon admission to practice in 1841, became associated with Dudley Seldon, and on Selden's retirement succeeded to his business.

In 1861 he formed a partnership with George A. Jones, under the firm name of Kissam & Jones, which lasted a number of years and was succeeded by the firm of Kissam & Embury.

Mr. Kissam was one of the founders of the New York Bar Association and was a life member of the Alumni Association of Columbia College and of the St. Nicholas Society of New York. He married, in June, 1864, Miss Florence Coleman, of Trenton, daughter of a well-known physician of that city. She died several months ago. Mr. Kissam leaves two children, Joseph E. Kissam and Bayard T. Kissam.

His Wife Won.

A Georgia man who was unpopular in his community insured his life for $2,000. He took the policy home to his wife and said:

"Thank you, dear," said the wife. "How are you feeling today?"

"Not well," he replied, "and I don't think I am long for this world, and when I die it is my wish that you devote $1,000 of the money to defraying my funeral expenses."

"Mercy on me!" exclaimed the wife. "Why do you want such an expensive funeral?"

"I'll explain. I'm well satisfied that nobody will attend my funeral, and I want to hire people to go at so much a head. I'm going out today and close the arrangements I can make for attendants on that melancholy occasion. If they won't come gratis, why, I'll hire 'em an' give 'em an order on you for the money."

He went forth and at nightfall returned with a delighted look.

"Maria," he said, "it's no use. You can have the whole $2,000. Just go to my funeral yourself."—Atlanta Constitution.

HASTINGS' SNUG BERTH

New York's Democratic Mayor Gives Hugh Hastings a $7,500 Job.

AS A TAX COMMISSIONER

Hugh Hastings, of This City, Resigns As State Historian of New York to Take a More Lucrative Job.

Hugh Hastings, a Republican, having a home in West Seventh street, Plainfield, was appointed Wednesday by Mayor Geo. B. McClellan, of New York city, a Democrat, a tax commissioner for that city. For the last twelve years Mr. Hastings has been the state historian, resigning that position Tuesday.

The appointment of a Republican by the Mayor has caused much comment among the politicians, who interpret it as another slap at Tammany. Mr. Hastings is a warm personal friend of the Mayor, and it may be that personal reasons solely are responsible for his appointment.

The new tax commissioner succeeds a Democrat, John J. Brady, who was elected a Supreme Court justice last November. The salary is $7,000 a year. Mr. Hastings' salary as state historian was $5,000.

Mr. Hastings was an Albany newspaper correspondent when in 1895, Governor Morton appointed him state historian. In that position he has done notable work. He was considered one of the most popular state officials in Albany.

One of the works of great importance that Mr. Hastings has published is a religious history of the state in several volumes.

FILTERING WATER.

A Cheap Method of Purifying Drinking Water.

As efficient a filter as can possibly be secured may be made in a few minutes by any one at the cost of a few cents.

Take a new flowerpot, close the opening in the bottom with a piece of sponge, on top of which place a layer of small stones, previously well cleaned. The layer should be about two inches deep. The upper stones should be smaller.

Procure from some freshly burned charcoal, which has not been kept in a damp or ill aired place. Reduce this to a powder and mix it with twice its bulk with sharp, cleanly washed sand.

With this mixture fill the pot to within a few inches of the top, cover it with another layer of small stones and place a piece of flannel around the rim. The flannel should be large enough to tie around the pot and also to leave a little hollow in the center.

The charcoal should be renewed about twice a month.

RICH DEPOSITS OF ORE FOUND ON CHURCH LAND.

Shafts Already Sunk Show Rich Deposits, It Is Said—Preacher Discovers It.

The North Reformed Church, of Newark, has for some years owned a tract of 175 acres of land in the vicinity of Sparta, Sussex county, which was left to it by Mrs. Eliza Crane, with the proviso that the income from the property be devoted to missionary work. It is now pretty certain that the property lies over valuable iron deposits. Three short shafts have been sunk and each has showed paying ore. The investigation will be carried further, and, if the results are satisfactory, arrangements will be made to sell the virgin ore to some of the iron smelters.

While supervising the surveying of boundary lines, the Rev. Dr. James I. Vance, the pastor, noticed strange vibrations of the needle of a compass he held in his hand. To make an investigation, resulting in the discovery of the ore.

To Broil a Steak.

Few housewives understand the art of broiling, and consequently chops and steaks are often robbed of their delicate flavor by frying in a pan.

A steak or chop properly broiled should have a thin, well browned crust. Beyond this crust the meat should be red and juicy, hardly a shade darker in the middle than near the surface.

If the broiling is to be done on a range, have the fire very bright and clear. Open every draft, that smoke and flames may be drawn up the chimney. Place the piece of meat in the double broiler and hold it as near the coals as possible until the surface is brown, turning frequently. It will take three or four minutes for this. Now raise the broiler several inches above the bed of coals and continue the cooking until the meat is done.

The broiler must be turned often. A good rule is to count ten slowly, then turn the broiler. A steak or chop cut a little more than an inch thick will be done in ten minutes. If liked well done, it should be cooked for twelve minutes.

Exceptional.

"You must insist that your wife is a most exceptional woman!"

"I do," answered Mr. Meekton. "She takes exception to everything I suggest."—Washington Star.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

By REV. WALTER J. TATEMAN D. Passages for reference—Ps. li. 17; Prov. xvi. 19; Matt. xxiii. 12; Luke xviii. 9-14; 1 Pet. v. 5.

"All of you gird yourself with humility, to serve one another; for God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble."

This is a quality of soul which has not been highly appreciated among men and is not yet at a premium in the estimation of the majority of people. Yet it is one of the most valuable assets of human nature. Perhaps one reason why it has not been more valued is that its real nature has been little understood. Counterfeits and caricatures of it have been abundant, but the true article has not been in common use.

A good way to sharply define it is to get a picture of its opposite clearly in mind. The opposite of poverty of spirit is pride. It is unquestionable that one who in pride holds himself as superior to others and deals with them haughtily will find those who dwell in cowed and overawed by his self-important bearing. His self-satisfied air will impress the timid and unlearned as a mark of superior ability. But among reasoning and sober minded folk all such arrogance and arrogant assumption meet merited contempt. This is all of the spirit of heathenism and is doomed as the spirit of the Christ and the better manhood gain ascendency in the world. It wrecked all of the old civilizations and almost dissolved human society.

Permanent human association can be built on no foundation narrower than that which was laid by Jesus Christ. The universal brotherhood of men must be developed and the right of every one to just and merciful consideration. Each must esteem himself as entitled to no more than the next man and must find his own place, not in making others serve him, but in giving loving and free ministration to the needs of others.

Poverty of spirit is far from being servile in character, is not false to fact in placing an underestimate on self either in ability or rights, is far even removed from fear to sycophancy and fawning obsequiousness. It freely esteems its own worth and because of genuine nobility is able to recognize nobility and worth in others and to dare go down to the unworthy and its deeds and assist them to rise to better life.

Not only is poverty of spirit a mark of true manhood and womanhood and attractive in society of all that is best and purest. It is also the one right attitude of soul toward God. What has any one of us that he did not receive? What place is there for pride either in what we are or in what we have done? Suppose we are gifted with talent in some line above the ordinary, the fact of exercising it is a gift. Are we deserving of credit because we found ourselves so endowed? It is a gift from God. Rather it is a trust from Him given for service and for which He will hold us to direct accounting.

Consider soberly what you are and what you have done, and there is no place for self complacency. Rather is there need of confession of unworthiness and entreaty of forgiveness both of God and man.

Do not under any circumstances simulate a modesty and humility you do not have inside. That is if possible more despicable than vanity, pride and conceit. But as you value sterling nobleness of nature cultivate by all means in your power the humbleness of mind which has been shown in Jesus, our Master. Self abasement is the truest exaltation, but he who seeks exaltation knows not self abasement.

The Gospel of Happiness.

A woman who had many sorrows and heavy burdens to bear, for who was need for her cheerful spirit, once said in explanation:

"You know I have no money, I had nothing to give but myself, and so I made the resolution that I would never sadden any one else with my troubles. I have learned and told others when I could have wept. I have always smiled in the face of everybody. I have tried never to let my eyes fall upon my presence without a happy word or a bright thought to carry with them. And happiness makes happiness. I myself am happier than I would have been had I sat down and bemoaned my fate." This gospel of happiness is one which every one should lay to heart. Set out with the invincible determination that you will bear burdens and not impose them. Whether life sun shines or rains in rain falls, show a glad face to your neighbor. If you must fall in life's battle, you can at least fall with a smile on your face.—Whispering.

A Prayer.

O Lord, let me not henceforth desire health or life except to spend them for Thee, with Thee and in Thee! Thou alone knowest what is good for me; do therefore what seemeth Thee best. Give to me or take from me, conform my will to Thine and grant me with humble and perfect submission and in holy confidence I may receive the orders of Thine eternal providence and may equally adore all that comes to me from Thee; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.—Blaise Pascal.

Our Chance.

"Take every chance you can possibly get to be kind; because some day there may be no more chances," writes Margaret Deland. This world is overflowing with our fellows. If we expect to do it, even if we get to heaven, there will be no more tears there to be dried, no wrongs to redress, no quick loving to be needed. We shall have missed our chance and forever. Pass on.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 21.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Present day applications of the last six commandments.—Ex. xx. 12-17. 1 Pet. v. 5.

Having studied the first four commandments, which sum up our duty to God, we now turn to the last six commandments, which refer to the duty of man to man. These commandments are of great importance. It is in vain for any man to attempt to serve God and not live just and honest toward his fellow human beings, whether they live next door to him or on the opposite side of the globe. We are not only to love God, but also our "neighbors as ourselves," and every human being is our neighbor.

1. The fifth commandment enjoins children to honor and obey their parents. "Honor thy father and thy mother." This is a most important command and one that needs to be especially emphasized to-day. The command now seems to be reversed, and many parents obey their children. But the fault lies largely with themselves. There is too much pampering of children and too much effeminate dealing with them, instead of upholding by kindness and love. But it is not love on the part of parents, but weakness. Whether by love or by rod, without tyranny, children should be controlled. If not, the future has in store ruined men and broken hearted parents. But children and youths must not count themselves guiltless. The selfish, ungrateful, disobedient child cannot be too severely condemned. Parents live largely for their children and would die for them. What less can children do, therefore, than to love, honor and obey their parents?

2. The sixth commandment condemns murder. "Thou shalt not kill." But there are different ways of disobeying this command. Christ says, "He that hateth his brother is a murderer," and we would keep this commandment, we must not only refrain from taking a human life, but keep out of our minds and hearts all malice and hatred.

3. The seventh commandment forbids impurity. "Thou shalt not commit adultery." The sin of impurity is appalling in the present age. The overplus of adultery is committed with increasing rapidity. All the Mormons of our country do not live in Utah. Its spaces are also filled with adulterers and many of the divorcees by marrying *again are morally, if not legally, break*ing this commandment. The hearts of the young are often contaminated. Vicious literature, vulgar stories, indecent pictures, and lewd songs are sold and published as advertisements, are playing havoc with the innocency and purity of youth. Christian Endeavor young men and women should avoid all forms of impurity. Do not tell or even listen to an impure story. Avoid books of an impure character. Listen not to the soft and flattering words of those who would ruin you. Above all, keep yourself pure in heart, for "the pure in heart shall see God."

4. The eighth commandment forbids dishonesty. "Thou shalt not steal." Honesty is the foundation of a true character. The dishonest man is despised by all men. And there are other persons who are dishonest. Money got out of another's pocket. Any kind of dishonesty is theft. The capitalist who waters his stock, the merchant who by shrewd (?) business methods takes a penny or a million dollars that are not properly his, are guilty. So are the revelations of dishonest dealings in politics and business in recent years have been appalling, but they should teach the youth of America the important lesson of strict honesty in all things, little as well as great.

5. The ninth commandment forbids false witness bearing. "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." In this commandment all forms of lying are forbidden, from false gossip about our neighbors to perjury before a court of justice. A liar is an abomination to God and to man, and one who has the reputation of defaming the character of others is shunned by all who can possibly avoid them. Stand for truthfulness at all times.

6. The tenth commandment forbids covetousness. "Thou shalt not covet." Covetousness is on the increase. As Christians we should be satisfied with what God has given us and not desire what belongs to others, for the desire may develop into the attempt to possess ourselves wrongfully of them.

BIBLE READINGS.

Matt. v. 21-24, 27-32; xv, 4-9; 1 Thess. iv. 1-6; Col. iii. 8-14; Eph. vi. 1-4; Rev. xxii. 11-15.

Our Pledge.

"Relying on the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation"—how grateful these words must be to our Master, christ as they are said week by week by hundreds of thousands of young lips! It seems as though there is murmur of such words always rising from the world like sweet incense which must do something to counteract the awful, hoarse sounds of blasphemy and rejection. At times, of course, the murmur becomes a great shout when a convention of Christian Endeavorers gathers in tens of thousands. But perhaps the single voice of one minute in any part of the twenty-four hours in which some voice or voices are not professing reliance on the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation. Personally I greatly rejoice in the distinction which is made between reliance on Christ for salvation and on a trust for daily strength to live a godly and a righteous life. Salvation deals with our deliverance from the power of sin which would hinder our fellowship with God, while trust for daily strength looks toward the positive side of Christian living, in virtue of which we are able to do great exploits for God in the world. —Rev. F. B. Meyer, B. A., London.

A BOX OF CIGARS

By CHESTER BARNETT.

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Sharley closed the ledger with a resounding whack, slid the big volume into place, swept the litter of sales-books into a stack, raked pens, pencils, erasers and paper cutters into a drawer and, glancing up, looked into the uncompromising barrel of a tremendous black revolver. The lively tune which he had started whistling on finishing work ended on a high staccato.

"Don't move," the owner of the revolver said softly.

Sharley acted on the suggestion. A tall man, with the shoulders of an athlete, confronted him. The lower half of his face was covered by a China silk handkerchief, while a neat slouch hat was pulled down over his forehead.

"Mr. Shaffles, I believe?" politely inferred Sharley.

"Humph! Why, yes, sir. And I have the pleasure of addressing a man equally famous, Mr. Jack Sharley, expert accountant? Oblige me by permitting your right hand to remain quiet. It displays a tendency to move toward the drawer. If you will allow me, our interests are centered in the safe behind you, and not in the desk."

"What!" said Sharley in mock surprise. "Are you interested in that, too? Then we have another tie that binds. Behind that safe contains, and what it should contain, constitute the terms of the hardest proposition that I have tried to solve for many moons. The gentleman whose work I am going over seems not only to have been a fool in love, but a fool as well."

The burglar's eyes expressed more or less surprise.

"I'll tell you what, Mr. Bur—er—Raffles, I'm glad you came along! I've a proposition to make."

Sharley paused, deliberating. The burglar watched him narrowly, with suspicious eyes studying each line of the bookkeeper's thin, expressive face.

"You are d— accommodating. Sorry to say so, but I don't think I can use you. I believe I can manage it myself."

Sharley's face flushed a threatening red.

"You do what I tell you, and we will both get along better," continued the thief. "There's fifteen hundred dollars in that safe to-night, and I'll ask you to unlock the door and fork over."

"Fifteen hundred!" Sharley laughed scornfully. "Why, man, you can take your paltry fifteen hundred. But if you are with me in this, it is fifteen thousand we are after."

The masked man started at this. Doubt struggled with greed for a moment before he answered.

"Well, I've got the drop on you, so I can afford to be magnanimous. What is your yarn about fifteen thousand dollars?"

"I'll spin no yarns while that cannon is resting on my knee. I tell you, that *money's in the job. And there is no*body on earth, outside of old Shipley and myself, who knows how to get at it. If you want to hear the plan, you can take the pistol out of this drawer and lay it alongside of your own on the counter there, out of reach. Otherwise you can count me out of it altogether."

The burglar looked at Sharley's figure, pondered for a moment and, without taking his eyes off the other, walked around the desk. Opening the drawer in front of Sharley, he removed the pistol.

"Allow me," he remarked, passing his hand over Sharley's pockets. Finding no weapon upon the bookkeeper's person, he laughed and helped himself to the pistol and deposited the two pistols. He then stationed himself midway between Sharley and the counter.

"First, you must understand that I must be kept in the clear on this. On the discovery that the money is gone, if there is not perfect evidence to the contrary, I will most certainly be nabbed by the thief, because no one but the president of the firm and myself knows where the money is. For your part, you will be taking no more risks than if you had got only the fifteen hundred. You agree to that?"

"Yes! Go on."

"Then this is the chance I've been waiting for," whispered Sharley hoarsely, in uncontrolled agitation. "I'll tell you why I called that d— Dowd a fool awhile ago. The head of the firm has always been afraid of blackmail. He has kept the ear-hangs of several years right under that fellow's nose, and Dowd kept blissfully at work pocketing what daily collections he could and trying to keep the books so queered that no one would catch the discrepancies. The fool could have skipped with the whole pile and settled down to a quiet and independent leisure. Still, the man is in other respects clever.

"Though I have never seen him, I have been employed to straighten out books that he has kept for less than six different times in the last few years. I've never known him to make a bobble before. The fake entries in his books have always figured out in the balance, so that the firms he has bamboozled would grin and bear. They lost without prejudice to their customers, and so were able to continue in business.

"But here he has blundered in his books. There was a bill of six hundred and fifty dollars paid to the house two weeks before Dowd absconded. It came by mail, it is supposed. Dowd signed no receipt for it. Neither did he make any entry in the books. Now, two firms claim to have paid up their accounts, both of which aggregated six hundred and fifty. And besides laying himself open to exposure, Dowd has jeopardized the trade of the two best customers of the house.

"The company is willing to stand the loss of the six-fifty, besides numerous smaller ones, provided Dowd will furnish the information as to who paid the amount. If he refuses, the old man is going to put five hundred dollars on his head."

"Oh, let up! Jones & Dock paid the money," said the burglar, half involuntarily. "Get on trail of that fifteen thousand, will you?" he added, angrily.

"I thought you could tell me about it," smiled Sharley, "judging by that yellow stain on the tip of your ring finger. They use a peculiar ink here that is very hard to get off the fingers. Well, Mr. Dowd, about the fifteen thousand. Each evening before he closed the safe, you remember, the old man would bring a cigar box down from his private office. The box was full of cigars and was supposed to contain Havanas of a superb quality, with which he would regale favorite customers. Indeed, there was a layer or two of cigars on top.

"But beneath these the old fellow stowed away all cash profits, after converting them into bills of large denomination. No one dared to touch the cigars, for the old man was jealous of them—as well he might be. One clerk was discharged for pilfering one cigar from the box." Sharley frowned his voice grew more and pointed a trembling finger toward the safe.

"That box is still there."

The burglar's eyes sparkled with fierce brightness. He made a movement toward the safe.

"Wait till we finish our plan," urged the auditor sharply. "The door of the safe must show damage in order that suspicion will not turn to me. This window must be tampered with, too. I don't want to run my head into a noose."

"Go ahead. We agreed on that. We can 'tend to the 'damage' later."

"All right. By the way, you are sure that Jones & Dock paid the six-fifty?"

"Yes, and if you need it, there's a list of the other collections that fail to appear in the books," and the burglar produced a paper from his pocketbook. "Now get out the box. The old fool never gave me the combination. I admire his sagacity in keeping it to yo. He could not forego the sarcasm, though he was trembling with eagerness.

Sharley leaned over and spun the combination of the safe. The heavy bolts clinked and Sharley jerked open the door.

"Here it is. And we will smoke one of the major's cigars to his better health."

"D— his cigars. Show me what's underneath and be quick about it. I back Dowd now. He'll be a one no longer. You can have the cigars, the rest is mine. Hand it over, Mr. Sharley!"

Sharley's lips straightened. He scraped aside the top layer of cigars and found what he sought. Colt's chat nestled snugly underneath.

"Kindly put up your hands as high as you can conveniently, Mr. Dowd, and 'oblige' me by not moving for a moment. Did I not expressly state that the money had been in the box? It was taken to the First National this morning and this little trifle took its place."

While speaking Sharley had moved slowly around the desk. Seeing his opportunity, he suddenly brought down his right hand in a swinging half circle, aiming a blow which, had it landed, would have put the Colt's out of reach. Though Sharley evaded the blow, his aim was lost for a moment. Instantly the burglar sprang toward the counter where lay the two revolvers. Sharley employed an old schoolboy trick that has served many a man after schoolboy days are over. As his adversary sprang, he thrust his foot between the man's legs, and the burglar came to the floor with a terrific crash.

Sharley stepped to the counter and pocketed the revolvers.

"Don't be ill-natured. After favoring me with the information about the six-fifty—which, by the way, will assist me out of a bad tangle—I had thought better of you. Kindly step with me to the front door till an officer happens along. You first, please."

The burglar arose and led the way with sullen obedience.

Sagacity of Ancients.

Many quotations came from the works of Thales, the Greek philosopher and one of the seven wise men. It was he who said, "Know thyself;" "Few words are a sign of prudent judgment;" "Time, after wisdom, and choose what is most worthy;" "There is nothing more beautiful than the world;" "Time is the wisest thing, for it invents and discovers all things."

He also said that it was the hardest thing in the world to know oneself, and the easiest to admonish another. In his youth Thales was urged to marry; but he said, "It is too soon;" and later in life, upon being urged again, he said, "It is too late."

Bad Dream.

"How did the Chinese get their idea of a dragon as their national emblem?"

"I don't know," answered the unscientific person; "but it probably had its origin in the opium habit."

THE DEBT

By CHARLES EDMOND WALK

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

As silent, and as awesome in her silence, as a sphynx, sat Sibyl Clayton, alone with her dead husband. Hours had passed since she had dismissed the few kindly-intentioned neighbors whose services she did not want, and during those hours not a muscle of her tall, slender figure had moved, not a change had passed over the beautiful, pallid face. The tiny parlor, shabby and bare, was but dimly lighted. An incomer could have been at first sensible only of the darkness; but, as sight adapted itself to the interior twilight, he would have been bold indeed not to have shrunk in dread from that terrible, immobile figure and the sinister glitter of her beautiful eyes.

For Sibyl Clayton was thinking not so much of her husband's death as the manner of it, and she was praying with an intensity of fervor that was fast consuming her vitality, praying, pleading, offering her soul in exchange for means of averting that death. It had required 12 years to do it, but here, at last, Philip Clayton lay dead, and to her tortured spirit his murderer seemed as far above any earthly punishment as the very stars.

Was it really so many years ago that she had considered herself the happiest girl in all the world, only to learn that she knew not what happiness was until Phil Clayton came wooing? It seemed but yesterday, and yet the 12 years were like unto as many centuries of torture and agony. For a moment she entered her paradise.

In those halcyon days, wherever there was a man who laid his two eyes upon her, she numbered an admirer; where she bestowed the merest glance in return, a lover. She had graduated at Phil. Indeed, her eyes had become hazy while looking into his; they presently fell from before his ardent look; a rich tide of color mounted to her cheeks, and from that moment she was his, body and soul. They were married when she regarded her passion for Phil Clayton with awe and fear, so wildly it grappled her.

But the conquest had not been one-sided by any means, for Phil loved her with all the ardor that his deep nature and her wonderful beauty could inspire.

Neil Black had loved her, too, however—so vehemently and selfishly that he had devoted his life to revenging himself upon the successful rival. The words of Neil Black when he left Clayton's ears. He had spoken with a deadly quiet that made her turn swiftly to shield her lover with her own body; but Neil Black had merely laughed at her, and as he laughed she had shivered.

"Mark me well, Clayton"—the words now started out from the tumult of her brain with the suddenness of a cry—"you have taken from me the one thing I have desired above the whole world. You know I am ambitious for wealth and power; that I crave the good things of life and enjoy them; that I have won everything upon which I have set my heart. I would toss them all away for that woman—aye, even my life in exchange for a year with her, with no without her love—and do you think that I will stand idly by and see her plucked from me?" And here again he had laughed that terrible laugh. "You were born with wealth, Clayton; so was I. But I fought a bitter fight for mine, and I mean to be cheated of nothing.

"Now hear me: I am going to devote every minute of my life to make of yours a blackened wilderness—to change the fruit of your desires to ashes upon your lips; I am going to pit my strength against yours—my wealth, my brain, against your wealth and your brain—until you curse the day that you were born." Then he had bowed low and left them.

And how well had Neil Black succeeded! Every undertaking of her husband's had brought him only loss. He had not been a man to shrink from such a challenge—nay, he had even laughed at it; but the time soon came when he had to buckle on his armor in grim earnest, only to behold lance after lance broken against the impregnable front of his enemy, while that enemy's web encompassed him closer and closer with the passing years. One night Philip and Sibyl Clayton looked into each other's eyes and read and read therein the ruin that was theirs.

But that was not all. As the Clayton fortunes dwindled, as each succeeding enterprise met failure and disaster, Neil Black had waxed and grown greater until he was made to be reckoned with in the world. He held many invisible but powerful strings in his hands, and at the end of each was a puppet that danced as its master pulled its own particular string. Of the puppets were the humble walks of life, some in high; some were among great corporations, and a few even on the bench. They numbered legislators and senators, ward-leaders and mayors, but one and all responded obediently to the pulling of the strings. And so, with a bit of artful preparation, the aligning of a few innocent appearing circumstances, it had been an easy matter to fasten a crime upon Philip Clayton and behold him a proud spirit, who had been humbled to the dust, his heart broken.

Such was the past that Sibyl Clayton looked back upon as she sat alone with her dead husband. What of the future?

Phil Clayton was buried, and the widow's fierce prayers went up unceasingly to whatever power of darkness she had come to look for aid in her revenge.

One day on a little table beside her lay an open letter, at which she glanced from time to time, as if turning its contents over and over in her mind. It was a proposal of marriage from Neil Black. His reception had occasioned her no shock; the instant she had comprehended its import her mind had clutched at it as a possible means to her desire, but as yet she had found no light. She patiently sought to mould it to every embryonic scheme that tried to shape itself in her thoughts; and one day she rose up and went forth to seek the man of her hatred.

There could be no doubt—he still loved her, if such a passion could be termed love. Her hatred was such *that she could accept his wooing with*out a tremor of repugnance, sitting calmly by and reading him coldly, considering carefully his every word and every movement.

Sitting and brooding in the shabby parlor one afternoon, Sibyl fell into a slumber; but even then she was conscious of praying, praying, praying that the way to vengeance be shown her. And as she slept, suddenly there came to her a vision.

First, the long, waving locks of her hair became unbound and fell about her, a matchless mantle of gold, to the floor; then, one by one, her garments dissolved away, and her body, like unto the purest of marble, gleamed in the dim light. She knew that her eyes were shut and that she was incapable of any sound or motion, yet it was as if she were awake and another individual watching all these strange things that she beheld. After awhile a vague, black figure began to take shape before her. Its head—if it possessed one—was shrouded in a sable robe, that hid every outline; but she was conscious of a powerful personality, quietly regarding her, and, too, it seemed weighed down with an infinite sadness. Presently a hand stretched forth and touched her above the heart and she shrank back with a shriek. The touch burned her flesh like hot iron. Then she awoke, to find herself clothed, although her beautiful hair was really unbound, and the spot above her heart still burned. As she essayed to rise, she fell fainting to the floor.

When consciousness came again to Sibyl Clayton she knew that she was a sick woman. It was an effort for her to make her way to the old family physician—a specialist of renown—but she was driven on by desperation. Then revenge to be taken from her before she had even planned a single blow?

She showed him the spot above her heart—where the finger had touched her—and in solemn tones the great physician pronounced his doom. She never knew how she found her way back to the little parlor.

In a week Sibyl Clayton and Neil Black were married. The months sped, and people remarked that they were happy, but that Sibyl was wonderfully changed. Except for the unnatural thread of scarlet marking her lips her face was as pallid as a lily, and her sapphire eyes still glowed like two stars. Every morning, while her husband slept, she bared his breast and searched it with the fierce hunger of a wolf.

One morning she found what she sought, and silently she fell forward and buried her teeth in his throat.

With a curse he threw her from him and, half awake, sprang from the bed. She laughed and wiped the blood from her lips.

"God, woman!" he cried, catching the light in her eyes, "are you mad?"

She smiled him a moment as he stood clawing at his throat, and then pointed to a chair.

"Sit there," she said, quietly, "and see if you can find any comfort in the thought of my being mad—after your long years of torture to say."

She lay her heart bare before him, while he sat helpless and fascinated; the deadly hatred for him that burned there, and told of the vision.

"See, Neil Black—here is the spot upon my breast to look at your own. Think of the good things of this life and what they mean to you, and then look into the future and behold how hideous a specter stares you in the face. Neil Black, you cursed leper!—my husband, my lover, is avenged!"

With sudden movement she put a hand to her mouth, and he heard the crunching of glass between her teeth. The man was helpless to move. He could only sit horrified, staring at her with glassy eyes, and in a moment a little escaped her and she sank motionless to the floor.

But the man, from that instant, lost the nerve to follow the example set by her. He could only live on and on in the hell she had made for him.

Something in Her Name.

"My name was Katherine Siobig," she explained plaintively, "but now that I am to be taken abroad with the company I have decided I had concluded to change my name. He says mine is not euphonious or something. I am called on the programme 'Katherine Schuyler.' I don't like it half so well, but what are you to do?

"I am not married, you know. That's the worst of it. I have to change your name and be not married; but now I sign myself in my letters, 'Katherine Schuyler, nee Siobig.'"

An Insinuation Feared.

Clergyman—Madam, you must be consoled with the thought that your husband is at rest.

Widow—Do you mean that he didn't have any before he died?

MAIL BROADENED HIS VIEW.

Effect of Confederate Letters on Gen. Lew Wallace.

How the opening of a mail bag full of captured confederate letters appealed to Gen. Lew Wallace, and gave him a new insight into the feelings and motives of his opponents, is one of the occurrences detailed in his "Autobiography," as follows: "After dinner, a soldier brought in a bag tied, not locked. 'Mail,' he said, 'just found.' I had him cut the string and empty the contents upon a table. They were letters unopened. The carrier had doubtless delivered them, then fled. I gave them to an officer for examination. Along towards evening he reported: 'There is nothing here of military importance. But' his voice softened—'look of these. My mother might have written them to me. There are the same prayers in them for their side which we hear for our side—prayers, too, to the same God. I would like to know what you think of them.' And I replied, after having thought through him, I thought-edge myself wiser of a new lesson. The people of the south believe they have a cause; and certainly every one of them who is in the field soldiering for that cause must be respected; he may be misguided, but he must be honest.' From that hour I have not ceased to act upon that principle."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

ACTION WON THE FARMER.

Proof of Kindness Stronger Than Any Political Argument.

The "one touch of nature" that "makes the whole world kin" was added accidentally by a man who, when he was running for the legislature, endeavored in vain to enlist by his argument the sympathies of a certain old Irishman. This Irishman had great influence with his neighbors, and it was therefore with some disappointment that the political aspirants saw Patrick Halloran's expression of stubborn disapproval at the close of an hour's conversation held close to the Halloran pigpen. In the end, however, Patrick and all his friends voted for the man, and one day, when his election was secure, the representative called again on Mr. Halloran. "I thought you were against me, Patrick," he said. "I was," said Mr. Halloran, frankly. "I had no use for your arguments that day you stud so long over the pigpen. But while I minded afterwards how whiles you talked you scratched the back of the pig till he let lay down wid the pleasures of it. I said to meself, 'He's all right, no matther if we do disagree on some few p'ints,' I said." —Youth's Companion.

Primary Colors.

Primary colors are the colors into which white light is separated by the dispersion of a prism. Those named by Newton are red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. Artists reduce these to three—red, yellow and blue. Scientists generally consider that three colors are sufficient to represent the primary color sensations, and in one theory there are supposed to be three sets of nerves in the retina which can respond to these three colors. The idea of three primary colors is that from the combination of these three all hues may be produced which are to be found in white light.

Philanthropist's Good Work.

William P. Letchworth, the donor of Glen Iris, the magnificent 1,000-acre estate that has been given to New York, is the originator of what is generally known as the New York system of almshouse construction. It provides different buildings for the sexes, with an administration building in the center, a service building behind it, all joined by a connecting corridor. Because of the humane spirit of this incidence, he was adopted into the Seneca nation and given the name of "Hei-Wa-ye-is-tah," meaning "the man who always does the right thing."

Prairie Plays Hide-and-Seek.

Some years ago a topographer was sent out from Washington to make a survey of what was known as the prairie, Florida, a bit of land about 25 miles in extent. The survey was made and the prairie described. Three or four years later a new surveying expedition found that this land had been transformed into a body of water, and it was put down on the map as Lake Alachu. It developed that this lake-prairie plays a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde game with itself, sometimes appearing as one and sometimes as the other.

Playing for Safety.

A few weeks ago a negro, of Alabama, entering the witness box, said he thought he wouldn't swear. He thought he would just affirm. "Erastus," said the judge, "how is this? A month ago, when you appeared before me you consented readily enough to be sworn. Why is it you will only be affirmed now?" "Well, yo' honah," said Erastus, "de reason am dat I specks I ain't quite so sure about de facks o' dis case as I was o' de odder."

King's Signature.

Trifling as the actual work of signing his name may seem, when the number of times King Edward affixes his signature to documents is considered the work assumes something of the nature of hard, or at least confining, labor. It is estimated that his royal name is signed to not fewer than 50,000 official documents yearly, and in addition to these there are several hundred signatures affixed to his private correspondence.

CONTINGENCY FUND OF $13,000 PROVIDED

COUNCIL ALSO SETS TIME FOR RECEIVING BRICK PAVE BIDS.

Reporting back the communication from Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, informing the Common Council as to the necessity of providing an additional appropriation to meet emergencies during the year, Mr. Tolles, at the adjourned meeting, Monday, offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing that the contingency fund be $12,000. The members voted to furnish a copy of the certificate to the local taxing body and also to the Union County Board of Taxation.

The second step toward securing brick pavement for the business section of the city was taken, when Mr. Glinan, chairman of the street committee, offered a resolution authorizing the usual two weeks' notice in the local papers that the Common Council will meet Monday night, August 5, at 8 o'clock to receive bids for doing the work. This resolution was adopted as was also another resolution by Mr. Glinan authorizing the laying of the necessary sewer connections in the streets to be paved with brick, before the improvement is made. These connections will be laid to the curb line on East and West Front street, Park avenue and Watchung avenue.

Walter Manning and William R. Codington, owners of the land on the west side of Watchung avenue, adjoining the railroad, petitioned the Common Council for permission to erect a building there of concrete, the front to be constructed of brick. Later Mr. Mellick, acting for Chairman Hibbard, of the fire and building committee, who was absent, recommended that permission be granted, provided Building Inspector Doane approves the concrete blocks being used. On motion the petition was granted.

REPRESENTATION AT COUNTY CONVENTION

DECIDED UPON BY THE REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE LAST NIGHT.

Considerable interest in political affairs was shown at the meeting of the Union County Republican Committee in Elizabeth, Monday. There was a full attendance of members and a discussion of matters pertaining to the coming campaign. The question of fixing a date for the county convention at which time three candidates for the Assembly and a candidate for Surrogate will be nominated will probably be fixed at the next meeting, and if necessary to decide it before that time. County Chairman F. H. Smith is given the power to arrange for the time.

The proportion of delegates is one for every 100 votes cast for the party candidate for Governor at the last Gubernatorial election and one for fraction of more than forty votes over 100. On this basis the representation will be as follows:

Plainfield, 27; Elizabeth, 62; Rahway, 11; Summit and Westfield, 8 each; Cranford, 5; Union Township, 2; Roselle Borough, 3; Roselle Park, 2; Fanwood Borough, 2; Clark Township, Fanwood Borough, Linden Township, Linden Borough, New Providence Township, New Providence Borough, Springfield, Garwood and Mountainside, one delegate each.

The representation of delegates to the State Republican Convention will be one for every 200 votes cast by the party at the last election. The secretary was instructed to notify each election district of the number of delegates to which it is entitled.

The resignation of Corra N. Williams, of Summit, as a member of the county committee, was accepted and J. W. Cliff, of that place, was elected in his place. Resolutions were also passed on the death of George W. Bauer.

It was learned from the political gossip of the evening that Assemblyman Perkins, Tillman and Hudson will be renominated to the Assembly and that George T. Parrott would again like to be considered candidate for the office of Surrogate.

WHO WILL BE NEXT MAYOR OF DUNELLEN?

CONTEST FOR OFFICE LIKELY TO BE BETWEEN WYCKOFF AND FREDERICK.

Talk of the coming mayoralty contest is beginning to interest the politicians of Dunellen. The battle between the opposing candidates is expected to be warm, and the two camps will draw up lines for the clash early in the game.

From present indications the Democratic candidate will be Mayor Wyckoff, who is serving his second term, and Wilson T. Frederick will bear the banner of the Republicans. There were three opposing candidates at the last election, Frederick falling sixty votes shy of election.

Mr. Frederick is said to be grooming himself for the nomination. The Democrats say that, and they believe Mr. Wyckoff to be the man to defeat him should he run. The mayor will not announce himself as willing to accept a renomination, it is believed by his friends that he will not hesitate if the party calls on him for another term of service. Mr. Frederick has had much experience in Dunellen no longer bear the sure-thing appearance that once marked them. The forecast of the workers as to Messrs. Wyckoff and Frederick is based on the popularity of the two men and in their excellence as citizens and public servants.

There is question as to when the mayoralty contest will take place. If the spring election measure is signed, the term of Mayor Wyckoff will extend from January to March.

CHALLENGE ASSEMBLYMAN.

Wanted Him to Debate At Local Option Meeting.

A meeting in the interest of the Anti-Saloon League will be held Thursday night in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. Assemblymen Perkins, Hudson and Tillman have been invited to be present and defend their position in voting against the local option bill last winter.

Previous to the debate in the hall stereopticon views will be thrown on a canvas in the street.

Believing that Scotch Plains is in need for temperance revival, a similar meeting will be held there on Friday night.

Y. M. C. A. NINE DROPS WON ON A TECHNICALITY

CANT HIT RANDOLPH

West Enders Take Kindly to Minford's Shoots, and Garner Hits When They Are Needed.

Pennant aspirations sour the milk of human kindness or words to that effect. Take the case of Manager Listman, of the Y. M. C. A. nine. Seeking consolation for the loss of as untamed appendix that ravening surgeons lifted from his interior three weeks ago, he went to Central Oval Saturday afternoon, counting on the invigoration that would spring from a victory of his colts over the careering Clinton Avenues. Ordinarily, those Clinton Avenues are kind of heart, but they couldn't find an active germ of sympathy for the carved Association manager anywhere on their persons Saturday afternoon. "What's a vanished appendix to a dawning championship?" sternly demanded Ernest Derflinger, turning an unrelenting gaze on the hopeful face of G. Listman. "Play at them!" Whereupon the Clinton boys, heartlessly clearing from their minds all thought of the place where the Listman appendix used to be, turned to and walloped the Y. M. C. A. athletes thoroughly, Score, 5 to 1.

There was nothing at all in this game to soothe Mr. Listman's aching void. The Y. M. C. A.'s were outfielded and outbatted. Minford wearied under steady clouting, and his playmates were not there with footwork, the scoop of the wallop with which to balance the slump. C. Randolph, on the other hand, had a large stock of kibosh, which he plastered thickly over threatening batters, and his support would have served for pitching that didn't fly the limit. Swackhamer and Craig and Nelson were the only ones who could wrench safeties off his delivery, and two of the four welts were suggestive of the itch. Jack Martin glittered at short. Brutal fans say that none of Jack's work fits him now, but these things must be written, if they bust every button on all his coats. He has to pay the tailor, not us.

Y. M. C. A. scored that lone run in the third, on Ralph Schoonmaker's fly, two of Jack's having fits him now, but these things must be written, if they bust every button on all his coats. He has to pay the tailor, not us.

Clinton Avenue took the lead in the fifth on Dupee's error, which gave Gilman a life, O'Loughlin's bunt, on which Gilman went to third, and Schott's hit to right. Both runners scored on a left-field fumble by O'Loughlin having stolen second. O'Loughlin was caught stealing, and Randolph and Barnes whiffed.

In the sixth, Giles, first up, hit to left, Brit Martin fled to Schoonmaker, but Emery walloped one to right, sending Giles to third. Emery stole. Jack Martin fled to center, but Gilman was there with the punch and bashed the bulb to deep center for two bags, scoring Giles and Emery. O'Loughlin fanned. The fifth run was scored in the eighth. Jack Martin, first up, banged a turf-cutter to Ralph Schoonmaker. The shortstop set for the ball, but it found a hole he hadn't covered and kept on going. Emery fled to left. Jack Martin beat out a roller, and brother Brit went to third in the excitement. Jack started for second, and Nelson took a chance on a snapback. Brit gave Dupee the opportunity, but the second baseman lost valuable seconds in an attempt to juggle Jack, and lost both runners. O'Loughlin went out, third to first, and Schott died at the plate. The score:

Loop Hole in Law Used to Secure Acquittal of Man Violating Game Laws.

HIS HOUND AT LARGE

But James Gunn Did Not "Permit" Animal to Run Around Unchained According to His Plea.

Before Justice Mundy, Monday afternoon, James Gunn, of North Plainfield township, was acquitted of a charge preferred by Deputy Game Warden Freeman Strait for permitting a hound dog to run at large in the woods and fields about Watchung in violation of the fourth section of the fish and game laws, the penalty for which is $20. The assistant of the Attorney General appeared for the State as plaintiff, and the defendant was represented by S. S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer.

Two witnesses were produced by the prosecution to show that a hound dog belonging to the defendant had been running loose and that the dog had been followed home by the assistant game warden and his workmen. The defendant's mother had admitted the dog belonged to her son and that the defendant afterward admitted it also. After producing Scholder Demler and Charles Cleaven, who showed that the defendant was in the habit of keeping his dog thoroughly secured, and that they did not see the dog at large on the day in question, and after showing by the defendant that he had purposely let the dog out in the yard and did not know that it had been out until he returned at night, Mr. Swackhamer read the section under which suit was brought. He argued that there was no offense against the law proved by the evidence inasmuch as the law provided that it was unlawful to permit a dog to run at large while the facts showed that the defendant had tried in every reasonable way to prevent it.

The defendant was acquitted and no notice of appeal was given by the representative of the State.

SEQUEL TO FRONT STREET SPITE HOUSE TROUBLE

EX-TENANT SUES FOR DAMAGES—WITNESS UPSETS CASE AS DRAWN.

Unexpected testimony by one of his witnesses upset the case for Lawyer John P. Owens in the suit for damages for $2,500 on account of alleged injuries against Genero and Nicholas Martone. The action was a sequel to the spite house trouble on East Front street, which aroused a lot of discussion two years ago.

Revere, who is Mr. Owens' client, was the tenant of the house when the place was ordered razed by the owner. He alleged that he was put out of the house without proper legal procedure and claimed damages in consequence. The Martones were the original owners of the structure, and Mr. Owens started suit against them in the belief that he was proceeding against the responsible persons.

Aleck Kane, who tore the house down, was put on the stand by Mr. Owens to testify to his part in the proceedings. Kane knocked he bottom out of the case by testifying that he got his authority for razing the building from DeWitt C. Ivins. This relieved the Martones of responsibility, and Mr. Owens brought the case to a close at once. He made arrangements immediately after court to start suit against Kane.

The testimony left the lawyers a bit hazy as to the real owner of the property at the time. Isaac Srager had a contract of sale, which he sold to another man. It was deduced that Srager bought for Mr. Ivins, but had the papers drawn in his name.

"He's good enough for what I want him for," said the doctor. "I don't expect him to prescribe for my patients, but to listen to their gossip. In many cases the privilege of talking over his troubles with the doctor constitutes the biggest part of a patient's cure. I haven't time to listen to all these compalints myself; hence the need of an assistant. This man is good looking and sympathetic. Calling on readily unburden their hearts to him, then when they are ready for real medical advice I can pass them on to me."—Columbus Dispatch.

Sewer Case Conference.

Representatives of Peter Morgan, the south side sewer contractor, and the Metropolitan Surety Company, of New York, bondsmen of the former, will hold a conference with Street Commissioner Gavett and Mayor Fisk this afternoon. Joseph L. Delaney, superintendent of claims, will appear for the surety company, and Lawyer P. J. Quinn will represent Mr. Morgan. Mr. Barker reached this city shortly after noon.

FIRE CRIPPLES BAKERY

LOSS PLACED AT $3,500

George Voehl's bakery establishment on West Front street was again visited by fire, Tuesday morning, this time in the building devoted to the making of bread. The structure is a two-story affair midway between Front and Second streets and connected with the rest of the plant by a passageway. The blaze was in full progress when the city department arrived and before it had been extinguished a loss of $3,500 had resulted. Less than a month ago the barn and storehouse belonging to the establishment sustained damage to the extent of $500 from the same source.

Tuesday's fire was due to carelessness on the part of employes while cooking crullers. It is done in a large pot holding boiling grease and while the men were in another part of the shop it splashed over the sides. The grease caught fire from the stove and in an instant streaks of flame were shooting toward the ceiling.

The bakers made an effort to stay their progress, first using a patent extinguisher and then by shoveling sand, but without success. The blaze spread with the rapidity of a prairie fire and when the men saw it was useless to give battle alone, they dashed outside and made for No. 1 box on Second street, yelling at every step. Their cries were heard by the the all-night fruit dealer in front of Endress' market on Front street, who turned in an alarm from box 12 at 2.26.

With the arrival of the department two hydrant streams were laid into the building and a third was put at work when Chief Doane reached the scene. On the lower floor of the shop was all the valuable machinery that is used in bread-making, including a mixer and steam oven, while upstairs were stored 100 barrels of flour in sacks and a large quantity of paper and bags. The fire and water were kept from the oven but everything else suffered from either one or the other. In addition to the materials mentioned, the entire night's output of bread and rolls ready to be loaded in wagons, was made useless by water.

Chief Doane placed his men so that the flames were held back from the rest of the plant and the cake bakery and store proper escaped all damage. It was 3.46 before the last spark had been killed and the back taps sounded. The loss on the building will be about $1,500 with an insurance of $2,500; on contents the damage is estimated at $2,000 with insurance of half that amount.

When seen by a Daily Press reporter this morning, Mr. Voehl said that the plant would be re-equipped in about a week. In the meantime part of his bread supply will be made in the cake bakery and the remainder would be secured from other sources, thus enabling him to keep up his trade. The indirect loss through the temporary suspension of retail business and consequent advertising of municipal affairs, calling attention to violations of the law, where they existed. It is said that a similar letter has been sent to Sheriff William H. Lawrence concerning violations in the county.

Prosecutor Acts.

Prosecutor N. C. J. English has sent a letter to Mayor Ryan, of Elizabeth, dealing, it is said, with violations of the excise laws in that city. The Grand Jury in its recent presentment directed he prosecutor to write to all the officials of governing authorities of municipalities, calling attention to violations of the law, where they existed. It is said that a similar letter has been sent to Sheriff William H. Lawrence concerning violations in the county.

P. C. C. Social Festivities.

The social features at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday were enjoyed by an unusually large number of members and friends. Full ninety dinners were served. The open tennis tournament attracted many to the club and a number of the contestants were afterward entertained at dinner. During the evening music was furnished for dancing and many of the young people enjoyed the program.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Elsie Brokaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. DeWitt Brokaw, of Sycamore avenue, to Arthur Stout, of Washington Valley, formerly of New Brunswick.

COLORED MAN WITH ADJUSTABLE MEMORY

AND AN ORIGINAL THEORY TO FIT THE USE OF AN ALIAS.

Facing City Judge Runyon on a charge of disorderly conduct, Charles E. Ross, also known, as the testimony brought out, as Thomas Youmans, a colored man, showed himself to be the possessor of an adjustable memory. He remembered everything of credit to himself in the incidents of which his wife told, but had absolutely no recollection of the things discreditable.

Mrs. Ross-Youmans said he had abused her for months. She told of several threats to kill her, and of facing a pistol in her husband's hands as she lay ill in bed. Ross could remember nothing of such incidents. Mrs. Ross said he told her his name was Thomas Youmans, after he had married her as Ross. Ross couldn't remember that, until his wife told, in detail, of the receipt of letters by him addressed to Youmans, "in care of C. E. Ross."

"Now that it is brought to my mind, I remember that," said Ross reluctantly.

"Oh, you do?" said Judge Runyon. "Now, for what did you go around under two names?"

"I don't know," said Ross, with a puzzled air. "Guess that must be a middle name—or may be that's a nickname. They uses lots of nicknames in the South."

"Sixty days," said Judge Runyon shortly.

JOE GLASEL'S NEW HORSE ORDERED SHOT

ANIMAL WAS NEW ONLY IN POINT OF TIME IT WAS JOE'S.

Joe Glasel bought a horse two weeks ago. Tuesday morning, City Judge Runyon signed an order making the horse for death, and Detective-Sergeant John Flynn executed it with his revolver.

Joe lost a horse, but the horse gained peace. It was through the vigilance of a society woman, who is active in the S. P. C. A. work, that the horse was put out of misery. She saw the animal hitched to Joe's cart Monday afternoon, and one look was enough for her. She filed complaint against Joe at once, and an order for his appearance in court Tuesday morning was issued.

Dr. Herbert, the veterinary who examined the horse for the S. P. C. A., testified that it was completely worn out. It was so old, the vet. said, that the only recommendation he could make was to put it to death. Nothing could ease the misery in its ancient frame. Joe said he guessed the veterinary knew his business; it was all true, and he was willing to have the horse shot.

Joe bought horse and cart together, to engage in carting for a farmer in Willow Grove. He didn't have the money necessary for the enterprise, and the farmer advanced it. Horse and cart cost $53. Joe doesn't know whether he is to get the price of another horse or the $50 he still owes the farmer.

Immediately after the horse case, Joe was rearraigned on a charge of peddling without a license. Joe said the only peddling he knew of was the sale of some second-class vegetables, valued at about twenty-five cents, that the farmer had given his son, who helped him on the wagon, in lieu of a tip. Judge Runyon said he guessed Joe had enough to carry, and dismissed the case.

Most Nearly Perfect Vacuum.

It was Professor Dewar's achievement in liquifying hydrogen that led to the discovery of an easy method of obtaining an almost perfect vacuum, and that in a single minute. When a glass tube filled with air and closed at one end has its open end dipped into a cup of liquid hydrogen, the intense cold condenses the air into a kind of snow that settle to the bottom. If, then, the upper part of the tube, from which the solidified air has fallen, is heated by heating and cooling it off it becomes a vacuum chamber so free from air that it is difficult to force an electric current through it.—New York Herald.

Bitten By a Dog.

Bertha Large, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Large, of this city, was bitten twice in the leg Saturday afternoon, while walking from her home in Whitehouse to the depot. The wounds were cauterized and no serious results are anticipated. Miss Large is a daughter of Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Stephen K. Large and a student in the Taconic School at Lakeville, Conn. Her father had the dog killed and has sent its head to the Pasteur Institute in New York for analysis.

Nearly Loses His Eyesight.

Attempting to light an acetylene gas lamp on an auto, which had gone out but a few minutes before, nearly cost Horace J. Martin, Jr., of the borough, the sight of both eyes a few nights ago. He opened the door to the lamp with one hand, holding a lighted match in the other. The light came in contact with the escaping gas, causing an explosion. Mr. Martin's eye-brows and hair were considerably burned, as was also his face. That his eyes were not seriously affected was remarkable.

Fuller—DeHart.

Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of Lincoln place, officiated at the marriage of his niece, Miss Louise F. DeHart, daughter of John S. DeHart and Dr. Madana F. DeHart, of Mercer street, Jersey City, to Clement Fuller, of Stamford, Conn., which took place at Mount Freedom, N. J., Saturday afternoon.

SEEK EXCISE OFFENDERS

Scotch Plains Citizens Plan Vigilance Committee to Stop Illegal Selling.

TO GATHER EVIDENCE

If the Township Committee Does Not Act the Grand Jury's Aid Will Be Sought.

As disorder and drunkenness continues at Scotch Plains on Sundays some prominent citizens of that place have consulted with certain officials of Union county and plans are on foot for organization of a vigilance committee, which will gather evidence upon which the township committee can act. If that official body fails to act within a reasonable time appeal will be made to Prosecutor N. C. J. English and the Grand Jury to punish those responsible for violations of the Bishops' law.

Conditions at the Plains have been growing worse for some time and the citizens think a crisis is close at hand. It has been alleged that some places do business behind closed doors on Sundays and that fights are frequent at such times. In one place the drinkers are allowed to hang around, it is said, until a fight is started, then the participants are thrown out bodily. When the crowd becomes too thick the bar-keeper, it is alleged, turns out the front lights and the row is allowed to continue in the dark.

With the steps that are now being taken it is thought that peace and order will soon re restored.

KING'S DAUGHTERS BABY CAMP IS OPEN.

Twenty Little Ones There—Contributions Are Much Needed.

The baby Camp, maintained by the City Union of the King's Daughters, on the mountain, was opened Monday for the season when twenty children from this city were taken there under the direction of the camp committee, of which Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney is the chairman. The camp has been put in first-class condition again and Miss Olive DeLany, the city nurse, assisted by her mother, as matron, is in charge of the children.

Contributions of money, one or two strong express wagons, hammock, a couples of barrels of oil and a barrel of flour would be thankfully received. Gifts of money may be sent to The Daily Press office, where they will be acknowledged and other articles may be sent direct to the rooms of the Charity Organized Aid Association on West Front street or to the home of Mrs. F. W. Jones, 4 Lee avenue.

Last season the oil and flour were contributed and it is hoped that they will be this year. Many of the articles desired were stolen after the camp closed last year hence the appeal for a new supply. Recently one contribution of $50 and two others of $10 each were received. Fruits, vegetables, etc., will also be acceptable.

Finger Cakes.

Beat two eggs very light, add one tablespoonful of vanilla and a cup of sugar, creaming two tablespoonfuls. Stir in one cupful of cream of tartar and one-half teaspoonful of soda, adding a half saltspoonful of salt. Add flour to make stiff dough. Roll into a thin sheet, dredge with reserved sugar, pressing it in lightly with rolling pin. Cut into strips a finger in width. Bake light brown in a quick oven, being careful that the strips do not touch one another.

FROM HIS SICK BED FATHER OF AUTO LAW CRIES OUT AGAINST LEGALIZING THE RACE

Frelinghuysen Regretting His Physical Inability Urges Papers to Continue Fight.

STOKES NON-COMMITTAL

Tells The Daily Press He Has Never Stated His Position On Suggested Bill—Hears From Frelinghuysen.

From his sick bed in Chicago, State Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, the author of the New Jersey automobile law, raises a strong protest against any suspension of the provisions of the statute for the purpose of holding a speed merchants' tournament. The strenuous and alert lawmaker expresses his regret that he is not well enough to hasten to Trenton to take up the fight against the proposed scheme.

In response to a query from The Daily Press telling him that this paper had uttered a strong protest and had received the commendation of the New York Sun and other papers in its fight against the independent passage of any act that would temporarily suspend any provision of the present law to allow such a race or any other similar event to take place Senator Frelinghuysen telegraphed this morning:

"I feel that the people of the State of New Jersey will support me in my efforts to retain the present auto law in its entirety. I am equally confident that the people of New Jersey will support me in a protest I have made to the members of the Senate against legalizing this dangerous sport of racing automobiles on the roads of our State. I am physically unable to present my protest to the Senate, but I wish to congratulate The Daily Press on the fight it is making. Personally I am violently opposed to any change in the present law, believing that the safety of human life is at stake. The protection of our people is more important than the mercenary motives of a few and the satisfaction of the sporting instincts of the automobilists.

Although desperately ill, I have kept track of the doings of the Senate and although prostrate on my sick bed, I addressed the following dispatch to Senators Hillery, Wakelee and Minch: "I protest against the giving permission by the Senate to run Vanderbilt Cup race in New Jersey. It nullifies the present auto law and will effect many of its provisions forever. It encourages reckless driving and will be responsible for accidents for proper policing cannot be maintained in the manner devised. The excuse that the race will bring increased business is exaggerated and on the other hand the danger to our roads cannot be estimated. Humanity cries against the perils associated with the last cup race on Long Island. I sincerely hope the Senate of New Jersey will spare our people the menace of this great danger. (Signed) J. S. Frelinghuysen."

"I have also 'wired Gov. Stokes," continued Mr. Frelinghuysen, "asking that he give his assistance in defeating the racing bill. Your tidings of the stand taken by the press of New Jersey came as a welcome bulletin. I cannot see how the Republican legislature can be misled in this manner. Had I been well and in attendance at the Senate, I would have used every effort to prevent the bill getting very far and I am confident that the Senate will not be so foolish as to allow its getting any farther. The thought of the law which I had so much pride and which I feel that the people are satisfied with being wiped out, discourages me."

Senator Frelinghuysen adds that he will not be able to get home before Wednesday and that the doctor insists that he stay at least a week as he will be unable to walk for about ten days yet. "If the bill is allowed to last over a week and if the doctors will let me," concludes the Senator, "I will be on hand to fight against the passage of the bill but if not, the fight is up to other Senators and to you and you are all powerful."

When asked the question by a representative of The Daily Press over the telephone today, Governor E. C. Stokes declared that he had never given out any interview concerning his views of the proposed suspension of the Frelinghuysen law.

"I know I have been quoted as saying that I would sign the bill if passed by the Legislature," said the Governor, "but that is incorrect. It will be time enough for me to give my opinion when the Senate acts. That body will not meet until next week and there is, therefore, no fear that anything will be done until Mr. Frelinghuysen returns if he is coming back by that time. No, I have not said that I favor the measure and would sign it; that is incorrect."

The Governor added that he had received Mr. Frelinghuysen's telegram.

SEEK TO PREVENT THE OBSTRUCTION OF HIGHWAYS.

For the purpose of preventing the unnecessary blocking of sidewalks and streets with vehicles, boxes, lumber, etc., Chairman Ginna, of the street committee, offered an amendment to the ordinance relating to the morals, peace and good order, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday. The amendment permits a person to use one-half of the sidewalk and one-third of the roadway after first securing the permission of the street commissioner, and for violations, after notification, it further provides for a fine of $10 for each day the obstruction is permitted to exist, but the total amount of the fine is not to exceed $100. The ordinance was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised.

SEWING ROOM NOTES.

If a yoke is not desired on the back of the waist, it is always advisable to put one of muslin across the shoulders on the inside. The waist wears much better, for the strain is lessened.

Tucked shirt waists are much more satisfactory in appearance and fit if the tucking is done before the waist is cut out. Tuck a long strip for the two fronts. In this way they are sure to be alike without so much tiresome measuring.

The temptation to keep one's thimble on when not in use is a great one, but it is one which should be resisted. The constant pressure will partially change the shape of the end of the finger, and the heating and consequent moisture will soften the nail.

Something to Wash Down.

One day last July little Freddie and his mother went to visit the boy's cousin, Martha. The day being very warm, Martha served lemonade and cake. Freddie, who was very fond of cake, ate all of his piece before he had drung any lemonade. Martha, noticing this, said:

"Freddie, drink some of your lemonade and it will wash the cake down."

Freddie drank a little lemonade and sat looking longingly at the cake on the table and finally said:

"Please, Martha, can I have one more piece of cake, so as to have something to wash down with this lemonade?"—Judge's Library.

Plans for New School Accepted.

The Board of Education has accepted the general plans for the new public school to be built on Darrow avenue, although some of the specifications have not yet been decided upon. No attempt will be made to secure bids for the work until September, when it is believed that more advantageous figures can be secured.

A Shower Party.

A surprise party, which took the form of a kitchen shower, was held at the home of Miss Mildred Greene, on West Sixth street, Saturday night. The affair was held in honor of Miss Mary John, whose engagement to Eli F. Loofboro, of Riverside, Cal., was announced sometime ago.

Somerset's G. O. P. Committee Endorses Senator for Gubernatorial Nomination.

COUNTY IS PLEDGED

Assemblyman Smalley Eulogizes County Chairman, Who is Expected Home This Week.

A meeting of the Somerset County Republican Executive Committee was held Saturday afternoon at Hotel Cawley, in Somerville, when important business was transacted preliminary to the coming Fall campaign. Former Assemblyman P. V. D. Van Doren, of East Millstone, officiated as chairman pro tem.

An important feature of the session was the unanimous indorsement of Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, for the Republican nominee for Governor. Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, eulogized the Senator and alluded to his great popularity throughout the State. He said that he believed Senator Frelinghuysen were nominated the result on election day would be a decisive Republican victory.

Harry Herbert, a member of the Sewerage Commission, also spoke in favor of Mr. Frelinghuysen.

The Senator is expected home on Wednesday from Chicago, where he has recovered from his recent operation for appendicitis.

COLLEGE DINNER GIVEN BY MISS KATHRYN ROCAP.

One of Saturday Night's Delightful Affairs at Truell Hall.

One of the delightful social functions at Truell Hall Saturday night was a dinner given by Miss Kathryn Rocap for a number of her college friends. Covers were laid for fourteen. The decorations were particularly attractive, the colors of the various colleges represented, being displayed on the table. Those present were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Rocap, Miss May Batchelor, Miss Kathryn Rocap, Miss Marion Rocap, Edward Rice, Roland Rice and Charles Rocap, of Plainfield; Miss Mills and Miss Druet, of Boston, Mass.; Miss Wise, of Newtonville, Mass.; Charles Owen, of Richmond, Va.; Mr. Weller, of New York, and Mr. Russell, of Brooklyn.

After the dinner the party enjoyed the dancing, music for which was furnished by Mrs. Truell. Plainfielders and out-of-town guests to the number of about 200 attended the dance.

VALUABLE SAND DEPOSITS.

Middlesex Farmers Excited Over Recent Discovery.

The residents of the farms between Old Bridge and South River are in great excitement over the discovery by Charles W. Fisher, of Sayreville, that the land belonging to Ezekiel Polhemus contains valuable deposits of glass sand, moulding, sand and fire clay, which will raise the value of the place to over $50,000.

It is suspected that large veins of the valuable substance runs through the locality, and the property owners in the vicinity may realize untold wealth if the veins go through their farms.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The recent visit of the Prince of Wales to India, cost $297,915.15.

Prince William of Sweden is expected to visit Newport in August on the cruiser Eygila.

The baby prince of Spain's name has been entered upon the roll of a regiment, and he wears the number of it in gold pinned on his bib. A bed in the barracks is reserved for him as the latest recruit.

Ranjitsinhji, the Indian prince who was formerly the best cricket player in all England and familiarly known as "Ranji," has set 200 guineas to his old cricket club, half of which is commemorate of his accession to the throne of Jamnagar and the other half an annual gift.

The Word "Widow."

As a word "widow" is most interesting. Max Mueller traced it back through thousands of years with hardly any change of form or meaning. The word at its original formation meant simply a woman left without a man, just as it does today, and it has remained all these ages materially unchanged both in sound and meaning. A thousand years ago in the Anglo-Saxons used the word in England and North Germany. The Meso-Goths and, earlier than they, the Latin people knew it centuries before the Anglo-Saxons, and the Sanskrit records show that a thousand years before Latin was written the same word was spoken on the slopes of the Himalayas.

Realty Changes.

Robert Pierce, real estate agent, has sold the two residential properties at 338 and 340 East Third street for the Central Land Improvement Company, and he has also rented William Dealaman's property on West Front street to M. and A. Tepper, the new proprietors of I. H. Poehm's dry goods store.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT ON THE P. G. C. COURTS

PRELIMINARY FIRST AND SECOND ROUNDS ARE PLAYED.

The invitation tennis tournament, men's doubles, open to teams in New York and New Jersey, which was held Saturday under the auspices of the Plainfield Country Club, attracted many of the crack players throughout the Metropolitan district, and a large gallery had the privilege of seeing some exceptionally fast tennis play.

A feature of the first round was the fact that the playing was so close and exciting that nearly every match required three sets to be played. All of the Plainfield players went out in this round.

The surprise of the day was the defeat of S. A. Westfall and E. S. H. Pendergast, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, by Willab Barlow, Jr., and W. V. McGee, the latter team being seeded second respectively. Westfall held the championship in singles in the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association, and the result of this match was contrary to expectation. Both teams played brilliant tennis, the Park Club pair being very steady throughout, while their opponents failed to show the expected strength.

Barlow and McGee are scheduled to meet W. B. Craigin, Jr., and Dean Mathey in the semi-finals and this should be a match well-worth seeing. Craigin has the championship in the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association during the past two years, having defeated Westfall. While the attached Plainfield teams are out of the tournament, there is still local interest by reason of the fact that Bird, now in this city, with his partner, C. Cole, of Morristown, are left in the semi-finals.

The Plainfield Country Club has offered a pair of silver cups to the winners and another pair of cups to the runners-up. The results of Saturday's play follow:

Preliminary round—F. E. and L. H. Ferris, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat W. L. Righter and A. L. Otterson, Plainfield Country Club, 7-5, 6-2; W. Barlow, Jr., and W. V. McGee, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat J. Langdon and S. W. McAneny, Fanwood Club, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

First round—H. J. Cochran, Plainfield, and C. Cole, Morristown Field Club, beat Willard Wadsworth and Thomas M. Day, Plainfield Country Club, 6-4, 6-4; W. W. Bowne, Jr., and N. F. Charlock, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat T. L. Gavett and Monroe H. Long, Park Club, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2; L. Dunham, Ilderan Outing Club, and G. C. Thomas, Jr., Elizabethtown and Country Club, beat A. Lovell and H. L. DeForest, Plainfield Country Club, 6-4, 6-2; R. N. Black and C. Miller, Ilderan Outing Club, beat F. E. and L. H. Ferris, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, 5-7, 8-6, 6-4; W. Barlow, Jr., and W. V. McGee, Park Club, beat C. C. Porter, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, and Owen H. Fleming, Plainfield Country Club, 6-3, 6-1; S. A. Westfall and E. S. H. Pendergast, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat F. Brown and C. H. Stimson, Plainfield Country Club, 6-1, 6-2; W. B. Craigin, Jr., and Dean Mathey, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat H. H. Foster and H. Eggleston, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, 6-0, 6-1; Miles S. Charlock and R. A. West, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat H. T. Eaton, of Plainfield, and W. L. Hildeburn, of New York city, 6-3, 6-2.

Second round—H. J. Cochran, Plainfield Country Club, and C. Cole, Morristown Field Club, beat G. W. Alexander and N. F. Charlock, Elizabeth Town and country Club, 12-10, 6-4; L. Dunham, Ilderan Outing Club, and G. C. Thomas, Jr., Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat R. N. Black and C. Miller, Ilderan Outing Club, 6-4, 6-3; W. Barlow, Jr., and W. V. McGee, Park Club, beat S. A. Westfall and E. S. H. Pendergast, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, 9-7, 6-3; W. B. Craigin, Jr., and Dean Mathey, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, beat Miles S. Charlock and R. A. West, Elizabeth Town and Country Club, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

The semi-finals and finals will be played on Saturday.

EDITOR LEWIS RESIGNS

After Ten Years Service Clergyman Quits as Head of Seventh-Day Baptist Paper.

HIS SUCCESSOR NAMED

Rev. Dr. Gardner to Take Up the Work—Dr. Lewis' Plans Announced.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, who has been editor of the Sabbath Recorder, the denominational paper of the Seventh-day Baptist church since March, 1898, has been released from that position by the Seventh-day Baptist Publication Board, the change to take effect September 1.

The action was taken at the request of Dr. Lewis to enable him to devote his entire time to the position of corresponding secretary of the American Sabbath Tract Society, and to the writing of several special books advancing the interests of the denomination.

The board has extended a call to Rev. T. L. Gardner, of North Loup, Nebraska, formerly president of Salem College, Salem W. Va., to succeed Dr. Lewis as editor and it is believed that he will accept. Mr. Gardner is familiar with the work, having filled the chair for one whole summer during the absence of Dr. Lewis.

When Dr. Lewis asumed the editorship of The Sabbath Recorder, he succeeded Rev. Dr. L. E. Livermore, at one time pastor of the New Market Seventh-day Baptist church, but now of Lebanon, Conn. The arrangement was considered only temporary, as the board expected to secure another man for the chair a little later, allowing Dr. Lewis to continue his special line of work. The board appeared to be in no hurry to make a change and it will be ten years next March since Dr. Lewis was appointed editor.

The camp children contributed to the musical program with several well known hymns. In addition to a solo entitled, "Where Are the Roses?" by Miss Mary Miller, a duet, "Peace, Sweet Peace," was sung by the Misses Elsie and Helen Tudor, also camp children. Prayer was offered by J. D. Loizeaux and Rev. William Mulford, of Scotch Plains.

POLICE WERE ON THE JOB

Down in the old Ninth ward—far west of Broadway and south of the lower fringe of the artificial palm belt—there still exists an old-fashioned chophouse where bad meals and dirty ceilings have not been substituted for good cooking and intelligent service. In addition to the front entrance the place has a door in the rear, opening out on a side alley. On this second exit hinges the story of how a former head of the New York police force became confirmed in the opinion that he had the very finest police force in the world.

When the superintendent as the chief of police was then called, first began to dine at this little chop house there was consternation among the policemen of that and neighboring posts, for many of them were in the habit of dropping in there for refreshment at times when they should have been on duty.

Their discomfiture was not for long, however. Some wise cop with all the instincts of a good detective, familiar with the door on the alley, devised a plan whereby he and his companions were enabled to enjoy their evening chop and ale without fear of detection by their chief.

His scheme, like all good schemes, was simple. When a man on post—one man was always left outside—spied the superintendent coming around the corner he would walk nonchalantly by the chop house, giving the wink to Johnny, the cashier, who sat at the desk by the door. Johnny in turn would tip the dining cops, thus giving them ample time to slip out the back way and through the alley while the unsuspecting superintendent sauntered in by the front entrance.

One evening, just after some policemen had slipped out in response to the customary warning, the superintendent entered with a friend. The guest was a London inspector who had been sent to this country to study our methods.

"Well, you may say what you like," the Englishman said as the waiter was clearing away the dishes, "but I'd be willing to wager you ten of your American dollars that if he were to step around the corner right now and call for help there wouldn't be a bobby within half!"

"You're on with that bet," said the superintendent. "As soon as we've had our coffee we'll just step around the corner here and try it. And if you don't find that inside—"

The waiter did not stop to hear more. He snapped his fingers as though he had suddenly remembered something and hurried toward the kitchen.

"Say," he blurted out to the cook, "tell George to serve the chief's coffee and to take his blamed time about it, too! I can't wait."

Before the astonished cook had time to ask an explanation the waiter was darting up the alley in search of the man on post. Luckily he knew where to find him.

"Listen," he gasped. And he breathlessly related what he had just heard in the chop house.

"Gee!" exclaimed the cop. "When? Whereabouts? Hold 'em as long as y' can, will yer!"

With that he was off in search of the men on neighboring posts, and they in turn hunted up all others.

Back in the chop house the superintendent was apologizing to the inspector.

"I'm sorry the service has been so bad here to-night. I've never known it to be like this before. Well, and now for our bet," he said when he had at last succeeded in getting his check made out.

"Here," said the superintendent, here's a good place. Now, I'll grab you by the shoulders and you yell for help. Good and loud, mind you, just as a man naturally would, you know."

The Englishman drew a deep breath and started in:

"Help! Help! Murder! Mur—"

But he got no further.

Scrambling up out of areaways, tumbling down out of doorways—cops, cops, cops, cops—it seemed as though every man on post and corner in the neighborhood were raising the cops.

Then, as each one apparently saw who it was, he drew off with "Oh, the superintendent! Sorry, sir," and started in to beat up the superintendent's English friend.

"Well," admitted the battered Londoner inspector when explanations had been made and it was all over, "you've certainly got a very effective organization."

"Finest in the world," declared the superintendent, swelling slightly as he started to expand with pride.

Complains of Noisy Nuisance.

"It is a distressing fact that some of our most efficient labor-saving devices are peace disturbing and nerve destroying. Because of the terrific racket they create the pneumatic hammer, swaging machine, swaging hammer and most percussive tools are capable of much greater usefulness than they have yet attained, but," remarks the editor of Machinery, "one cannot consistently wish them to come into general use until some means is invented to mitigate the noise nuisance."

GRASPED LIVE WIRE, FELL LIFELESS ON THE STREET

Neighbor He Was Hurrying to Meet Finds Clarence H. Weeks' Body on Berkeley Avenue.

DEATH WAS NOT SEEN

Hurrying on his way to the railroad station, at 5:50 o'clock Friday morning, Zebulon Chadbourne, of Cushing road, was halted on Berkeley avenue, near Leland avenue, by the sight of a body lying on the walk. He stepped to the form, and recognized it as that of Clarence H. Weeks, of 842 Berkeley avenue.

Weeks was quite dead. Above him dangled a broken live electric light wire. A terrible burn in the center of his right hand, and burns on his back and other places, indicated the way in which he met his death. It is regarded as certain that he took hold of the wire, as it swung in his path, unsuspecting its deadly nature, and fell lifeless.

The dead man was a retired engraver, and had been employed for many years by the Scribner Press, New York. He was fifty-five years old and married. He retired on the first of the month, intending to settle down to a life of quiet and ease. He wrote two letters Thursday to friends in Brooklyn, and, knowing that Mr. Chadbourne was going to that place Friday, he set out to meet him and ask him to post the letters in the New York borough. The last sight of him alive was caught by S. A. George, of Berkeley and Leland avenues, who saw him go by his house at about 5:45.

The police were notified as soon as the body was discovered, and Driver O'Gorman and Patrolman Daniel McDonald were sent to the scene with the patrol wagon. They removed the body to the house, and County Physician Westcott was notified.

No report of a broken wire was received by the police Thursday or early in the morning. Residents of the neighborhood say they heard a loud report at about 10 o'clock, at night, followed by vivid flashes and then the light all about went out. The wire is supposed to have snapped at that time. Immediately after the police were apprised of the death they called up the electric light station and had the broken wire repaired.

Weeks is survived by his wife and a seven-year-old daughter, Lolita. His parents live at Whitehouse, and Rev. Arthur Searing Peck, of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal church, who was a friend of the dead man, notified them of the accident by wire, breaking the news gently.

The Weeks have lived in Nethermood for three years. They came here from Brooklyn. Mr. Weeks had just purchased the house on Berkeley avenue, of David Hipps. Mrs. Weeks is prostrated.

Following this part, refreshments were served and an hour or more was spent dancing.

ITALIAN LABORER BURIED BY BRICKS AND DIRT

CAVE-IN OF DITCH RAILROAD IS DIGGING AT NORTH AVENUE STATION.

Working in a deep ditch through which the New Jersey Central plans to lay a drain pipe near the North Avenue station, Pasqual Cigliaro, one of the Italians employed in the digging, was completely buried beneath a quantity of dirt and several hundred brick, Friday afternoon. The gang was set to work at once digging the fellow out and within ten or fifteen minutes the head and upper part of the body was uncovered. Repeated attempts to pull his legs from beneath the heavy weight were unsuccessful until the dirt was removed.

Alongside the long trench which had been opened was piled several thousand bricks, and the earth gave way beneath the heavy load. The Italian stood directly in the way of the bricks and dirt and he was completely buried. Dr. Albert Pittis was summoned and gave medical treatment. The man was slightly injured.

AGE OF NATIONS.

Turkey, Born in 1453, the Oldest of the Present Generation.

The ages of most countries are recorded as exactly as that of any individual, and many of the nations usually considered old, even ancient, were really born long after those we call the younger nations of the new world. The father of nations, as we know them, is Turkey, with the sultan seated at Conhstanople since 1453.

Then comes Denmark, born in 1523, followed by Russia, born Oct. 22, 1721, when Peter the Great became the first emperor. The United States of America, that most readers probably thought very young, was born July 4, 1776, and France, possibly imagined to be much older, counts from July 14, 1789.

Younger than either is the United Kingdom, born Jan. 1, 1801. Chile was born Sept. 18, 1811; Columbia on July 5, 1811; Holland, Dec. 6, 1813, and Sweden starts from Feb. 5, 1818.

Brazil dates from Sept. 7, 1822; Mexico was born Oct. 4, 1823, and Bolivia was born Aug. 6, 1824. Belgium is younger, being born July 19, 1831, the same year as Ecuador and Venezuela. It may be a surprise to find Italy so youthful, her birth occurring Feb. 28, 1861.—London Answers.

A FAMOUS KEY.

Was Thrown Into Loch Leven When Queen Mary Escaped.

The interesting key of Loch Leven castle is still in existence. It was found in the lake and is supposed to have been the one thrown in by the young Douglas when Mary, queen of Scots, made her escape. The key was originally in the possession of William Hamper, who presented it to Sir Walter Scott, having first had an engraving made of it.

The castle of Loch Leven is situated on an island of about two acres near the northwest extremity of the lake. Queen Mary when she dismissed Bothwell on Carberry hill and joined the insurgents was carried captive into Edinburgh and on the following day committed to Loch Leven castle. On the 25th of March, 1568, she attempted to escape thence in the disguise of a laundress, but was frustrated.

On Monday, May 2, 1568, however, while the family were at supper the boy, William Douglas, secured the keys of the castle and gave egress to the queen and her maid from the stronghold; then, locking the gates behind them to prevent pursuit, he placed the fugitives in a boat that lay near at hand and rowed them to the appointed landing place on the north side of the lake.—Strand Magazine.

TROUNCES CIVILIAN.

Belleville, July 15.—Patrolman Charles Perl has been suspended from duty by Chief Flynn pending action by the police board. The officer, it is alleged, took part in a fist fight Thursday night with Joseph Werk.

Patrolman Peel says that Werk had circulated stories reflecting upon his character and had bothered him while on duty, defying the officer to touch him. Werk, it is said, followed Perl and abused him. Perl, smarting under the abuse, threw his club to the ground, took off his coat and helmet and gave Werk a thorough trouncing. The latter was taken to the office of Dr. Edward O. Cyphers, near by, who dressed his injuries.

WRECKED HER OWN CASE

Mrs. Maguire Made Desertion Her's and Not the Husband's.

TWO MAGISTRATES SIT

Mayor Fisk Started the Case and Judge Runyon Finished It By Dismissing the Complaint.

Her own attitude destroyed the case of Mrs. John William Maguire, who appeared against her husband in the city court Saturday to press a charge of desertion and non-support. Two magistrates sat on the case, Judge Runyon taking it up after Mayor Fisk had started to hear it, had reached the point where he was about to pass judgment.

Mrs. Maguire came to court with her mother and a sister. She accused her husband of having run away to Summit. Maguire was arrested in Summit, where he is employed by a veterinary surgeon. Judge Runyon was out of town, and after waiting for him until 10.30, Mayor Fisk had the case brought before him at the city court.

After the examination had proceeded, Mrs. Maguire acknowledged his duty toward his wife and child. Mayor Fisk turned toward the wife.

"Will you go and live with your husband in Summit?" he asked.

Mrs. Maguire shook her head vigorously.

"I don't want anything to do with him," she said. "I want him to support the child."

Mayor Fisk was just about to end the case when Judge Runyon came in. The mayor called him to the bench and laid the testimony and the wife's statement before him.

"Case dismissed," said the judge.

Mrs. Maguire was represented by W. G. DeMeza. F. J. Blatz defended Maguire.

SIGNERS DESCENDANTS TO ORGANIZE SOCIETY

W. S. M'KEAN APPOINTS RICHARD STOCKTON VICE-PRESIDENT.

William Shields McKean, a former New Jersey newspaper man, and now a resident of Washington, D. C., was in Trenton yesterday in the interests of the formation of a society of the descendants of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Mr. McKean called upon Richard Stockton and formally notified him that he has been chosen as the vice president from the State of New Jersey. The preliminary steps for the formation of this society were laid at a meeting of the descendants at the Jamestown exhibition, July 4.

At that time it was decided to have appointed a vice president from each State to represent the descendants to meet in Washington, October 19 for the purpose of further completing the plans for the formation of the society.

The principal object of the association will be to lend its aid toward the completion of the memorial to Thomas Jefferson, which it is intended to be a memorial to all the signers. This has been undertaken by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association. The cost of this memorial, it is estimated, will be in the neighborhood of $500,000 and with the aid of the new society it is expected will be completed. Mr. McKean is the secretary of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association.

The Man of the Hour.

The 300th performance of "The Man of the Hour" was given last Monday night at the Savoy theatre, New York. Nothing much remains to be written of this effective play, save to record from week to week the fact that it is still on view, and that it is still being viewed eight times a week by admiring playgoers. Here is a combination of a well nigh perfect cast with an excellent and unusual play. The cast includes such well known players as Lillian Kemble, Holbrook Blinn, Mrs. Dellenbaugh George Pawcett, Louise Rutter, Geoffrey Stein, James E. Wilson and others. Despite the hot weather they are still playing the Thursday and Saturday matinees to big houses. "The Man of the Hour" has made a record of the first year of successes, and bids fair to remain at the Savoy theatre for many months to come.

Who Fra Diavolo Was.

Fra Diavolo was the nickname given Michele Pezza, a celebrated renegade monk and Italian brigand, who was born in 1760. It should be noted that the opera of Auber has nothing in common with Fra Diavolo but the name. Pezza was first a stocking weaver, then a soldier in the Neapolitan army, then a soldier in the pope's service, and finally he became a monk, but was expelled. In the mountains of Calabria Pezza took to brigandage, and such was his notoriety and so great were his cruelties that the pope nicknamed him Fra Diavolo. It is consoling to know that he was eventually executed in 1806. —New York American.

SEQUEL TO AN OLD BET

Mr. Walsh and Mr. Callahan Will Visit Ireland Together.

CAME HERE ON WAGER

Among those who will sail next Thursday for Ireland, are John Walsh, of Madison avenue, and Thomas Callahan, the Richmond street grocer, who will go to their native land to spend the summer. The trip will be, in a way, the sequel to a wager made forty years ago, in Erin.

The bet was posted in their native town. One bet the other that he didn't dare to cross the ocean to America. The wager was taken up, and both posted a forfeit. Both were "game," and Ireland lost two sturdy sons that America gained.

Both of them prospered. A year after he came to this country Mr. Walsh secured a position at the Seminary on West Seventh street. For thirty-nine years he has worked there faithfully and by thrift and good judgment has amassed a snug sum. Mr. Callahan engaged in the grocery business, and did well. He is in business still.

A few weeks ago Mr. Walsh dared Mr. Callahan to return to Ireland for a visit. The latter thought of the way in which the trip to this country had come about two-score years ago, and promptly repeated the preliminary of that incident of their lives.

"I'll go if you will," he challenged.

"Then it's go you will," answered Mr. Walsh swiftly, "for I am ready to go when you say the word."

Plans were formed without delay. The old chums expect to have a great time in the place of their birth. A number of their youthful days companions still live there, and they look for an old fashioned reunion.

LUNA PARK'S GROWTH.

Greater Than Last Year and Now Dear to Every Visitor of Coney Island.

Notwithstanding the tardiness of summer, hundreds of thousands of amusement seekers have visited Luna Park since it threw open it gates to the public three weeks ago. The principal features of the Park are now in full blast, and each and every attraction is a remarkable amusement place have been given their finishing touches and the popular verdict that "The Heart of Coney Island" this year is the most extraordinary and most beautiful place of its kind in the world. To add a fitting climax it to "Night and Morning" and "The Wreck of the Corsair" (The Great Shipwreck), one will fully appreciate Frederic Thompson's reputation as a scenic wizard.

Luna Park was great last year, but in no way compared with the triumph of genius displayed in it this season. Thirty-one individual attractions, widely different in their nature make up the "Court of Luna," each one novel, amusing, educational and sensational, contribute their part in helping to materialize the wonderful dream.

Last Saturday and Sunday's attendance at Luna Park has beaten all Coney Island records. Each succeeding day gives proof of the proverbial popularity of Luna Park, which the advertisements truthfully describe as "The Nation's Playground." The laurel must be passed to Frederic Thompson for the many unique and marvelous diversions he is affording his patrons in "The City of Comic Opera."

Mr. Thompson, yacht "The Shamrock," had hard luck in the Bermuda Ocean Race, or otherwise would have surely won the Maier Cup. After getting away last, she led the whole fleet that afternoon, and saw the last yacht fade astern of her at sundown that night. During this time, in her battle against her well-tuned competitors in gales and seas, three of her sails had been carried away, both spreaders of her bowsprit had been carried away, a foot of water washed in her hold, with the pumps refusing to work. Her mainmast had sprung and her log had been torn away.

This last mishap practically cost her the race. When she came to finish in the Lower Lightship, Cape Lindeberg was unable even to approximate his position, and before the sun was up the yacht was driven by heavy seas thirty-seven miles south of Bermuda.

Father Boone's Success.

Rev. Father Boone, son of Dr. W. C. Boone, of West Seventh street, is spending a week with his father, en route to Washington from a delightful vacation trip through Nova Scotia with his mother and sister. Father Boone is the curate at the Church of the Holy Comforter, in Washington, and has been very successful in his work. He is now one of the popular candidates for a ten days' trip to the Jamestown Exposition being conducted by the Washington Post.

Mrs. A. M. Higgins, of Liberty street, who has been visiting relatives at Centreville, Hunterdon county, has returned home.

PHOTOS FOR PROSECUTOR

Snapshots Taken of Many Saloons that Failed to Remove Screens on Sunday.

GOT EVIDENCE QUIETLY

Nobody Seems to Know Who Is Responsible For This Method of Getting Testimony.

Photographers have been busy in Elizabeth for several Sundays taking snapshots of the saloons whose owners failed to remove their screens on Sunday. It could not be learned who was responsible for the employment of these photographers.

The snapshots taken in a way that fails to arouse the suspicion of anybody that they are to be used in prosecutions for violations of the excise law. A stranger stops in front of a saloon that is not complying with the law and, as if photographing some house in which he is personally interested, or building of picturesque or historical interest, succeeds in getting his picture without causing anybody to ask questions. Always, however, the particular place on which the camera is focused is the window.

It is said that the pictures already taken show some curious things. Some saloonkeepers removed their screens, but in their places put large posters advertising cigarettes or some brand of cigars. These placards took but small space through which to see into the barroom, in fact the casual observer could not see within at all. Other views show that the law was openly violated—no attempt being made to remove the screens.

The Elizabeth Excise Board is not held responsible for this novel method of getting evidence against the saloonkeepers. Chief of Police Tenney, of that city, said yesterday that the police had nothing to do with it.

It was suggested that someone connected with the recent Grand Jury may have hired the photographers to do the work, but Charles J. Fisk, mayor of this city, the foreman of the Grand Jury, would not confirm the report. It is believed that the work is being done at the request of Prosecutor English.

A firm of New York photographers, it is said, did the work. To the pictures affidavits will be attached, showing the date on which they were taken.

VALUABLE LUMBER PILE FIRED BY ENGINE SPARKS

Damage amounting to $400 was occasioned by fire in a pile of lumber in the Richmond Street End of the Scott Press Works yard at an early hour Saturday. The city department was called out at 1 o'clock and it was nearly two hours later when the last blaze was extinguished.

The flames evidently originated from locomotive sparks and had crept all about the pile when first discovered. The lumber was dressed red oak, a valuable grade of wood used in the manufacture of tables for printing presses. It was necessary for the firemen to pull down every stick in order to kill the blaze but it was accomplished in a manner that prevented a much larger loss. The pile was worth about $2,000.

In addition to Mr. Scott's loss, Arthur E. Smith, the contractor, will lose $75 by the fire. He has been building a wing wall along the railroad track and his material shed is directly next where the lumber pile stood. The flames got into it and water, which ran into cement, helped the damage along.

The alarm for the fire came about in much the same way that the one for the Cadmus blaze was given last month. The engineer of the pusher engine which plies between Dunellen and Fanwood, noticed the flames as he was returning from a trip and notified the operator at the Dunellen passenger station. Patrolman Dennis O'Keefe chanced to be there at the time and pulled box 21 at Watchung avenue and East Third street.

"Owl Club" Organized.

An organization in this city known as the "Owl Club" has completed plans for the summer. The club consists of young fellows of Plainfield and is represented by seven directors, Stuart Freeman, Howard Freeman, Edgar Freeman, Sidney Rockwell, Samuel Bogart, George Bentley and Paul R. Collier.

If the present plans of the club materialize the members will camp at Belmar during the second week in August.

Dr. Wanser Love Engaged.

An announcement is made of the engagement of Dr. Wanser Love, formerly of this city, and Miss Emily Hill, of Providence, R. I. Dr. Love is a practising physician in Providence and is a son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Edward Love, of this city. Miss Hill is a daughter of Dr. Lester Hill, one of Rhode Island's leading physicians.

ELECTION WORK STARTS

County Chairman to Notify the Various Clerks Regarding Delegates.

GETTING BUSY NOW

Fort Has Good Chance for Governorship—Sommers' Boom—Pitney Mentioned.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith sent to the clerks of the various municipalities in Union early this week notification of the number of delegates to be elected from each to the district, county and State conventions that will soon be held by the Republican party. At the meeting of the County Committee Monday night preliminary details incident to the fall campaign will likely be discussed and arrangements made to get through the work of a routine nature.

Each municipality in the county is entitled to one delegate for every two hundred votes cast for the candidate for Governor at the last Gubernatorial election.

The primaries will be held this year on the second Tuesday in September, under the new law the last Tuesday in September is the date for the primaries except in the year when a Governor is to be elected, when it shall be the second Tuesday.

With the primaries only two months off sentiment has not definitely settled down on any particular man in the Republican party to make it possible to predict with any sort of certainty who the candidate will be. Gossip as been busy with many names, but thus far does not seem to have hit upon any man who may be regarded as other than a possibility.

The avowed candidacy of Sheriff H. Sommer, of Essex, as the champion of the Colby forces, has aroused but little interest in Union county. Politicians here are in favor of a compromise candidate, one who will be acceptable or nearly so to the warring elements within the ranks. Mr. Sommer, as being in the forefront of the Colby fight, has incurred the enmity of a large number of Republicans, and is therefore not regarded as the ideal candidate. Many of these Republicans admire Sommer for the crusades he has conducted in Newark against lawlessness. They admire his fearlessness, too, but they argue that no headway he has made are not only a few deposed bosses and some lawbreakers, but also a large number of the sturdy rank and file within the party.

As far as Union county is concerned the Colby movement has subsided and therefore the boom of Sommer has not the same significance as in Essex, where the Colby element is strong. Even some of the New Idea leaders in Hudson county are not much taken up with the Sommer candidacy.

Among the regulars Supreme Court Justice J. Franklin Fort, of East Orange, is still much talked of. Justice Fort's term on the bench expires next year and it is declared that he would not refuse the nomination if it came to him. He will be absent in Europe for two months and will therefore not have a chance to take part in any movement to shape a boom for himself. The organization, on the whole, would rather have a man from outside of Essex county where factional feeling runs strong and on this account many persist in advocating the nomination of Supreme Court Justice Mahlon W. Pitney, of Morris county. Justice Pitney's term also expires next year. It is said he would accept, but this opinion is not expressed with such assurance as the similar one concerning Judge Fort. Senator Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, is a strong favorite and he may land the plum.

Chandler W. Riker's boom seems to have receded. Mentioned by both Colbyites and regulars a short time ago it is now little heard of.

As things stand at present it looks as if either Frelinghuysen or Fort had the best chance of securing the nomination.

CORPSE FIND HALTS GAY YACHTING PARTY.

Medley had been missing since the Fourth, and is believed to have tumbled into the water while trying to jump to the deck of his vessel.

Coroner Gaskill empaneled a jury, who examined the body, but found no marks of violence that would lead to belief in foul play. The man came here from Norfolk, Va., and when he failed to appear he was supposed to have taken a trip home.

He was known to have money when he left the vessel, but may have spent it before his death. The party who made the discovery gave up their trip for the day.

AGED CLERGYMAN BURIED

Six Ministers Officiate at Funeral Services of Rev. August F. Todd.

EULOGIZE THE MAN

Elmer E. Runyon Sings His Favorite Hymn, "Asleep With Jesus."

—Interment at Somerville.

The funeral of Rev. Augustus F. Todd, a retired minister of the Reformed church who died Monday morning, was held Thursday afternoon from his late home, Dunellen. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. Alexander McKelvey, of Boonton; Rev. Dr. W. S. Cranmer, of Somerville; Rev. Dr. W. H. DeHart, of Raritan; Rev. Dr. James LeFevre, of Somerville; Rev. Dr. Martine and Rev. Daniel Rapalje, of this city, conducted the services. Dr. LeFevre, a classmate of Mr. Todd, spoke of him in terms of highest esteem. "I have known him personally for fifty-five years," said he, "and he was a good man before he was a good minister. This service should not be considered a matter of lamentation, today we celebrate the victory of a valiant soldier of Christ. He never met defeat. Like Paul, he fought the good fight, he finished the course. During the latter part of his illness as the end drew near he was frequently heard praying, repeatedly: 'Oh, Father, take me Home.' His prayer was heard and today he wears the victor's crown."

Rev. Rapalje read the 30th Psalm and offered prayer, which was followed by Scripture reading by Dr. DeHart. "Lead Kindly Light" was sung by Elmer E. Runyon.

Rev. Dr. Cranmer made a few remarks. He said it is just sixty-three years ago last June that Mr. Todd made his confession in the Reformed church of Somerville, in which place he was born and spent his early days. Mr. Todd, he said, was spared the pains of a lingering illness. The friends have the remembrance of his long life of usefulness and of the devoted care which they have given him. "His life," continued the speaker, "was roundly harmonious, and complete. Like Paul, he "kept the faith'; he was moored fast to righteousness."

The dead minister's favorite hymn "Nearer Leadeth Me," was sung by Mr. Runyon.

Dr. Alex. McKelvey, another classmate, spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family and friends. He explained that Rev. Mr. Todd's life and death illustrated the converse of an old saying, which he would render thus, "There is no thorn without its rose." "Today," said he, "we have the thorn, but in looking over his past life we see it marked with a course of roses." Dr. McKelvey had enjoyed the friendship of Mr. Todd for fifty-four years, and he said he had always found him the same steadfast Christian man. "In his life," said he, "there was no strife."

Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Cranmer, and Mr. Runyon sang, "Asleep With Jesus." Rev. Dr. Martine, a former resident of Dunellen pronounced the benediction.

There was a profusion of lilies, roses and sweet peas, including several set pieces.

The pall bearers were the Messrs. E. A. Kirch, John Harrison, Albert Conklin, Sterling Conklin, F. E. Smith and Mr. Lord.

Burial was made in the family plot at Somerville.

There were 2,270 additions last year to the churches of Chicago presbytery on profession, an increase of nearly 600 over the year preceding. The total membership is 28,953, being 1,982 more than reported a year ago, an increase of over 7 per cent.

Father Spigardi, pastor of three Italian churches in St. Louis, has evolved a new plan to gather in idlers. He has established an immense phonograph in the churches on successive Sundays and will turn on the music of the hymns in the evening.

Getting Rid of His Cards.

The other day one of the members, raw to London, was introduced to a party of ladies in the dining room of the House of Commons. As he left he gravely presented each lady with his card. A friend ventured to hint that this was carrying politeness too far for London customs. "Sure," was the reply, "it didn't matter. I had 200 of them printed. And I've changed my address anyway, so they're no use to me."—Leeds Mercury.

NO PAVE FOR NORTH AVE.

Ordinance For Concrete Referred to Counsel and One for Brick Laid on the Table.

DIVERSITY IN VIEWS

Believing that they had a sufficient number of votes to pass an ordinance providing for the paving of North avenue with either brick or Hassam pavement, Councilmen Buxton and Gloak endeavored to have it adopted at the regular meeting of the Common Council, last Monday. The ordinance calling for concrete pavement was finally referred to the corporation counsel for his opinion as to whether the city has the right to lay a patent pavement, and the ordinance providing for brick pavement was laid on the table just before it was moved to pass it as a whole on the second reading.

It was noised about before the meeting that the paved question for North avenue would be brought up, but a majority of the members did not seriously think that either one of the ordinances would pass. Before the matter was finally disposed of there was some straight talk on the part of President Daniel, Councilmen Tolles and Mellick, which prevented the adoption of either ordinance. The supporters of the movement eventually gave up the fight and it was decided not to do anything with North avenue for the present, it being the opinion that its excellent condition does not warrant any hasty action.

Mr. Buxton started the discussion when he offered an ordinance providing for the permanent pavement of North avenue with concrete, understood to be the Hassam pavement, and to be laid equally as well as that on Summit street, Lynn, Mass. The ordinance provided that the avenue should be paved from curb to curb at a cost of $6,000, six municipal bonds of $1,000 each to be issued, bearing 4½ per cent. interest, the same to run from 1910 to 1915. It also made provision for the appointment of commissioners by the court to assess benefits.

Following the first reading of the ordinance, Mr. Tyler interposed several objections, the chief ones being that the unsuitability with concrete pavement, that North Plainfield proposes to try it and that Plainfield can well afford to wait and see whether it proves satisfactory there before trying it on North avenue, especially as there is not now any urgent need of paving North avenue.

Mr. Mellick supported Mr. Tyler, adding that he coincided entirely with the latter, and if concrete pavement should prove all right in the borough he would be willing to vote for it on some other street.

Mr. Gloak in support of the ordinance said that he favored the permanent pavement of North avenue because of the unanimous sentiment in favor of it as expressed by property-owners along that thoroughfare and in other parts of the city.

At this time a vote was taken to place the ordinance on second reading and it was carried, Councilmen Buxton, Gloak, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, Frank Randolph and Tolles voting in favor, and Councilmen Ginna, Mellick, Tyler and President Daniel in the negative.

Mr. Montgomery then moved to amend the ordinance by substituting vitrified brick for concrete, explaining that he was opposed to concrete.

Mr. Gloak was ready for the Second ward member, and jumping to his feet said that he had an ordinance in his hand providing for a brick pavement on North avenue, and he asked Mr. Montgomery whether that would suit him, to which he replied that it would.

While this discussion was still warm, Mr. Tyler said that he would like to ask Mr. Buxton, the father of concrete pavement, what he knew about Hassam pavement, to which Mr. Buxton replied that he had been in Lynn, had ridden through Summer street. He said that the concrete pavement there had a nice appearance, there were no cracks in it and that the residents appeared to be satisfied with it. When Mr. Ginna asked Mr. Buxton whether Hassam pavement was not a patent pavement, the latter replied that he didn't know. He thought that the city might as well add $2,000 or $2,500, the difference in the price between the concrete and brick pavement, as it would be possible to save all of the telford pavement if concrete is used.

Mr. Tyler then moved to have the ordinance referred to the corporation counsel to ascertain whether the city has the right to lay a patent pavement without first obtaining the consent of the abutting property-owners.

When his vote was taken, Councilmen Ginna, Mellick, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, Frank Randolph, Tyler and President Daniel voted in favor of the motion, while Councilmen Buxton, Gloak and Tolles voted against it.

Mr. Tolles, who recently returned from Mt. Clemens, Mich., where brick pavement is used, said that since making that trip his views had changed considerably. He had found it very noisy and when wagons and *trolley cars were passing it was al*most impossible to carry on a conversation. He said that he would like to see concrete tried, but thought there was no particular haste in the matter.

Again the situation changed, when Mr. Gloak offered his ordinance which called for vitrified brick on North avenue, at a cost of $8,000, the eight municipal bonds to run from 1912 to 1919, under similar conditions as named in Mr. Buxton's ordinance. This ordinance was adopted on first reading and then on second reading by sections, but not until Mr. Tyler had an opportunity to present his objections. Mr. Buxton favored concrete, while Mr. Ginna and Mr. Montgomery were in favor of brick, believing it to be the best. Mr. Tyler thought the city could well afford to wait and see how the concrete pavement wears on Somerset street.

Mr. Montgomery informed Mr. Tyler that he chose to go to Massachusetts he could see brick pavement that had been in service for seventeen years.

Mr. Tyler said that it was not a question of his making a trip to Massachusetts. "There are lots of people here," continued Mr. Tyler, "who cannot go a great distance to see pavement, but who are taxpayers and want to see their money expended in an economical manner."

The vote to place the brick ordinance on second reading was adopted, Councilmen Ginna, Gloak, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, Frank Randolph and Tolles voting in favor and Councilmen Buxton, Mellick, Tyler and President Daniel in the negative.

Mr. Montgomery then moved to amend the ordinance by substituting vitrified brick for concrete, explaining that he was opposed to concrete.

Mr. Gloak was ready for the Second ward member, and jumping to his feet said that he had an ordinance in his hand providing for a brick pavement on North avenue, and he asked Mr. Montgomery whether that would suit him, to which he replied that it would.

While this discussion was still warm, Mr. Tyler said that he would like to ask Mr. Buxton, the father of concrete pavement, what he knew about Hassam pavement, to which Mr. Buxton replied that he had been in Lynn, had ridden through Summer street. He said that the concrete pavement there had a nice appearance, there were no cracks in it and that the residents appeared to be satisfied with it. When Mr. Ginna asked Mr. Buxton whether Hassam pavement was not a patent pavement, the latter replied that he didn't know. He thought that the city might as well add $2,000 or $2,500, the difference in the price between the concrete and brick pavement, as it would be possible to save all of the telford pavement if concrete is used.

When his vote was taken, Councilmen Ginna, Mellick, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, Frank Randolph, Tyler and President Daniel voted in favor of the motion, while Councilmen Buxton, Gloak and Tolles voted against it.

Mr. Tolles, who recently returned from Mt. Clemens, Mich., where brick pavement is used, said that since making that trip his views had changed considerably. He had found

BOUND BROOK SHOCKED

Prominent Men Causes No End of Gossip.

DENIALS ARE GENERAL

Card Sharps Also Fleece Somerset People When the Circus Comes to Town.

Sewing circles are agog with discussions of a couchee-couchee dance and of the men who paid to see the exhibition. Bound Brook is not such a big place that everybody does not know the name of everybody else in town, and the gossips have been able to get together quite a list of men who saw the dance. The men deny that they know anything about it.

The excitement is all due to a visit of the Van Amburg circus on Saturday.

And the men in the cigar shops have their own gossips and are confiding to each other how much they lost to the card sharpers who followed the circus into town. The sharpers raked in several hundred dollars with various kinds of gambling devices. A New York policeman, who is at Bound Brook spending his vacation, recognized three notorious card sharps on the street the night of the show, and notified the local authorities, but the crooks evidently recognized him, too, for they fled before the town marshals arrived.

SENTIMENT AGAINST CUP RACE IS GROWING

DOUBTFUL IF SENATE WILL PASS OR GOVERNOR SIGN THE MEASURE.

Leading newspapers of the State are making a systematic crusade against the holding of the international race for the Vanderbilt cup and there now seems to be some doubt about the Senate passing the Lee bill concurring with the Perkins measure, passed by the House.

The House bill amends the Frelinghuysen automobile law, and provides that part 6, section 22, subdivision 3, shall read as follows:

"Third—No person shall drive a motor vehicle upon any public street, public highway, public road, public parkway, turnpike or public drive or way in this State in a race or on a bet or wager; provided that the authorities having charge of roads, streets or highways of the several counties are hereby authorized to designate and set apart a highway or highways to be used at such time or times as may be appointed by the said authorities having charge of the roads, streets or highways, in the period from September 1, 1907, to January 1, 1908, for the contest by motor vehicles for the challenge cup donated by William K. Vanderbilt, jr., such contest to be held under the direction and supervision of the American Automobile Association and the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, and to that end they are authorized to restrict the use of said highway or highways on certain days or parts of days included within the above described period to the purposes of said contest and the trials and elimination tests preliminary thereto or thereof."

A well known New Jersey politician said last night that the feeling against the race was growing so fast that the Governor would hardly sign the bill.

Japan's first interurban railroad was recently opened.

The Navarian railway authorities as a temperance measure have directed that coffee, with sugar, be supplied free to train attendants and to a large class of station and permanent way men while on duty to the amount of one liter—little less than a quart—a day.

Henry F. Shaw, the well known mechanical engineer, of Roxbury, Mass., has recently had patented a new type of his famous balanced locomotive, which he maintains would be adopted by all the railroads of the country on which high speed is made reduce the liability to accident at least 57 per cent.

His Old Letters.

A Wall street business man showed a visitor a bundle of old letters that he was taking home from his office to burn in his furnace. "I wasn't always so particular about these useless business letters," he said, "until I learned that the women cleaners were sorting them out of the waste baskets and selling them to certain firms which make a business of furnishing lists of names for various purposes, mostly to speculative concerns. Then I concluded that I owed it to my clients to protect them from the nuisance that follows getting one's name on a mailing list."—New York Sun.

ORIGIN OF CHINESE LILIES.

Story as Told and How the Bulbs Brought Good Luck.

Very few people who see and admire the beautiful Chinese lilies know the reason why this particular flower is held in such favor in the orient. This is the story of the origin as told by a Chinaman.

Years and years ago a member of the celestial empire had two wives whom he loved dearly because each had borne him a son. While they were still lads the father died and in settling up the estate some difficulty was encountered, for the man left his heirs two pieces of land, one a strip lying in a fertile and beautiful valley, the other a small ribbon of land bordering the bed of a narrow stream. The former land was known to grow anything the country produced, while the latter was accounted utterly worthless.

It was at first proposed that each of the two strips be divided in half and a section of each be given to the two heirs. But the mothers could not agree upon this division and it was finally arranged that one son should take the rich land, while the other should take the sterile piece.

The valley strip yielded bountiful harvests season after season and the rocky one bore nothing until one day the boy owner happened to notice a tiny white, sweet-scented flower blooming among the rocks and after a careful study and examination it was found to be the only one of its kind in China. The flower grew from a bulb and the boy discovered that these bulbs could be transplanted to similar rocky soil without destroying their growth.

Soon the bulbs were in great demand and when it was learned that the flowers came from the land the owner of the plant the boy had all he could do to supply the market. From the sale of the bulbs he grew enormously wealthy, while his brother never made more than a good living out of his valley property.

NEW USE FOR DIPLOMAS.

Dressmakers Could Use Them to Reassure Nervous Customers.

Many New York women who patronize a fashionable dressmaker for the first time propound an embarrassing question:

"Have you a diploma?" they ask.

"I didn't know what answer to make to the first customer that put that question to me," said one dressmaker, "but I promptly framed up a few diplomas. I knew how to sew, but I had no certificate to that effect. Finally I found that many women have suffered so grievously at the hands of incompetents that they were unwilling to trust their work to a person who could not show some guaranty of experience and efficiency, so, although I knew more about sewing than half of the fashionable dressmakers in town, I actually worked in one establishment for three years on that I could point to a printed diploma which says, 'Formerly with Mme. ——, of Fifth avenue.' It pays any dressmaker to arm herself with credentials of that kind. She ought to have her diploma framed and hung on the wall, like a doctor's diploma, so as to give confidence to doubting customers."—New York Sun.

Jeff Davis for President.

Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois, formerly vice president of the United States, is fond of telling an odd experience he had shortly after the civil war. At that time David Davis was much talked of as the man to run against Gen. Grant for the presidency. A conference was held in Mr. Stevenson's presence, at which many leading Illinois and other Democrats being present. A good deal was said about the possible candidacy of Mr. Davis, but no one happened to mention his first name. After the conference had broken up Mr. Stevenson drew an old farmer friend into a corner and asked his opinion. The farmer was from the extreme southern end of Illinois. He said: "Well, Adlai, you know I've followed your lead in politics for a good while and I'm going to do it now. But, honest, Adlai, don't you think it's a leetle mite early to nominate Jeff Davis?"—Chicago Chronicle.

MADE AN AMAZING MIXUP.

Queer Assortment of Marriage Couples in Hungary.

After being employed for 40 years as valet to the male companion of his own wife, a man named Ruzicka, once wealthy, but now penniless and imbecile, has been received into the municipal workhouse at the town of Agram, in Hungary. Ruzicka, left an orphan with a good deal of property, married in 1863 Camilla Ostvic, a professional singer. Returning from the church, the bride introduced her husband to Dr. Theodor Sparcek, a lawyer. Sparcek brushed the bridegroom aside and walked on ahead, enjoying a tete-a-tete with the bride. In a little while he turned to the bridegroom and informed him that he (Dr. Sparcek) and the bride were going on a honeymoon trip. The rightful husband might come, too, if he acted as valet. The husband's poor wits seem to have been scattered forever by the announcement. He was helpless, and accompanied his wife on her elopement. In this manner all three lived uneventfully until 1885, when the woman died. Dr. Sparcek then lost no time in finding a new "wife," but seemed disinclined to marry himself. Under threats of dismissal from his valetship, the imbecile was obliged to go through the marriage ceremony for the second time. Another 21 years passed quietly, when suspicion was aroused by Sparcek selling Ruzicka's properties. The guilty lawyer then fled with the second Mme. Ruzicka, leaving his unfortunate "valet" absolutely penniless.

WINDOWS BEFORE THE DOOR.

Maid's Queer Idea of Providing Ingress for Firemen.

The things people do when they have a fire in the house would make a book full of exceedingly funny reading. The other day there was a fire out on Westminster place, and the maid, as is usual with maids, got very much excited, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. After the fire was extinguished she was related to incidents and declared that her first thought was to open all the windows. "I went and threw up every window," she said. "But," remonstrated the lady of the house, "why did you do that?" "Why, ma'am," was the reply, "I said Mary. "But couldn't they get in through the door?" asked the lady. "Oh, they never does," said Mary with conviction; "they never waits to go to the door, but jumps in through the windows," and she smiled in thinking of her own presence of mind in remembering the vagaries of firemen.

Royalty Avoids Strong Drink.

Queen Victoria of Spain does not know the taste of alcohol. Her special "tipple" is made from oranges—the fresh fruit squeezed into a glass, which is filled with aerated waters. Oranges are a favorite fruit in the Princess Henry of Battenburg was a teetotaler, but of late she has suffered so much from rheumatism that she has been ordered to take a little whisky which she regards as a penance. Princess Christian and her daughters, too, are teetotalers. All the children of the prince and princess of Wales are being brought up strict teetotalers, and they know nothing of alcohol. Princess Patricia of Connaught and her married sister also abjure wine. Another royal teetotaler is the duchess of Argyll, and the two daughters of the princess royal, their highnesses Alexandra and Maud, have never in their lives touched wine.

Marrying Under the Gallows.

In olden days, if a man or woman would consent to marry under the gallows, the condemned person's life or death might thereby be saved from execution. This happened, according to an old English ballad, to a Chichester merchant who was thus saved by a loving maiden. In 1784 a criminal in New York escaped in the same way. (And all readers of Victor Hugo's "Notre Dame" will remember that powerful and dramatic scene where Esmeralda saves Pierre Gringoire.) But Pinkerton records a case where the criminal refused to spend life in this way. The story of this intrepid refusal has been told in lines which bear quotation.

Placing Stamps Wrongly.

"The only way to stop people from plastering a stamp at any old place upon the envelope, except the right one, is to do as they do down in England. There a letter which does not have the stamp in the right position is cast aside and handled only when all other mail is sorted and exchanged." This idea was advanced by a postal clerk. "We often lose considerable time because of these letters," continued the clerk, "for often we have to stop and turn over an envelope to find the stamp. The worst offenders in this respect are not foreigners, but those who have lived here for years."

Slight Misunderstanding.

Talking of German opera, the London Telegraph relates the story of a lady who brought her little son from the country the other day to witness the pantomime at Drury Lane, and took him to Covent Garden, where there was a matinee of "Lohengrin." "The opening of the first act," we are told, "was voted dull by both mother and son. But hope shone brightly when Lohengrin, drawn by the swan, appeared, and little Johnny in excitement called out, 'Oh, mother, look at Sinbad chasing the duck.'" Small wonder that "devout Wagnesites," who sat near, were "upset."

A TIMELY PRESENT.

A certain colored gentleman recently saluted a large colored lady of the Amazonian type in the following language:

"Yuh's lookin' mighty fascinatin' this evenin', Sal."

Sal hauled off and knocked him down. Then, looking him out of an inclination to cry, she said, "Now, yuh jes lay thar till I goes an' finds out what dat word 'fascinatin' means!"

Next day the aforesaid colored gentleman presented the said with a copy of Webster's dictionary, saying, "I might as well tell yuh right yuh ag'in so jes please look up de meanin' of some of these heah complimentation terms."

Sal promptly refused to accept the present upon the ground that one would have to know the word in order to look it up.

Capping Verses—a Game.

The players are supplied with slips of paper and a pencil, and ever one writes a line of poetry, either original or from memory. Then the slips must be folded so that the line is hidden, but the last word of the line must be written over the fold. The slips are passed on, so that a different writer supplies the next line, which must rhyme with the last word of the previous line. Again the slips are passed on. A new line is written and passed on, with the new rhyming word written on the fold. When the papers have gone the round of the company the slips are unfolded and the verses read out.

Don't Hurry.

Do nothing in a hurry. Nature never does. "Haste makes waste, worry speed," says the old proverb. If you are in doubt, sleep over it. But, above all, never quarrel in a hurry; think it over well. Take time. However vexed you may be overnight, you will often look different in the morning. If you have written a clever and conclusive but scathing letter, keep it back till the next day, and it will very often never go at all.—Lord Evebury.

INSPECTED STREET LIGHTS

City Officials and P. S. C. Men Make 3 Hours' Tour in Autos.

IN A FINE CONDITION

Lamps Dirty But Illumination Up to the Requirements—Mayor Much Pleased.

City officials, including Mayor Charles J. Fisk and the light committee of the Common Council, together with representatives of the P. S. C. electric department, made a tour of inspections of the street lights, last night, in automobiles. The trip was planned three weeks ago. It was made for the purpose of ascertaining the exact condition of the lights. They were all found to be in good condition, only one being out and that in front of the residence of R. Henry Depew, president of the Plainfield Protective Association.

The party traveled in three divisions, comprising as many automobiles. In the first car were Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Councilman Henry D. Hibbard, of the light committee, and R. Henry Depew, and H. C. Richardson, superintendent of the P. S. C. Metuchen plant. In the second auto were Farley Osgood, of Newark, superintendent of outside line for the P. S. C., and Councilman Francis Montgomery, of the light committee, while City Engineer Andrew J. Gavett and James Arnold, clerk and superintendent of the Plainfield district of the P. S. Cs. were in the third machine.

It required three or four hours to complete the work. A zig-zag course was followed through every street in the West End of the city after an inspection in Belvidere avenue, ending up on Dunellen avenue. Then the party went through Front street to Richmond, and the East End of the city was traversed in the same way. City Engineer Gavett made extensive notes of the general condition of lights and trees.

It was the general opinion that the lights were all in fairly good condition, although some of the lamps and shades were found to be very dirty. In some sections of the city the lights were completely hidden by a dense growth of trees, some street being noticed in particular. There were five lights on the thoroughfare, but it was impossible to see one of them until directly in front of the lamp. This condition will be changed by Mr. Gavett.

Mr. Osgood informed the city officials that he had issued orders to become effective at once, that all lamps and shades on street lights shall be cleaned every fifteen days. Some of the lamps were found to be not quite up to the required standard, but attention will be given to them at once and it is the purpose of the company to see that lamps are changed more frequently.

There is to be a similar inspection of all the wires, but this will have to be made in the day time and arrangements will be made within a short time to make another trip through the city for that purpose.

BADLY HURT BY FALL DOWN TUNNEL STEPS.

Miss Hansen Landed On Her Head and Was Severely Injured.

Miss Kenneva Hansen, of East Second street, is detained in her home with severe injuries, the result of a fall in the tunnel at the North Avenue station, on Monday night. In descending the steps of the North Avenue side she slipped and fell the entire distance to the bottom, landing on her head.

Miss Hansen was in an insensible condition when Conductor Rocka fellow found her. He informed some friends of the injured woman and they had her removed to her home. Dr. P. J. Zeglio was called. Miss Hansen suffers considerable pain about the head and body, but her condition is not considered serious.

Father vs. Daughter.

On the complaint of her father, Caesar Taylor, a warrant was sworn out by him before Recorder for the arrest of Adelia Taylor. Taylor is a colored gardener living in the borough. His daughter is also living for his house, where she is alleged to have come at various times, breaking furniture and maltreating the man. The case will come up before Recorder Dolliver at the session of borough court tonight.

Too Many Rockets.

In a helpless condition from the use of too much liquor, Michael Monahan was found over in the Park by Officer Kiernan, of the borough force, late last night. He was taken to the lockup and at his hearing this morning before Recorder Dolliver sentence was suspended with a warning.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR THE STATE CONVENTION

SECRETARY ISSUES CALL FOR MEETING OF STATE COMMITTEE SATURDAY.

Secretary William K. Devereux, of the Democratic State Committee, has issued a call for a meeting of that body in the Coleman House, Asbury Park, next Saturday morning. The meeting will be called at 11 and it is expected that one of the principal matters to be discussed will be arrangements for the conducting of the State convention sometime in September and to make preliminary arrangements for the coming gubernatorial campaign.

It is asserted that William B. Gourley, of Paterson, chairman of the committee, who is now in Europe will have his resignation in the hands of the committee at Saturday's meeting. Friends of Mr. Gourley assert that it is by no means certain that he will relinquish the post of chairman of the organization and will continue in that capacity until after the fall election, at least.

Bach, Jr., of Trenton, who is a member-at-large of the committee, will attend Saturday's meeting. Inasmuch as the vacancy caused by the death of Colonel Michael Hurley has not been filled as yet, Mr. Katzenbach will also represent Mercer county.

PLAINFIELD SHRINERS AT SALAAM'S PICNIC

2,000 ATTEND ANNUAL OUTING AT OLYMPIC PARK.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Liefke, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston, Dr. A. H. Dundon, Chris. Boeckel, Jr., and Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Julius Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Smith were among the Plainfielders who attended the annual picnic of Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine, held at Olympic Park, Newark, yesterday afternoon and evening.

The Shriners and their friends to the number of more than 2,000 crossed the dusty desert to Olympic Park. The enchanted retreat from the burning sun was an oasis indeed, and there wells aplenty to supply the needs of all. The tents—theory, at least—were pitched in the oasis of Olympic for the second time, and great was the joy of the Arabs.

The great carousal, with every animal of the forests that border the great desert, subdued for the benefit of the Shriners, was kept busy. The roller coaster bumped merrily over imaginary sand hills on the outskirts of the desert to the delight of all. Dancing engaged the attention of many, not to speak of the excellent vaudeville.

After supper, "The Mikado," the Gilbert & Sullivan cocktail, served in two big portions by the Aborn Company, was the means of adding pleasure to the night's revelries. Its tuneful numbers, interspersed with innumerable puns at the expense of the Shriners, not to mention its funny complications, was such as to please even the gloomiest Arab.

KATZENBACH LIKE MARTINE WOULD ACCEPT NOMINATION.

The boom for former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., for the Democratic nomination for governor of New Jersey was formally launched last night when a committee of 12 of the party leaders of Mercer county waited upon Mr. Katzenbach at his home in Trenton and presented him with a petition, signed by 175 Mercer county Democrats, that he express his willingness to accept the nomination, and receiving from him shortly afterward a note expressing his willingness to accept a nomination as a duty owing to his party if it should be tendered to him.

The letter to Mr. Katzenbach was only in circulation Monday and Tuesday and was the culmination of a few informal conferences of leading Democrats, in which former Prosecutor Bayard Stockton took part.

Berkeley Heights Improvement.

A petition is being circulated in Berkeley Heights for the installation of electric lights in that booming village. Mayor Joseph Kuntz says that before next summer the place will be lighted in improved fashion and that before a year elapses city water will be installed.

Miss Hazel Blaney, of the Babcock Building, and Miss Lulu M. Stryker, of West Sixth street, are sojourning at Asbury Park.

COURT HOUSE CEREMONY

ON TUESDAY, SEPT. 24

Freeholders to Make Arrangements —Rushing Work on the Structure.

The building committee of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders has selected Tuesday afternoon, September 24, as the time for the cornerstone laying of the new court house, and it is intimated from a reliable source that the stone will be put in position with Masonic ceremonies. Solomon's Lodge, No. 46, F. and A. M., of Somerville, having been given charge of the arrangements. The cornerstone will be laid by Most Worshipful Austin H. McGregor, of Newark, Grand Master of the order in the State of New Jersey, and his associate Grand Lodge officers.

A special communication of Solomon's Lodge will be held at Somer*ville tonight, when a committee will* be appointed to meet with a committee to be chosen from the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders to complete the necessary arrangements for the cornerstone laying. Speechmakers are to be selected and other details attended to. It is purposed to make the event one of the most impressive in Somerset county's history.

In the meantime the court house yard at Somerville presents a scene of unusual activity. The marble blocks for the new building fill every available space, almost, and they are all cut and ready to go in their places as soon as needed. The stately elm trees, which have long been the pride of the county seat town, still stand in lofty grandeur, but with a coating of wooden timbers around the trunks to protect them from injury.

The contractors are hustling with the work on the excavations and the foundations and will without doubt have everything in shape by the time of the cornerstone laying.

The recent heavy rains have re*tarded the work somewhat, because* after a severe storm it is always necessary to set the laborers to work pumping the water from the excavations.

Almost every day from time to time a great crowd of spectators is on hand to watch the progress of the work.

The new court house is being built so that it can be connected with the new county jail by an underground passage.

NEGRO PREACHER WILL SUE FOR EQUAL RIGHTS

TO TEST RIGHTS OF HIS RACE TO EQUALITY OF TREATMENT.

The Rev. William H. Taylor, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church, of Elizabeth, will sue the proprietor of a drug store in that city for refusing to sell him a glass of soda water at the ordinary price, to determine, he says, "just what rights the negro has in New Jersey and whether 'Jim Crowing' is allowed in Elizabeth." He said today:

"A few days ago a prominent colored man, Dr. J. A. Griggs, visited our city. He is both cultured and wealthy and is the author of a book called the 'Hindered Hand,' a reply to Dr. Thomas Dixon's play, 'The Clansman.' Now this gentleman arrived in the afternoon and went to an ordinary restaurant to get a meal and was blankly refused.

"I dropped into a certain drug store one afternoon, and on calling for a soda, instead of being served was told that it would be 15 cents. And right beside me stood a white man, paying 5 cents for the same thing. One thing which is hard to understand is that the very merchants who are only too glad to take our money for everything else and anxious to have our patronage, draw a line when it come to eating and drinking. I intend to make a test case of the matter and have it brought before the courts fairly and squarely to find out what rights a negro has. I may lose, but I'll die game."

Don't Forget Methodist Excursion.

The pleasures of this delightful weather will be greatly increased if you join the Methodists of Plainfield and Dunellen on their annual excursion to Asbury Park on Thursday. A day at this popular resort will do you lots of good and a swim in the ocean, together with the many other attractions, will help to make the trip one that you should not miss.

TETANUS KILLS A YOUTH

Eleven-Year-Old Son of H. C. Meyer Dead as Result of 4th of July Accident.

SUFFERED TERRIBLY

After lingering in terrible agony for more than a week, Louie Meyer, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Meyer, of Scotch Plains, died at 7:30 last night from tetanus, the result of a Fourth of July pistol wound. When first stricken with the disease, it was thought the boy had a good chance of recovery but he rapidly grew worse despite the use of anti-toxin and every known preventive. Death really came as a relief as the sufferings he endured were heartrending from the fact that he was conscious almost until the last. Spasms caused frightful incurvations of the body and though he craved food it could not be given him because of his locked jaws.

Like many other boys in the village, Louie secured a pistol to help celebrate the Fourth. Early in the day he accidentally shot himself in the hand with a blank cartridge, the wadding imbedding itself in the flesh. He was at once taken to Dr. F. W. Westcott to have the injury dressed and the physician adopted the usual remedies.

Nothing more was thought of the wound until a week ago Monday, when it suddenly developed great pain and the boy became ill. On Tuesday Westcott called Dr. *Hedges in consultation and an oper*ation was performed on the hand. Slight relief was afforded but the progress of the disease was only temporarily delayed. The boy continued to grow worse and yesterday the final complications ensued that brought the end. The whole town was interested in the case and it was also followed closely by the many friends of the family in this city.

Louie is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Alexander Muir, of Newark; Miss Louise Meyer and Miss Esther Meyer, at home, and five brothers, Meyer, at home, and six brothers, Charles Meyer, of North Plainfield; Ferdinand, Henry, William, Edward and Albert Meyer. The funeral will be held at the parents' home Friday afternoon at 2:30.

LOCAL ITALIANS CELEBRATE FEAST OF MOUNT CARMEL.

With the beginning of the celebration of the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel today at noon, the local Italian population commenced a two-days' holiday and donned their bright colored finery for a happy round of festivity, including feasting, parading and two band concerts, with fireworks.

The celebration proper, according to the Italian church should have been July 16. The celebration begun today will last through tomorrow, concluding with a band concert and fireworks display at Cooper Park. Maisto Bernagieri's Italian band of twenty-five pieces arrived from New York city at noon today and paraded through town playing until late in the afternoon—utterly ruining the trade of the three *band organs, who ceased their pop*ular airs and sought the suburbs. Local Italians, with visitors from Newark, Elizabeth and New York paraded with the band.

The fireworks tonight will begin at 8 o'clock and tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock there will be a parade to St. Mary's church by the special mass will be celebrated. The committee in charge consists of Salvini Valardi, James Brown, Mike Costientini, Dominique Perido, Salvini y Soldo. The street decorations were by Luco Suppo, of Newark.

Held for the Grand Jury.

Charged with the theft of some tools from George Zepp's blacksmith shop on West Second street, Frank Mohring was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court today. He pleaded guilty and was held in $100 bail for the Grand Jury. Mohring was afflicted with a sudden raging thirst and took the tools in order to get money with which to stop it.

Exceeded the Auto Speed Limit.

S. F. Weaver, of Central avenue, was arraigned in the city court this morning on a charge preferred by Patrolman Dobson that he had exceeded the speed limit with his auto on South avenue yesterday. The defendant acknowledged that he had been going about twenty miles an hour but did so before he fully realized it. Sentence was suspended.

CAN'T FIND CONTRACTOR

HAS BEEN GONE A WEEK

The continued absence of Frank Hale, a well-known local contracting carpenter, has caused uneasiness among his friends and complications in his business affairs. He has been away from the city a week and the work of erecting three of five houses, which he had well underway, has been turned over by the owner to another builder.

Three of the structures which Hale had in hand are in Carlton avenue and are being built for J. E. Curtis, the others are for Miss Sadie Hand and are on Martine avenue. A week ago today, Hale drew $500 on account of Miss Hand's *houses, presumably to pay for ma*terials and to meet other obligations. It is declared that in stead of doing so he left for Philadelphia last Thursday morning. He was seen by Plainfielders watching the Elks' parade and after that his whereabouts were not known until Sunday, when it is said he appeared at New Brunswick. According to a statement made by an acquaintance today, he declared then that he was going to New Orleans but gave no reason for it or why he had left his affairs in Plainfield in such a state. Nothing has been heard from him since.

Hale's going away leaves a number of creditors looking for money amounting in all over $800. About $600 of this is owing McDonough Brothers for lumber, about $50 to J. G. Spicer for window sashes and the remainder to carpenters employed on the job. It is said they have no redress as Mr. Curtis and Miss Hand secured releases from all of them before Hale commenced the work. Curtis has since turned his house over to James C. Manning and he will finish them. It is probable that Miss Hand will do the same thing as soon as it becomes positive that the contractor will not return.

Hale has been a resident in this city for the fifteen or twenty years and recently has erected many fine houses. His friends are unable to account for his action as to all appearances his contracts are well paying and the ones he was engaged on were seemingly going along all right. He made his home on Grove street.

PLAINFIELD'S BAD BOY SENT TO REFORMATORY

MAN CONVICTED OF FORGERY GETS ONE YEAR SENTENCE.

Arthur VanNest, known as "Plainfield's worst boy," was arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Union County Court, this morning on a charge of larceny. The Judge sent him to the Reformatory at Rahway, for an indefinite time.

VanNest was on parole, when in company with two companions he was arrested, charged with stealing several dollars' worth of trifles from a local store. The other boys are now awaiting the action of the Grand Jury.

Charles B. Fay, convicted of a charge of passing a forged check on Harry Werner, the West Front street clothier, was sentenced to one year in Stite Prison.

Agnes Bushman, of Westfield, who has already spent eight months in the county jail awiting a disposition of the charge of larceny against her, retracted her plea of not guilty to one of non vult and she was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail. She was convicted of stealing goods from a residence at Westfield.

The trial of George E. Hollins, white, charged with killing James Brown, colored, in Elizabeth, last winter, was postponed until September 12.

Habella Stole a Saw.

Vincent Habella, an East End resident, was arraigned in the city court this morning on complaint of Charles Kofed, of McCrea place, that he had stolen a saw from him. The saw got into court somehow and it was returned *to Kofed, who afterward de*clared he didn't want to press the charge. Habella was held in his own recognizance, however, to await the Grand Jury's action.

CORONER'S JURY HOLDS P.S.C. RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH OF MAN WHO CLUTCHED LIVE WIRE

Public Utility Co. Strongly Censured for Maintaining Imperfectly Insulated Wires—Call on the Authorites to Act.

MENACE TO COMMUNITY

Twenty Witnesses Examined Before Jury Reports its Findings—Want Inspection of All Wires Made.

Following two hours' deliberation, the coroner's jury called to inquire into the facts concerning the death of Clarence H. Weekes, of Berkeley avenue, which occurred on the morning of July 12 last, returned a verdict at noon today holding the Public Service Corporation. In addition, its report censures the company for stringing wires carelessly overhead and called attention to the superficial and faulty method of wire inspection.

After returning its verdict, the jury also presented a recommendation, addressed to the Mayor and Common Council suggesting that in view of the great danger and constant menace to which citizens are subjected through the imperfect condition of electric wires that there be established a systematic inspection of all wires in the city through the employment of a competent electrical engineer.

This is the verdict returned by the jury:

"That Clarence H. Weekes came to *his death from and through an elec*tric light wire, strung and maintained by the Public Service Corporation, of New Jersey, and maintained in the service of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, which wire had fallen upon the highway where pedestrians had a lawful right to pass.

"We further find that the insula*tion of said wire was imperfect and* insufficient and hence censure and condemn the Public Service Corporation, of New Jersey, for this condition, and further censure such company for stringing wires carelessly overhead carrying such high voltage.

"All evidence presented by the Public Service Corporation, of New *Jersey, evinced the fact that the in*spection of wires was most superficial and faulty, the inspector being required to cover half the city, thirty-five miles of streets, each night.

"Therefore, we hold that the said Clarence H. Weekes met his death through the negligence of the Public Service Corporation, of New Jersey.

"JAMES E. MARTINE,
WILLIAM R. TOWNSEND,
HENRY LIEFKE,
JOHN J. KENNEY,
H. W. MARSHALL,
CHARES H. FROST."

After the reading of the verdict, the jury made the following recommendation:

*"To the Honorable Mayor and Com*mon Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J.:

"The Coroner's Jury impaneled to enquire into the cause of death of Clarence H. Weekes do present to your body the following:

"Being impressed with the danger and menace to which our citizens are continually subjected through the imperfect condition of electric wires do most earnestly recommend to the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield that they cause to be established a systematic inspection of all wires within our city limits, through the employment of a competent electrical engineer.

"Yours most respectfully,
"JAMES E. MARTINE,
WILLIAM TOWNSEND,
HENRY LIEFKE,
JOHN J. KENNEY,
HARRY W. MARSHALL,
CHARLES H. FROST."

The coroner's inquest was resumed yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, when the examination of several witnesses was taken up, at the conclusion of which the jury adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning to consider the evidence and return a verdict.

Yesterday afternoon's session was resumed at 2.30 o'clock, when Dr. Albert Pittis, of East Front street, was the first witness called. He was summoned to Berkeley avenue, the morning of the accident and told

MONEY ACCUMULATED WHILE HE WAS LOST TO HIMSELF.

Charles Brewin, the Burlington-Plainfield man who was lost to himself for four years and lived during that time as Frank Johnson, will shortly receive nearly $400 that has been accumulating while his past life was a blank.

Brewin served in the Civil war and two years ago was granted a pension of $8 a month. When his memory suddenly became blank in 1902 he forgot about the money and as a result it has not been paid from that time. With the return of his real personality a few weeks ago, he recalled the fact that he was entitled to a pension and consulted an attorney. The matter was looked up and it was found that the money was being held by the pension authorities.

*An affidavit was submitted by Brew*in yesterday and the money will be paid to him as soon as the legal formalities can be complied with.

COLLIDED UNDER THE PARK AVENUE BRIDGE

PROMPT ACTION OF CAPT. HUMPHREY SAVES WOMAN DRIVER.

Prompt action on the part of Captain Jeremiah T. Humphrey, of the Twenty-second U. S. Infantry, in springing to the head of the horse driven by Mrs. Adam Sachs, of Mount Bethel, which was run into by an*other rig under the Park avenue rail*road bridge and quieting the strug*gling animal saved Mrs. Sachs, who* was thrown out, from being run over and injured. The accident happened at about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Sachs, who was with her sister, Miss Kate Pabst, was driving under the bridge when a rig driven by Thomas Cogan, of West Seventh street, approached at a rapid pace from the opposite direction. The rigs collided in the narrow roadway left by the bridge contractors. The occupants of both rigs were heavily thrown but escaped with slight bruises and cuts. The shafts of Mrs. Sachs' rig were shattered.

Captain Humphrey, who is a son-in-law of O. T. Waring, of the Standard Oil Co., was within sight of the accident, driving with his wife. Mrs. Sachs was thrown directly under the wheels of her carriage and but for his quick action in calming her frightened horse, would have been *run over. In the carriage with Co*gan was Joseph O'Keefe, his colored coachman. Both men sustained slight injuries as a result of the collision.

Witnesses of the accident say that the women were driving at a walk and were on the right side of the roadway, while Cogan's horse was trotting. Patrolman Kelly rendered assistance to the women, who were able to proceed after the shafts had been repaired.

New Bridges Opened This Morning.

The 8.21 - westbound passenger train was the first one to pass over the new Watchung and Park avenue bridges this morning, over the new tracks which have been raised eight inches and it is expected that regular traffic for westbound trains will be resumed there from now on. Work has also been started tearing down the other half of the old structures in preparation for erecting the new iron bridges. The new bridges are absolutely water-proof, practically noiseless and are a great improvement over the old style bridge. The work of building one-half of these two bridges was performed in a remarkably short time.

Special Meeting Common Council

The Common Council will hold a special meeting tomorrow night for the purpose of straightening out the difficulties of the Southside sewer muddle. It is understood that the street committee has been successful in perfecting details so that the work may be undertaken and completed.

At the Thousand Islands.

*Former Congressman and Mrs. Al*vah A. Clark, of Somerville, and former Senator and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, started today for the Hotel Frontenac in the Thousand Islands. It is their purpose to remain there for an extended outing.

The Justice of the Gods

By GEO. T. PARDY

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Then," asked the girl, appealingly, "you will at least give me back my letters, when I furnish you with the money you require?"

Gerald Raymond smiled and shook his head.

"Not exactly, Iris," he replied. "The bundle of little love missives involving your indiscretion — and mine—for I am gallant enough to shoulder my share of responsibility in the matter—has become altogether too precious in my eyes to lose possession of lightly. It is a mere matter of sentiment, my dear. You know I was always soft-hearted and—Impressionable."

Raymond laughed again.

"Don't be so melodramatic, Iris," he advised, mockingly. "That sort of thing has gone out of date along with the three volume novel and other innocent recreations of a bygone age. Try to look at this matter in a purely businesslike way. You are no longer 17, the age when one views the world through rose colored glasses. Six years have passed since you clung to me in the passion of love's first ecstasy and swore eternal devotion and all that sort of thing. When you are married to Archie Stratford nobody will be a bit the wiser as to your earlier romance. That will remain a secret between us two—as long as you are reasonable enough not to rebel against the little claims of your first lover."

"What a Devil you are, Gerald," she said, slowly. "How could I ever have been so blind as to mistake the first awakened transports of physical passion for love—love of such a creature as you?"

"Don't talk nonsense," snapped Raymond, shortly. "I have just as much power over you as ever, Iris, and you can't deny it. Here—kiss me."

He caught her head roughly between his hands and pressed his lips to hers. She submitted, although the color came and went in crimson waves under her white, transparent skin, but her eyes shone like two angry twin stars in the gaslight and roamed around the room with penetrating glances as though in search of something. Presently her gaze rested upon a sharp gleaming dagger of Oriental workmanship, that lay with several other specimens of artistic bric-a-brac on a small table.

Iris rose and stood facing her tormentor. She was a tall girl of superb figure, every line of which denoted power and activity. Raymond, on the contrary, was rather undersized, and slight of frame. His intense pallor and nervous, restless eyes were indicative of anything but good, physical condition. A physician's eye would have detected a significant connection between the appearance and the sight of a little silver case, obviously a receptacle for a hypodermic needle, that lay at a little distance from his hand.

The girl was well aware that the man who held her in his power was a confirmed morphine fiend, and the all habitual users of the drug, totally destitute of moral consciousness. Her infatuation for him had been short lived, but nevertheless of sufficient duration to place an ineffaceable brand of shame and remorse upon her soul. Five years ago a report had reached her that he had died while on a sketching tour in India, and she had rejoiced in the belief that a merciful Fate had drawn a veil over the indiscretion of her trusting girlhood.

Now, with the date of her marriage to Archibald Stratford only a few weeks away, a phantom of the dark past had arisen to confront her. Raymond had written a short note, commanding her to visit him alone in the bungalow which he had rented in the outskirts of the city. And she had obeyed, unable to resist, knowing the implacable nature of the man and dreading his ability to disgrace her.

"I am to understand then," she said, "that it is your intention to use those letters as a means of blackmail, both now and in the future?"

Raymond nodded a cheerful assent.

"Your penetration does you credit, my dear Iris," he responded. "Archie Stratford possesses much filthy lucre and an occasional modest contribution will satisfy my needs. He will not miss either the money nor the little tokens of affection that you will bestow upon me at intervals."

Iris was silent for a moment—a torrent of furious thoughts were whirling through her brain. A wave of red swam before her eyes and her blood seemed to turn to molten lead in her veins. Her hand grasped the dagger on the table behind, and the touch of the cold steel served her to desperate action.

With a single, supple spring she was beside him and the sharp, quivering blade, driven furiously downward, was buried to the hilt in his breast. Raymond uttered a hoarse, gurgling cry, his limbs writhed in impotent attempt to rise and then stiffened out in a last convulsive agony. His head fell backward, and he lay inert, with dilated eyeballs glaring horribly under the rays of the gaslight.

The woman who had done the thing made no motion to withdraw the dagger from its human sheath. She crossed to the sideboard, and filling a glass with brandy from a decanter that stood there, drained it to the dregs. An instant later the doorbell jangled sharply, and gliding to the window she peered cautiously from behind a protecting curtain into the night. Through the white veil of falling snowflakes she made out the figure of a man, standing erect, but swaying from side to side. While she watched, he fell forward and lay face downward without moving.

Approaching the table, she extracted the hypodermic needle from it's case and charged it with a heavy dose of morphine. She opened the street door and bent over the body of the stranger. He was poorly dressed, unshaven, a fairly good specimen of the homeless wanderer in search of assistance. She pushed back the ragged sleeve, baring his arm to the elbow, and inserted the sharp point of the needle under the skin.

He was not a heavy man, and without much difficulty she half dragged, half carried him into the room and deposited the limp body in an armchair facing that in which reposed the inert mass which had once been Gerald Raymond.

She placed the decanter of brandy and two glasses on the table and surveyed the stage setting of the tragedy with a satisfied air. Iris next turned her attention to the bundle of letters which Raymond had flaunted in her face. She threw them into the stove, where a bright fire was burning, and watched them turn to gray ashes in the flames.

The tramp snored discordantly. As Iris closed the street door behind her and set forth on her home journey.

The murder of Gerald Raymond occupied a leading place in the columns of the Chicago papers the following afternoon. He had been stabbed to death, apparently, by a tramp who was found fast asleep beside the body of his victim, in a drunken stupor. The murderer gave his name as Jerry Brewster, an ex-convict recently released from Joliet, where he had served a three-years' sentence for burglary.

It was surmised that, having gained admittance to the house and worked upon Raymond's sympathies with a hard luck story," he had first slain his benefactor, with the intention of plundering the place at his ease, and finally drank himself into unconsciousness. A decanter of brandy found on the table with the greater part of it's contents gone, confirmed this hypothesis.

And as Jerry Brewster was hanged—hanged high and dry on the gallows of the Cook county jail as a warning to malefactors great and small, and a shining example of the avenging power of justice. Being a hardened brute, and having rejected the advice of the chaplain to confess and seek forgiveness from One above, he died cursing his executioners' and maintaining that he was the victim of what he vulgarly termed "a put-up job."

On the day when Mr. Brewster was translated to another sphere, the afternoon papers containing an account of his demise, also dwelt at considerable length on the marriage of Iris Dalmage to Archibald Stratford, the great railway magnate. All agreed that the society function was a brilliant success.

When the carriage of the bride and groom rolled away on the first stage of the honeymoon, an officious friend thrust a newspaper through the open window into Stratford's hand. He opened it with a smile of anticipation, and his wife bent forward to view the contents. Stratford glanced at the first page and hurriedly folded it over.

"You don't want to see that part, he explained, in response to her look of surprise. "That fellow Brewster, who murdered poor Raymond, suffered the penalty of his crime this morning, and there's a couple of columns devoted to the execution, and story of the murder. The details are not pleasant. I read them before and they would only shock you, dear."

"It's awful to think that such terrible things can happen in the world, Archie," she said, languidly.

Centenarian Book Agent.

Capt. Goddard E. Diamond, of Berkeley, Cal., is a hustling book agent aged 107 years and he makes a good living. For over 80 years he has abstained from eating meat and he uses neither tea nor coffee. He never used tobacco or liquor. Capt. Diamond followed the sea for many years. In his rounds looking for customers he generally rides a bicycle, which he handles skillfully. The wonderful old man is a clever boxer and even now can last through four or five fast rounds. Only once in 87 years has he suffered from illness—a cold contracted through exposure and privation while the fire was raging in San Francisco after the earthquake.

A Spring Rhapsody.

The fabled Hebrew wanderer stalking in savage loneliness through the gloom of the dark ages, the castaway clinging to his bit of wreckage, and straining aching eyes to the vacant sea for a frigate bird wheeling its solitary flight through the empty air, a palm tree bending over its shadow in the desert. Selkirk alone on his island with the enigmatical stars and silent seas, Roosevelt alone in Cuba, all of these strike in different tones the same key of sentiment which is touched by the spectacle of the first straw hat, when no other sign of spring has ventured forth.

TO MAKE GAS ENGINES

Local Men Incorporate Company to Manufacturer E. H. Merrill's Patented Device.

HE CAPITAL. $200,000

Lease the Old Oil Cloth Factory—Combined Gas Engine and Air Compressor.

The invention of a gas engine and air compressor by F. H. Merrill, of West Front street, has attracted no small attention among local capitalists, that a company has been organized to be known as the Gas Engine Pneumatic Company, with a capital stock of $200,000. The registered office is in Plainfield and the company has leased the old oil cloth factory on North avenue, near Richmond street, where it is proposed to manufacture the engines.

Articles of incorporation were filed at Trenton, Thursday, the incorporators being Dr. Peter J. Zeglio, Robert A. Meeker and William Newcorn. The last named is the agent, while F. H. Merrill, the patentee, also retains a large interest in the business. The incorporators named have invested considerable money and there are a large number of local stockholders, from whom subscriptions will now be collected with a view to putting the plant in operation at the earliest possible date. The oil cloth factory is especially adapted for the manufacture of the gas engines, it being equipped with shafting, etc., and there being plenty of room.

The invention is entirely that of Mr. Merrill, and those who have acquainted themselves with the details of it, pronounce it to be a wonder. The engine can be used for any plant where motive power is required and the simplicity together with its minimum cost of operation will appeal strongly to all manufacturers. The combination of the gas engine and air compressor is the chief point of advantage and those who have a knowledge of the invention claim that it is the best thing of the kind on the market.

One of the engines, equipped with a cylinder, has been and is now in operation at A. B. Laing's auto garage, where it has attracted much attention. It is simply being run there for exhibition purposes. It was through the efforts of William Newcorn that the company was organized and arrangements made for the manufacture of the engines. Mr. Merrill is a recognized inventor, and has been successful in the manufacture of appliances for autos, so fact he built the automobile he is using now, the only one of the kind on the market.

At present it cannot be determined how many men will be employed at the new plant, but this will be largely regulated by the demand for the engines.

NONOGENARIAN'S FALL FATAL.

Mrs. Heath Walks Out of Window in Her Sleep.

Mrs. Mary A. Hill died at the home of Mrs. Amy Clickner, her daughter, at Raritan, this week, of injuries sustained by falling from a window. She walked in her sleep a few nights ago and stepped out of a window, landing on a cellar door, from which she rolled to a flag walk, where she was found unconscious.

She was 92 years old and the mother of Postmaster George W. Heath, of Bloomfield. She had lived in Raritan most of her life and was one of the oldest members of the Methodist church. Three sons and one daughter survive her, Sylvester Heath, of Dover; William Heath, of Jersey City; George W. Heath, of Bloomfield, and Mrs. Clickner.

First prize was awarded Miss Hannah McGrath, second to Nicholas LaVere, third to Miss Hall and Patrick Harrington. The proceeds amounted to a sum in excess of what had been anticipated.

Transferred to Office at Clinton.

Charles E. Ball, formerly superintendent of the local office of the Prudential Insurance Company, and who was succeeded by Assistant Superintendent Evans, of Elizabeth, is now in charge of the company's office at Clinton, Hunterdon county. Mr. Ball's present home is at Watchung, his residence in North Plainfield.

The chimney of George J. Harris' worshop at Clinton avenue and Seventh street, was struck by lightning Thursday afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock. The chimney was wrecked. No one was in the shop at the time, and no other damage was done.

TRUE TAX VALUES NOW

No Increase Expected as Assessments Throughout County Conform to the Law.

LOCAL BOOKS CLOSED

During the time the Plainfield Board of Assessors has had its books open for the inspection of local taxpayers, there were about 125 citizens who appeared to complain about the assessments levied. There were no big "kicks," the majority being of minor importance. In the opinion of a member of the Board, the rate for the coming year will not be greatly increased over that of last year. His reasons for this are that there has been a great many changes in the assessments throughout the outlying districts, farm property being assessed nearer its true value. That has not been done before.

While the Board is unable at this time to give an accurate estimate of the increased values in Plainfield, they are known to amount to a considerable sum not only in business property, but in the many large and small dwellings erected during the year. Of course, there will be some additional exemptions, but this is not likely to offset to any large degree the natural increase in values. The local tax board, like the Union County Tax Board, expects less trouble this year for the reason that the assessment is likely to be more evenly distributed than last year when the new law went into effect. It is argued that the newer true values are reached throughout the county, the less complaint will be made on the part of individuals, as well as owners of large and small industries.

The local tax books are now closed for further inspection until after they are returned from the county tax board, where they will be sent within a short time. The county board has the right to make such changes as it deems necessary to make the assessment conform to the law, but it is believed that the levy in this city this year is more equal than heretofore and the assessors do not anticipate that many changes in the books will be made.

NEWSPAPER DON'TS.

Advice to Clubwomen Who Deal With the Press.

We do not know Miss Susan Glaspell, of Davenport, Ia., but she evidently knows things, and as she is serving a place in the roll of honor in American newspaper circles. She recently gave the clubwomen of her city some interesting facts in relation to the newspaper business, and included in her paper were some very valuable hints that will meet with the approbation of every newspaper man. They ought also to meet the eye of every person who has to do with the newspapers in an unofficial way and be followed. Here they are:

Don't come to the newspaper office Thursday with something that happened Monday. Come on Monday.

Don't come at two minutes of 2 o'clock when the paper goes to press at two minutes after. The assassination of the president of the United States would be resented at that hour.

Don't ask a reporter to run a column of reprint stuff which may serve your cause, but has practically no news value, and then when you have a good live story give it to the other paper. The reporter will not like that a bit.

Don't go to the managing editor and ask that a legitimate news story be kept out. It would be just as unreasonable and just as indelicate to go to the banker and ask him to give you money or to the lawyer and ask him to give up one of his cases. A newspaper is a business enterprise. When you ask it to keep out news, you ask it to injure its own business.

Don't blame the reporter if something you gave him or her does not appear. It is not the reporter's fault. The city editor is the court of last appeal, and he works on the principle of the survival of the fittest. The fact that your committee is going to do something may be very important to you, but the fact that some girl drank carbolic acid is more important to the city editor.

Don't say, "I can't understand why the papers make so many mistakes." If you had ever been in the business, you would say instead, "I think it one of the miracles of the age that newspapers can do that amount of work under that amount of pressure and make so few mistakes."

We doff our hat to Miss Glaspell. She has earned the thanks of every newspaper editor by her clear enunciation of many of the cardinal principles of the relations between the editor and his occasional contributor. —Newburyport (Mass.) News.

MASTER WORKMEN THERE

Columbia Lodge Entertains Distinguished Guests at a Noteworthy Meeting.

INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS

Columbia Lodge, No. 68, Ancient Order United Workmen, received an official visitation Friday from Grand Master Workman Reeves, of Atlantic City, and staff; also a large delegation from Raritan Lodge, No. 6, of New Brunswick, as well as members from Central and Columbia lodges of this city.

The Grand Master gave an instructive address, calling attention to the fact that the order is the oldest fraternal insurance order in existence, and that it and many other orders were based. He declared the order of Workmen to be the safest and best insurance organization. In explaining the emergency fund he said that in New Jersey, where it was started a year ago, the fund had reached $67,000, serving as a protection against any excessive death rate, and that the fund was daily being increased from month to month. He spoke of the various options; also the new death certificate of $500, heretofore the lowest minimum certificate being $1,000.

The Grand Master also mentioned the new level rate plan, classified and several other topics, and laid strong emphasis on the fact that the members of the A. O. U. W., had safe investment in the death policy.

Addresses were also made by various other members of the staff and visiting members and a number of applications were received for membership. After the meeting refreshments were served, cigars passed and music and a social time enjoyed. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and Martin A. Korff furnished the musical program.

The visitors present included Grand Master Workman Reeves, of Atlantic City; Grand Inside Watchman McWood, of Newark; Past Master Workmen Logan, of Jersey City; Downs, of New Brunswick, and Spicer, of Central Lodge, No. 18; also the following from Raritan Lodge, of New Brunswick: Master Workman J. H. Wittaker; Financier H. C. Gowan, Guide, J. Voorhees, Foreman Joseph Oughlin, Outside Watchman H. Voorhees and John Myers, Westerly Myers, John Whelan, Daniel Daley, Martin Wilson, Fred Lindner and Wilbur Simpson.

LAWYERS TO SETTLE SEWER CONTRACT MUDDLE

SURETY COMPANY WILL LET THEM FIGHT IT OUT

Owing to the fact that there are now so many legal entanglements, every faction having engaged counsel, E. W. Baum, representing the Metropolitan Surety Company, who was in town yesterday, was unable to make any progress looking toward an adjustment of the troubles. H. C. Barker, of Poughkeepsie, representing Peter Morgan, the contractor; Reed & Coddington represent the Warren Foundry Company, who secured a writ of attachment on pipes and other materials; Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represents the Italian laborers who are reported, according to Nelson Runyon, acting corporation counsel during the absence of Craig A. Marsh. The Loizeaux Lumber Company has also employed counsel.

After the conference, Mr. Baum, of the surety company, said that when the different lawyers settle their disputes, the surety company will be ready to act. He added that the company is protected by a first class indemnifier and it has nothing to worry about.

It was Mr. Baum's opinion that Peter Morgan's representative, Thomas J. Cusack, did not intend to complete the contract and that he planned to lay pipe where the digging was easy, leaving the more difficult work for someone else.

Mrs. Carney's Funeral.

The funeral service of Mrs. Margaret Carney, widow of the late Moses Carney, who died yesterday, will be held from her late residence, 303 Central avenue, Friday morning, at 9:30 o'clock and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock, where a solemn requiem mass will be offered for the repose of her soul. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Announce Their Marriage.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Edward Marfius and Miss Mary K. Demler, both of Watchung. The ceremony was performed in Newark on June 19 by Rev. Joseph F. Folsom, at his home. Mr. and Mrs. Marfius are now making their home at Watchung, the former being an employe at Maul's Washingtonville hotel.

FISK IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Newark News Picks Him as the Man of the Hour in Union.

PERKINS' SUCCESSOR

The Newark News regards Mayor Fisk, or rather, Grand Juryman Fisk, as the real cut in the Perkins lute. It has this to say of the ambitious assemblyman's chances;

"There is more truth than a little in the report from Union county to the effect that the regular Republicans are inclined to embrace Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, last year's Republican leader in the House. Not that they love Perkins less, but that they love the Republican party more. For Perkins, like Caesar, is ambitious, and his ambitions are likely to clash severely with those of other and somewhat more acceptable ones.

Mr. Perkins has, in the language of the Union county politicians, "had all that's comin' to him." He was first elected in Republican 1905, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman-elect Embree. In November of the same year he was regularly elected for a second term by a plurality of 3,530. Last year he received a third election, but his plurality fell down to 1,215. Another such decrease in popularity at the polls would elect a Democrat. Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Perkins was last year slated for speaker—before the election—and was the leader of the Republican House, his success, if again nominated, is held to be very dubious.

"But this is not all. Mr. Perkins is believed to be casting his eyes in the direction of Senator Ackerman's seat, even before Mr. Ackerman is given the usual party compliment of a second term; or, if this is not accessible, the Westfield ex-Mayor feels that the place occasionally occupied by Charles N. Fowler in the House of Representatives would be just about his size. In this he might not be far wrong, but there are interested parties opposed to his going to Washington.

"The third and probably a still more effectual objection to Mr. Perkins is his antagonism to the "new ideas" element, which is very strong in Union county. Mr. Perkins has had no use whatever for reform or reformers. He announced, early last year, in the Assembly chamber, that they made him tired, and he has, ever since, done all in his power to defeat legislative measures and substitute 'regular' bills in their places. One thing to his credit was his opposition to the re-election of Senator Dryden, but whether that will offset [illegible] antagonism to the [illegible] remains to be seen.

"[illegible] opinion is entertained that [illegible] work, to some extent, against Mr. Perkins. It has a very strong [illegible] in Union county politics as a [illegible] but Mr. Perkins has failed to [illegible] before his constituents as desired, to explain away his official conduct [illegible] after it, these things are more evident. The Union county Republican voting strength is [illegible] for a fourth term as Assemblyman, or for state Senator, or for Congressman, one of these candidates would materially interfere. But since the last grand jury Lis done its double duty and done it so cleanly, so forcefully, so thoroughly and so thoroughly, another man has risen into the political spot light of Union county, and that man is Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfield."

LIGHTNING BURNED OUT $8,000 GENERATOR

STORM LEADS TO TWO ACCIDENTS AT METUCHEN P.S.C. POWER HOUSE.

A lightning bolt caused one of the new $8,000 generators at the Metuchen power house of the P. S. C. to blow out Wednesday afternoon. Roehr, an inspector of transmission, was injured [illegible] the fire that followed.

The lightning [illegible] voltage, but did not damage the generator seriously. Flames among the rubber fittings followed the [illegible], and Roehr seized a pail of fire extinguisher with which to put them out. In swinging the pail [illegible] it in contact with a charged [illegible] and received a heavy shock.

He fell, but did not lose consciousness. His hand and a foot were severely burned. He was attended by a physician and removed to his home. His injuries are not serious.

The damage to the generator did not affect the service. There was reserve power enough to supply all demands.

P. S. C. TO PLACE ITS WIRES UNDERGROUND

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS SECTION DOES NOT INCLUDE FEED WIRE

With a view to placing service wires in the underground conduits in the business section of the city, where the city proposes to lay permanent pavement, Supt. James Arnold, of the local plant of the Public Service Corporation, has had some of his men making surveys during the past few days. A report was in circulation that the company was planning to put the large feed wire on Second street underground, but this is denied by Mr. Arnold, who says he knows of no such plan.

The company has underground conduits on Front street, Park avenue, Second street and North avenue, and in the contemplated improvement of laying a brick pavement in some of these streets, the street commissioner has notified this company, as well as other companies affected, giving them the opportunity to complete their work underground before the pavement is laid.

HOPELESS PER SE.

"An obstinate witness is the bane of the lawyer's life," remarked a member of the bar whose practice is largely confined to criminal cases. "Not long ago I was engaged to defend a man accused of murder. One of the witnesses for the State was a stolid-faced individual whose testimony it was necessary for to weaken. In my cross-examination I found him to be the most exasperating. I couldn't pin him down to any definite admission. For over two hours I labored with him, and realized that I was gaining no ground. I couldn't get a favorable reply out of him. To all my questions, with the face of a graven image he would reply, 'I really can't say,' or 'I don't remember,' or frankly, 'I don't know.'

"Finally I lost my temper. 'You don't seem to know anything,' I exclaimed. 'You can't answer a simple question. Now perhaps you can answer this: What is your occupation?'

"'I am employed in a bureau of information,' he replied solemnly.

"Then I realized what I was up against and gave him up as a hopeless case."

GIRL BOLDLY ATTACKED

Sprung Upon By Negro as She Was Reaching For Key at Her Employers' Home.

SCREAMS DROVE HIM OFF

Miscreant Made His Escape and Police of City and Borough Are Searching for Him.

Returning from a visit to friends at 10:30 Friday night, Miss Lucia Moritz, a servant in the employ of Mrs. P. M. French, of Somerset street, was attacked by a negro directly on the rear porch of the French home. The miscreant had previously followed her for several blocks and without her knowledge had stepped into the yard after her. He suddenly sprang upon her as she was in the act of reaching for her key and at the same time she emitted a piercing scream.

Her cry awoke the occupants of the house but before any of them appeared the negro realized that the alarm had been heard. He flung Miss Moritz against a porch post and then with imprecations fled up Pearl street toward Watchung avenue. When members of the household reached the porch the young woman was found in a state of collapse and it was several minutes before she could tell what had happened. Every effort was made to locate the assailant but he had too good a chance to get out of the neighborhood.

Miss Moritz had been making a call in the borough during the evening and was returning home by way of Sougerset street. She noticed a negro following her and became somewhat uneasy but felt relieved when he disappeared just before Pearl street was reached. She thought he had gone away but instead he had preceded her and was in a dark spot near the gate. As she passed through he was close behind her and made the attack when he thought the opportunity was favorable. It is evidently his intention to prevent her making an outcry but her quick scream upset his calculations.

Both the city and borough police departments were notified of the occurrence and efforts were at once been busy. Miss Moritz was unable to give any definite description of the negro, other than the fact that he was very black and quite tall. She noticed this as he was following her down Somerset street but failed to get a good view of his features. It is the onipion of the police that the assailant knew where Miss Moritz belonged as otherwise he would have been unable to get ahead of her and wait while she entered the yard.

"Thank You" on Receipted Bills.

"A custom of politeness that is modern in the extent of its practice if not in its introduction," said a man old enough to be acquainted with ways comparatively speaking ancient "is that of writing 'Thanks' or 'Thank you' after the signature on receipted bills sent in due course on payment of accounts, a form that costs little effort on the part of the payer and that is sure to be not unpleasing to the person to whom such politeness is offered.

"Widespread is this custom in its practice now, and so in its observance not likely to be surprising, but lately there came to my attention an instance of courtesy in this form that did at first seem rather strained and excessive.

"On a receipted bill received with goods sent to me C. O. D. I found after the signature the polite 'Thank you,' and below the almost superfluous, for this was a bill presented in the course of a purely transient and impersonal transaction. But a moment's reflection showed that the 'Thank you' here was neither superfluous nor excessive, but quite correct. Here it was simply the polite 'Thank you' that we would have received from the salesman if we had paid him cash for the goods at the time of their purchase."

DIES AT CEDAR BROOK.

Sister of Democratic Leader Succumbs to Long Illness; Funeral Saturday.

Following an illness of more than two years' duration, Miss Mary Elizabeth Martine, sister of James M. Martine, died this morning, at four o'clock, at Cedar Brook, the family homestead. Miss Martine was the third daughter of the late Daniel and Anna Martine.

All her life was spent in this city. She was born at Cedar Brook. Of a most lovable and unselfish nature, she was extremely popular in a wide circle of friends. She was an earnest and active Christian, a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Another brother beside the Democratic leader, D. W. Martine, and two sisters, Mrs. William W. Myers and Miss Ella L. Martine, of this city, survive her. The funeral service will

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Goldsmith and family, of Fairview avenue, expect to spend their summer vacation at Long Branch.

ORDINANCE NOT EFFECTIVE

SO SAYS JUDGE RUNYON

Interpretation of the Ordinance By the Board Should Be Incorporated In Law, Magistrate Tells Health Officer.

Ineffectiveness in the regulations of the Health Board governing the collection of garbage was pointed out by City Judge Runyon, Friday, to Health Officer Leon Thurlow, who appeared to press complaints against Peter Robinson, colored, a garbage collector. The magistrate said the ordinance was too indefinite, and not strong enough to make it advisable to hold alleged offenders under the interpretation of the regulations as set forth by the Board.

Robinson was charged with conducting his business without properly covering his wagon or the cans in which he placed the garbage. Robinson defended himself skilfully, and showed that he had made an intelligent study of the ordinance.

He had everything that the ordinance called for, he said. The regulation provided that he must have a "sufficient" cover of canvas or other material, and covers for his cans. He had all those, and used the most effective covers that could be provided for the cans. No can made, he said, could be made to retain its cover better than they now do on macadamized roads.

He couldn't understand, he said, why he was compelled to use cans, when other garbage collectors were allowed to use box wagons. He cited an instance of such use, and Judge Runyon asked Mr. Thurlow about it.

The health officer said he had told Robinson a year ago, when he was asked regarding such a wagon, that it could not be used. After that time the board, in drawing up rules interpreting the ordinance, declared that a metal-lined wagon, such as the other garbage men used, was sufficiently sanitary. He, himself, did not believe such a wagon was sanitary; the wood was certain to become soaked and strong, in his opinion.

"The ordinance is too indefinite," said Judge Runyon. "The interpretation set by the Board is all right as far as it goes, but it merely serves, in effect, as matter for general information. It is supplemental to the ordinance, and should be incorporated therewith to become properly effective. It is hard to sustain such complaints under the ordinance as it now stands. I advise the Board to have the rules incorporated in the ordinance."

The magistrate appealed to Robinson's pride to secure a promise to observe the spirit of the regulations, as well as its letter. Robinson promised to study the interpretation as carefully as he had studied the ordinance, and to make his wagon as inoffensive as possible.

Before the garbage complaint was heard, Robinson was arraigned on a charge of working an unfit horse to the point of cruelty. Dr. Herbert, the veterinary, examined the animal in front of police headquarters, and testified that it was in no shape to work. He said he was too light for the class of labor in his condition.

Robinson declared the horse was in good condition excepting for a saddle sore. He said he hadn't worked the horse since the sore appeared, and that he merely put it in harness with a lighter load and a bigger horse, to give it necessary exercise. With the other animal to help it, the horse was not called upon to do more than light hauling.

Judge Runyon secured Robinson's promise to put the horse out to pasture for two weeks before working it again, and to bring it to him for examination at the end of that time.

AN COLOR LINE FOR THEM.

State Dental Society Elects Negro Dentist to Membership.

The New Jersey State Dental Society refused to draw the color line at Asbury Park Friday and elected to membership Dr. John D. Ballard, a negro dentist, of Orange. There were twelve dissenting votes. Ballard's application was supported by Drs. Adams, Richards and Fisher, white dentists of Orange. Dr. Ballard served his apprenticeship with Dr. Adams's office. Dr. Ballard is a grand juryman of Essex county, and it is said many of his patrons are white.

Forty-four new members were elected at the session just adjourned. The new officers are: Dr. Walter Woolsey, of Elizabeth, president; Dr. Frank Gregory, of Newark, vice-president; Dr. Charles W. Meeker, of Newark, secretary (re-elected for forty-third consecutive term), and Dr. H. A. Hull, of New Brunswick, treasurer.

GOVERNMENT BY BREWERY.

No better evidence is needed to substantiate the charge that the brewing interests in New Jersey are the real saloonkeepers and that the men in whose names the licenses are made out are mere figure-heads, than that furnished by a suit started by a brewery company to recover a fee deposited with the proper authorities in New Brunswick by an applicant for a license. In its declaration filed the brewing company alleges that $350 deposited by the applicant in question was furnished by the concern for that purpose and now that the excise board has refused the petition, it demands the money back.

This is the condition of affairs alleged to be prevalent in Union county and it is one of the evils which the Union County Grand Jury had in mind when it made the startling presentment concerning the excise situation in Elizabeth. Hudson and Middlesex are not the only counties in which this evil exists. It is general throughout the State and for that matter, all over the country.

The system built up in this way is one of the greatest menaces to good government; it is one that seriously threatens the National life. We do not have to go any farther than Elizabeth to find how this becomes so. The grand jury, of which that sterling citizen of ours, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, is foreman, stated in its recent presentment:

"The brewers take out and pay for the licenses in names convenient to themselves and through the excise board transfer them from one party to another as they see fit and in many cases, practically rent the licenses out at from five to ten dollars a week; rent the buildings or saloons; furnish the saloon; insurance the fixtures; dictate the parties from whom the saloonkeeper shall buy cigars; name the party who shall have the insurance; the party who shall fit up, furnish or decorate the saloon; charge all to the saloonkeeper and collect from said saloonkeeper a certain amount per week."

All of this, continued the presentment "shows a very close relation existing between the saloonkeeper and the brewery, and the brewery and the excise board, or members of the excise board."

This condition of affairs, and no one seems to dispute it, is a blot not only on Union county but on the entire State. It is one that calls for the mature consideration of the court and the people, for, if allowed to continue unabated, the government of New Jersey, if not now, will soon be in the control of the liquor interests.

While the proposed brick pave street would be a welcome improvement in the business section, there are more urgent needs for city money just at present. Among the number might be mentioned a fire house in the Netherwood district and a site for a municipal building in the centre of the town. Under present conditions the people in the East End have little fire protection despite the fact that valuable properties are located there and the owners pay a large share of the taxes. In case of conflagration in that vicinity it would take the men at headquarters at least eight minutes from the time the alarm is turned in to get their apparatus on the scene. Many Fenians and business men and Mayor Fisk both took occasion to point out the serious need of a fire house there but no move has been made by the Common Council. As the desirability of immediate action on the proposition to acquire a site for a town hall, one only has to consider how property values are increasing in the centre of the city to realize the necessity of an early purchase of a tract of land for that purpose. The erection of a hall can wait but sound business judgment will brook no delay in buying a site.

YES, WHAT'S THE USE?

What is the use of spending the taxpayers' money in causing an arrest, securing an indictment and procuring a conviction when there is a pardoning power which offsets everything that has been done by letting the convict go free after serving but a portion of his sentence? When twenty-three men, constituting the grand jury, find that there is enough evidence against the accused to warrant his being placed on trial and when subsequently twelve equally good men declare him guilty of the offense as charged and then an upright judge imposes a penalty, why in the name of justice should the latter be allowed to virtually reverse the judgment of thirty-six others who were familiar with every phase of the case, by paroling the prisoner?

In dilating upon the political tribulations of one Randolph Perkins, who is said to have the ambition of a Caesar, the Newark Evening News opines:

"But since the last grand jury has done its double duty and done it so cleanly, so forcefully, so skilfully and so thoroughly, another man has risen into the political spot light of Union county, and that man is Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfield."

We do not believe that either a seat among the State or the Nation's lawmakers would be a temptation to our model fellow citizen. But then you know there's a governor to be nominated next fall. How about it?

The Elizabeth Journal sums it all up when it says:

"It is probably not necessary to discuss the proposed cup race any further. It is easy to see that it is undesirable from every point of view except the commercial. It would also be contrary to the Constitution to allow the race to be held. Facing all these facts squarely, the Senate, of course, will refuse to pass the Perkins bill."

As predicted by the Daily Press, there has been "a return to reason" since the scheme was first broached, and it may be said with confidence that there is no possibility of seeing the State disgraced in the manner proposed.

Of all the rot and nonsense generated in the brain of the New York Herald's political writer, yesterday's sample were the limit. The press agent story picturing Judge Vroom as the only thing among the many candidates mentioned as the Democratic gubernatorial possibilities is ludicrous enough, but when it comes to labelling State Senator Ackerman a "new idea" man, the limit is reached. There's a vast difference between being an independent thinker and a "new idea" factionalist, although the Herald's political soothsayer, evidently hasn't found that out.

Rather than be in anywise responsible for the extermination of a noble animal which roams through the West, the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks by a resolution passed at its National convention in Philadelphia has abandoned its emblem. No longer will the elk's tooth be the insignia of the order, which has shown its respect for the President's wishes and its National pride in so fitting a manner. So, who dares to dispute that they are The Best People on Earth?

If anyone thinks that the refusal of a license to the Mattano Club, of Elizabeth, will be a hard blow to Charles Napoleon Fowler, he's very much mistaken. Fowler is no Bishop's law in Vermont, and at any rate, the Congressman doesn't drink.

There hasn't been a new Gubernatorial boom started in a week. The "Big Five" must have decided that it already has a sufficient supply to tide the bosses over the primary day.—Newark Evening News.

How about one C. J. Fisk?

The Democratic State Committee will meet at Asbury Park on Saturday to fix a date for a convention, a formal "throw-down" to be given "Farmer-orator James E. Martine, an aspirant for gubernatorial honors.

Rather than unnecessarily affect a suffering public, Chancellor Day should accept the advice given to the effect about to get married before giving any further with his promised literary work.

Now that the Republican party is in search of a successor to Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, what's the matter with Henry L. Hall? We think the answer "He's good enough for me."

Judging from the list of auto casualties during the last few days, we don't need a cup race to increase the mortality rate in New Jersey.

Nearly a week since we've heard anything from "The Peerless Leader."

Rain Spoiled League Games.

Hundreds of local fans were disappointed on Saturday by the postponement of the amateur league games. Clinton Avenue was scheduled to play Raritan at Crescent Oval, but the heavy rain earlier in the day left the grounds in poor condition and the management decided to call the contest off. The same condition existed at Bound Brook, where Y. M. C. A. was to have met the Laurels. Manager Craig received word from Bound Brook that the ball field was covered with water and this game was called off. Minford, who was expected to pitch for Y. M. C. A., came out from New York, and did not learn that the contest was off until reaching Plainfield. These two games will be played later in the season.

COUNTRY CLUB SCORES

C. B. Morgan Wins First Honors for Golf Committee Cup—The Standings to Date.

As a result of the weekly competition for the President's, Golf Club, and July cups at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, there were a few changes in the standing for the three trophies. Charles B. Morse, who had a total of ten points for the President's cup, adds a half point to his standing, and Dr. H. K. Carroll, by adding a half point, has a total of ten points.

In the competition for the July cup, Charles B. Morse is now a sure winner with 10½ points, his nearest competitors being C. F. Corning and Reuben Knox, each having five points. Rev. J. O. McKelvey still leads with ten points for the Park Golf Club cup, scratch competition.

Reuben Knox not only won three points for the President's cup on Saturday with a net score of 83, but the same score gave him five points for the July cup. Besides his gross score of 101 gave him first honors for the club cup, while W. Y. Byard and Dr. H. K. Carroll finished even for the three trophies, and Dr. Carroll and Mr. Morse were tied for third honors for the July cup.

These scores were returned for the trophies:

Reuben Knox, 101, 18—83; W. Y. Byard, 105, 18—87; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 107, 10—97; Charles B. Morse, 105, 18—87.

The fact that there are so many members away from the city on their vacations, had its effect at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday. Only a fair field turned out to take part in the various competitions scheduled for the day. The heavy rain during the early part of the day had a tendency to keep a number of the stay-at-homes away from the course, and while many played, but few posted their scores.

C. B. Morgan won first honors for the Golf Committee cup with a net score of 82, a handicap of 2 having been added to his gross of 80. Charles A. Stover finished second with a net score of 83, while his gross score of 92 gave him a leg on the Scratch Cup. A. Lester Glenney and Edward J. Patterson were tied for the one remaining point with a score of 85. These scores were returned for the Golf Committee cup:

C. B. Morgan, 80, plus 2—82; Charles A. Stover, 92, 9—83; A. Lester Glenney, 84, plus 1—85; Edward J. Patterson, 98, 13—85.

Harry Williams, one of the newcomers, won first honors for the Green Committee cup with a net score of 80. His fat handicap of 27 will be generously sliced before he plays again, however. G. F. Earl and W. F. Merrill were tied for second place, with a net score of 85. These three scores were returned:

Harry Williams, 107, 27—80; G. F. Earl, 97, 12—85; W. F. Merrill, 107, 22—85.

WHERE SOME JERSEY NAMES CAME FROM

Historian Francis B. Lee announced today many curious facts regarding New Jersey, which facts he has gathered for the State exhibit at Jamestown. Regarding the derivation of the names of New Jersey's twenty-one counties, Mr. Lee said: "Bergen is from the Dutch, 'The hills.' Passaic is Indian, meaning 'where the train fork.' Salem is pure Hebrew, 'the peaceful.'

"Counties taking their names from individuals are Cape May, from Cornelius May, a navigator; Camden, from first earl of Camden; Cumberland, from duke of Cumberland; Hudson, from Henry Hudson; Hunterdon, from Governor Andrew Hunter, of the colony of New Jersey; Morris, from Governor Lewis Morris; Mercer, from General Hugh Mercer, of Virgina; Warren, from General Joseph Warren, of Massachusetts.

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE FOR BOB FITZSIMMONS

BROADWAY SPORTS AND THEATRICAL MEN PLAN IT.

The passing of Bob Fitzsimmons. Ten years ago on the seventeenth day of March, James J. Corbett was described as the handsomest man and the champion of the world. He had won the day, a great victory, and the sporting fraternity of the world. That was the coming of a great prize fighter. He had money, he had wealth, he had victory, he had millions of friends, in fact he had everything a prize fighter would want.

Several nights ago, this champion was driven to the floor, driven down by a colored fighter, who had everything in his favor. About two thousand dollars coming to him for his end of the fight, but he won't get the money unless Manager McCarney, of the Washington Sporting Club, where the fight was pulled off, stops the action which he has begun in court. That's the situation of the man, who several years ago was the greatest fighter of his time now finds himself after earning more than a half of million of dollars during the past twenty odd years that he has been in the arena.

But his admirers in New York are going to his aid. Already they are making plans for a monster benefit. The sporting and theatrical men along Broadway, some of whom have made more money out of Fitzsimmons than any other man himself, are willing to go to his rescue. The old fighter has a place at Dunellen, and a nice place at that—where he can live in contentment.

But even though he has lost money, he has not lost his friends. The rural people living around his home think the world of him, for he has been a great friend of them. While he was training for the fight, the camp was crowded all day with visitors. It was something new to the people living there. In fact it was something new for New Jersey to have a training camp within its bounds. But it is probable that there will be no more training camps at that place, and certainly not for Fitzsimmons.

Bishop Williams Leaves.

Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, Bishop of Michigan, has been spending the past three weeks with his brother, Lewis A. Williams, of Dunellen avenue, has gone to Connecticut for a few days. Next Sunday he will preach in New York.

B. R. WALDRON'S "NELLIE" OUTDISTANCES "ROAN VIEW"

TRACK HEAVY BUT FAIR ACRES MEET IS A SUCCESS.

Heavy condition of the track somewhat marred the sport at the Driving Park Saturday afternoon at the Martine Races of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Association. There were four events on the card, but fewer entries in each than if the going had been faster.

Of the four class races, the Class A pace proved the best event. B. R. Waldron's "Nellie" and George Conover's "Roan View" paced a dead heat in this first event of the day, and Waldron's "Nellie" came in ahead in the other heats. The best time was 2.34¼.

The card follows:

The July number of Scribner's Magazine is full of outdoor features and is unusually rich in pictures and articles that have to do with the summer season. The frontispiece, in color, accompanies a poem of the woods called "The Green Inn" by Theodosia Garrison. It is scarcely known outside of Spain that Velasquez, the great painter, left a series of remarkable portraits of some of the collection of paintings which Philip IV sent to the Monastery of San Lorenzo, in 1656. Walter Pach, an American artist, has translated these succinct commentaries and has written a preface. It is illustrated by reproductions of the paintings commented on. Barrett Wendell concludes his essays on Contemporary France with a discussion of "The Republic and Democracy."

The July McClure's is unique in features. There are six of them and a more interesting issue of any magazine would be hard to find. "Will the 'Americas' Fly to the Pole?" by Walter Wellman is a fairy story of reality—and graphically describes his airship "America" and the dash he will make to the Pole next month. Ellen Terry in "When I was Married" tells of her romantic marriage to the painter, Watts, when she was not quite sixteen. She also tells of several years of her early life on the stage. Anecdote after anecdote make her memories charming. Carl Schurz dramatically paints "The Battle of Gettysburg." "The Confession and Autobiography of Harry Orchard," whose figures so large in Idaho, are most astounding, and give one a key to the man's character in the story of his first deadly errors. C. P. Connolly brings out most amazing and melodramatic Montana history in "The Fight for Copper." Ida Tarbell, in which contest "almost every crime in the calendar was committed." Georgine Milmine's "Mary Baker G. Eddy" takes up the story of "Mrs. Eddy and Witchcraft," and shows Mrs. Eddy's strong belief in witchcraft and Malicious Animal Magnetism.

LOS ANGELES SOLOIST HEARD AT DIVINE SERVICE.

Miss Isabella Curl Pleases Seventh-Day Baptist Congregation.

The congregation of the Seventh-day Baptist church was highly favored at their morning service by the solo rendering by Miss Isabella Curl, of Los Angeles, Col., of two soprano solos; "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," by Dudley Buck, and "Come Unto Him," from Handel's Messiah, and also the solo parts of Spence's anthem "Like as the Hart."

Miss Curl has studied voice culture abroad, and is on her way to Milan for an additional three years course, yet those who heard her Sabbath morning recognized already in her interpretation and rendition of the above solos, the work of the finished artist. Particularly enjoyable were the unaffected manner, ease of voice control, and remarkably distinct enunciation, all features so necessary to the proper rendering of sacred music, yet features so often carelessly disregarded by church singers. It is hoped the congregation may hear her again upon her return home. While in Plainfield Miss Curl is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson, of Park avenue.

REALTY EXCHANGE ELECTS

William Jeffery Chosen Second Vice-President of N. J.-N. Y. Land Syndicate.

ARRANGE A DINNER

Committees Appointed to Draft By-laws and Doolittle Will Preside.

The Realty Exchange of Plainfield held its annual election of officers at the Hotel Iroquois, Saturday afternoon, and arrangements were made for a vigorous campaign of land development in this State.

The officers elected were: President, Otto Kempner, of New York; first vice president, William A. Lambert, of Nutley, N. J.; second vice president, William Jeffery, of Plainfield; third vice president, Henry A. Squires, of Bergen county; secretary, F. W. Creighton, of New York, and treasurer, Joseph A. Doolittle, of the El Mora Land Company, Union county.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Jeffery, Kempner and Doolittle was appointed to draft by-laws and another consisting of Messrs. Jeffery, Day and Doolittle to fix the president's salary.

The other directors are John Kenneilly, Edmund Brook, and Joseph W. Day, of Milburn. On the invitation of Mr. Day, the directors will dine at the Waldorf, in New York, tomorrow, to discuss further plans.

The New Jersey and New York Real Estate Exchange has been incorporated for the purpose of the protection and promotion of the business interests of real estate developers, brokers, dealers and operators. The capital stock is placed at $10,000, divided into 400 shares of the par value of $25.

The exchange will maintain offices in New York. These offices will probably be in the Hudson Terminal Building at Cortlandt and Church streets.

J. D. Doolittle, president of the El Mora and Company, in whose offices in New York the meetings of the Exchange are being held until permanent offices are arranged for, has been active in furthering the organization of this Exchange. In speaking with reference to this Exchange, and the general development of New Jersey as a residential section, Mr. Doolittle said:

"For several years I have felt that New Jersey was about due for a big real estate boom. It is naturally a most attractive section of country, but for some reason or other there has been a prejudice in the minds of many New Yorkers regarding Jersey. The New Yorker has felt that it would take half a day to get to New Jersey and get back, and that the mosquitoes in the meadows were as big as robins and thicker than the crowds at the Brooklyn bridge crush. These bug-a-boos, however, have practically been eliminated from the mind of the New York public, and with the completion of the tunnels under the Hudson river, and the other improved transportation facilities, New Jersey will certainly have a real estate boom which will carry prices in many sections to double and treble their present mark.

"In a boom of this nature there is always an opportunity for unprincipled operators and speculators to work off the unsuspecting public fake development schemes and cheap and undesirable properties. It is for the purpose of avoiding this, and to continually raise rather than lower the standard of development that we are forming the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange."

COLORED SAINTS WILL DEDICATE CHURCH SUNDAY.

Prophet Crowdy's Son To Be On Hand—Coin Sorely Needed.

The members of the Church of God and Saints of Christ, colored, will take possession of their new house of worship on West Third street, on Sunday, when services will be held all day. Elder Trent, who is in charge of the congregation, announces that it will be a "grand opening." At 10 o'clock in the morning, Grandfather Abraham William H. Plumber, of Boston, Mass., will break the Bread of Life.

Evangelist M. D. Morris, of Newark, will preach a special sermon at 3 o'clock in the afternoon before the Daughters of Jerusalem and Sisters of Mercy. The real opening sermon will be preached at 8:30 o'clock in the evening by Chief Evangelist Joseph Crowdy, and there will be special music by singers from various churches. Elder Trent extends a cordial welcome to all well-wishers, and incidentally remarks that the congregation is obliged to raise a specified sum of money at the opening of the new tabernacle.

This building is the result of the big convention of the Church of God and Saints of Christ held here last year, when delegates were present from all parts of the country. A sufficient number of converts were secured to form a congregation and under the direction of Elder Trent steps were taken to build a church. In the meantime the congregation has been meeting at Reform Hall.

DEDICATE THE AUDITORIUM

Postponed Services For New Building Held at Netherwood Camp Yesterday.

MEMORIAL STRUCTURE

Erected My D. W. Hand As a Tribute to His Sons, Irving and David.

The new memorial building, erected by David Hand and family as a tribute to the memory of his two sons, David and Irving Hand, was filled to the utmost capacity Sunday afternoon on the occasion of the dedication exercises at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, yesterday afternoon. More than 400 Plainfielders, interested in the work Miss Curry is carrying on at Netherwood for the New York poor, visited the camp yesterday for the dedication services.

The building, which is 60 feet broad by 125 feet deep, is a single story auditorium and will accommodate 500 people. At one end it is closed in and at the other end is the speaker's platform. The other three sides of the building are open. At the occasion of the death of Mr. Hand's eldest son, Irving, three years ago, the young man spoke of Miss Curry and the Netherwood Camp during his last conscious moments. He said that he wished he could do something for the camp and asked that the money he had saved be put with a bequest his younger brother David had left for the camp at the time of his death several years before, and something be done for Miss Curry's work. The money amounted to $1,500 and Miss Curry felt that the greatest need was to have a covered auditorium where meetings could be held. Some time was consumed in deciding on plans for the building and the work of erection was commenced early in the spring.

The dedication services held at the camp yesterday were postponed from last Sunday, because of the stormp weather. The programme consisted of songs by the children at the camp and remarks by various members of the camp committee and Miss Sara Curry, the matron.

The order of service was as follows: Chorus, "There's Sunshine in My Soul Today"; solo, "Every Day Song," by Mary Miller, one of the camp children; chorus, "Under His Wings"; hymn, "The Comforter Has Come"; Scripture reading and prayer, by Rev. E. M. Rodman; selection by the choir, "Sweeter As the Days Go By"; remarks by Joseph W. Hand, chairman of the Finance Committee; hymn, "Follow, We Will Follow Jesus; remarks by John D. Loizeaux, chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee; hymn "Calling Today"; remarks by Benjamin Hadley, secretary of the Camp; selection by the choir, "A Letter From Home"; remarks by George E. Hall, vice-president of the Camp; duett, "Peace, Sweet Peace," by Elsie and Helen Tdor, two of the camp children; remarks by Edmund W. Hand, donor of the auditorium; selection by the choir, "He's Everything to Me"; remarks by Miss Sara Curry, matron at the Camp; cornet solo, "The Beautiful City," by Whitney Frazee; remarks by Miss Florence G. Hawkins, of the camp devotional committee; offertory, cornet solo, "The Ninety and Nine," by Whitney Frazee; hymn, "Blest be the Tie that binds"; benediction and doxology, by Rev. E. M. Rodman.

A choir from the Park Avenue Baptist church, twelve voices, led the song services. Miss Mary Clark was at the melodian, accompanied by Whitney Frazee on the cornet. The leader of the meeting was George A. Chapman.

A collection amounting to $25.45 was taken for Miss Curry's work. In speaking of the necessity of raising the camp, Mr. Chapman said: "Last summer there were brought out from New York 1674 children and 568 mothers—2242 in all. The treasurer's report showed that the total expenditures amounted to but $1,326, so that for every sixty cent contributed by the people of Plainfield and vicinity, it was made possible for Miss Curry to bring out a child from New York, keep it at the camp, and return it to its home.

Prior to every way qualified for the position, having had charge of the editorial work for an entire season during the absence of Dr. Lewis, and the choice meets with the general approbation of the members of the denomination.

TRAINED NURSE ARRESTED

Charged with Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses She is Locked Up.

$100 AMOUNT INVOLVED

Secured Physician's Endorsement to Check For Which There Were No Funds.

Charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, Mrs. Elizabeth White, a comely widow about forty years old, was placed under arrest at Saratoga, N. Y., Saturday at the request of Chief Kiely, of the local force. The woman agreed to come to Plainfield without the formality of requisition papers and is now locked up at police headquarters awaiting help from friends who have promised to aid her.

Mrs. White is a native of the South and came to this city from some point below Washington a little over a month ago. She is a trained nurse and was following her profession when she became ill and was treated by Dr. B. VanD. Hedges. After recovery she was pressed for money and went to the City National Bank and got a check for $100, drawn in her own name on a southern bank. When asked for identification, she gave Dr. Hedges' names and the physician readily gave his endorsement to her check and the money was paid over.

As soon as Mrs. White received the $100 she hurried to the North avenue station, first going to a place on Long Island and then to Saratoga. These facts were learned later when the check was discovered to be worthless. Chief Kiely had Mrs. White's movements traced and finally located her in the New York state city where she was nursing a patient.

The chief got the authorities to arrest her, according to Saratoga papers, but she escaped by the lawyers and asked for an immediate hearing. The proceedings were about to start when the Plainfield officer reminded her counsel that all the obstacles she placed in his way would work to her detriment when he got her to New Jersey. The object lesson had its effect on Mrs. White and she consented to come to Plainfield without any further opposition.

Dr. Hedges was asked about the matter this morning but declined to give any information, stating that he regretted the affair very much. He notified the police that he would not press any charge against Mrs. White if the $100 was refunded, and this the friends are seeking to do. She placed herself in communication with them as soon as she was arrested and the money will probably be forthcoming in a short time.

THIEVES STOLE HIS HORSE BUT LEFT A BETTER ONE

FUCHS THEN GOT HIS OWN BACK AND NOW HE HAS TWO

Charles Fuchs, a former well known resident of this city, who now lives at Berkeley Heights, recently had a peculiar experience with horse thieves and the result is a handsome animal in his possession that he would like to have claimed.

The thieves entered Fuchs' barn a week ago Saturday night and stole the horse he uses in his business as butcher. When he discovered the loss next morning, however, he found that another had been left in its place, the newcomer being much more valuable than his. Matters remained this way until the latter part of last week when Fuchs noticed an article in The Daily Press relating an occurrence similar to his that had taken place at Whitehouse. It stated that a horse belonging to John C. TenEyck, who lives near the village, had been stolen but another animal had been left in the yard of Jacob S. Swackhamer. A description of the latter horse was given and it corresponded with the one taken from Fuchs' barn.

Fuchs went to Whitehouse Saturday and found that the animal at Swackhamer's was his. He brought it home with him and now has the two, no one having yet arrived to claim the one put in his barn.

The thieves travelled in a buggy and it is believed that they are making their way West, pressing a fresh horse into service every night and abandoning the other.

P.S.C. BLAMED FOR DEATH

of the condition in which he found Mr. Weekes. John A. Shaw, a mechanist, of 999 Leland avenue, who saw the body of Mr. Weekes as it lay on the sidewalk, was also called as a witness and testified to what he saw.

Frederick W. J. Brooks, brother of Mrs. Weekes, residing at 842 Berkeley avenue, testified that the morning his brother-in-law was killed, his sister notified him of that fact and he viewed the body. He also stated that he saw the ends of the broken electric light wires suspended over the sidewalk in the street.

One of the most important witnesses was James Ellis, a lineman employed by the P. S. C., who described at some length the methods in force to maintain the electric light wires throughout the city and the inspection of wires and lights. He explained in answer to a question that a fuse will not blow out unless there is a short circuit of the wires.

Mr. Ellis said that from the condition of the wires when he arrived at the scene it indicated that the two wires had been burning in the nearby trees and that as the result of the contact they had burned off. He said that the night inspector may have inspected these wires a few nights before, but he had no knowledge that he had been there the night previous to the accident. In answer to a question from Mr. English as to whether the inspector reports cases of insulation being off the wires, he replied that he did, except in trivial cases.

The witness declared that he was on Berkeley avenue the week previous to the accident on a case of trouble, a broken wire being reported. He failed to find the break.

Mr. English called the attention of Ellis to the wire in the room and asked him whether he considered the condition of it sufficiently poor to report it and he replied that he did not.

Mr. Ellis explained further that Nelis Anderson is the night inspector and that he takes one half of the city one night and the other half the following night, Park avenue being the dividing line. It requires about five hours to make an inspection with a horse and wagon. Mr. English attempted to prove by the witness that one inspector could not properly cover the territory in the prescribed time.

Mr. Martine asked the witness if there was not a standing order in the P. S. C., that in the case of an accident similar to the one on Berkeley avenue, that all wire is to be collected and evidence of any blame to be removed. He denied that there was such an order. He also said that the piece of wire, supposed to have caused Mr. Weekes' death would compare favorably with the rest of the electric light wire in the city.

Mr. Ellis was the first man, outside of the neighbors, to reach Berkeley avenue the morning of the accident, and he said that all wires were supposed to be dead at that time, word having been given to shut off the power.

Robert H. McCready, of 1236 Denmark road, but who resided at Ravine road and Berkeley avenue, the fourth witness, testified, according to meeting Dr. Westcott, the county physician and other officials at the scene of the fatality. Mr. Weekes' body had been removed to the house and the broken wires had been taken down. He asked William Crawley, the lineman, who had cut the wire which was supposed to have caused Mr. Weekes' death, and he did so. Then Mr. McCready marked his initials with a lead pencil on a portion of the wire, but when he examined the wire yesterday he could not find the initials. However, he believed it to be the same piece of wire.

Mr. McCready offered a photograph of Mr. Weekes, taken in his bed, after death, showing how badly his right hand was burned. This photograph, the map made by H. C. VanBenburg, rubber shoes, pieces of wire and branches of a nearby tree through which the wires ran, were all offered in evidence by Mr. English.

This concluded the inquest, and Mr. English in addressing the jury reminded them that it was simply an investigation that they were supposed to make and he asked them to find a verdict according to the testimony. He informed the jurors that they might find it to be a case of accident, avoidable or unavoidable, or unavoidable, one of gross negligence with a reckless disregard of human life and if this should be the conclusion they might return a verdict of manslaughter, but they could not go beyond that. On the other hand they could be as lenient as they saw fit.

ELKS PARADERS' PRIZES

Toledo, El Paso and Cincinnati Big Winners in the Philadelphia Pageant.

ABANDON THE EMBLEM

Elks' Tooth No Longer to be Worn By Members of the Order —Band Captain Drowns.

The 1907 reunion of the Elks, the most brilliantly successful in the history of the order, was officially ended Saturday so far as Philadelphia was concerned. The majority of the visitors had already gone to Atlantic City where the lodge at that place had prepared a huge clambake and the rest started for their homes. Before the formal "breaking-up" the committee on contests announced the winners of the various competitions on parade day. They were as follows:

To the Leanest Elk, $25—J. Ed. Neis, Pasadena, Cal. Waist measure, 22 inches; height, five feet, 6 inches; weight, 86 pounds.

To the Tallest Elk—Carl M. Koenning, Sacramento, Cal. Height, 6 feet 7½ inches.

The special prize of $500 for the largest number in line was awarded to the Guadalajara Military Band of Mexico, which accompanied El Paso Lodge, and the second special prize of $150 was awarded to the Ringgold Band of Reading, which accompanied the Reading Lodge.

A pathetic incident in connection with the awarding of prizes was the fact that while the first prize was given to the Guadalajara Band of Mexico (the Mexican band) the Judges were not aware that Captain Azzali, the leader, was lying dead at Atlantic City, having drowned in the surf. Captain Azzali's band received the first prize for the largest band in the line of march.

No prizes were awarded for the lodges having the largest number of men in line or the lodges having the largest aggregate mileage. It will will require some computation to award them, and this will not be done after the statistics of the registration bureau have been carefully gone over.

The Toledo Cherry Pickers captured two of the choicest prizes of the convention. They were undoubtedly the best drilled body of men in both parades. El Paso, Tex., got more money than the Cherry Pickers, but only captured one first prize.

The float which won first money for Cincinnati was the elaborate Queen of Beauty affair, which was surrounded by a number of pickaninnies, pieces of wire and branches of a nearby tree through which the wires ran, were all offered in evidence by Mr. English.

At the grand lodge meeting Friday afternoon former Grand Exalted Ruler Melvin's resolution to abolish elks' teeth as emblems and save the animal from extinction was howled down, but when a vote was taken the resolution was carried by so large a majority that its opponents consented to make the vote unanimous.

Prior to taking adjournment the grand lodge elected Colonel Albert J. Holley, of Hackensack, N. J., to fill the vacancy in the board of grand trustees caused by the death of John J. O'Shea, of Lynn, Mass.

KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS BY A BOLT OF LIGHTNING

MRS. A. V. SEARING VICTIM OF SATURDAY NIGHT'S STORM.

LOCAL COUPLE ELOPE

Following the oppressively high temperature on Saturday, which was not relieved by the heavy thunder storm during the morning, a terrific electrical storm visited the city during the early part of the evening, while the business streets were thronged with shoppers. The storm came up quickly, the first intimation of it being the constant flashes of sharp lightning, which was followed by a heavy down pour of rain.

During the storm a bolt of lightning struck the ventilator pipe on the roof of the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Searing on Orange place, and followed the water pipe to the kitchen sink, where but a minute before Mrs. Searing had been drawing water. When the bolt reached the end of the water faucet it exploded, filling the room with fire. Mrs. Searing, who was alone in the kitchen, was rendered unconscious by the shock and it was fully an hour before she recovered her senses. She is still confined to the house, but no serious results are anticipated by the physician in charge. Strangely, the damage to the house was slight.

While the shower did not last more than fifteen minutes, it was very severe and the rain was intermingled with hail, stones of large proportion falling chiefly in the business part of the town. On West Front street Michael Higgins scooped up a large pail full of the stones. Many horses were frightened by the deluge of rain and hail, stones and several runaways were narrowly averted.

Wherever the storm sewer is installed the surface water was carried off quickly but many other streets were inundated, the water rushing through them like a river. Very little damage was reported, probably due to the fact that the storm lasted by a short time. Soon afterward there was a noticeable drop in the temperature, making life worth living. Yesterday the weather was delightful and hundreds of Plainfielders enjoyed it automobiling, carriage riding, on the trolleys or by going on the various railroad excursions.

Plainfield Won Yacht Race.

Yachting news from Lake Placid in the Adirondacks tells of a race sailed last week between the yachts of W. J. Buttfield, of Rockview avenue, and Dr. E. N. Seligman, Commodore of the Lake Placid Yacht Club; Prof. E. R. A. Seligman of Columbia University and George A. Stevens, resulting in a victory for the yacht of Mr. Buttfield. This race was preliminary to the opening of the yachting season, the regular series of races for points beginning soon.

UNCLE AND NEPHEW VS. UNCLE AND NEPHEW

TEUTONIC LANGUAGE AS A MEDIUM OF DEBATE IN POLICE COURT.

"When Greek Meets Greek" isn't an instance to what happens verbally when an irate German meets a fellow countryman in the same mood. There was no conclusive demonstration of the efficacy of the Teutonic language, as a substitute for blows at police headquarters Monday morning. Paul Nachtwey, who keeps a delicatessen store on Watchung avenue, had sundry complaints to make against Franz Gilthes, nephew of John G. Bantle, his neighbor and his landlord.

Thomas, Bantie's nephew, and Franz, Nachtwey's nephew, fellows about seventeen years of age, have not been on friendly terms for three months. Rich Teutonic epithets alleged to have been hurled from one to another at sundry times of meeting brought about a complaint by Nachtwey, the uncle, that the language "hurts mein business." In court Monday the family feud broke out in unbridled fierceness under the very ear of the law. The English of it, as the famous baby show at Asbury Park, and because of the Orange Mountain representation, on which an entire delegation sat and sang.

The gasolene tank of a touring car owned by Arthur C. Swinton, of Nolan & Swinton, insurance brokers, of 100 William street, New York, mysteriously exploded as it was climbing a steep incline on the old York road two miles north of Somerville last Saturday night.

Mr. Swinton was driving the car at the time and was accompanied by two other men. The occupants made a flying leap for their lives and escaped injury. The car was almost instantly enveloped in flames and was totally destroyed. The occupants were compelled to make such a hasty escape that their hats and coats were left behind and were burned with the car.

Injured Attending Convention.

Rev. G. W. Bailey, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, is suffering from a severe cut on the forehead which he received on Saturday, while attending a colored Baptist's convention at Trenton. He was sitting close by a window which fell over and struck him on the head.

WHILE ON VACATION

The outcome of a summer resort "affair du coeur" at Budd's Lake was the wedding of Alfred Harral, for the past two years a resident of the West End, and Miss Mary Orrimassett, of Budd's Lake. The couple met at the Lake resort and "Dan Cupid" did the rest. Saturday night the troth was plighted and the couple stole quietly away to Dover, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Courtright. At the last moment there was a delay, because of the arrangement of difficulty arising from the fact that Rev. Dr. Courtright, is not a resident of this state. He is pastor of the First Baptist church at Johnstown, N. Y., and is spending his vacation at Dover.

Harral's name does not appear in the city directory, but, it is said, he has been employed at Laforete place for several years past and is well known here. A despatch from Dover says that the bride is also from this city, but she is not known here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harral are spending their honeymoon at Budd's Lake, the scene of their courtship.

AUTO TANK EXPLODES.

GIRL WIFE TRIES TO DIE

Mrs. John McDonald's Life Saved by Her Youthful Husband.

CHILD BRIDE UNHAPPY

Carried Carbolic Acid With Her for Four Days—Attempted Suicide Before Her Twenty-Year-Old Spouse.

Weary of life at seventeen, and of marriage after five months, Mrs. John McDonald, a slip of an Irish lass, attempted to swallow the contents of a bottle of carbolic acid before her husband, on Watchung avenue, Wednesday night. McDonald knocked the bottle from her hand. Just in the nick of time.

McDonald is only three years older than his girl-wife. He was recently driver of the police patrol wagon, and is now employed as caretaker of Undertaker T. A. Moore's offices on Watchung avenue. His wife, whose maiden name was Maggie Egan, came to this country from Ireland less than a year ago, leaving her mother and father, to make her fortune in the new world. She has been employed as a mess girl in a family on East Second street.

Her marriage with McDonald has not been a happy one. They did not live together, and Mrs. McDonald lost faith in her husband. She brooded over her troubles, and last Sunday she bought a vial of carbolic acid. With the vial in her pocket she went to McDonald, at the undertaker's office, last night, to reproach him.

McDonald replied to her reproaches in kind. Finally, for some reason, they decided to bury their troubles before the police, and together they went to the station house at nine o'clock. Captain Frederickson was at the desk. He listened patiently to their charges and countercharges of neglect and faithlessness, and then advised them to forget the past in a new effort to make their marriage happy. They left the station house together, after promising to be "good."

Mrs. McDonald renewed her reproaches as they walked down the street. She made threats of suicide by poison, and McDonald's caution was aroused. He made a sarcastic comment on the threat, but he watched his wife sharply and was prepared to act when she suddenly pulled the vial of acid from her skirt pocket.

He sprang toward her as she jerked the cork out, and disregarding the risk of burns, he knocked the bottle from her hand. Both of Mrs. McDonald's arms and one of the husband's arms were burned, and none of the stuff touched the girl's lips. McDonald took his wife to the office, and telephoned for the police.

Patrolman Dobson took them both to the station house, where Dr. C. S. Lufburrow dressed their burns, none of which were serious. Mrs. McDonald acknowledged the attempt on her life, and was placed under arrest on a technical charge of disorderly conduct. McDonald was allowed to go.

The Eleven o'Clock Toast.

It is said this practice was inaugurated by George McDonald, one of the original Elks, who suggested that the social meetings, which usually adjourned about 11 o'clock, be closed with a toast to the absent ones.

Now, wherever Elks are together, in social session, in lodge room or elsewhere, the hour of eleven brings to mind the vast army of brothers who are absent, either from the gathering or from the great battle of life.

The Elks adopted the "crossing of hands" and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" from the Tam-o'-Shanter or Columbian Order.

WOMAN'S REALM.

New Orleans has the finest woman orchestra in the world, while in a New England factory women are employed as piano makers.

The Chamber of Commerce, Cincinnati, has the best restaurant in the city, and it is run by Scotch women, who make a yearly profit of $15,000, although their annual rental is $5,000.

There are in England today 112 women who are duly elected rural district councilors who are also members of boards of guardians. There are 388 women guardians of the poor who hold that office apart from rural district councilships, making a grand total of 1,000 elected to these two important bodies.

Plants and Flowers.

Dracoenas will decay if water lodges in the heart of the plant. If on washing the leaves some settles there, turn the plant over to get rid of it.

The castor bean makes a quick hedge for the vegetable garden.

Begonias make a brilliant display and are desirable for partly shaded places. They are well adapted to porch decoration because they do not require full sunshine.

$10,000 FOR LIBRARY

Bequests Ranging from $500 to $1,250 for Other Relatives — Will Probated.

The will of the late Col. Mason W. Tyler, which was filed for probate in the office of Surrogate Parrott at Elizabeth on Monday, July 13, names his wife, Mrs. Eliza M. Tyler, as executrix and his sons, William S. Tyler and Cornelius Boardman Tyler, as executors, but inasmuch as Mrs. Tyler died about a year ago, the sons will act in their capacity in the direction of the will.

Col. Tyler bequeaths to his son, William S. Tyler, his sword and rifle, which he carried through the Civil War; a portrait painted by the late Colonel Julian Scott and $25,000. To his other son, Cornelius Boardman Tyler, he bequaths an artillery sword and a revolver, which he carried in the war; also $25,000, while his office equipment in New York he left to his two sons jointly. To his brothers, Henry and John Tyler, he leaves $500 each, and to the widow and children of his brother, William, he leaves $1,250 each. Mason W. Tyler and Mason Tyler Adams, namesakes, are each left $500.

The sum of $1,000 is bequeathed to the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, the income of which is to be used in the purchase of books for the institution. The residue of the property is left to his wife, Eliza M. Tyler, executrix, and his sons, William S. and Cornelius Boardman Tyler.

STATE COUNCIL'S VICTORY

IN COURT OF CHANCERY.

Former Vice Chancellor Pitney Hands Down Decision in Jr. O. U. A. M. Case.

A decision was filed at Trenton Friday By Vice Chancellor Henry C. Pitney, retired, in the suit of the State Council of the Junior Order of the United American Mechanics against Enterprise Council, of Trenton, and Hollywood Council, of Long Branch, in which he finds that the two councils must turn over to the state council all property in the form of books, records, money, etc.

This is one of the last phases of the fight in this state between the national council and the state council for control of the subordinate councils of the order. In the main suit the court decided that the national council had no standing in New Jersey.

When the State council broke away from the national council, Enterprise and Hollywood councils went over to the national body, and consequently the state council has not been recognized by them. After the decision in the main case, the state council obtained an order from Vice Chancellor Pitney before his retirement from the bench, restraining the two councils from disposing of any of their property. The injunction continued until the determination of this suit for possession of the property of the two organizations.

The Vice Chancellor holds that the Trenton and Long Branch councils must turn over all property to the state council forthwith. Whether these councils will do this or come back into the fold of the state council is a matter of subsequent developments.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

The average Sunday congregation at St. Paul's is 2,400, at Westminster abbey 2,000.

Rev. William H. McLennan, of Chicago, proposes to send one letter a day to sinners of that city until they all repent and are converted.

The office of hotel chaplain, held for years by Rev. Henry Marsh Warren, has been abolished by the New York Hotel Men's association, and Rev. Warren will take a trip abroad.

After a period of over 360 years' absence the Grey Friars and minor conventual fathers have returned to England and taken charge of the Church of St. Joseph, Potishead, near Bristol.

Rev. Dr. William H. Rice, pastor of the John Heckewelder Memorial Moravian church, of Gradenhutten, O., was elected chaplain of the department of Ohio at the recent annual Grand Army of the Republic encampment at Canton.

SUMMER HOSE HINTS.

Stripes have superseded the openwork effects, and come in all widths, the narrowest being just a dropped stitch in lines less than an inch apart, the widest in portions showing a row of dots. Others have openwork stripes an inch wide, looking at first place not unlike a band of fancy braid.

Year old babies' socks are shown in the same six rows of openwork coloring, quite plain or adorned with dots, and, for older children, there are the smart, practical tans, in cotton and lisle thread, plain and embroidered.

RECTOR WARNER AND HIS FAMILY

SOME FISH STORIES

Clergyman Reported to Have the Habit of Catching Bass Weighing at Least Two Pounds.

Rector Warner and his large family of forty-two boys are reported as safely arrived and settled in Camp Comfort, Berkshire Hills. The boys say the weather and swimming are the "best ever" and the rector declares he has the choicest assortment of sun burned "Indians" ever seen in camp. "Pat" Riley's face is used to fry griddle cakes and the biscuits of world known fame are baked with heat supplied by Kenyon. All sorts of rumors come floating home of the boys and their sports; fact and fancy it is feared are strangely mingled. Baron Munchausen and Ananias must have been close relatives at the camp. Far be it however, for anyone to doubt the account of the rector and his large bass. It is said that he sits on the shore waiting for the bass to jump and then while the bass are in the air, goes out and brings in a two pound bass caught on a troll and acts as though it were his usual stunt.

The conductor on the Fast Mail from New York to Albany reports that the special car attached to his train had some of the liveliest material aboard he ever handled. Everything along the line from a cow to a hay stack was cheered vociferously. It was a livelier crowd and an impatient one that waited for an hour in the Troy station for a special car to be attached to the Boston train for Eagle Bridge. Nightfall found the boys safely housed in their canvass water-proof tents after a long cool swim and supper served by a chef familiarly known as "Greasy."

Camp gossip says that Charles, the colored man, is getting a thick coat o- tan, and Charles declares the frogs are as big as kittens and the mosquitoes the size of humming birds.

Appetites are not on the wane at Camp Comfort, marvellous tales of the consumption spuds, biscuits, iced tea, choice chicken, salads, fresh vegetables, etc., by the boys, are told in the grocery store at Shushan. Sickness and accidents are confined to broom straw fever, the pip and mosquito bites.

Meanwhile Vail and his aggregation of champion ball players are planning to wipe up the earth with Sunday, Salem and Cambridge base ball teams. The farmers think differently and the question has yet to be settled.

On Thursday, July 25, the boys will give their concert at Cambridge N. Y. Two weeks more of camp life remain. A letter to the Daily Press from the rector has been promised.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rockland, is quoted as saying that he would like to go back to Trenton if his colleague, Mr. Perkins, is given a like opportunity. Now Tillman is better in the graces of the regulars but the same rule applies to him for the Rahway man is also filling his third term. But with the masses who have the better idea in government, Mr. Tillman does not loom up so well as Perkins, because of their respective attitudes in the recent Senatorial contest, Union county at that time being strongly opposed to Mr. Dryden's candidacy. The third man, Assemblyman Moxon, is not popular with the voters who were under the leadership of Plainfield's popular leader, William N. Runyon, in the last campaign formed from the first the Elizabethan was an out and out Dryden supporter. The organization men, however, declare that there is not the least opposition to him and predict that he will be sent back inasmuch as he has held but one term. Moxon has cut little figure in the Assembly and the voters will have to rely on the People's Lobby for his bill of health.

In addition to three assemblymen to be selected, a surrogate and a coroner will be named this fall. As George Parrot, who is ever personal grata in Union county, has a recognized life tenure in the office which he has ably filled for many years, it is extremely unlikely that there will be any change in that office. The coronership will probably go abegging.

Mrs. D. W. Chandler, of Bound Brook, has been visiting Plainfield relatives.

Miss Margaret Smyth, of the local telephone office, is enjoying a week's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, of West Third street, will spend their vacation at Silver Bay, Lake George.

Mrs. Harry Bush and son, William, of East Sixth street, have gone to Port Washington, L. I., to spend two weeks.

Mrs. L. M. French, of Craig place, has returned from a sojourn at Asbury Park, where she stopped at the Carlisle.

FLOWER AND TREE.

The tobacco plant has grown larger and more profusely in the United States than in any other country.

Consul Hunter Sharp, writing from Kobe, states that the peppermint plant grows about three feet high and is propogated from roots which are dug in the end of November and early in December.

Soapsuds may be used to advantage in fighting insect pests on the flowers. After you have done the week's washing, take the suds and spray the flower plants. Nearly all the serious insect pests can be destroyed by this simple remedy.

Palmyra, Me., has an old elm tree about which they tell this story: A man cut an elm stake and put it on his load of wood. When he unloaded, he stuck this stake into the ground, and it grew until now it is a stately elm that has withstood the blasts of many winters.

RANDOLPH PERKINS

AN AMBITIOUS MAN

As Stepping Stone to Senatorial and Congressional Honors He Wants a Fourth Term in Assembly.

PETER TILLMAN, TOO

Custom Has Been Two Terms Only —Parrot a Sure Thing For Renomination.

How to sidetrack Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, is the problem which is worrying the regular Republicans even more than how to keep cool these days for it is known that the Republican leader in the House is ambitious and as a stepping stone to future preferment wants to hold on to his seat in the Assembly for another term. As the story goes "on the inside," the railroad tax law man has his eyes on Senator Ernest R. Ackerman's berth and ultimately would not refuse the Charles N. Fowler sinecure. Organization men who are close to the throne of the political masters say that they are absolutely certain that these are the plans mapped out for himself by the Westfielder. Mr. Perkins, however, has not been as obedient as some might have wished, it is said, and that is the real reason why efforts are being arranged to refire him. The chief excuse given against his renomination for the Assembly is that he has already had three terms in the House and that Union county's precedent has been to allow a good man only two terms.

Another objection made by the regulars is that Mr. Perkins would not be acceptable to "the new idea" in New Jersey politics and that his course has frequently offended those who espouse government "of, by and for the people." Advantage is being taken also of his stand in favor of the suspension of the auto law to allow the cup race in Union county. The regulars themselves do not care a rap whether the race is held but they know that Mr. Perkins has misrepresented his constituents in advocating it and have eagerly seized upon the fact to make capital. Still another thing that will be used against him is that he has given affront to the local option people. This, however, is considered as making a mountain out of a mole hill for very few people in Union county are local option agitators.

Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rockland, is quoted as saying that he would like to go back to Trenton if his colleague, Mr. Perkins, is given a like opportunity. Now Tillman is better in the graces of the regulars but the same rule applies to him for the Rahway man is also filling his third term. But with the masses who have the better idea in government, Mr. Tillman does not loom up so well as Perkins, because of their respective attitudes in the recent Senatorial contest, Union county at that time being strongly opposed to Mr. Dryden's candidacy. The third man, Assemblyman Moxon, is not popular with the voters who were under the leadership of Plainfield's popular leader, William N. Runyon, in the last campaign formed from the first the Elizabethan was an out and out Dryden supporter. The organization men, however, declare that there is not the least opposition to him and predict that he will be sent back inasmuch as he has held but one term. Moxon has cut little figure in the Assembly and the voters will have to rely on the People's Lobby for his bill of health.

In addition to three assemblymen to be selected, a surrogate and a coroner will be named this fall. As George Parrot, who is ever personal grata in Union county, has a recognized life tenure in the office which he has ably filled for many years, it is extremely unlikely that there will be any change in that office. The coronership will probably go abegging.

RAIDS TRAMP-DOG CAMP

Jim Babbit Breaks Up a Predatory Pack of Hobo Canines.

BATTLES WITH LEADER

In order to break up a dog "hangout," and round up canine hoboes that had been preying on the chickens and peace of mind of West Third street residents, Dog Catcher James Babbitt was compelled to rip up the floor of a barn this week. The retreat of the dogs yielded the largest capture of his career at a dog chase.

Complaints were made to Babbitt last week that predatory dogs were working havoc among the chickens of West Third street in the neighborhood of Plainfield avenue. Babbitt started on the trail, expecting to run down one or two "killers" among the mongrels of the district. He was quite unprepared for the remarkable condition of affairs that was unearthed. A day or two after he began to pay attention to the neighborhood, he noticed that a lot of dogs seemed to disappear near a barn on West Third street. Investigation disclosed the fact that a number had slipped under the barn floor when pursued, and Babbitt watched the barn. It became plain after a bit that the dogs had made their headquarters under the floor, and Babbitt made arrangements to get at them.

The only way was to tear up the floor, and this was done. A guard with a whip was stationed at the hole through which the dogs crawled in, and Babbitt had them all in sight when the floor came up. Nine dogs, of all sizes, were disclosed to view. The place had been made a veritable camp by the canine tramps. Feathers and fragments of chickens were much in evidence, besides remnants of meat bones and garbage pickings with which the "pals" had to content themselves while chicken coops were too well guarded.

All but one of the dogs were captured without trouble, but that one was a Tartar. A heavy, vicious mongrel, with courage to battle, he refused to surrender, and charged on Babbitt with murder in his eye. Probably he was the leader of the pack. If he was he died as a fighting chieftain should, by a bullet. Babbitt dropped him with a thirty-two in the head as he leaped upward.

There were probably more dogs in the pack, but those that weren't home when the raid was made will have to hunt other quarters. The place has been cleaned out, and the bottom of the barn tightly boarded. The chickens and people of West Third street rest much easier now, and Babbitt is regarded as a public benefactor.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

A sister-in-law of the Duke of Westminster is making a tour of England as a gypsy.

Miss Alice Perry has recently been appointed county surveyor of Galway. She is the first and only woman in Ireland who has qualified as a civil engineer.

Miss Florence Nightingale is now eighty seven years old. She lives quietly near Park lane, in London, and, owing to poor health, has not left the house for years.

Miss Dolores Lafferate, a West Boylston (Mass.) miss, has forsworn skirts and lingerie and has taken to masculine garb as the most comfortable and most practical wearing apparel.

Mrs. Phineas F. Varnum, of Portland, Me., is a constant user of the telephone. Being unable to call on her friends, Mrs. Varnum entertains them over the wire. Mrs. Varnum is ninety-eight years old.

Miss Isabelle Hagner, who acts as social secretary to Mr. Roosevelt, is carried on the White House pay roll as a clerk at $1,400 a year. She is the daughter of Dr. Hagner, who years ago was regarded as Washington's leading physician.

A curious bit of real estate is owned by Mrs. Margaret T. Graham of Middletown, R. I. It consists of a small rock located just off her estate, in the ocean, and a special act of the Legislature was necessary to give her the rights of ownership.

The first woman aeronaut in the world was Mme. Thible, and between the years 1783 and 1849 forty-nine women made ascents. The first English woman to go up in a baloon was the lovely Mrs. Sage, who had an elaborate dress for the occasion.

SCIENCE SIFTINGS.

The largest of fixed stars appears to be Sirius. It is at least three times as hot as the sun and seven times as large.

The world's locomotive engines are roughly 48,000,000 horsepower, excluding motors. Steamship engines are only one-third of this power.

The cheeks become pale from fear because the mental emotion diminishes the action of the heart and lungs and so impedes the circulation.

James C. Pope and Martin Mantz, the latter a brother-in-law, as executors, filed for probate the will of Isaac Lederer in the office of Surrogate Parrot, Elizabeth, Wednesday. Mr. Lederer died at Carlsbad, Austria, on June 21. The estate approximately amounts to $100,000.

The will bequeaths to Mr. Lederer's sons, Albert M. and Arthur W. Lederer, the sum of $10 each, and to his sister, Miss Josephine Lederer, of Bohemia, $2,000 in gold for her during her life. The executors are given power to sell property and they are not required to furnish bonds.

In addition to the property at No. 62 Craig place, which is left to Mrs. Lederer, there is also the business property on West Front street, leased by Levy Brothers, which belongs to the estate.

E. T. BARROWS STRUCK

WITH BRITISH ROADS

WRITES ENTHUSIASTICALLY OF THEM TO STREET COMMISSIONER GAVETT.

Admiration for the English, Scotch and Welsh roads is expressed by Former Councilman Elliott T. Barrows, in a letter from Somerset, England, to Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett. He expresses a wish that the governing bodies of all the American cities and towns would adopt English road methods. The letter touches on the sewer forms noticed. It is as follows:

"Minehead, Somerset.

"My Dear Mr. Gavett:

"After three hundred and fifty miles in Valor motor coaching through the 'Lakes' and the 'Trossachs,' running by rail from Edinburgh via Carlisle, Leeds, Birmingham, and Leamington; I am lost in admiration of the wonderful and perfect roads; every country lane macadamized from curb to curb and not a stone on the surface; on one side will be a sidewalk and heaps of mending material on the other.

"In many places the roads are oiled or tarred, and the frequent rains keep it down and tear down, (another object lesson for sprinkling at home.

"Again they are so clean that you can use them for walking, all brought about by law and order and strict adherence to rules against throwing anything on them, consequently you see fewer cleaners than with us.

"Every railroad track and stream is stone bridged, built to last for all time, and like everything else done in this way, cheaper in the end.

"I wish the governing boards of all our cities and towns could take a trip here and then go home and adopt English road methods.

"From above Birmingham, through Sheffield, Leeds, and other cities we ran constantly through sewer farms evidently on the same principle as ours, as they had septic tanks, gravel or broken stone beds, and you could see the clear water running to waste after it had irrigated the most beautiful vegetable farms, that we always found around the beds.

"Trees are also looked after like jewels, and you find the stone walls and hedges that line the roads carefully around the trees if it is impossible to include them otherwise.

"Trusting you are well, I am

"Very truly yours,

ELLIOT T. BARROWS."

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

Michigan and New York are our chief salt producing states, the former leading by half a million barrels a year. The total product of the United States is about 17,000,000 barrels annually.

Coalite is the latest novelty in the fuel line. As made in Newcastle, by a process similar to that employed by the gas companies for the production of coke, it makes no smoke and gives out, it is claimed, about twice the heat of coal. Quite a coalite fire lasts 40 per cent longer than an ordinary coal fire.

John A. Kenney, of East Second street, has returned after a short stay with relatives at Bound Brook.

GALBRAITH AND WALLACE

Both Let Out of State's Prison on Parole.

MANY OTHERS TOO

Eighty-three Petitions Are Refused By Board In Session at Sea Girt.

The Court of Pardons yesterday, which met at Sea Girt, was not at all lenient with the 111 petitions for pardons which came before the members. But twenty-eight were granted parole, including John J. Galbraith, of this city, who was convicted in February, 1906, of criminal assault on little girls and sentenced to three years' imprisonment, and Lawrence Wallace, of this city, who was also convicted in February, 1906, of breaking and entering the Scotch Plains hotel and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. J. J. Galbraith was represented by W. L. Hetfield, Sr., and Wallace by John P. Owens.

The Rev. J. Frank Cordova, of South River, who eloped with a member of his choir, was refused a parole, and the applications of Andrew J. Campbell and George J. Kerr, of Passaic, the Bosschelfer murderers, were turned down. William Malcolm, the embezzling builder and loan association man, of Passaic, was also coldly turned down for parole.

Following is a list of petitions refused, laid over and granted in Union and Somerset counties:

SOMERSET COUNTY.

Agostino Grippaldi, convicted of assault with intent to kill, 1906; term of sentence, eighteen months; dismissed.

Pietro Prissaciando, convicted of assault with intent to kill, November 1906; term of sentence, one year; paroled.

Filippo Palmisano, convicted of assault with intent to kill, November, 1906; term of sentence, one year; paroled.

UNION COUNTY.

John Galbraith, convicted of indecent assault, February, 1906; term of sentence, three years; paroled.

Thomas Holland, convicted of carnal abuse of infant, February, 1906; term of sentence, two years; dismissed.

Nathaniel Harvey, convicted of breaking and entering, etc., November, 1906; term of sentence, one year; dismissed.

Antonio Jeanetto, convicted of murder, March, 1904; term of sentence, seven years; dismissed.

John J. Robinson, convicted of rape, September, 1901; term of sentence, fifteen years; dismissed.

Alfred P. Smalley, convicted of breaking, entering and stealing, November, 1905; sentence, five years; petition withdrawn.

Lawrence Wallace, convicted of breaking and entering, February, 1906; term of sentence, three years; paroled.

HIS FIT A HIT.

Half a dozen actors, just back from "the road," were exchanging interesting experience around a table in the grill room of a hotel.

"You were dunned as usual by amateurs!" the musical comedy man asked of a star "in the legitimate."

"Yes, almost every town," the erstwhile Hamlet-Romeo-Claude Melnotte replied. "At one place out west—I won't say what town—a nice young fellow waited on me at stage door to tell me he wanted to be a real Shakespearean actor.

"'You've had experience?' I asked.

"'Oh, yes. I recited Marc Antony's speech at the holiday meeting of our lyceum, and did one of Daniel Webster's orations last commencement and played in 'Romeo and Juliet.'

"'What did you play in "Romeo and Juliet?"'

"'I played the Apothecary—made a great hit, too.'

"This took my breath away, for there are not a dozen lines in the part and they don't amount to anything. So I asked: 'How could you make a hit in the Apothecary?'

"'Well, you see, it was this way, the young fellow replied. 'You know the old man is starving to death and hasn't seen the color of a coin for goodness knows how long. When Romeo gives him money, the sight of it is such a shock that I made the Apothecary fall in a fit. It was a great hit. The people out in front clapped and clapped until two stage hands came out and dragged me off. Yes, it was such a success I went out and took an encore. I fell in another fit.'"

Mrs. Edward J. Cooley, of Watchung avenue, will leave next week for Maine, to join her husband, who is spending the summer there for his health. Mr. Cooley is reported as being improved.

—The farmers of Somerset, Middlesex and Union counties will have a field day at Riverside Park, Thursday, August 15, under the auspices of the National Grange of Husbandry.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The Harrison A. C. defeated the Lincoln A. C., at Lincoln, on Saturday, by a score of 8 to 2. A feature of the game was two home runs by Harrison A. C.

There will be something doing at Crescent Oval on Saturday, when Clinton Avenue will meet Y. M. C. A. The contest will be for real honors and both teams will bend every effort to score a victory.

The Laurels, of Bound Brook, will play Raritan at Raritan on Saturday and it looks like a victory for the Laurels.

The Giants are gradually drifting back and it would not be surprising if they failed to remain in the first division, judging by the form shown by the other teams.

Notwithstanding Clark Griffith's denial of the "Ice" Hillebrands will play with the Highlanders, Frank Farrell, president of the association, has confirmed the report and the former Princeton twirler will soon join the team.

Clarkson, who was traded by the Highlanders to Cleveland, has failed to show his worth since going west, in fact he is not used as a regular pitcher.

President Pulliam's determination to preserve order and put a stop to ungentlemanly conduct on the part of the players, is bearing good fruit.

By way of comparison, there are no amateur teams in the State that are playing better ball than Clinton Avenue, Scotch Plains and the Y. M. C. A. of the amateur league. The kind of ball these nines are putting up should receive better support.

The amateur league series of games has settled down to a contest between Clinton Avenue, Y. M. C. A. and Scotch Plains, and you can take your choice as to the probable winner.

Weaner continues to pitch good ball for Flemington, and yet he was not considered good enough for any local nine.

Realizing that it is hopeless to try and defeat Flemington, especially on the latter's grounds, the West Ends, of Somerville, will not meet the Hunterdon county boys this season.

Sam. Hope, formerly of the Plainfield team, has been secured by Cleveland, of the National League, to strengthen the pitching staff. He was pitching this season for the Newark Atlantic League team.

GOLF.

The monthly competition for the July cup will be concluded at the Park Golf Club on Saturday. This event has attracted a number of contestants and the result of the outcome will be watched with interest.

The next special competition at the Park Golf Club will be for the September cup, to be held during that month. Owing to the fact that so many of the members are away during August it was decided not to arrange for a special competition in that month.

At the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday will be concluded the handicap match play for the Governor's cup by the players qualified for the last Saturday in June; also the qualifying rounds for Classes A and B for handicap match play during August. The four lowest net scores in each class on each Saturday to qualify. The prizes for the August handicap match play competition are presented by H. Talbot and E. D. Floyd.

The only events scheduled for the Plainfield Country Club course on Saturday are the weekly competitions for the Golf Committee, Green Committee and Scratch cups. This will be about the weekly program until Labor Day.

In winning the golf championship at the Plainfield Country Club for this year, W. Lester Glenney displayed that he was not only in good form, but that his game was consistent throughout. While the match was uncomfortably close for Glenney's his opponent, C. B. Morgan, pressing him hard, in the finer points, he displayed the greater strength.

C. B. Morgan, who failed to land the championship at the Plainfield Country Club, has been very successful during the past two seasons in playing the game. Last year he won several worthy honors at the Club and his playing this year has shown steady improvement.

The members of the Plainfield Country Club are gradually getting used to the extra difficult hazards placed about the course by the green committee. The sand bunkers are a dangerous place to land a ball and the irregular greens also make it extremely difficult to return a low score, yet when the players become accustomed to the conditions it will tend to strengthen them in their play.

Miss Pauline Denton, of Washington avenue, has taken Miss Mettish's place in the office of the Board of Health, while the latter is enjoying a month's vacation.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

July 23: "Enriching Others."—II Cor. viii, 9.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Mark x, 6; Phil. ii, 5-11; Dan. xii, 3; Tim. iv, 16.

"For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might become rich."

Selfishness is self destructive. The rule "Look out for number one" is the acme of foolisness as well as the epitome of selfishness. There is a sentiment abroad that all care for and help of others is just so much subtracted from one's own personal good and is to be charged to the account of profit and loss, but always on the loss side of the ledger. It is one of the most serious of falsities. It is quite possible that to some extent in recent times is due to the unwarrantable emphasis placed on the physical side of being, an unphilosophical and untenable theory of evolution which knows nothing of spirit except as some sort of material product.

If human existence was nothing but a struggle for food, and life had no other significance than the propagation of the species, and its highest law was the survival of the fittest, and that fittest was merely the strongest physically and nimblest mentally, even then selfishness would be the certain road to destruction. If one cares to study life at all it is well to have proper regard for facts as they are and try to fit theories as closely as possible to the facts, for they have at sundry times been found to be stubborn things and have even been known to be destructive of some very pretty theories which but for their contradiction of the nature of things might have had some standing room.

Now, one of the most persistent of facts, which ever and anon obtrudes itself, even where least welcome, is this: Human nature has a social side as well as a physical, and the needs are very insistent. We also have a religious element in our composition whose demands are sometimes clamorous. There are times when these inner powers grip us so hard that we lose self entirely, indeed all sight of physical wants. We are not all stomach, though some of our teachers would have us think so and some of us act as if we half believed them at times. We all have some sane moments when the deep things of our nature get a chance to speak out. Then we know that we have deep care for others. Life's supremest joy comes not in getting, but in giving; not in being loved, but in loving; not in habitually our soul's deepest affection. We crave companionship, fellowship, more than we hunger for bread and meat. It makes little difference whether you call all this by the name of altruism or love or what you will, the thing itself is the same, even if we have no name for it. We must give our thought to others, we must work for others, we must lavish our heart affection on others, for we are made that way and the inner nature revolts if repression be attempted.

It has been said that self preservation is the first law of nature. Deeper than this in our constitution lies the law of self impartations. This may at times necessitate self denial, which is never a path of laurels, because it arouses self repression. More frequently it rises to the supreme heights of self sacrifice, which is the fullest self expression and yields boundless satisfaction and delight. The body may suffer for it, but the soul exults and triumphs in the pouring out of itself to the fullest, knowing that another is blessed thereby. Only thus is any soul able to come into its own and find the enriching of its own nature. "Give and it shall be given unto you again."

To Enter Heaven.

If we do not enter the kingdom here, we shall not hereafter. If the good in us does not begin now, we have no reason to suppose that it ever will. If our mind does not begin to take on some resemblance, however faint, to the mind of Christ, we may suppose that it never will. While the kingdom of heaven is primarily a condition rather than a country, it is also a country, because there must be a place where those who have entered it live in the world to come as well as in this world, and the separation which begins now, in the next life be confirmed, intensified and fixed by so, the only way for us to enter it then is to enter it now. Let us take, then, to ourselves these solemn words of Jesus, looking into our souls, asking of ourselves the questions: Am I in the kingdom, or am I trusting to what I believe? Am I trying to do as the Master did? Do I love him, and am I a subject of the kingdom of truth and of righteousness and of love?—Rev. Wolcott Fay.

Endure—to Win.

Accustom yourself to submit on all and every occasion on the most minute no less than on the most important circumstances of life to a small present evil to obtain a greater distant good. This will give decision, tone and energy to the mind, which thus disciplined will often reap victory from defeat and honor from repulse. Having acquired this invaluable habit of rational preference and just appreciation, start not at that pain that endureth never; you will have little left to learn. The advantages you will possess over common minds will be those of the lanist over the tyro and of the veteran over the recruit.—Rev. C. C. Colton.

Danger of Self Indulgence.

One of the worst perils of Christian lives lies in the line of self indulgence. We take too good care of ourselves. We keep ourselves back from hard tasks and stern self denials. Consequently we do not find the joy that is possible in Christian living.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 23.

By REV. J. T. DOYLE.

The history of the Church of Latter Day Saints, who are commonly called Mormons, is more or less familiar to all the Christian people of our land. Mormonism was organized by Joseph Smith in New York. The Mormons settled in Ohio, but were violently driven out of that state and immigrated to Missouri. There they grew and flourished for a number of years, but aroused the enmity of the gentiles, and Joseph Smith, the prophet, was murdered, a very unfortunate affair, for because of internal strife the Mormon church might have become disrupted. But Smith's death made a martyr of him, and the church rapidly increased in numbers. Under the leadership of Brigham Young the Mormons again went westward as far as Utah and entered the narrow pass which opens into the beautiful valley surrounding Great Salt lake, one of the most beautiful places in the United States. Here Salt Lake City has been builded, and the entire state of Utah is controlled politically by the Mormons, and they are factors in many of the states around them. It has been claimed that the aim of the Mormons is to control enough states in the west to hold the balance of power in the United States senate, but this is doubtful.

The greatest menace of Mormonism has been polygamy. The present president, also named Smith, has a number of wives and a large number of children. For years this sin against God and humanity, and especially against Christian civilization and virtue was preached and practiced. One point of progress made in the missionary subjection of Utah has been the enactment of a national law against polygamy and its decrease by Christian instruction of the youth. Very few young men in Utah are polygamists, but the testimony of our missionaries declares that all polygamy has not ceased, and their knowledge on this subject cannot be disputed.

Great educational progress has been made along educational lines in Utah. The missionaries constantly emphasize the fact that Utah can be saved only through the reaching of the children and the youth. The salvation of any people depends largely in the youth. Older people cannot so easily change their ways and, at least in Utah, do not seem to have much desire to do so. But it is a more easy task to reach the young and to instruct them in the proper ways. The Mormons are also before the church through the schools is to show the superiority of the Scriptures over the Book of Mormon, their Bible. This is not a difficult matter when the opportunity is afforded. The Book of Mormon is quite unlike the Bible. It was largely taken from a romance written by a Presbyterian minister in western Pennsylvania concerning the ten lost tribes of Israel and principles of reform which the world of God. A second work is to give the young a true conception of God. The Mormons speak of God, but to them God is a man, and all men may become gods. This idea is such an absurdity in itself as to be ridiculous among the young in this respect. The third great work is to point out the shame and sinfulness of polygamy. Nor is this a difficult matter. Most of the young people are familiar with the evils of plural marriages. They desire to keep the law, and they are fast coming to believe that the ideal marriage is between one man and one woman. Thus the missionary and the teacher are doing much to bring about a change among this sinful and benighted people and should receive our heartiest support.

In Duty.

I am a Christian Endeavorer because I want to do something. A reverend and much loved brother walked into my study the other day and asked the meaning of "Endeavor." I immediately turned to my big lexicon and found that it comes from two French words, en (in) devoir (duty). What a splendid motto for a society! In duty, in duty, for that which I am commanded to do. Young men and women around me, boys and girls, old and lonely, sick and poor, are crying to me for help. The Christian Endeavor shows me how I can help them. I never allow my Christian Endeavor meeting to be frittered away over useless twaddle or matters of business. Time is too precious. Lives are at stake. Soul lives are being thrown away. Men and women are perishing, and I am "in duty." I must do the work of God's world. No one can find it for me. If there is not an open door, I must knock a hole in the wall. There is a word of praise to be given, a button to be sewed on, a place to be filled in the pulpit, a token of love for some one who wants it, and because I love to be always "in duty" therefore I am a Christian Endeavorer.—Dr. Torr in Australian Golden Link.

Notes From Afar.

There are now sixteen Christian Endeavor newspapers in Europe. These are found in twelve countries.

A friend in Lodz, Russian Poland, writes that even with all the stirring times they are having there Christian Endeavor keeps right on and new societies, especially Junior societies, are being formed.

During a recent period of eight months the Endeavorers of the Chilmoor union, India, preached the gospel to 2,330 people in seventy-three places.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

A Lively Grand Jury.

The Union County Grand Jury which recently declared, in a powerful presentment, that the city of Elizabeth was "absolutely in the hands of the brewery and saloon interests," has undertaken to help that city break away from its thraldom. Charles Foreman, the foreman, had sent a formal letter to Mayor Ryan —the letter having the full official sanction of the grand jury—notifying that official that out of ninety licenses examine, as having been issued by the Board of Excise to land and taverns, fifty were contrary to law. These alleged inns and taverns have no accommodations for guests, as the law requires, and have no right to licenses. The grand jury demands of the Mayor that all such licenses be immediately revoked. Other places are yet to be examined by the grand jury, the letter says, and other licenses are to be investigated to see if they have been unlawfully issued. If this is found to be the case the Union County Grand Jury is both alive and awake, and that its members have a somewhat different idea of their duty than members of grand inquests usually have. They believe, with their foreman, that it is the business of a grand jury to see that the law is enforced, and to hold to accountability those in official position who wilfully or negligently fail to enforce it. It is certainly radical action to inform the Mayor that Board of Excise that nearly twenty per cent. of all the licenses granted in a city are illegal and to demand that they must be immediately revoked, but there can be no question that the grand jury has a legal right to do just this thing, and to indict if its demands are not complied with. The Union County Grand Jury, with its live foreman, is not exceeding its powers, but is simply demonstrating what authority it can exercise when officials fail to do their shown duty under the law. Every grand jury in the state can do the same if they have the courage to overthrow illegal conditions and check unlawful influences. The Union County Grand Jury may not succeed in wholly releasing the city of Elizabeth from saloon and brewery domination, but it can compel the latter and other unlawful factors to live up to the requirements of the law or take the consequences. And that's what grand juries are for.—Newark News.

Martine Is Independent.

James E. Martine, walls one Democratic newspaper, "is known as a professional loser." That is largely because he insists upon running as a Democratic candidate, advocating the principles of reform which the bosses of that party are not willing to accept. If James would only doff his reform armor so that his neck could bend to the will of the men that are powers in the party, he would be a respectable winner, but Martine won't.—New Brunswick Home News.

Frelinghuysen's Plain Talk.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen is to be congratulated on his attitude of opposition to the proposition to bring the Vanderbilt cup race to New Jersey. More than that, he is sane and forceful in his arguments showing why this automobile speed contest should not be permitted in this State. There has been no member of the Legislature who has been more active than the Senator from Somerset county in demanding that the people be protected from reckless automobilists and in framing laws for the safe handling of traffic on the highways from the dangers of speed-insane drivers. The present law on the statute books regulating the operation of autos bears his name, and it is not merely an honorary title, for Mr. Frelinghuysen devoted much time and energy in the drafting of the measure. No wonder, then, that he utters his strong protest against the legalizing of a money-making scheme that would mean the nullification of the law he fathered, and thus endanger human life.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Frelinghuysen will have sufficiently recovered from his recent desperate illness to attend the next session held by the Senate, when the bill passed by the Assembly for the instance of Mr. Perkins, will be received for consideration. With a leader on the floor to protest in the name of the people of the State against the proposed vandalism, there should be no question as to the defeat of the bill. Would that members of the party leading the Senate had been as outspoken as Mr. Frelinghuysen against the contemplated outrage! — Newark News.

The First and Probably Last Time in His Life.

Recently some one in Missouri has sent me a picture of the house I was born in. Heretofore I have always stated that it was a palace, but I shall be more guarded now. I remember only one circumstance connected with my life in it. I remember it very well, though I was but 2½ years old at the time. The family packed up everything and started in wagons for Hannibal, on the Mississippi, 30 miles away. Toward night, when they camped and counted up the children, one was missing. I had been left behind. Parents ought always to count the children before they start. I was having a good time playing by myself until I found that the doors were fastened and that there was a grisly deep silence brooding over the place. I knew, then, that the family were gone and that they had forgotten me. I was well frightened and I called with all the noise I could, but no one was near and it did no good. I spent the afternoon in the carpenter shop, which grew more and more gloaming had fallen and the place was alive with ghosts.—From Mark Twain's Autobiography in the North American Review.

OF COURSE HE LOVED HER.

But the Reason He Gave Was Not Very Satisfying.

"Paul Bourget, the French novelist," said a magazine editor, "thinks he understands American women. He has continually writing essays about them. Were I a woman these essays would make me mad. But Bourget does understand American men pretty well. Once at a dinner that Richard Harding Davis gave in his honor Bourget had to eat from a singularly large and acrid lemon. He said that we are too lax and boorish toward our wives. He said we often treated a pretty, yellow-haired typewriter girl hired temporarily with more gentleness and courtesy than we gave to wives of 20 or 30 years' standing. He instanced the case of a man who sat reading the evening paper one night, a cigar in his mouth and his feet on the sofa. 'Darling,' said his wife, 'do you love me?' 'Yes, he answered without looking up. 'As much as ever?' 'Sure,' said the man, as he struck a match and relighted his cigar. 'Why?' the woman pursued tenderly. 'Oh, I don't know,' said he. 'Habit, I suppose.'"

Patrons of the Coutts Bank.

The Coutts bank in London, founded in 1692, with which the name of the late Lady Burdett-Coutts will be forever connected, enjoys the distinction of having had a larger number of sovereigns as customers and more nobles as its patrons than any other institution of the kind in the world. The first royal customer of the bank was King George II. of England and after him every English monarch in turn has banked there, including Edward VII., as well as the kings and one emperor of France, a German emperor and his widow, the late Empress Frederick, the present Queen Christina of Spain and Czar Alexander II.

Lucifer.

The word "Lucifer," found in Isaiah xiv, 12, coupled with the epithet "son of the morning," clearly signifies a "bright star" and probably what we call the morning star. In this passage it is a symbolical representation of the King of Babylon in his splendor and his fall. Its application, from St. Jerome downwards, to Satan, in his fall from heaven, arises probably from the fact that the Babylonian empire is in scripture represented as the type of anti-christian worldly power, and especially connected with the empire of the Evil One in the Apocalypse.

Art Values.

Mr. Joshby (in front of fake art store)—Goe-whiz! Twenty-four dollars and fifty cents for that picture an' it's marked down from one hundred an' twenty-five dollars at that! I wonder what makes it so dear? Mrs. Joshby—Why, don't you see that there other sign on it that says 'Guaranteed?' Mr. Joshby—That's what puzzles me; I could easy understand them askin' that much fer it if it was painted by some armless wonder.—Puck.

He Got His.

"Where you been?" growled Mr. Titewadd. "Been to a reception," his wife. "What kep' you?" "Oh, I met a woman that I haven't seen for ten years." "Um." "She didn't look a day older, however," "While you have been so ground down that she looks kinder 'et a spoon?" snarled the churlish husband. "Oh, no; I knew me in a minute. Recognized me by my bonnet, you know." Then the brute subsided.

Invisible Building.

Life is a building. It rises slowly, day by day, through the years. Every new lesson we learn lays a block on the edifice which is rising silently within us. Every experience, every touch of another life on ours, every influence that impresses us, every book we read, every conversation, every sermon we hear, every moment days, adds something to the invisible building.—Rev. J. R. Miller.

Relationship.

"After all, remarked Mr. Cumrox, "there is a certain relation between finance and poetry." "In what way?" "In both so much depends on capitalization and making things sound right."

LITERARY

No more vitally interesting article has appeared in a long time than "Brain and Body," in the July Everybody's. The author, Dr. William Hanna Thomson, a recognized authority, presents what to those of us will be an entirely new conception of the brain, facts of the greatest practical importance in mental training, and he puts it in a simple, easily comprehended form unusual in a scientific writer. It is a notable contribution. Fiction occupies a suitably prominent place in the July number with such writers as Mary R. S. Andrews, Stewart Edward White, O. Henry, and Lloyd Osbourne, but the editor finds space besides for a number of interesting articles. One of the most entertaining of these is "The Aristocracy of the Circus," by Hartley Davis, an historical account of certain famous circus families. It is illustrated with a number of unusual circus photographs.

President H. S. Pritchett, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology contributes to the July Atlantic a remarkable article on "The Power that Makes for Peace." In spite of the inborn fighting qualities of man, the march of evolution is leading inevitably towards peace, and this peace shall be attained at last by discipline and refinement. An analysis of history proves that true patriotism and loyalty rest very often in the military profession, and President Pritchett therefore makes a plea ofr young men to enter the army. He shows that countries which, like China, belittle the soldier's life and exalt the life of commerce, have, like China, placed themselves "at the mercy of the so-called Christian nations." The Bible says, "Blessed are the peace-makers," and under this head the soldiery may be counted.

The Technical World Magazine for August has a very good piece of fiction in the story by Harry M. Lawton, called "Jack O' Diamonds." It is a tale of the mining camps, of the love of one man for another and of a thrilling battle for the bag of gold which one of the friends tries to protect for the other's sake. The tale is well-told and the action is thrilling. While the conclusion brings a surprise which leaves memory tingling. Mr. Lawrence has shown a pleasing picture of the regard of one rough chum for another and of the life in which miners of the west develop their strength of character.

Edwin Fefevre's characted sketch of Harriman, Ellis Parker Butler's story of "Wetter New York in 1913," Ray Stannard Baker's account of "The New Negro in Southern Cities," or Ida M. Tarbell's story of Grover Cleveland's great fight in 1887. In the same number the author of "Emmy Lou" tells another Letitia story Elizabeth Irwin writes of the most famous artist's models in the world, and Marion Crawford goes on with his serial, and David Grayson writes of "The Tramp" in his "Adventures in Contentment" series. Other contributors of stories and poems are: M. J. Reynolds, Witter Bynner, Wallace Irwin, Frances Bent Dillingham, Cale Young Rice, and Walter Prichard Eaton.

The Circle for July is out, with a cover design appropriate to the Fourth and to the noisy boy who calls the country on that day with his inevitable firecracker. The opening article by Fred'k Greene, Assistant General Agent of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, gives us a most refreshing insight into the practical workings of that great organization after sixty-three years' hard-won experience among the very needy. Its Secretary, Miss Lucy Wheelock, educator, its house-to-house cooking teacher, its promptly investigating relief bureau, are all so skilfully managed and interdependent that the "almighty dollar" is made to do the greatest amount of good where it is most sorely needed.

A London editor pronounces Current Literature the best magazine in the world. This is not so surprising as it may at first appear when it is remembered that no other selected news magazine counts among its contributors, in a sense, all the dictors and reporters of the world. Every month we find between its cover the cream of what has been said in politics, literature and religion. The most unusually brilliant July issue tells with absorbing interest the story of Harry Orchard's Confession. It discusses the War for the Sake of Peace, the Jingoes in Japan and the Coming Crisis in Ireland. Striking character sketches of Knox, Fairbanks, and the Three-Year-Old Heir to the Throne of the Czar will make you forget for the time being the sultry heat of July, while articles on Edwin Godkin, the Glittering Genius of Edgar Saltus, Huysmans, the Decadent who bacem a Mystic, Arthur Symons "the Whistler of the Critics," and a rediscovered genius (with quaint illustrations), will at once stimulate and delight the mind.

WHAT SHE "SCATTED."

"We had been fishing that day and had left the boat beached on the lake shore with a lot of small fish in it, which we were going to use for bait for our next morning's trip. My sister and I were alone in camp that evening, for the men had gone to interview a guide on the subject of mountain climbing. As we sat by the fire, chatting, we heard a commotion in the direction of the boat. It sounded as if someone were rummaging through everything there, knocking over our traps in a very unceremonious way. Going outside to hear better, I was sure it was no human thief, but probably a stray dog from some other camp, though we hadn't any very near neighbors. I didn't want all our bait gobbled up, so I started for the boat at once. As I drew near it, I was rather surprised to hear an unmistakable "meow." It was the first chance I hadn't seen since I left civilization, many miles away. It was too dark to see much, but I ran up quickly, rapped on the side of the boat with a stick and cried 'Scat!' as fiercely as I could. A dark form, much bigger than the cat I was in search of, at once gave one great leap from the bottom of the boat, dashed by me so close that it just brushed my dress, and was lost in the woods in a minute.

"The next morning an old trapper, who had a shack some distance off, happened to call at the camp, and I told him about the bait thief.

"'Why,' he said 'ther' ain't no cats around this country. I ain't seen one in I don't know when. How big did you say it was?'

"'Well, young lady,' he said, in his quiet, drawling way, 'all I can say is, darn me, if you ain't been and "scatted" a wildcat! Most generally we goes for 'em with a gun.'"

UNIONIZED HOUSEWORK.

New York people who are grumbling over the difficulties experienced in trying to get satisfactory domestic service in their households have no idea how much better the situation is here than in some of the smaller cities of the State, said a woman who has returned from a visit in Rochester.

"Here you can get a girl to do general housework for from $20 to $25 a month, occasionally for even less than $20, and in most cases, she will be willing to do the washing as part of her regular work. But that isn't the case in Western New York. There the girls have unions, and the terms they dictate are just as stiff as those of the labor unions. Household help is far scarcer there than here, for it is recruited not so much from foreigners as from the country girls of the region, and people who want servants must take them under any conditions and say nothing. No girl in Rochester will come for less than $25; many want more, and in no case will the family washing be touched. That must go to a laundry or be done by an outside washerwoman. The 'maid of all work' will lift not her hands in horror at the notion of cleaning a window, and neither will she demean herself before the neighbors by sweeping the porch. It is no uncommon sight to ob serve the mistress of the house, in despair at the accumulated dirt, performing these duties which herself while the maid remains indoors.

"Under such conditions, of course, the relations between the employers and the employed are about as unpleasant as possible, and large numbers of families have either already given up trying to keep house or are about to do so on account of the impossible situation that has come to exist."

A NEW WORRY.

"Well, that beats me," said a fussy old gentleman who watches everything going on around him.

"What's that?" queried the clerk who was waiting on him.

"Why, that woman over there. She is carrying around a pair of tan shoes like an up-to-date Prince looking for the couple of Cinderellas. They're not even wrapped up."

The clerk stretched his neck to see. Sure enough, there was a woman with the tan shoes, one in each hand, and a woe-begone smile.

"You'll find them anywhere," the woman confided to a chance-met friend, "and it is so important to have them match perfectly. I suppose I will have to take the other pair of shoes, only they don't look nearly as well on my feet."

"Why don't you step for a minute or two and tell me what you are driving at I'll be much obliged," said the friend.

"It's easy to see that you have not been attacked by the tan-shoe fever," said the other, "else you'd know what it meant to be carrying around a pair of tan shoes imploring haughty saleslades to match the color in stockings. I've been in three shops now, and have failed miserably. The worst of it is that the shoes match my dress perfectly and the dress is one of the new sort—a 'trotling' dress—just short enough to show a wee bit of the ankle, and the stockings don't match, and, oh, dear, I'm so tired," and away she went, resuming the hunt, while the woe-begone smile turned into a frown and the friend thanked her stars that she hadn't the tan shoe fever.

ITALIAN BANDITS TAKEN

Captured By Posse After Plot To Rob Postmaster And Holding Up Trentonians.

RAIDED A BARRACKS

County and Local Police, With 100 Armed Citizens, Scour Woods and Get Five—Exposed By Own Countryman.

One of the most daring holdups known to this vicinity was perpetrated Monday afternoon on the road from Mt. Airy to Ringoes when a carriage driven by Frederick Baker, a wealthy young man of Trenton, was stopped by five Italians armed with double barreled guns. In the carriage with Mr. Baker were Mrs. Henry Holcombe of Mt. Airy, and Mrs. Adria Hunt, of Hopewell. Both are wives of wealthy farmers.

When about a mile outside of Ringoes the five bandits sprang from the woods. While two held the horse the other three demanded the valuables of the party. One of the men noticed a diamond ring on Mr. Baker's finger and asked for it. It was refused, whereat the foreigner struck of the woods and asked Orville H. gun. Another of the robbers struck Mrs. Holcombe at the same time. About this time they became frightened and left with nothing but $40. Mr. Baker and Mrs. Holcombe are quite seriously injured. The young man has just returned from a tour of Europe.

Sheriff Jacob Dilts, Policeman Elmer S. Hunt, Stephen D. Dean and a squad of Lambertville and Ringoes policemen and deputies, assisted by nearly 100 armed residents, ran down the five armed Italians, who had plotted to hold up Postmaster C. E. Reed, of Trenton, and rob him of several thousand dollars, the pay roll of a large gang of Italians employed in constructing the stone road from Flemington to Ringoes.

The gang, all armed with shotguns and revolvers, have made a wooden, near Copper Hill, their rendezvous since Friday night. They took one of the men employed on the stone road into their confidence, and it was planned to hold Reed up Saturday afternoon, while on his way from Lambertville to Copper Hill.

The Italian revealed the plot to the foreman, who advised Reed to come to Flemington direct by train. After the men received their pay the attempted hold up became known, despite the efforts of the authorities to keep it secret until the gang could be apprehended, and there was consternation among the Italians.

The climax was reached Sunday night, when the desperadoes attempted to rob the Italian boarding house at Copper Hill, where a score of the foreigners are housed. They could be apprehended, and there was consternation among the Italians.

HEALTH BOARD REBUFFED

Somerset Freeholders Decide that Green Brook's Condition is not its Affair.

TO GET AUTO FUNDS

Act On Grade Crossing Danger—Collector to Borrow $20,000—Other Business.

The regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders was held in the court room in Somerville yesterday. It was resolved that the county collector be authorized to collect the amount due the county from the automobile license funds, less the cost of the signs purchased. A communication was received from the North Plainfield Board of Health in reference to the unsanitary condition of Greenbrook between Norwood and Girard avenues, and asked that the foul and decayed matter be removed and that such action be taken as is necessary to prevent the formation of a nuisance. The people of water in the bed of the brook. It was the sense of the board that this matter does not come within its jurisdiction and the communication was ordered placed on file.

It was also decided that the clerk be authorized to notify the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company that it is the sense of the members of the board that the company should take such measures as may be necessary to protect the traveling public at the railroad crossing at Bellis Mead during the night time, and that the company is requested to protect the same. It was also decided to re-advertise for bids for the construction of Sach's bridge to be received on Wednesday, Sept. 4, at the Court House, at 2 o'clock and until 2:30, and then to be opened by the board.

Clerk Sutphen was authorized to purchase the necessary primary election ballot boxes. The county collector was authorized to borrow $20,000 in anticipation of taxes. Communication from the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company stated that the company would give the matter of removing four poles along the Kline's Mills road its early attention.

The board will meet at the Court House on Wednesday, Sept. 4, at 10 o'clock to receive bids for the heating, plumbing and electrical appliances for the new Court House.

The report of a recent meeting at North Branch was read. At this session the bridge near the hotel there was accepted, and the Garrigan bridge was left in the hands of the committee to be approved when completed.

Mr. Fitzgerald declared that the W. T. Kirk Co. had promised the town for the Union avenue bridge to be delivered on the grounds soon. A communication from State Road Commissioner Pitchinson was read. It referred to the inspection of roads repaired and the road committee was authorized to inspect the roads with him.

AND STILL THEY COME.

Miss Sara Curry, matron at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, took in a delegation of New York children from the camp yesterday and brought out others in the afternoon. There are now 347 mothers and children from the city at the camp. This evening the full Plainfield band will be at the camp and will render a full program of popular music in the auditorium. The electric lights recently installed will be used for the first at the concert.

Because of the serious illness of one of the co-workers with Miss Curry at the Little Missionary Day Nursery in New York, Miss Curry went in again this morning. She will probably bring out more children with her tonight on her return.

FORT AND COLLINS LEAD

Sentiment at State Committee Meeting Divided for Gubernatorial Nomination.

TO HAVE 1,147 DELEGATE

Owing to Fractional Arrangement Representation, However, Will Be About 1,300—Call Is Issued.

Perhaps the real sensation of the day at the Republican State Committee meeting at Trenton yesterday was the apparently growing sentiment in favor of ex-Judge Gilbert Collins, of Hudson. That he would make an acceptable candidate to the machine Republicans seemed to be the opinion of some of those who were giving thought to the matter. Collins will probably be the choice of Hudson. Governor Stokes was put down as a Collins man.

David Baird, of Camden, has been said to favor Collins after Fort. State Treasurer Daniel H. Voorhees, of Morris. Intimated that Collins would suit him, as his only object was the defeat of Judge Mahlon Pitney. Judge John Franklin Fort has loomed up as a formidable candidate. As it looked last night, Fort and Collins were the real rivals of Chandler W. Riker, of Essex; Mahlon Pitney, of Morris, and Vivian M. Lewis, of Passaic, running in about the order named. Frank H. Sommer, of Essex, was a dark horse, growing rather darker during the day. Colonel Samuel D. Dickinson, of Hudson, and C. Asa Francis favor Collins.

Chairman Briggs and temporary Chairman Yard issued the formal call last night for the holding of the Republican convention for the nomination of a candidate for Governor at Taylor Opera House at noon on Wednesday, September 19, as exclusively announced in yesterday's Daily Press. The number of delegates to be chosen is 1,147. The representation will, owing to the fractional arrangement, amount in about 1,200. This was the plan adopted at the convention held in 1904, when Edward C. Stokes was nominated for Governor.

"HONEST" FINDER OF WALLET RETURNS IT

What might be termed comparative honesty was exhibited by the finder of a wallet lost last week by Frederick A. Martin, of Jackson avenue. He returned the wallet, but thriftily rewarded himself before succumbing to the sufferings of conscience.

The wallet contained $40 in money some blank checks and a number of Mr. Martin's cards. Because of the latter, Mr. Martin had some hope of getting his property back. He didn't hear of it for several days, however, and yesterday he had begun to resign himself to its loss, when the wallet was delivered by mail.

Glowing with increased faith in his fellow men, Mr. Martin hurriedly opened the wallet to feel his runaway forty between his fingers once more. He didn't have the feel. The forty was not there. The blank checks, the cards, and a few memorandums were in their places, but not even one of the forty dollars gazed back at it's owner eager eye. In the place where the money once was Mr. Martine found this note:

"This wallet is to good to lose."

"Honest."

And there was nothing to indicate that the writer meant anything ironic by the signature. It had the air of modest recognition of self-worth. The Martin would like to meet "Honest," and express personal appreciation of his integrity.

Mrs. Powell Buried.

Requiem mass was conducted by Father Delehanty at St. Mary's church this morning at 9 o'clock for Mrs. Mary J. Powell, wife of Clement Powell, who died Monday. Previous to the church service, there was a service at the home, 678 West Fourth street. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

BRUTALITY AT RAHWAY

Insanity and Death of One Laid to Beating at State Reformatory.

HAHN PROBERS AT WORK

Boy, Ill with Rheumatism and Heart Disease, Has Hose Played on Him—Another's Head Laid Open With Blackjack.

Sensational tales of brutal, inhuman treatment at the New Jersey Reformatory at Rahway, as told by Charles Fenty, of Elizabeth; Charles Krebs, of Newark, and William Dennis, of Mt. Holly, three young inmates, quickened the Hahn investigating committee, which swooped down unexpectedly on the institution yesterday, into the decision to meet there again Monday morning to continue the testimony.

The condition of affairs, as revealed by the three witnesses yesterday, if true, would rank the institution almost with medieval punitive creations. Stories of having been beaten by the guards and officials of the reformatory, amounting to pipes head-high while sick with rheumatism and heart disease, and then having had a hose turned on the sick body, amazed John H. Backes, Assemblymen Simon Hahn, Mark A. Sullivan, John D. Van Buskirk and Randolph E. Perkins, who heard the statements.

Crater testified to the truth of the "hose treatment" on him. Krebs said that he had been subjected to the same, only he was beaten with a blacksnake whip until there were stripes on his back, instead of having the hose turned on him. Dennis told a story of having had his head opened up by a blackjack in the hands of Assistant Superintendent Abbott. He also gave Mr. Backes a hint which he will follow up. It was to the effect that an inmate, now dead, by the name of Cope, had been beaten unmercifully twice by guards. He said that many attributed his apparent insanity to those beatings. The newspapermen present noticed the delicacy with which Mr. Backes handled the Cope story, and expect developments. It may rival the Enoch Silvers case.

Between now and Monday Mr. Backes will be busy getting material together for a full day's work. He will also try to devise a scheme that will permit the committee to be certain that none of the inmates who desire to testify will be punished in any way by the guards or officials. From the attitude of Dennis and many others who talked during the inspection to the Assemblymen, Mr. Backes feels that many more would be willing to testify if they were assured of immunity and would not be put back in the "red suit" grade for giving information against the officials. Everything will be done to make the investigation thorough.

Aside from this, the committee is of the opinion that the institution is sadly in need of money. The accommodations are of the crudest because of the crowded conditions just now. The new wing will not be sufficient to satisfy the needs either, because there are 475 inmates now in the institution.

Unless the present Legislature, at the earliest possible time, will change the appropriation bill so that $38,000 of the $300,000 set aside for the new wing may be used for heating and lighting the wing, when built, it will be useless. Thus the present unsanitary conditions will prevail all winter if the Legislature does not see fit to change the law.

As soon as the inspection had been completed Counsel Backes, with the members of the committee, had a consultation as to what should be done. The members of the committee and their counsel put all the stories they had heard together and decided to take testimony at once.

Before doing so, however, they called in Superintendent Martin and informed him that serious charges had been made against his management of the institution. He told the committee that he was surprised and promised to aid them in every way. When he left the room he wore a troubled look. He was worse when Mr. Backes asked him and Assistant Superintendent Abbott to leave the room while testimony was being taken. The two officials, with several other attaches of the institution, remained outside the door eagerly waiting for any news that might be carried out.

Mr. Backes had the numbers of a string of inmates to whom either he or the committee members had spoken during the inspection regarding their treatment.

NOT TO RENOMINATE HIM

COUNCILMAN-AT-LARGE

HERBERT BUXTON TO BE NAMED AS A WARD COUNCILMAN THIS FALL.

It is generally reported in the regulars' camp that Councilman Herbert Buxton, whose term expires this fall will not be run again as a councilman-at-large. Under present conditions it has been considered advisable to have him renominated as a ward councilman. Mr. Buxton left today for the Catskills where he will spend a two weeks' vacation with his family.

As Councilman Charles L. Randolph, a ward member from the Fourth, has removed to the Third ward, it is likely that Mr. Buxton will run in his place as a nominee for ward councilman. There has been some talk of nominating Mr. Randolph again in the Third ward.

A rumor was circulated yesterday that there was some opposition to the renomination of Councilman William L. Gloak so far as the organization is concerned. This story proves to be untrue as the leaders are unanimously in favor of his going back to the Common Council for another term.

CANINE AND ITS OWNER SHOT ON SAME NIGHT

ONE ALLEGED SHOOTER MULCTED; OTHER HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Vito Ameano, of Berkeley Heights, appeared as complainant and plaintiff in two actions before Justice Joseph Clark, of South Plains, this morning. He charged Michael Acuntzo, of Berkeley Heights, with having shot him after a row, on July 9, with a shotgun, in one case, and asked damages from Steven Dubell, for the shooting of a dog, in the other.

Acuntzo, it was alleged, wounded him in the ear and back. The trouble between the two is long-standing. He was moved to take the matter to court, it was said, because Acuntzo had won his son from him, and the yo uth was siding with his father's enemy. Justice Clark held Acuntzo in $100 bail for the Grand Jury.

The shooting of the dog occurred on July 9 also. The case was proved, and Justice Clark awarded the plaintiff $25 damages. In both cases Ameano was represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

NEW MARKET POND DRAINED THIS MORNING

BIG CATCHES IN THE MUD WHEN SLUICE GATES WERE OPENED.

All New Market sat down to fish dinners today, if reports be true, for New Market pond was drained this morning, and it was simply a case of going out onto the muddy bed and picking up fish. All the small boys in the town were on the shores of the lake with baskets when, shortly after 9 o'clock, the sluice gates in the dam were opened and the water rushed out into the brook, draining the pond. Fish and Game Warden Miller, of Somerset county was there, and the draining was done under his supervision.

The pond was dry except for a small channel through it, within a few hours, and then it was that the ever present small boy could be seen picking up the fish struggling in the mud or crowding together in the channel. All sorts of stories are current by now as to the size of the biggest fish found in the pond. Late telephone reports put the maximums at twenty-three inches, but there are still some of the finny monsters to be struggled with and landed. Some of the fish were fortunate to escape through the sluice, and it was at this point that most of the "fishing" was done, and the big catches landed.

The pond is periodically drained about this time of year by the fish warden in order to reduce the number of the carp, which breed in great numbers in the pond and the streams of the vicinity. The carp is a foe to many of the better fish and this means is taken by the State for their extermination. The pond will be left dry for the rest of the week, after which time the sluice gates will be closed again and it will be allowed to fill up. Because of the recent dry weather, the water was lower than usual today when the pond was drained.

Mrs. George Ball and family, of Linden avenue, have returned home from Shoeshone, N. Y., where they spent three weeks.

RESULTS OF BRICK TEST

"BRADY'S RUN" THE BEST

Its Loss But 18½ Per Cent.—Two Examinations Made With Practically the Same Results.

City Engineer Gavett has prepared a detailed report of the test made of the various samples of brick considered for the proposed paving in the business section of the city. As stated in the Daily Press of yesterday, the samples submitted by the Pennsylvania Clay Company, better known as "Brady's Run," stood the severe test, showing the less percentage of loss.

The first test was made by J. W. Howard, a consulting engineer of New York. Six samples, eighteen bricks in all, were tested. They were kept in a rattler, a cylinder of standard size, making 1,800 revolutions a minute, for several hours. The percentage of loss at the end of the test was as follows:

Layton brick, 39½ per cent; Clearfield brick, 26¾ per cent; Pennsylvania Clay Company brick, 18½ per cent.

Afterward samples were tested at the Pond Machine Tool Works for the purpose of verification, and the result was practically the same. The samples were thrown into a rattler with heavy castings and allowed to go through the process five times and the percentage of loss was almost the same as shown by the first test.

"JIMMY" DOUGHERTY AGAIN ON HIS JOB.

James H. Dougherty, of Philadelphia, formerly the popular room clerk at the Hotel Kenilworth, has returned to his old position after an absence of over a year during which time he has completely recovered his health. After leaving Plainfield, "Jim," as he is best known, went to his home in the Quaker city, where he was under treatment at a hospital. His former proprietor, J. A. Staats, kept in touch with him all the time, and when the latter received a letter this week from "Jim" saying that he was well and strong again and ready to work, he like a flash immediately wired him that his old position awaited him.

"Jim" was always popular with the employes and patrons of the hotel, because of his willing ways. A few years ago he was one of the leading members of a well-known minstrel troupe and his sweet tenor voice won for him many friends. Many patrons of the hotel have been entertained by his singing of popular songs. He was given a warm reception when he returned to the hotel today and he has been busy ever since receiving the congratulations of his friends.

DISTRICT COURT.

Judge Newcorn Comes From Atlantic City to Hold Session.

District Judge William Newcorn, who has been staying at Atlantic City, came to town long enough to hold court this morning. Only one contested action was down for adjudication, that of the New York Safe Company against Jay Armstrong, a plumber, in replevin.

Title in the safe was declared for the company, and six cents damages was allowed for unlawful detention of the property. Counsel fee of $5 and costs were granted. Nelson B. William N. Runyon appeared for the company.

A half a dozen minor cases were disposed of, and then Judge Newcorn adjourned court until August 28. He returned to Atlantic City.

New Ward Maps.

A new set of maps of the four city wards was hung in Mayor Fisk's office this morning. They show the macadamized streets, the sidewalks, the water pipes, the fire hydrants, the electric lights, the fire alarm and police boxes, the fire houses, police headquarters, school houses, outlines of fire district and the names of all property owners. They are the most complete the city ever prepared, and will enable the mayor to talk more intelligently, on short notice, of improvements and such things with committees and citizens.

Last Excursion Tomorrow.

Warren chapel's annual excursion to Asbury Park, tomorrow, will be the last one of the season from this city, and as the weather conditions promise to be perfect, and it is the height of the season at the shore for all attractions, one of the largest crowds is expected to make the trip.

FOR GARBAGE DISPOSAL

Board of Trade to Push Campaign for Improvement On.

LECTURES BY EXPERTS

Most Approved Systems To Be Explained at Meeting in September—Paper By Health Officer.

With the first meeting of the Board of Trade after the summer suspension, on September 5, the campaign for the improvement of garbage disposal in this city will be resumed. The Board has decided to take an energetic part in the movement, and encouraged by Mayor Fisk, the organization has taken steps to push the crusade against the present unsatisfactory system along.

At the September meeting several of the latest and most approved systems of handling the garbage of a city of Plainfield's size will be presented to the public. Health Officer Leon E. Thurber will open the meeting with a paper on the problem, and several experts will follow him with talks on different systems. Both utilization and reduction systems will be explained in detail.

By the utilization method power is generated, and the garbage returns an immediate benefit to the municipality. A plant showing the system at its best is in use in a borough near Montreal, Canada, of about Plainfield's size. At a plant of that sort even the ashes are burned. The fire generated is very hot and the ash is reduced to clinker that may be used on road work or for filling in. The residue is very fine, and is easy to dispose of. Mayor Fisk and members of the Health Board will probably inspect the plant near Montreal next month.

Charles Wheelwright, of the American Extraction Company, of Providence, R. I., will speak on the reduction system. The talks will be illustrated by stereopticon views.

AMOS ANDREWS AS A MINING DIRECTOR

WORK AT HARCUVAR MINES IN ARIZONA UNDER WAY AS HE SUGGESTED.

As one of the directors of the Harcuvar Copper Company, with mines in Yuma county, Arizona, Amos Andrews, superintendent of the Plainfield Union Water company, recently returned after a six weeks' visit of investigaton of the mines. Mr. Andrews, who is a mechanical engineer of recognized ability in this city, made the trip to look over the mining ground and to consult with the local management as to methods of developing the claims. His office of director of the company, recently organized with Hon. John J. Hawkins, of Prescott, Arizonia, as its president, will keep in touch with the mechanical progress at the mines, now being worked, and as advisor to the company when some of the unworked claims are to be exploited in the future.

The Harcuvar mines are located in the Kenworth Mining district, on the Arizonia and California railroad in the Harcuvar mountains, near Cunningham pass, Yuma county, Arizona. The company holds nine full mining claims, comprising the following mines: "Sunny Side," "Triumph," "Ada," "Mystic," "Treasure Trove," "Mountain Queen," "Harcuvar," "Midget" and "Arroyo." The metal which has been mined has been taken from a vein highly mineralized in copper. The ore body is one place has been found to reach a depth of nine feet and assays as high as 20 per cent in copper and $35 to the ton in gold.

The present concern acquired the claims this spring and has already perfected and commenced work on an extensive plan of development. The company is now running a tunnel a distance of 250 feet to tap the contact at a depth of about 200 feet. A shaft will then be sunk, and drifts and cross cuts established. The work is now well under way, and it is planned to install air compressor equipment in the fall.

Peddler Arrested.

John Williams, a peddler, who says his home is in Camden, was arrested for selling without a license yesterday by Policeman Saffron. He was released under suspended sentence this morning by Judge Runyon.

Fined for Panhandling.

George Traynor, arrested last night by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn for panhandling at Somerset and Front streets, was fined $5 or 20 days by City Judge Runyon this morning.

SCHOOL FOR POLICEMEN

COURSE IN ENGLISH

Others in Law, First Aid, and Physical Energy—New Book of Rules Being Prepared By Committee.

Carrying out their plans for the steady improvement of the police force along all the lines of its work, Mayor Fisk and the Police Board have made arrangements for the establishment of a school of instruction for patrolmen. The school will be designed to teach the cops several things besides hard-and-fast rules of the department.

Among the courses will be a sensible one in the use of English. Some of the policemen haven't paid much attention to rhetoric and composition and their written reports suffer in clarity and brevity. Prof. Herr, of the Plainfield Business College, will organize a class in English for such cops as need the instruction, and it is hoped to make the effect of the teaching apparent in a short time. Those patrolmen whom it is thought ought to take the course have been approached regarding it, and they have received it in an appreciative spirit.

Lectures on the laws governing arrests will be given by City Judge Runyon, or some other authority, and first aid to the injured instruction will be given by City Physician C. B. Lufburrow.

The rules of the department, which are badly in need of revision, will be brought up to date, and the policemen will be required to learn them thoroughly. Preparatory to revising the rules, the Police Board has sent to a number of cities for copies of their rules, on which to base the new book. The best in all of them will be incorporated in the forthcoming volume.

Physical instruction will be part of the schooling. If arrangements now pending are carried out, Bob Fitzsimmons, the pugilist, will teach the cops a thing or two that will be useful in their business. The ex-heavyweight champion had a long talk with Mayor Fisk on the subject at the executive's office yesterday afternoon.

When the new school has been established it is Mayor Fisk's idea to have yearly examinations of the policemen to keep them up on the things they will be expected to know. The records of the examinations will figure in the promotions of the policemen

PASTOR HAS NOT DECIDED TO ACCEPT WESTERN CALL.

Rev. Dr. Shaw Arrives At No Decision Regarding North Loup Invitation.

Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, who recently received a call to the denominational church at North Loup, Neb., has not yet announced his decision as to whether he will accept or not, but it is the feeling among his people that he will remain in Plainfield.

North Loup is the centre of a large farming district, and the Seventh-Day Baptist church is one of the largest and most important in the denomination. The members are very active in church work and the parish is constantly growing. Since the resignation of Rev. T. L. Gardner, who leaves to accept the editorship of The Sabbath Recorder, the church has been much concerned about his successor, and the members have been urging Mr. Shaw to accept the pastorate.

PLAYED CRAPS BY CANDLE AND WERE "PULLED IN."

Flickering gleams of light that had something mysterious about them attracted the attention of Policeman Martin Vanderveg to the yard of the house at 221 Plainfield avenue. Vanderveg sleuthed into the place and found Charles Cassett and Oscar Green, colored, earnestly engaged in shooting craps by the rays of a candle.

"Come seven," said Oscar yearningly.

"Come with me," remarked the cop, as he dropped a hand on each shoulder.

Oscar and Charles were full of virtuous promises in the city court this morning, and Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

"Ike" Finch For Assembly.

DICK FOOTE'S LAST CALL

HE HAD A CLOUDED LIFE

Separation From His Wife, Who Was One of A. T. Stewart's Daughters, Was One Great Woe.

According to reports from Sioux City, Iowa, Richard Foote, tragedian and Shakespearean reader, who lived here for a time in 1902 and made himself as well known locally as an old resident, died recently in Minneapolis. His burial, the reports state, took place from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Minneapolis. There was a report about three years ago that he died at that time in the west, and one of the New York papers published a long appreciation of his work and qualities.

Foote is remembered here for the series of entertainments and readings he conducted for the Reform Club and mission workers at Reform Hall. He brought out Adele VonOhl as an actress, and she probably owes it to his coaching and the confidence it gave her that she is today so well known in the show business.

Foote's career was checkered and unusual. Once a noted tragedian, son-in-law of A. T. Stewart, and finely educated, he lost his grip on prosperity and sonny, tiring through his own temperament and one fault of character.

Deposed from his high position in New York and the metropolitan theatres, Foote wandered about the Northwest, playing Richard III. and Othello with a company of all people, pursued everywhere by creditors and compelled finally to forsake the footlights and become in turn a lawyer, newspaper man, politician, orator and Shakespearean reader.

Foote was born, it is said, of titled parents in County Kerry, Ireland, and was educated in the Irish University at Dublin, graduating with high honors when twenty years of age. He early evinced talent for the stage. He was one of the handsomest men ever behind the footlights, and had a remarkable voice, was graceful, magnetic and much sought after by the best society. His first professional engagement was in London, and he came to New York with the stamp of approval of English critics. Here he soon became well known, and married, after a brief courtship, a daughter of A. T. Stewart, the rich merchant.

What caused a separation was never known. Foote, in his cups, was wont to refer to it occasionally, but he gave no details except to upbraid himself for what he termed was an unpardonable affront.

He became known in the early 80's in northwestern Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska where he appeared at small towns playing Shakespearean tragedies.

At Blunt, a small town in South Dakota, Foote's barnstorming career came to an end at least so far as is known in the Northwest. There he was seized for debt and his baggage and wardrobe seized. Foote acted as his own attorney in the hearing which followed, for the office of a Justice of the Peace.

The actor had the court with him from the start when he began his plea, and at its conclusion the Justice, officers and spectators were in tears. The Justice released Foote's baggage, and the crowd took up a collection. Foote was so touched by their manifestation of good will that he paid the back salaries of his company, purchased tickets for them to New York, and disposed of his wardrobe.

He then settled down in the village, began the study of law, was soon admitted to the bar and practised with much success two years, when he suddenly disappeared. For a year his friends and political associates knew nothing of him. Then he sent copies of a newspaper he was editing in a mining camp in California.

Again he disappeared, turning up some time later in a Southern California monastery, where he studied to be a priest, but abandoned that to resume his work as a reader of Shakespeare. From that time on until his death, Foote divided his time between lecturing on Shakespeare, reading and taking part as a speechmaker in political campaigns.

Drink was his bane, and on account of it he sank lower. It is related that when he was an actor his manager frequently locked him up in a room at the hotel to prevent him becoming intoxicated. Foote resorted to every means to procure liquor at such times, and usually was successful, enjoying to the fullest extent the chagrin of the manager who discovered his drunk when time for the performance drew near. But Foote never disappointed his audience, and showed no traces of drinking while portraying Richard or Othello or Hugo, like Hunchback of Florence, three characters of his creation who are remembered vividly by the early settlers of the Northwest.

PRIMARIES ON SEPT. 10

Election Preliminaries will be Two Weeks Earlier Than Usual.

PETITIONS ON AUG. 30

State Officers' Nomination Certificates Must Be Filed Before Oct. 11, According to Law.

Under one of the several election laws passed last year the primary election will take place this fall two weeks earlier than usual and this will throw all the preliminary steps for the voting ahead to the extent of the same period. The act of 1906 referred to is an amendment to the primary act and provides that in years when a Governor is to be elected the primary election shall take place on the second Tuesday in September, instead of one the fourth Tuesday in September, as in other years. This will bring the primary election this year on Tuesday, September 10.

One of the matters which the change brings earlier than usual is that of the filing with the municipal clerk of the petitions endorsing persons as candidates to the political conventions. This year all such petitions must be filed on or before Friday, August 30, the provision of the law being that they must be filed not less than ten days prior to the primary election.

The most important events in the present campaign will be the State conventions. Election day will be Tuesday, November 5, and the statute provides that the certificates of nomination for state offices must be filed with the Secretary of State twenty-five days before election, or this year on or before October 11.

Tuesday, September 3, the Boards of Registry and Election in all election districts outside of cities having 30,000 inhabitants, must have their first meeting, and shall then proceed to make a house-to-house canvass of voters, completing it on or before Friday, September 14. The second registry day in all election districts outside of cities having 30,000 inhabitants will be September 19. The third and last registry day in such districts will be Tuesday, October 29.

In all cities having more than 30,000 population the first registry day will be Tuesday, September 10, the same day of the primary election. In these election districts the second registry day will be Tuesday, October 8, and the third and last registry day will be Tuesday, October 22. All boards of registration must sit from 1 to 9 o'clock p. m.

Some question is being raised as to the proper course of the County Election Boards when they sit October 31 and November 2 for the purpose of adding names to and erasing names from the registers of voters. These meetings are provided for under the election law and on these days the County Boards of Election must sit from 8 o'clock a. m. to 5 o'clock p. m. for this revision of the registration. The law provides that at these meetings the name of any legal voter in any district that has been "improperly or inadvertently left off the registry list," may be added thereto. Under this provision it has been customary throughout the state for County Boards of Election to add to the registration any names of voters, upon affidavit, no matter what the cause of the omission. A voter may have been away on the registry days, or ill, or he may simply have neglected to register. No matter what the excuse he has been sworn on as a voter.

Attended Cousin's Wedding.

Mrs. Frank W. Weed, of West Sixth street, has returned from Philadelphia, where on Wednesday night she attended the wedding of her cousin, Miss Adelaide Geary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Geary, and Dr. William Henry Giles. The ceremony was performed at the Methodist Episcopal church, Fifty-ninth and Race streets, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, where 150 guests gathered. Dr. Giles is a graduate of the dental department of the University of Pennsylvania. The couple will arrive in Plainfield in about two weeks, to spend a portion of their honeymoon with Mr. and Mrs. Weed.

Queen Wilhelmina.

No gentlewoman in Europe who has wealth to indulge her every wish leads a more simple than does Queen Wilhelmina. She rises every morning at 7 o'clock, and at 9 o'clock the members of her household, led by her chambermaid, assemble before her, the Queen reads a passage from the Bible to them, and they pray together. Following this she begins the work of the day.

Land Development.

W. J. Ruttfield and C. W. McCutcheon, of the borough, who are developing and improving West End avenue, the borough, have decided to complete one side of the thoroughfare as soon as possible. Workmen are now engaged in filling in and bringing the avenue up to the proper grade so that the rest of the concrete walk can be extended to the bridge.

LAWYER HALTS BAILIFF

THREE VANS USELESS

Locked Door Compels Officer and Mortgagee's Counsel to Retire By a Back Way—Other Proceedings Imminent.

Attempts of District Court Officer Hezekiah Hand, acting as bailiff, to execute the foreclosure of a mortgage on the stock of Horace Sherwin, shoe dealer, whose store is at 110 West Front street, were checked by the mortgagor's lawyer, V. W. Nash, Jr., Friday. The stock still remains in the possession of Mr. Sherwin, who is doing business as usual.

The mortgagee is Thomas E. Greacan, a wholesale shoe dealer of New York. The mortgage, given in 1905, was originally for about $8,000. It has since been reduced, but over $4,600 is still owing. Mr. Greacan claims nearly $5,000 is still due, but the correctness of his figures is questioned by the mortgagor.

Former Judge William A. Coddington, counsel for Mr. Greacan, made arrangements to foreclose on the stock Thursday, and had the court officer made bailiff. Hand made a demand for possession at the store, and met with prompt refusal. He returned to the store Thursday evening and put a padlock on the door. The padlock disappeared overnight, however, and Hand again made demand for the stock at 10 o'clock Friday morning. Judge Coddington was on hand at that time, and he gave Hand three minutes to leave the store.

Hand went, but he returned Friday afternoon with three vans and accompanied by Judge Coddington. Refusal to surrender possession was again met with by the bailiff, and he appealed to Policeman Charles Flynn, to force the other side to desist from interference. Flynn couldn't see how the police force was called upon to take part in the affair, and refused to be drawn into it.

Judge Coddington and Hand were inside the store insisting on the formal demand, when Attorney Nash, summoned by Mr. Sherwin, hurried in. He locked the store door immediately, and planted himself before it with out-stretched arms, and defied the bailiff to remove any of the stock.

Judge Coddington told his bailiff to stop his activities. He had gone as far as was legal, and to lay a hand on Mr. Nash would have constituted an assault. Judge Coddington said his party would leave the store peaceably, and asked Mr. Nash to open the door. Mr. Nash said he didn't purpose to open the door for anybody at that particular juncture. Judge Coddington and Bailiff Hand, who hadn't any desire to stay in the store, retired from the scene by a rear way. After they had left Mr. Nash placed representatives on watch, and opened the door.

Judge Coddington said this morning that other steps would be taken to gain possession of the stock. Mr. Nash contends that the proceedings attempted Thursday and Friday were defective from a legal standpoint, and simple refusal to surrender possession invalidated them.

TALL POLICE FORCE.

Dunellen's Marshals Are All Six Feet or Over In Height.

Dunellen has probably the tallest set of policemen of any municipality in the State. Attention was called to the fact by the appointment, this week, of H. L. Hathaway, a newspaper reporter, as chief marshal. Hathaway is six feet over 6 feet, and none of the other three marshals are under 6 feet. They are Owen Mohan, who has been serving nights as a regular patrolman, Councilman Starker and Theodore Apgar.

Borough Counsel and Justice of the Peace Von Minden chuckled today when his attention was called to the distinction in size of the Dunellen force.

"I rather think the force would present a formidable front if it advanced side by side on a group of lawbreakers. They could quell a fuss or raid a tramp camp very expeditiously."

Summer Life In Massachusetts.

The current issue of "The Independent" contains an interesting story from the pen of Mile Roberts, of Plainfield, on the subject of "Our Co-Operative Homes," referring to the beautiful summer home of several Plainfielders at Tolland, Mass. The story is accompanied by several attractive pictures.

Suit Settled Out of Court.

The suit for damages brought by Frank McIntyre and Richard O'Neil, of this city, against the P. S. C., has been settled out of court by William S. DeMeza, counsel for the plaintiffs. They were injured on June 27 at Rahway, the result of being thrown off a trolley car.

Passed Examinations Successfully.

Albert A. Teeter, of this city, is among the successful candidates to pass the State Board of Pharmacy examination for registered assistant, and Edward Pennock, of Dunellen, passed the examination for registered pharmacists.

HURT IN ODD ACCIDENT

A BROKEN LEG RESULTS

Animal Frightened Under Washington Street Bridge By Rigging and Noise of the Work Overhead.

Norman Sharp, 16 years old, employed as a water boy on the bridge construction work at the New Jersey Central Railroad, fell from a scaffold beneath the Washington street bridge at 10 Friday morning and broke his leg. The accident, said to be the first of any sort to occur since the bridge work started in this city, happened in an odd way.

Sharp was standing on the scaffold, after climbing up with his water pail, when a grocer's wagon passed in under the bridge. The horse became frightened at the rigging overhead and the pounding of the riveters, and started to cut up. The wagon struck one of the scaffolding supports, and the jar caused Sharp to lose his balance. He fell a distance of eight feet, and his leg snapped as he struck the ground. Except for the break, the boy was uninjured to any extent.

Dr. Pittis and the patrol wagon were called at once. The physician ordered the boy's removal to the hospital, where the fracture was set. Sharp's home is in Wilmington, Del.

A Running Regiment.

The Bersaglieri are the men of Italy's crack regiment. They never walk, but are trained to run instead, and their appearance at a review always creates the wildest enthusiasm among the people, who think there is no other regiment in the world that could accomplish such feats. And perhaps they are right.

The Cottonwood Tree.

The cottonwood tree endures great extremes of temperature and when the roots can reach a good supply of moisture it successfully withstands several droughts. It is a fast growing tree and demands plenty of light. On irrigated lands cottonwoods have been known to attain a diameter of fourteen inches in eight years.

Architect Sues.

Frank E. Perkins, a New York architect, has entered suit for $20,000 damages against the Newark Board of Education. Perkins drewplans for the proposed Technical High School, which were rejected together with all specifications. This is the third suit on the same grounds.

MOTHER KEEPS CHILDREN

Plainfielder's Wife Wins Habeas Corpus Suit Instituted by Husband.

CANNOT LEAVE STATE

Without Express Permission of Court —Vice Chancellor Files Decision in Case.

Vice Chancellor Howell filed at Trenton Friday his opinion in the habeas corpus suit instituted by William T. Francisco, of Plainfield and New York, to obtain possession of his three minor children—Rena, fourteen years old; Cyrus, eleven, and George D., nine years. The court denied the petition and continued the children in the custody of their mother, Mrs. Hilda F. Francisco, of Upper Montclair. The vice chancellor in his opinion says, in part:

"The seventh section of the statute which authorizes this proceeding, L 1902, p. 259, provides that when the Court of Chancery has jurisdiction over the custody of minor children of parents living separate, and such children are natives of this State, or have resided five years within its limits, they shall not be removed out of its jurisdiction against their own consent, if of suitable age to signify the same or not, unless the court, upon cause shown, shall otherwise order. To grant the prayer of the petition and give the custody of the children to the father, who is a resident of the State of New York, unless by consent of the children, if they are of proper age to express their wishes, would be to fly in the face of the statute and nullify its provisions."

Children Preferred Mother.

The court then relates how the children were produced in court, and unqualifiedly expressed their desire to remain with their mother. Continuing, the decision says:

"I think that the court ought in this case to deal with the situation as it was at the time of the filing of the petition. At that time the petitioner described himself therein as a resident of the borough of Manhattan, the city, county and State of New York, and demanded the absolute care and custody of the children should be committed to him. I do not think that the court can impose upon him residence in New Jersey as a part of a decree awarding him the custody of the children. But if this statute did not exist, I should be loath to take the children from the custody of their mother under the circumstances disclosed by the evidence, and for the reasons stated in the petition."

The vice-chancellor then takes up the counter-charges of immorality made in the cross bills, and dismisses them as not proved. He continues:

"I shall decline to grant the prayer of the petition, but the petition will remain on the docket for future action, so that application may be made to the court from time to time touching the custody and maintenance of these children in case subsequent events should make it advisable to take action thereon.

"The father has undoubtedly a right of access to these three children at all proper and convenient times and places, and an order will be made for that purpose in such form and to such extent as counsel for the parties may be able to agree upon. If they are not able to so agree the court will make such an order as may seem expedient and proper.

"Recurring again to the seventh section of the statute, which provides for the removal of the children out of the jurisdiction of this State without their own consent, I may say that this prohibition applies to the mother as well as to the father. The children are here, and before they are removed by the mother to any other jurisdiction the court must be satisfied that they go freely and by their consent."

Rats.

The fecundity of the rats is so great that in a few years they would overwhelm a whole city if they were not kept down by artificial means. One pair will rear four or five families of ten to fifteen to each litter in one year, and in six months these young ones are ready to reproduce. Thus one couple in the course of three years could raise a population of several hundred thousand if not restrained by any destructive measures.

Potted Oatmeal.

Put two cups of oatmeal in a medium sized bean pot and add one quart of slightly salted water, cover closely and bake all day in a moderate oven, looking at it occasionally to see if more water is necessary. Heat it next morning and serve with cream or milk and sugar.

A Frog Barometer.

A curious barometer used in Germany and Switzerland consists of a jar of water with a frog and a little stepladder in it. When the frog comes out of the water and sits on the steps it is said infallibly to foretell rain.

Tobacco.

Tobacco was discovered in Santo Domingo in 1496, in Yucatan by the Spaniards in 1520. It was introduced intp France in 1566 and into England in 1583.

JUNE ALSTON EXTRADITED

CLAIM KILLING WILFUL

Accused Youth Is Said to Have Shot Jesse Williams Deliberately—Sheriff Sees New York and Coney Island.

Sheriff R. E. Davis, of Warren county, North Carolina, took June Alston, the colored youth wanted for alleged murder, back South Friday morning. Sheriff Davis reached this city Thursday evening, with requisition papers in full. He was taken to Elizabeth, where Alston had been sent for safekeeping by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, and received his prisoner. He brought Alston here and had him locked up overnight.

It was the sheriff's first trip North, and Detective-Sergeant Flynn constituted himself an entertainment committee to show the North Carolinian the sights. He took the sheriff to New York and Coney Island, and the North Carolina officer said a series of surprising sights that charmed him after all the impressions of the evening had sunk in the sheriff said it seemed a shame to go back to his part of the country.

The story of the shooting told by the sheriff is very different to that of Alston. The latter said, at the time of his arrest, that he shot Jesse Williams, the victim, accidentally, while handling a revolver belonging to Williams, but the sheriff said the shooting was deliberate and intentional. Alston was jealous of Williams, the officer said, and on the night of July 19 threatened to kill him if he did not stop paying attention to his, Alston's sweetheart. The next morning, it is alleged, Alston shot Williams at the latter's house, deliberately pointing a revolver at him. The shot took effect in the stomach, and death followed swiftly.

Alston went quietly with the sheriff. His hands were handcuffed together, but he was allowed to walk without being chained to his captor. They left on the 10:43 train.

THE ROYAL BOX.

King George of Greece is particularly devoted to youngsters and animals, his favorites among the latter being dogs.

When Crown Prince George of Servia refused to permit Hungarian customs officials to examine a boat in which he was traveling, the officials gave him a shower of bullets, but he was not hit.

The czar of all the Russias is extremely fond of music and specially delights in hearing played the balalaika, which is a species of guitar with only three strings.

Queen Alexandra has introduced a new fad in the way of buttons painted with portrait miniatures on velum and surrounded with jewels. She has a set of nine buttons, each with a miniature of one of her grandchildren and set with amethysts.

The King of Siam when visiting Roskilde cathedral, Copenhagen, several weeks ago was weasured on the historical column on which the height of nearly all the soverigns of Europe is engrased. He proved to be of exactly the same height as the czar when the latter was measured there ten years ago.

TWENTY COACHES FILLED WITH SHORE EXCURSIONISTS.

About 1,500 Attended the Hope Chapel Outing to Asbury Park.

Two sections, comprising ten coaches each, were used to convey the members and friends of Hope chapel to Asbury Park Saturday, the crowd of excursionists being one of the largest of the season. The first section, which was in charge of Conductor Walter Durling, was filled up at the Grant Avenue station, and it did not make a stop at Plainfield.

The second section, in charge of Conductor Frank O. Webster, made the stop here to pick up the crowd at the North Avenue station. All but two coaches on the second section were well filled. The excursionists got away in good time and the prospects for a pleasant day were excellent. They will leave the Park tonight at 7:15 o'clock for the return journey.

Servian Marriages.

Servian men do not marry for love, but to secure an additional worker for the household. So very young men marry women several years older than themselves, as girls are less experienced in housework. In the lower and middle classes women are always helped last and may not sit down unbidden in the presence of the men.

Tried to Kill Wife.

The average weight of a pair of elephant tusks is 180 pounds, but a single tusk has been known to weigh 200 pounds.

POLICEMAN FOR 'PLAINS

Township Committee Finally Decides on the Nightly Protection Necessary.

DISORDER IS CHECKED

Special Officer Jacob Shackleton Calls a Halt On Noisy Couple the First Night He Goes On Duty.

Steps to check the disorder that has destroyed the peace of Scotch Plains have been taken by the Fanwood Township Committee. Acting on complaints of residents and property holders the Committee has decided to put a special officer to duty about the village at night. The 'Plains has been without such protection for several months, the Committee having come to the conclusion that it was not necessary to keep a policeman on duty regularly.

It wasn't long, however, before disorderly characters made their presence felt. Brawls and noisy demonstrations from drunken men—and women—became almost nightly occurrences, and the residents became aroused. A party was raised on Wednesday night, when several couples, said to be from this city, raised a disturbance on the street. They were all drunk, the women apparently as much so as the men. They kept the residents awake the greater part of the night. A police officer being on duty, there was no one to check them, and they staid the night out in full swing.

Moved by that occurrence to immediate action, the Township Committee ordered Special Officer Jacob Shackleton on duty Thursday. His presence served as a benefit almost immediately, for a couple from out of town started to make preparation to spend the night in the village in the old way. Shackleton put a spoke in their wheel without delay. When they learned that the lock-up was yearning to receive them they decided that any other place was preferable to Scotch Plains and took the next car to this city.

Shackleton will probably be kept on duty nightly, with no further intermissions from service. He has been instructed to hold the noisy and disorderly element in stern check, and it is hoped that the disturbers will immediately awake to the fact that their snap has come to an end.

(Sunday School Interests.)

It may be worth while at some time to call attention to the vast amount of money invested, in the interest of the Sunday schools, in buildings, books, apparatus, publishing plants, assemblies, conventions and the like—but not now and here, for there are more important interests to be considered.

Some time and somewhere it may be worth while to tell of the great number of scholars and teachers and officers and the number of schools and their grades and such matters, but not at this time, for there are more important matters to be considered.

The thing which needs discussion at the present time is the interest of the child rather than that of the school. The school is of value only as it helps to educate the child in the knowledge and love and practice of godlike living. This is the most pressing need of our times. Every child ought to be educated in every one is educated, in one way or other—if not in the schools and in useful branches of learning then on the streets and in ways of vice.

Much is said about training the young in manual and industrial arts so as to give better opportunity for earning a livelihood. All this is good, but it is far from being all that is necessary. Training of the hands is essential, and training of the mind also, but the training of the higher faculties be neglected we have but produced a deformed creature who may prove to be a curse to himself and to society.

Moral character is the indispensable need of every one. It can be had only by training the heart and leading to the practice of that which is good and right. The best text book of ethics is the Bible. It should be taught to every child, not so much for its history and literature as for its code of morals and its religious principles. The best place for this teaching is in the home, but there are many homes where the Bible is an unknown book, and there are comparatively few where it is taught in any adequate manner.

The Sunday school is the place where we must look for the best teaching of the world. Something may possibly be done in the day schools to teach good morals, but not enough. This teaching ought to be substituted by the best possible efforts of the church. The conspicuous lack at the present time in business life and in society at large is not lack of intelligence and culture, but glaring need of regard for rights, justice and consideration of others. The greatest evil of the age is not poverty nor even open crime, but the utter lack in all classes of true moral sense. No age has seen a more heroic struggle for truth and righteousness than is now being waged, nor has any age ever seen greater power in the hands of evil ones than is now to be seen. The moral sense of the world has been paralyzed by recognition of the utter moral rottenness of many men high in the business and social world. Radical reform is needed.

The only hope for our civilization is a return to the faith and practice of the Christian religion. The boys and girls must be brought to know what God says is right and made to love the right and fear to do the wrong. The teaching of the Sunday school must be strengthened. Those who would lead there must have their own lives above reproach. There must be no compromise in this thing. We must have no blind leaders. Our Leaguers must really to this work with all earnest consecration.

The True Peace.

There is a peace which is not to tence, because it looks for nothing. hope in nothing, prays for nothing—a peace which is painless because it is numb ...al is free from struggle because it is dead.

I would not have that gift, O my Father! I have passed through the autumn woods when the dry rustling of the leaves, not because there was no wind to blow, but because there was no sap to nourish. I would not have that gift, O my Father! That is the peace of the grave.

But the peace is the peace of the ocean. It is the calm that hides cyclones beneath it. It is not the rest of ...lessness, but the rest of balance. Its patience is the patience not of weakness, but of expectancy. It rests in hope.

Bring me that peace of mine, O God! Bring me the peace of pulsation, the calm of courage, the endurance that springs from energy! Bring me the fortitude of fervor, the repose through inner radiance, the tenacity that is born of trust! Bring me the silence that comes from serenity, the gentleness that is bred of joy, the quiet that has sprung from quickened faith! When I hear Thee in the whirlwind, there will be a great calm.—George Matheson, D. D.

For Life and Death.

Daily Bible reading keeps us constantly ready to meet our Lord, whether not when we shall have especial need of Him. Rev. Charles Simeon, when he was dying, woke from what seemed an unconscious state and said: "If you want to know what I am doing, look in the first chapter of Ephesians from the third to the fourteenth verse. There you will see what I am enjoying now." Thus, in life and death—

Like those Arabian travelers we go,
Forth from the city gate of things below;
Christ at our side, His Scriptures for our light,
Here burning hearts and there His heaven in sight.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 18.

Topic—The value of decision.—Eph. iv. 14, 15; Jas. i. 5-8.

It is impossible for us to have much experience in life without soon learning the great value of decision. The man who is always wavering, who is always doubting, never able to make up his mind as to what he ought to do, never accomplishes very much in life and usually falls behind in the race of life. He spends so much time for deciding that he has little time for performing, and meanwhile another, capable of quickly sizing up the situation, has passed him in the race. There is no question but that the power to decide quickly and with much accuracy may be cultivated. The mind must be taught the power of concentration to quickly grasp all the possibilities of a situation and then to choose what is best without delay and in such a way that there will be no regret of the choice.

Christianity demands decision. It requires decision to become a Christian. Every one must decide for Christ as against everything else in life. And there is great value in making this decision as quickly as possible after the situation has been placed before us. There are thousands of people who really believe in Christ who make their lives miserable because they will not make a decided choice and end the matter once and for all. Choose and choose now whom you will serve. Decide and decide for Christ.

Christianity requires decision after we have become Christians. There are matters of faith where the value of this quality is very evident. When we have decided, we should stand by our position. The most unhappy man in the world is the one who is tossed about by "every wind and wrong doctrine." Stability in faith should follow decision, and no trifling criticism of our faith should lead us astray. The great orthodox doctrines of Christianity as set forth in the Scriptures and taught by the church throughout the centuries should be the foundation upon which we should take our stand, and, having taken it, we should stand firmly upon it.

In the Christian's daily life the value of decision is also apparent. Many after becoming Christians are frequently disturbed as to what they should do. They have no Christian peace, but are eternally asking, "May I do this?" "Would it be wrong to do that?" Learn to decide. Do what Christ would have you do. If in doubt concerning anything, decide against it and then let the matter rest.

Josh. xxiv, 14-17; Ruth i, 16, 17; I Kings xviii, 21; Ezek. xx, 39; Matt. vi, 33; Mark ii, 14; Luke xv, 17-20; John xiv, 1; I Cor. xv, 58.

Looking Ahead.

Christian Endeavor faces the future. It exists less for today than for tomorrow. Its ambitions are all directed toward a coming day. It is to prove its worth in later fruits. The measure of a society's success is less what it is accomplishing in the immediate present than what it is accomplishing for the future fitness of the members. Now it is in the business of training. The test comes afterward. Every Endeavorer should work with this thought in mind. He should never lose sight of the time when he will be graduated from Christian Endeavor and enter the larger work of the church and kingdom. His success in Christian Endeavor is to get an equipment that will enable him to do great service in the fields of the future. The test of the efficiency of a society is very properly this: How is it affecting the future usefulness of its members? Over and over again we should recall this cardinal truth—that the proof of the success or failure of Christian Endeavor is to be found in the next generation of workers.—Forward.

Still Ready to Serve.

We are by no means at the end of the usefulness of the Christian Endeavor society. It has now attained its majority and the dignity of twenty-five years. It has perfected its organization. It is now ready to serve the church in a great variety of ways. It can prepare its millions of young and enthusiastic members for the type of service which the church most needs. It can do anything reasonably required. But underneath this multiplicity of effort, this flexibility of method, there is the firm foundation of loyalty to Jesus Christ, loyalty to His church—confessing, serving, fellowship, loyalty! From these roots grows the Endeavor tree with its leaves and flowers and diversified fruits.—Rev. W. W. Sleeper.

The Beautiful.

It is a part of a true Endeavor training to be helped to see what surroundings, what actions, what sounds and sights are beautiful and why they are beautiful. Right ideas regarding the beautiful in public worship would be an immense help in all our churches. Beautiful outlines, beautiful proportions, beautiful colors, beautiful music, beautiful conduct, the fitness of things, the influence of harmony upon the spiritual life, all this is a new world to our young people and but partially explored by their elders.—Christian Work and Evangelist.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E.

"Mr. and Mrs. Christian Endeavor are staying at the Hotel des Bergues." Such is a translation of an announcement which actually appeared in a Geneva (Switzerland) paper during the recent world's convention. IN THE WORLD OF INDUSTRY.

The annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada will be held in Winnipeg, Man., from the 16th to the 21st of September.

The large number of delegates from labor organizations throughout the Dominion is expected at the annual meeting.

In many of the eastern and southern cities almost every trade has a ladies' auxiliary. In Atlanta the ladies' auxiliary of the machinists is making arrangements for securing a concession for the restaurant privilege at the State Fair to be held at Piedmont.

International Typographical Union declares that it has won the eight-hour workday strike for the book and job branch in 99 per cent. of the cities and towns of the country. It has ceased paying strike benefits after having paid them continuously since February 1 of last year.

The action of the Civil Service Commission in barring all but college graduates from the examination for superintendent of the new Chicago federal building is being denounced by labor unions in general as "class action of the rankest sort" and as weakening the public confidence in civil service examinations.

The death rate in the International Typographical Union for the year ending May 1, 1906, was 1.14 per cent. of the average membership, or a little more than 11 per thousand. The average death rate since the establishment of the burial fund has been 1.21 per cent.—about 12 per 1,000.

Rather a serious situation exists in railway circles in England. Numerous meetings of employes are being held. The employes want recognition of their union, higher wages and reduced working hours for skilled men.

At Ottawa, Canada, and vicinity, some 3,000 mill hands have had great orthodox doctrines of Christianity as set forth in the Scriptures and taught by the church throughout the centuries should be the foundation upon which we should take our stand, and, having taken it, we should stand firmly upon it.

In the Christian's daily life the value of decision is also apparent. Many after becoming Christians are frequently disturbed as to what they should do. Paper Yarn.

Paper yarn has been spun and woven at Verviers, in Belgium, for ten years past. The paper cord is largely used for tying small packages. The sacking manufactured there has rendered amdirable service and seems to replace the jute article perfectly. Sacks of this material have been very successfully employed as mail bags.

FASHION'S FADS.

Coats molded to the figure without a crease are the latest demand among Paris fashionables for their tailor mades.

Parasol handles are either thick or thin, but they must be long. Many are covered with a plain color bordered with a contrasting shade.

Little loose etons in black peau de sole are seen a good deal and are simply trimmed with black braid, the sleeves full length and three-quarter length. They are not elaborate.

The vogue for check and stripes is noticeable, even in driving cloaks. If the entire coat is not one or the other it shows touches of plaid about the revers and cuffs. If the coat is figured the touches are of a plain color.

White muslins with large colored spots make cool-looking frocks for hot weather. Trimmed with Swiss insertion and tucks they are very pretty. A dress of this sort requires a simple shade hat trimmed with ribbons or field flowers.

Much has been said both pro and con of the long sleeve, but the extension below the elbow shall be close-fitting and detachable. All of the new separate undercuffs are well defined in shape and lavishly trimmed. A group of tucks, then a band of insertion and a tiny ruffle of lace both top and bottom of the insertion is a favorite idea for these undercuffs. Then something more elaborate is desired hand embroideries are impressed into service, with and without lace.

In contrast to the yellows, blues and browns that are rivaling each other for second place in fashionable favor is a frock in white chiffon cloth, for white maintains undisputed sway. Both the skirt and bodice are elaborated with bands of white canvas, embroidered with soutache braid and appliqued with lace. It is supplanted with an enormous white straw hat with white roses wreathed across a brim of shirred tulle, being finished at the left side with a rosette of white satin ribbon, spiked with a hatpin of porcelain daintily painted by hand and set with rhinestones.

It is stated that Great Britain will award Lord Cromer, who lately resigned his post of British agent and consul general in Egypt, the sum of $250,000 in recognition of his services in that country.

William Pryor Letchworth whose recent gift to the State of New York of his magnificent estate in Portage county is to be used for the benefit of feebleminded persons, recently passed his eighty-fourth birthday in good health.

When Secretary Root is at the department it is next to impossible to see him. He is closeted with his secretary and stenographer or else working by himself. Rarely either event he is as inaccessible as the czar. On diplomatic day he has to let himself be seen, but on other occasions it is simply a waste of time to try to get at him.

Howard Speight, of Chicago, has been appointed attorney for the civil service commission. He was born in Franklin, Pa., in 1855, and studied law at the University of Pennsylvania. For a number of years after graduating he was engaged in newspaper work and for a time was city editor of the Philadelphia Press. He has practiced law in Pennsylvania, Illinois, Colorado and Virginia.

PICNIC LUNCHEONS.

Many a housewife who finds no trouble in devising dainty and attractive menus for the home table declares herself "phased" when it comes to the preparation of the picnic basket. Yet, it is not a difficult undertaking when one gets on to the "pull of the ropes." Even in the home meals, there must be forethought to see that all necessary materials are on hand. Even more so in luncheons should a tasty lunch eon, for half the pleasure of a picnic depends on the efficiency of its commissary department, and any serious oversight when one is 20 miles from a lemon or any other desired edible is a misfortune hard to bear. Picnic luncheons should vary according to the prospective stage setting and the mode of journey thither. If the party is to motor, sail or drive to its destination, with plenty of room for hampers and accessories, the bill of fare may be much more varied and more comprehensive than when one goes on trolley or wheel or expects to tramp to the picnic grounds. In the latter case it is necessary to go in light marching order, everything as compact as possible, and things must be put away in neat packages instead of baskets, that may be thrown away when the meal is finished. Individual drinking cups should be included in every luncheon outfit, and the new paper collapsible cups that now come for that purpose solve the question that was erstwhile a perplexing one. Paper napkins and table cloths, a whole set of the latter consisting of fancy cloth 42x56 and a dozen napkins to match, put up in stout envelope cases, may be bought at ten cents a set.

Tasty Addition to the Luncheon.

Tasty additions to the luncheon are a sourse of pigs' feet, veal loaf, broiled chicken, smoked salmon sliced thin, sandwiches, baked beans, chicken salad, put up in little individual paper cases, then packed in a large box and carried "right side up with care." Swiss cheese sliced thin never goes begging. Saratoga chips are tasty and easy to carry and serve. A pigeon pie is extremely English and extremely nice, as also lamb cutlets in apsic jelly.

Picnic Sandwiches.

It goes without saying that sandwiches are the backbone of all out-of-door luncheons, and the roster of delightful ones is long. The "binding" may be a light tender wheat bread, at least 24 hours old and cut wafer thin, or brown bread or hole wheat bread cut thicker; may be a two-story affair, with both white and brown bread in amicable relations; may be substantial slices of rye or pumpernickel, a tender baking powder biscuit, a fluffy, melt-in-your mouth nut bread or raisin or gems that are not too crumbly. The filling must accord with its binding, and its name is legion. With the dainty slices of wheat bread comes first a spreading of sweet butter applied with a light hand. Then comes the heart of the sandwich, which may be caviare mixed with a little lemon juice, anchovies pounded to a paste and ixed with equal quantities stoned and chopped olives and a sprinkling of minced parsley, a slice of chicken breast cooked and prepared with a protecting leaf of crispy lecture moistened with mayonnaise, nasturtium leaves, blossoms and stems lightly salted, sprigs of watercress seasoned, minced chicken moistened with own stock, gravy or mayonnaise, equal quantities chopped chicken and ham, with a few minced truffles thrown in, a mince of ham and veal in combination or tongue and veal, wafer thin slices of boiled tongue or tongue is aspic cut in delicate slices and put on equally thin slices of tomato salad and peppered between rounds of buttered bread.

Relishes for the Picnic Basket.

Among the tasty relishes for the picnic baskets are olives (opening the bottle and pouring off the liquor before packing), pickles, salted peanuts, radishes (not forgetting to put in the salt shaker), popcorn, young onions for those who are especially fond of them and tomatoes.

Sweets For Topping Off.

Among the sweets best for topping off the luncheon are currant tarts, carrying shells and jelly separately and putting together before serving; apple or berry turnovers, a glass of bar-le-duc or other jelly, chocolate and sponge cake, cookies and crullers, preserved ginger, crystallized fruits, and if there is to be a camp fire plenty of marshmallows for toasting.

Liquids.

As a large amount of liquid is awkward to carry, it is usually better to take a small bottle of something concentrated that may be diluted with cold water when ready to serve the lunch. The juice of lemons may be squeezed out and made as sweet as desired; then bottled. Raspberry or cherry shrub is refreshing, allowing a couple of tablespoonfuls to each glass of cold water. Tea may be made quite strong, so as to bear reducing, carrying along lemons and block sugar to be added when serving. Grape juice is always appreciated. Ginger beer has its adherents, and a couple of bottles of claret add cheer and refreshment.

If coffee is carried it is better sweetened and "creamed" before starting, then poured in bottles with patent stoppers.

Fruits.

Anything from a watermelon down to strawberries unhulled with a little paper of powdered sugar to assist in their service goes well at a picnic. A few lemons should always be carried—a squeeze of lemon juice added to each cup of drinking water, making it not only more refreshing, but serving as a germicide in case there is anything out of the way with the water supply. In packing bananas, carry separately from the rest of the luncheon, as their heavy odor permeates everything laid near them.

Washington Pie.

Beat two eggs with a scant cup sugar, then add a cup and one-half flour, sifted several times over with a teaspoonful cream of tartar, a half teaspoonful soda and a pinch of salt.

Stir in gradually three tablespoonfuls cold water and a little lemon juice and bake in two layers.

When cold, spread with a custard and serve.

INDUSTRIAL NEWS.

The average union scale of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes is said to be 23½ cents an hour, the average workday is 10 hours, less than 10 hours and the average number of days worked a year is 300.

Indications are that at the St. Louis convention of the International Association of Machinists in September, James O'Connell, of Washington, D. C., will be elected president and George Preston, of the same place, general secretary-treasurer.

The indorsement of the project for a labor temple for Pittsburg by the Iron City Trades Council has resulted in subscriptions for about 15 new unions. There will be at least 50 organizations represented at the annual election of officers.

The Iron Trades Council of Pittsburg has decided to celebrate Labor Day this year by giving a picnic instead of having a parade as in the past.

Electrical workers in the employ of the illuminating company of Cleveland have been granted an increase of 25 cents a day and some minor improvements in conditions.

The bricklayers' unions at Birmingham, Eng., has asked trades unions to join in choosing an "old age pension day" on which national demonstrations could be held.

An expert who has been compiling statistics declares before the greatest number of strikes occur in the building trades and that the second greatest number is in the textile trades.

The wage agreement with the United States Potters' Association expires October 1, and before this a conference representing both sides will probably be held at Philadelphia to agree upon a new list.

The establishment of a home for potters and the opening of an insurance scheme in connection with the organization are among prominent features recommended by the executive committee.

The death benefit features of trade unions perhaps does not cut much of a figure in the statistics of economics, but investigation will develop that very considerable sums are devoted to this purpose.

The United Association of Plumbers, Gas Fitters and Steam Fitters of Chicago is urging a proposition to organize an association that shall build a home for the aged and infirm of the trade.

LAW POINTS.

The right to a mandamus to compel the governor to perform a merely ministerial duty is denied in State ex rel. Irvine versus Brooks (Wyo.); 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 750.

That a court of equity will not restrain a sale under power of sale contained in a mortgage because the amount of limitations has run against an action to foreclose it is declared in House versus Carr (N. Y.), 6 L. R. A. (N. S.), 510.

A contractor who fails to secure the architect's certificate of completion as required by his contract is held in Bush versus Cook (C. C. A. 3d C.), 6 L. R. A. (N. S.), 774, to be obliged in order to recover by showing a substantial completion of the building satisfactorily to establish that the certificate was unreasonably withheld.

PROGRESS AND LABOR.

Peat artificially dried is being made into wood under heavy hydraulic pressure.

Germany is now building houses of sound proof blocks. These are made of a composition of gypsum sawdust and ashes.

Canada has begun to find quite an important market for maple sugar and maple syrup in Europe, where such sweets have been little known.

Re-inforced cement is now the favorite material with British builders of large chimneys. One already completed in London is 250 feet high, with a base twenty feet square, and a projected one at Northfleet will be 247 feet high and eight and a half feet in diameter, with a foundation eighteen feet square.

Spanish Country Girls.

Country girls in Spain seldom wear hats or bonnets of any kind. It was in Spain, by the way, that the custom of a bride wearing orange blossoms in her hair originated.

MR. PERKINS SHOULD RETIRE.

No one doubts Randolph Perkins' ability to put up a good fight for a renomination to the Assembly, but he will make a great mistake if he flies in the face of public sentiment which is strongly opposed to sending him back to the Legislature. Mr. Perkins is quoted as saying that if two or three leaders declare that they do not want him, he will abide by the will of his constituents, taking it for granted that the people in general want him to continue in office. As the leader of the House is seldom in his own county, he may be pardoned for his ignorance regarding the situation politically, but he should be told that there are very few people, indeed, who desire to have him go back to Trenton.

Aside from the fact that the Westfielder has place in his voting residence—has already served three terms, there is strong opposition to him. This opposition, as should be stated, arises from no particular source but is quite general throughout the county. The New Idea forces, for instance, are against him on principle. His record has not been pleasing to those who follow Senator Colby's political theories and it is quite certain that he will meet with determined opposition from that quarter. Again, the local option faction, and it is not without strength in county politics, believes that his course has been an affront to the people. Hence, they are solidly arrayed against him and will continue the fight until the bitter end. Lastly, the Democratic party organization, which shows a strong inclination to do what the people will, has found no good reason for championing his cause. The leaders declare that they do not know what claims he has for a renewal of favor on the office, and add that there are many other men in Union county whom the people might desire to send to Trenton in his place.

It is not a matter of record that the assemblyman assembled ever consulted with his constituents regarding matters of public moment. As a matter of fact, he has acted without consulting anyone and his acts have not always been such as his people would have them. Mr. Perkins has straddled almost to the chasm that his course has been so directed in a manner to lead the people to believe that he has ambitions as a man and that his steps have been taken with a single regard to his future political welfare. So as it may, however, be one man who in office should be continued in his present office indefinitely. The theory of the American form of government does not look with favor on life tenure in office and the general public believes that inasmuch as it has been a custom to send a man into the Legislature but twice there is no reason why an exception should be made in his case.

Mr. Perkins should have the good sense to retire. By doing so, he will save himself from a sure defeat.

JAIL FOR TRUST BARONS.

Attorney General Bonaparte strikes the right note when he declares that some jail sentences would have a salutary effect in the effort to solve the trust problem. There is altogether too much leniency shown by the courts today in dealing with matters of such importance and a little the drastic work, it seems, would be most timely just now. Only this week While the imposition of a $29,000,000 sentence on the Standard Oil by Judge Landis for instance was a deserved penalty and will no doubt eventually open the eyes of the trusts to the fact that the Government has taken a firm stand against such criminality, probably it would have been better had the court set some of the arch-conspirators to jail. At it is, no one doubts but that the consumers will have to make up the loss suffered by the corporations and the end the trust barons will not suffer so much.

Referring to his future course of action in the effort to smash these monopolies which are working against public interests in a criminal manner, the Attorney General said yesterday: "I have noticed in how many complaints that criminal prosecutions against trust magnates and sentences of imprisonment for them have been very infrequent, and, in fact, for practical purposes, unknown. It is perfectly true that, in my opinion at least, a better moral effect would be produced by sending a few prominent men to jail than by a great deal of litigation, however successful, against the corporations they controlled."

The whole country will agree with Mr. Bonaparte that if some of the worst offenders are forever disgraced by being compelled to wear prison stripes for a time, the trusts can be effectually held in check.

EQUALITY IN TAXATION.

Equal justice for all is the doctrine embodied in the Perkins act, which was declared constitutional Wednesday by the Supreme Court, and now the property of the great railroads are on the same footing as that of private individuals so far as taxation is concerned. The highest tribunal in New Jersey has decreed that the main stem and tangible personalty of the railroads shall be compelled to pay at the average tax rate for the whole State and the judgment is happily retroactive inasmuch as the corporations in question will be compelled to pay at such rate for 1906. For last year, alone, $3,583,327.70 is due the State treasurer, which is exactly $2,652,538.49 more than that of the preceding year when the unfair and unequitable law was still in effect.

Under the old system of railroad taxation, the roads were compelled to pay the nominal rate of $5 per $1,000. This was a fixed rate, although the property of private individuals in various communities was placed at a vastly greater figure. Now the railroads will have to pay $15.01 per $1,000 throughout the entire State on both tangible personalty and the main stem. For every $1,000 collected in this way, the State will reserve $5, and the balance, $13.01 on the $1,000, will be distributed among the communities. The money thus apportioned by the State will be for the purpose of reducing the State tax and it will be distributed in time to meet current expenses. The sum total due the various municipalities amounts to $3,533,869.35.

That's what has been accomplished by the cry for equal taxation, a slogan justly feared by the corporations which have been receiving unfair benefits for years. Every taxpayer in the State will rejoice over the decision of the Supreme Court, decreeing, as it does, equal burdens for all.

THANKS TO OUR SENATOR.

It is safe to say that the result of the comic sheets' persistent reference to the proverbial Jersey mosquito has cost this State millions of dollars and no matter how deserved the prodding has been, we have suffered irreparably, as any citizen, let alone a real estate dealer, can attest. It is therefore, a matter of rejoicing that the day is fast approaching when our beautiful and thrifty little State will not longer be entitled to be known as "the mosquito-nest." For this, and many other blessings, we must offer thanks to the recent Legislature, which has done its share in the improvement of conditions.

Especially are we grateful, in this particular connection, to Ernest R. Ackerman, who, as the representative of Union county in the Upper House, did meritorious work in riding New Jersey of the slander, if such it may be called. It was our Senator, who gave his direct attention as a member of the appropriations committee, to the task of obtaining the necessary means for the work planned by Professor Smith to banish the pesky creature from our midst. The previous Legislature had ordained that a campaign should be inaugurated to drive the "skeeter" from our borders, but unfortunately the measure enacted for this object carried no appropriation with it. Early action was necessary, for the season was imperative and the Senator from Union was equal to the occasion. In his characteristic way, Mr. Ackerman gave his undivided attention to the subject and as a result Prof. Smith was supplied with the necessary funds. What the latter has accomplished is apparent to every man, woman and child. The mosquito is no longer a tormentor and the comic papers have been robbed of one of their favorite subjects.

Referring to the appropriation for this purpose, for which Mr. Ackerman is largely responsible, the Newark Evening News says:

"The Philadelphia Press frankly admits that 'in no State has there been such a persistent and intelligent war waged on the mosquito as in New Jersey. * * * The Hackensack meadows, which have been furnishing Newark, Elizabeth and Jersey City with mosquitoes since time out of mind, is not now yielding its usual supply.' The same paper also notes the improvement that has been made in Staten Island since Professor John B. Smith's methods were applied there by Dr. Darlington. Further commendation comes from another quarter. The Engineering Journal say that 'the fact that Jersey City has been almost wholly free from mosquitoes thus far this summer shows what preventive measures at the right time will do. The few cases that have been reported under the direction of State Entomologist Smith in ditching the Hackensack meadows was one of the wisest expenditures of money ever made. It is to be hoped that before next summer every foot of the meadows will be ditched and all stagnant pools will be drained."

Divorce Laws.

A man who has given the subject a great deal of variety says that there is a greater variety to be found among divorce laws of different nations than among the laws governing any other event.

An Italian Custom.

In Italy they have a novel way of advertising vacant apartments. Is placed of the card inscribed "Rooms to Let" or "Apartments," a white cloth about the size of a napkin flutters from the casement, notifying the passerby that the rooms can be rented.

JUMPED FROM TROLLEY RATHER THAN WALK BACK

Rather than be carried a block beyond his home, Horace Goldstein, who lives at 232 East Fourth street, jumped from a rapidly moving main line trolley car on Watchung avenue last Sunday and is today confined to his home with a choice collection of bruises and abrasions as a result of landing heavily on his back. The accident happened near East Fourth street at shortly after 9 o'clock last evening.

Goldstein, who had been to Westfield, was returning home on the trolley. The car was crowded, and he could not attract the conductor's attention to have the car stopped at the East Fourth street corner. He pushed his way to the platform and jumped off, while the car was going at full speed, without giving any signal to the conductor. The passengers saw him fall heavily, striking on his back and head. The car was stopped and several rushed to his assistance. He was picked up from the gutter to the sidewalk, where it was found that he was stunned by the fall. Doctors Carman and Hedges were summoned, and Goldstein was carried to a nearby house. An examination showed several painful bumps and scratches, but no broken bones. Goldstein, who is past fifty years of age, is suffering greatly from the shock, but his condition is not dangerous.

The accident attracted a crowd of several hundred people, and it was for a long time believed that the old man's injuries were of a fatal nature.

CONVENTION AT ALFRED

Fully 100 From Here Will Attend Seventh-day Baptists' Annual Session.

UNIVERSITY REUNIONS

Mrs. J. R. Truell a Graduate of 1867, to Be Present—Conference at Nile, N. Y.

Elaborate arrangements are being made for the general Conference of the Seventh-Day Baptist church to be held at Alfred, N. Y., August 21-26, when delegates from all parts of the country, including at least a hundred from this city and New Market, will attend. The conference is similar to the one held here a few years ago, and it will bring together all of the *important heads of the various de*partments of the denomination.

Prior to the general conference, but in connection with it, a convention of the ministers of the denomination will be held this week at Nile, N. Y. Among those who will attend are Rev. George B. Shaw, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of The Sabbath Recorder. This conference was only inaugurated a few years ago and is intended as a time when the various pastors can get together and discuss different phases of church work. It also affords an opportunity for the pastors to prepare and decide upon the measures they wish to bring before the general conference looking toward an advancement of the denominational interests.

An event of more than ordinary interest at the time of the general conference will be a reunion of many of the older classes graduated from Alfred University. The committee on classes arranging for a reunion is the one of 1867. Mrs. J. R. Truell, of this city, was graduated from the university in that class and she proposes to attend the reunion. As far as she is able to learn there are about twelve other members of the class living.

In the later classes there are a large number of graduates residing here and a concerted effort is being made to secure as large an attendance as possible from the reunions to be held during conference week. Special programs are being prepared and altogether the affair promises to be one of the most important in the history of the denomination.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

If the fat in the dripping pan catches on fire, pour in at once a little milk, and the flames will be instantly quenched.

To renovate black lace, wash the lace in water in which a little ammonia has been added, then rinse it in strong coffee.

Porch tables that have become warped and dry by rain and hot weather may be restored to usefulness by covering them with common tea matting. Wind and weather will then have no effect on them.

Tops of fruit cans can be cleaned if they are placed in sour milk or vinegar and left until the mold comes off easily when they are washed in water. *They should also be scrub*bed with a brush to clean the grooves in the side of the lid.

Against Perkins.

The Presbyterian Bulletin, the official publication of the First Presbyterian church, of Cranford, in a recent number, contained what was virtually an appeal against the renomination of Assemblyman Perkins, Perkins, antagonized by the local option people, cannot look to the liquor element for support, for he stood in the forefront of the fight for the retention of the Bishops law last fall.

STANDS HIGH AMONG WEST POINT GRADUATES

The assignments to corps, regiments and other organizations of the second lieutenants who were graduated from West Point in June, have been given out. Eight were sent to the engineer corps, six to the field artillery, eighteen to the coast artillery, twenty-six to the cavalry and fifty-two to the infantry. Among the eighteen assigned to the coast artillery, Lieut. N. P. Rogers, Jr., of this city, stands fifth in lineal order, and inasmuch as he was number thirteen in a class of 111, he is considered to have made a good start in his military career.

The artillery corps is an exclusive branch of the service and in a class by itself. In general orders No. 57, of the War Department, March 20, 1907, for appointment to the coast *artillery corps provides that all can*didates whether from the army or civil life, who have successfully passed the examination for the coast artillery, but who successfully pass the examination for cavalry, field artillery and infantry will be arranged in the general merit list of their respective classes, according to the standing in the subjects prescribed for the examination for these arms of the service and will be eligible for appointment therein. First Lieutenant Cortland Parker has been assigned to the Sixth Field Artillery and will take station at Fort Riley.

MRS. SIMS CELEBRATES HER NINETIETH BIRTHDAY.

Regularly Attends Church Service Despite Her Advanced Age.

Mrs. Mahala Sims, one of the oldest residents of this city, Monday observed the ninetieth anniversary of her birthday. While there were no pre-arranged plans for the event, a number of friends and neighbors have taken occasion to call and extend their best wishes and congratulate Mrs. Sims upon attaining such an advanced age. Her faculties are unimpaired, and barring a slightly defective vision, she enjoys excellent health.

The event is of double significance because it was seventy-three years ago this month that Mrs. Sims united with the First Baptist church, and besides being the oldest member, she has been an exceptionally regular attendant and faithful member. Her absence from the services is a rare thing, for when she has been unable to walk because of bad weather some thoughtful friend or neighbor has sent a carriage for her.

Mrs. Sims is a native of Plainfield and has always lived here. When a young girl she became a member of the family of the late Manning Stelle, and remained with that family until Mr. Stelle's death several years ago. For a number of years she has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Theodore L. Runyon, of Putnam avenue.

MUMMERS COME AGAIN

New Plainfield Theatre Opens for its Third Season Successfully.

PRETTY DECORATIONS

Interior Presents a Harmony in Restful Tints—Attractive Bookings for Early Dates.

The third season of the New Plainfield theatre opened Saturday, and it is safely necessary to say the opening was successful. Manager William Counihan has demonstrated that he makes everything he touches successful, and anything but a success was hardly to be expected. The beautiful house was well filled at both matinee and evening performances, and the offering, "The Vanderbilt Cup," was enjoyed as much as at its first appearance here last season.

The company was a thoroughly capable one, and did full justice to all the situations. The humor "went" as crisply as when the play first appeared on Broadway; there was even a quip or two that Broadway didn't hear. The audience lacked the "society" atmosphere, because everybody in the "set" is out of town, comparatively, if not actually.

There were many comments on the handsome decorations that have made the house one of the prettiest in the show world. The interior is spick and span, and in perfect harmony at every point. The pink and green tones present a restful ensemble, and the new curtains, handsome themselves, blended well with their surroundings.

The house has been redressed downstairs, as well as upstairs. The dressing rooms have been newly carpeted and brightened, and all parts of the structure are more attractive.

The theatre staff has been changed but little. Charles M. Suhr will be the orchestra leader, as last year, and the threatregoers are assured of good music, under competent direction. The orchestra played unusually well Saturday. The ushers have a new chief, William Hoffman. Nelson Peterson, Harry Gray and Elmer Hannan are in charge of the seats on the orchestra floor and the balcony. The only important change in the mechanical department is the accession of Leonard Daubner to charge of the properties.

A most attractive list of plays has been prepared for the first months of the season. Some of the early bookings include: "The College Widow," which will be here on Wednesday; the new Shubert play, with Richard Golden in "The Other House," on Thursday; Dustin Farnum in the new play, "George Washington, Jr.;" Marie Cahill, in "Marrying Mary;" Hap Ward, who was so successful here last season, in "NotYet, But Soon;" "The Red Mill;" *De Wolf Hopper in "Hap*pyland;" "The Gingerbread Man;" Rhinehart Stock company; successful Cameron Opera Company in "Little Dolly Dimple;" Mary Mannering, in "Glorious Betsy;" "Salomy Jane;" "Fascinating Flora;" "Three of Us;" "Coming Thro' the Rye;" "Road to Yesterday;" Williams and Walker; John Drew; Elsie Janis and Lulu Glaser. All these will appear here before the holidays. A rich promise, truly.

Manager Counihan's new house, the Majestic, at Perth Amboy, will open on September 20, with Minnie Shannon, who has been assisting Mr. Counihan here, in charge. The opening attraction will be "The Belle of Mayfair." Leonce Texier, who is assistant treasurer at the New Plainfield, will go with Miss Shannon to the Majestic as treasurer.

Manager Counihan will be a very busy man this season. All the bookings for Perth Amboy will be made from here, and he is interested in road attractions for which he will book. Still, waste no sympathy on W. Counihan. He has the hustle bug, and grows a crop of em bon point on work.

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL.

Savings banks are established in 228 schools in Scotland. There are 35,712 depositors, with £9,798 to their credit.

The trustees of Colorado College have elected Dr. George Maxwell Howe to fill the chair of German made vacant by the death of Professor L. A. E. Ahlers. Dr. Howe is an alumnus of the University of Indiana.

Dr. Bernhard Weiss, the senior member of the faculty of the Berlin Theological seminary, recently celebrated his fiftieth birthday. A few days later he completed his eightieth year of activity as professor and received the title of privy councilor, with the added honorary title of excellency.

Mr. Midzushima, the principal of the Kobe, Japan, Higher Commercial school, is making a tour of Europe for the purpose of investigating the methods of commercial education. He will first visit England and subsequently proceed to Germany, France, Austria, Italy and Belgium, returning via America.

Coal.

The total consumption of coal in the world is 50,000,000 tons an hour.

FELL IN MOLTEN METAL AND SERIOUSLY HURT

NATHAN WARDNER WILL RECOVER FROM A BAD ACCIDENT.

Nathan Wardner, of West Eighth street, who was so seriously burned at the Roller Press Works, where he is employed, is convalescing slowly, although he will not leave the house yet. Mr. Wardner, together with a fellow-employe, was carrying a large ladel of hot metal for a casting to be made in the foundry, when in turning a sharp angle, Mr. Wardner slipped. He lost his hold on his end of the ladel and was drenched head first into the hot metal which upset and was running about the floor.

*One side of the face was frightful*ly scalded and all of the hair burned off that side of the head. His hands, arms and legs were also scalded more or less. Fellow-workers in the wash room, cleaned his hands and face and rode his wheel home before the ambulance reached the press works. He refused to go to the hospital. A physician was summoned to the house and Mr. Wardner has been confined to the bed ever since. His escape from instant death was considered miraculous.

GOOD SCORES IN THE P. C. C. WEEKLY EVENTS

COURSE CONDUCIVE TO FAST PLAYING —PARK CLUB COMPETITIONS.

Dudley H. Barrows marked his return to the Plainfield Country Club course, on Saturday, by making a score of 81 from scratch in the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup. He was tied with Howard G. Lapsley for first honors, the latter returning a score of 82 on handicap of 9. E. Butler finished in second place with an 83, while W. Lester Gleaney took the one remaining point with an 84, one stroke being added to his gross score of 83.

There was a large field out to take part in the weekly competitions and as a rule the scores were low. The condition of the course is conducive to fast play and even those in Class B post good scores.

For the Green committee cup, for Class B members, W. F. Merrill won first honors with a net score of 76, while C. C. Burke, Sr., finished second with a 78 and Hugh F. Fox with a net score of 82 received the one point. Dudley H. Barrows, besides dividing first honors for the Golf committee cup, also won a leg on the Scratch cup with a score of 81.

Dudley H. Barrows, 81, 0—81; Howard G. Lapsley, 90, 9—81; H. E. Butler, 89, 6—83; W. Lester Gleaney, 87, *plus 1—84; Henry D. Hib*bard, 88, 4—84; Julius E. Erickson, 95, 10—85.

The scores for the Green committee cup were as follows:

W. F. Merrill, 98, 22—76; C. C. Burke, Sr., 90, 12—78; Hugh F. Fox, 97, 15—82; C. P. Hamilton, 104, 20—84; W. L. C. Gleaney, 104, 19—85.

While a large number, for the time of the year, competed for the President's and Golf Club cups on the Park Golf Club, but few of the players posted their scores; just enough to count points for the trophies. F. A. Hubbard won first honors for the President's cup, with a net score of 76. E. A. Lyon finished second with an 88, while Charles B. Morse came in third with a 91. However, Mr. Morse took first honors for the scratch trophy with a gross score of 102. Mr. Hubbard and A. W. Kenworthy finished second and third with scores of 104 and 108. These scores were posted for the two cups:

F. A. Hubbard, 104, 28—76; E. A. Lyon, 114, 26—88; Charles B. Morse, 102, 11—91; A. W. Kenworthy, 108, 15—93.

Climatic.

The shade temperature rarely if ever reaches 100 degrees in England. In northwest India, however, a temperature of 125 degrees is not uncommon, while in the deserts of Africa and Arabia the thermometer has registered over 130 degrees.

MR. TILLMAN WON'T RUN

Rahway Man, 'tis said, Will Not be a Candidate for Assembly Nomination.

MR. DANIEL BOOMED

Plainfield Councilman and a Former County Clerk Both Mentioned For Nominations.

Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rahway, will not be a candidate for renomination. That statement is made on the authority of some on the inside of the Republican leaders' camp, but Mr. Tillman, himself, is silent on the subject. It is said that he will make formal announcement when the proper time comes, and in the meanwhile the leaders will cast around for another to take his place. The Rahway man has already served *three terms and believes that the of*fice should go to some other man.

It developed at the annual outing at Witzel's Grove, L. I., on Saturday, that Assemblyman Randolph Perkins had not changed his decision to again come before the voters for a renomination and election. Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, was on hand on Saturday to say a good word for Mr. Perkins but it is reported that he found very little Perkins' sentiment. The Westfielder has served three trms and there appears to be a strong feeling in favor of his retirement.

As Assemblyman John R. Moxon, of Elizabeth, has survived but one term, it is reported on good authority that his renomination is almost certain, despite the fact that he voted for the re-election of John F. Dryden to the United States Senatorship. Moxon has a host of friends in Elizabeth as well as throughout the county and it is doubtful if anyone will oppose his candidacy.

There has been considerable talk of nominating Councilman Leslie Daniel, of this city, in place of either Perkins or Tillman. Mr. Daniel is a resident of the Third ward and is a New York lawyer. He was formerly president of the Plainfield Common Council and is chairman of the finance committee of that body. It is not known whether he would accept but it is stated that there would be no opposition if he could be pursuaded to allow his name to go before the convention.

Former County Clerk William Howard, of Rahway, is also mentioned, in place of Mr. Tillman. He has a big following and is a thorough organization man.

PATRICK KANE DIES SUDDENLY FROM DYSENTERY

Succumbing to an acute attack of dysentery while visiting a friends at South Plainfield, Sunday, death came suddenly to Patrick Kane, the well known local contractor. Mr. Kane had been suffering from an attack of dysentery for two weeks past. Saturday he felt sufficiently recovered to make the trip to South Plainfield, where he planned to spend Sunday with a friend.

Sunday afternoon Mr. Kane was overcome by a severe attack of dysentery. A physician was summoned and everything possible was done for the sick man, but to no avail. Death came in about two hours. His brother, Alexander Kane, was informed of the fatal attack and the body was brought to this city.

Mr. Kane was well known here as a contractor. He was forty-three years of age and was born in Ireland. He lived at 417 Cottage place. His wife died about seven months ago and three young children, two boys and a girl, survive.

The funeral will be from the home of his brother, Alex. Kane, 312 Fillmore avenue, tomorrow morning at 8:15 and requiem mass will be said in St. Mary's at 9 o'clock. The interment will follow in St. Mary's cemetery.

MR and MRS. C. BRANTINGHAM WEDDED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

Anniversary Appropriately Celebrated at Their Home in South Plainfield Saturday.

Celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brantingham entertained a number of their friends and relatives at their home on Lehigh avenue, South Plainfield, Saturday afternoon. Guests to the number of twenty were in attendance from New Brunswick, Brooklyn, and Jersey City to tender their congratulations.

A collation was served at the house in honor of the occasion and on the table was a mammoth wedding cake, marked "1882" and "1907." Mr. and Mrs. Brantingham have one daughter, Mrs. Harry Klinger, of Jersey City. The couple were married by the late Rev. T. A. Armstrong, when he was pastor of the South Plainfield Baptist church.

SAUNDERS FOR MAYOR

He May be Induced to Run on Consolidation and Joint Sewer Platform.

LEE AS HIS OPPONENT

Councilman, It Is Said, Would Get Republican Nomination—Townsend and Arnold Mentioned.

Provided he can be induced to run, it is said that there is a strong probability that the Democratic, North Plainfield will nominate former Mayor William L. Saunders for mayor to succeed Newton B. Smalley, Republican, who has held the office for ten years. The platform upon which it is planned to conduct his campaign includes consolidation with annexation and joint use of the Plainfield sewer system, both of which propositions meet with the hearty approval of the borough's most distinguished Democrat.

Mr. Saunders is the father of the consolidation and annexation movement and it is believed that the strength he would draw from the Republican ranks on such a platform would insure a victory for the Democrats and would bring about this much advocated scheme for merger with Plainfield. The Municipal Consolidation commission, it will be recalled, reported recently to both governing bodies that as a result of its searching investigation consolidation with annexation would be a great improvement on present conditions. Among the membership of the commission were some who originally opposed consolidation, notably Charles W. McCutchen, the largest property owner in North Plainfield and one of the borough's most prominent men.

The North Plainfield Sewage Disposal Commission, among whose membership were also prominent men originally opposed to consolidation, reported recently that the best solution of the sewerage problem in the borough would be an agreement with Plainfield for joint use of its plant. Neither of these problems are partisan questions, but it is well known that Mayor Smalley and his political friends generally oppose both schemes.

Mayor Smalley is strongly opposed to consolidation although he heartily favors annexation. He is also against the scheme for a joint use of the Plainfield sewer disposal plant, desiring an independent system in the borough. This position on his part has given rise to talk favoring the nomination of Councilman Charless L. Lee as the Republican candidate. Mr. Lee is said to share Mayor Smalley's views on both subjects.

Another prominent Democrat whose name is frequently mentioned in the Democratic quarters in connection with the nomination is Samuel W. Townsend. Mr. Townsend, it is said, would run a better chance than Mr. Saunders, in getting the nomination from the party, but it is said that he could not command as much Republican support. A Democratic leader said today that either one would defeat Councilman Lee, or Councilman James K. Arnold whose name is mentioned for the Republican nomination, at least three to one. Mr. Arnold has much strength in the organization and it is said that he would accept a nomination.

When Mr. Saunders was asked today regarding his attitude on the mayoralty, he said:

"If I felt sure that I could bring about the abandonment of the office of mayor of North Plainfield and the union of our borough with Plainfield I would consent to run. But I am not sure that that end would be attained. I often admit that consolidation with annexation would win by a large majority if put to a vote of our people. I am not in a position to afford the proper time to the duties of the office for, as I say, if the union could be brought about in such a way I would gladly do anything in my power to that end."

Mr. Saunders admitted that he had been approached on the subject several times during the last few weeks.

A Very Queer Dresser.

A very queer man in the matter of dress was the fifth Duke of Portland. His eccentric grace always, it appears, ordered three fresh coats for every day. When the weather was hot, he wore one only, when it was a little less hot two, and when it was cool all three. Besides these, he always kept three greatcoats in wear, so that when winter came on he wore three frock coats and one greatcoat, as it advanced three frock coats and two greatcoats, while, when there was a real frost, he turned out in all the six.

An extraordinary restless habit is described in a book by R. L. Ditmars, of the New York Zoological park. A large Mexican horned lizard, excited by an attempt to measure it, emitted a ramping sound and ejected a jet of blood, which struck a wall four feet away and formed a trail of 103 large spots along the floor. The blood came from the eyelid, momentarily much swollen. Shooting blood from the eye has been long attributed to this creature, but it seems so rare that naturalists have doubted its reality.

CLINTON AVE. TRIUMPHS

Local Nine Clinches Hold on Championship by Defeating 'Plains.

THE SCORE WAS 6 TO 4

1,000 Fans Witness Fine Exhibition —Randolph Was In Great Form.

Clinton Avenue practically clinched the Inter-City Amateur League championship on Saturday when it defeated its most dangerous opponent, Scotch Plains, by a score of 6 to 4, at the 'Plains.' The contest was witnessed by nearly 1,000 enthusiastic fans. While the score was close it does not give an adequate idea of the fine pitching by Randolph. He was invincible, only allowing one hit up to the ninth inning. This was a two-bagger by Allen, but he died on third trying to reach home.

The home team had an off day and gave Hewitt poor support, several hits getting by the infield, which should have been gathered in. This, together with a decision by Umpire Feiring of Brit. Martin's left field drive in the seventh inning, which netted Clinton Avenue one run and took Martin to second base after two men were out, told the tale. The hit was questionable and many believed it to be foul. The decision threatened trouble for a time as it came at a critical time, the score being one to one.

Scotch Plains scored its first run in its half of the second. Frentz filed to left field, Schott dropped the ball and Frentz was safe. O'Loughlin tried to throw him out while stealing second and the leather went into center field, bringing Frentz home.

Clinton Avenue scored in the third inning. Hewitt gave Giles a pass and he went to second on Brit. Martin's drive to left field and then scored on Baldwin's error at short of Emery's infield hit. Three more tallies were marked up in the seventh and two in the ninth. When the "Plains started their half of the ninth, they made a desperate effort which gave the game a regular suburban finish.

Hewitt hit to short-stop and went out at first. Flanney found a safe spot in right garden. Baldwin filed to Schott in left and on an error of the fielder he reached first, but Plainfield was doubled at second. This made two outs and left a man at first. Allen came up and placed a hit in left, scoring Baldwin. Frentz selected the same spot and scored Allen from second. Albert hit to Jack Martin, who fumbled the ball, and Frentz crossed the plate. Schreinbeck ended the excitement which was at fever heat, by popping a foul fly to O'Loughlin. The score:

A snake does not climb a tree or brush by coiling around it, but by holding on with its scales. A snake on a pane of glass is almost helpless.

PERKINS AND SMITH

DISCUSSED SITUATION

BUT "BIG GUNS" WERE ABSENT FROM G. O. P. OUTING.

Politics was the least thing that concerned the Union County Republicans on their annual outing to Witzel's Grove, L. P., Saturday, one day being given up almost entirely to pleasure. There was a notable absence of the "big guns," such as United States Senator Charles Kean, Congressman Charles N. Fowler, but there were a number of lesser lights there to make it interesting. There were no State politics aboard, but those from the county turned out in large numbers. It was said by the leaders that there was less political gossip than at any previous outing held. Not a single boom was started.

During the sail from Elizabethport to Witzel's Grove, Assemblyman Randolph Perkins was closeted with County Chairman F. H. Smith and they held a long conference. Afterward the assemblyman said that while he recognized the opposition to him from the local option forces he had not seen anything thus far that would warrant him from changing his mind as to seeking a renomination. He has received assurances from many friends throughout the county of their support.

In discussing the Gubernatorial situation, it was conceded that Judge Fort and Judge Mahlon Pitney are the strongest candidates today Charles Codding spoke strongly in favor of Chandler Riker, but he appeared to be alone.

It was about two o'clock when the boat reached Witzel's Grove, and after dinner, the afternoon was spent in playing various games and taking it easy. Three innings of a baseball game were played, Assemblyman John R. Moxon pitching for one side, against Edward Bauer, who was on the opposing team. The Assemblyman was knocked out of the box and everybody forgot to keep score.

RARITANS LOSE.

Rushmore A. C. Win Contest—Score 5 to 3.

The Rushmore A. C., defeated the Raritans, formerly of the Inter-City Amateur League, Saturday afternoon by a score of 5 to 3. The pitching of Colwell, of the Rushmores, was a feature. He had a total of nine strike outs, and only walked two men. Hayles, the visiting pitcher, fanned five batsmen. The lineup and score by innings:

INDEPENDENT A. C. NINE LOSES ITS FIRST GAME.

Too Many Substitutes Weaken Team In Contest With St. Marys—Score 9-3.

Crippled by the absence of four of their players, the Independent A. C. were defeated by the St. Mary's nine on Hope Common by a score of 9 to 3 Saturday afternoon. The Independents were shy Trenbath, Chilton, Miller and Lathman, of their regular team and only eight men showed up for the game.

Will Collect Mail at 3.15.

Postmaster E. H. Bird has at last secured the new time-cards for the letter-boxes throughout the city and they are being put in position. One change will be noted. The time for the collection of mail Sunday afternoons will be 3.15 instead of 3.45 o'clock, as heretofore. This will give the needed extra time at the post-office to assort the mail before sending it out of town.

New Gas Service Pipes.

The gas departmen of the Public Service Corporation has completed the work of making new service pipe connections on the south side of Second street, in the business section, and work has been started on the north side. This will be finished before the brick paving is started on that thoroughfare.

JACOBS AT NETHERWOOD

362 CHILDREN AT CAMP

Addressing an audience of more than 300 little New York children, F. H. Jacobs, the "singing evangelist," of Brooklyn, told the story of his conversion to Christianity at the Netherwood Camp Sunday afternoon with great effect. Mr. Jacobs, who is well-known to Plainfielders because of his evangelical crusades in this city on several occasions, attracted nearly 500 people to the afternoon service at the camp yesterday. He spoke simply and with great force of his own personal experiences, telling the audience, inthe form of a story of how he, a German immigrant, came to this country and found employment on a farm. He was entirely absent from Christian influence, and the first years in this country started him on in a way that would make anything of him but a Christian. He spoke forcefully of his conversion, which was accomplished by a sudden realization of the life he was living. A German, known to the men on the farm, as "UncleClaus," was instrumental in the conversion. Mr. Jacobs has been active in evangelical work since he was a young man. The lesson from the experience was shown by the speaker to be that God works through the simplest mediums, and that even children can turn others to the Christian life.

The service was largely of a musical character, Mr. Jacobs leading the chorus of children in the more familiar of the gospel hymns. The singing was especially hearty. Miss May Voorhees was at the melodiand and Whitney Frazee supplied the cornet obligato. Mr. Jacobs sang "He Lifted Me" as an offertory and Whitney Frazee sang "Nearer, my Saviour Please lot Me" as a cornet solo. During the service, two of the children at the camp, Mary and Helen Tudor, sang "Jesus Will Take Care of You," and Mary Miller sang the Glory Song. A collection, amounting to nearly $20 was taken for the work.

There are at present 362 children at the camp from New York. This is the largest number which has been accommodated at Netherwood since the work was begun, seven years ago. Many children in the New York city are such that there are scores of children and mothers eager to come to the camp in this city every time Miss Curry goes to New York. A delegation of some thirty children, who were supposed to return to the city *with Miss Curry last week, re*fused to leave the camp with Miss Curry. Miss Curry accordingly went in alone, but brought out thirty-five mothers and children with her when she returned, making the record attendance of 362 at the camp.

REV. MR. NICKERSON'S FATHER PROMINENT IN NEW ENGLAND TOWN.

Franklin Nickerson, father of Rev. A. C. Nickerson, of this city, who died Tuesday morning last, had been a resident of Nantucket for nearly eighty years. Born in Barnstable, at Cotuit, he came to Nantucket at the age of eleven years and was for some time employed in the store of his elder brother, the late Joseph Nickerson. At the time of the great fire, in 1846, he had been doing business there many years, and also conducting a branch establishment on Orange street. Mr. Nickerson's health seriously failed in the early sixties, and his retirement from business some years later was an enforced one. This handicap of physical enfeeblement he carried with him to the limits of extreme age, he having lived to enter his ninetieth year.

Franklin Nickerson was married in 1840 to Priscilla Chase Morris, eldest daughter of William W. Morris, of Nantucket, a whaling captain by this marriage. Rev. Alfred Chase Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church. Mrs. Nickerson died in April, 1847, and on November 19, 1849, Mr. Nickerson married Eliza Jane Hallett, of Hartford, Ct. By this marriage Mr. Nickerson came to bless the household, the eldest dying in early childhood, the younger being Miss Emma Louise Nickerson.

Will Rebuild Commercial Mills.

A. L. Cadmus, of Plainfield avenue, whose Commercial Mills were partially destroyed by fire a few months ago, has decided to rebuild the old walls and the work will be started at once.

WHERE "JIM" SMITH

SPENDS THE SUMMER

AT ELBERON THE SENATOR KEEPS EYE ON JERSEY POLITICS.

Former United States Senator James Smith is renting at his summer home at Elberon, but he is keeping tab on New Jersey politics in season and out of season, says a writer in the Jersey City Journal. Elberon became historic in 1881 as the place where the martyred President James A. Garfield died. Old residents point out the route from the station across the beautiful lawns where a track was laid in one night that the railroad car with President Garfield might be brought to the door of the cottage on the bluff, where he died September 19th. The visitor asks first to be shown the Garfield cottage and the occupants of the steam automobiles and carriages that go up and down Ocean avenue pass slowly by while the natives point out to strangers the second floor, where Garfield's life slowly went out. It is one of the chief show places of the Jersey coast. This summer the stranger coming up the drive to the Garfield cottage will sometimes find former Senator Smith sitting on the comfortable veranda. Shorn of the responsibilities and convenience permit the Senator is quite apt to show the visitor through his historic summer home. He bought the Garfield cottage and he lives there during the warm season.

The interior of the house is remarkable for its architectural features, which were very much in advance of the time in which it was built—1876. Owing to the careful manner in which it was constructed the house is still in a most excellent state of preservation. The kitchen of the cottage is on the second floor. As one approaches from the hall a broad flight of steps leads to the dining-room, which is almost half a story higher than the main floor. A short stairway from the pantry leads up to the kitchen, which is over the porte-cochere that separates the servants' quarters from the rest of the house. The walls of the dining-room and halls are in part paneled in hard wood of artistic pattern, while the *walls of one room are covered entire*ly with canvas in which the paper is pasted. Near the former Senator's summer home are grouped other cottages of his, in one of which Senator Hauck, Jr., and in another James Smith, third, Peter Hauck the elder, and Michael T. Barrett live there also.

President Garfield was shot Allen by Charles J. Guiteau, in Washington, on the morning of July 2, 1881. He lingered for over a month in the White House, and was then removed to the seashore, but he died not long after his removal to Elberon. Guiteau was hanged June 30, 1882.

OLDEST ASSESSOR

A VICTIM OF CANCER

A. S. BANGHART, A GREAT UNCLE OF E. F. SHEPPARD, IS DEAD.

Abram S. Banghart, seventy-seven years old, the veteran assessor of Lebanon Township, and the great uncle of Edgar F. Sheppard, of Westervelt avenue, died at his home in Glen Gardner, Saturday, of cancer of the stomach. He was born in Lebanon Township and always resided within its limits. He had held township office for forty-nine years, and enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest assessor in the State, having rounded out twenty-eight consecutive years as such. He was a brother of the late State Senator David H. Banghart, of Hunterdon county, who also died of cancer.

At the outbreak of the Civil War Mr. Banghart was commissioned a captain by Governor Olden, and later Governor Joel Parker made him recruiting officer for this district, and he filled the position with so much satisfaction to the State authorities that upon his retirement he was presented with a handsome sword for faithful and valuable service. Mr. Banghart's great-grandfather, Jacob Banghart, a native of Germany, in 1740 with his wife and five sons from Germany, was identified with the settlement of this section, and the grandfather of Mr. Banghart was an employe of the historic iron foundry, the ruins of which still stand on the Enlow Farm, a mile south of the village. He there helped make cannonballs for Washington's army during the Revolutionary War.

The home of this ancestor was located on the site of the present State Tuberculosis Sanitarium, and it was the homestead of the Banghart family for 133 years. Mr. Banghart married Miss Esther Martenis, a sister of the late Judge Peter Martenis, in 1857, and four children blessed the union, all of whom are living, as follows: Mrs. Ida Johnson, of Phillipsburg; Frank Banghart, of Bloomsbury; Mrs. Emma Madigan, of Elizabeth, and Mrs. Eva Hagerman, of Phillipsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Banghart celebrated their golden wedding in March last, surrounded by their children and a number of friends.

The Siamese Language.

Siamese, like other oriental languages, is very poetic. Thus a laborer is "luk can," the son of hire, and the thumb is "me mu," the mother of the hand. In this respect the Siamese resembles the ancient Greek. Hesiod spoke of the hand as "pentozon," the five branched (the modern pagliet's bunch of fives"); of a small as "phereolkos," the house carrier; of a cuttlefish as "anoateon," the boneless.

THE TOO FRANK PERSON.

Some Plain Truths as Set Forth by a Woman Writer.

We all know—and respect—and avoid—such persons; the world is full of them—too full for the general comfort of its other inhabitants. And frequently what they call the truth is not abstract at all, but is merely the expression of their own particular (and frequently erroneous) opinions. Yet as they utter it they glow with spiritual pride and feel themselves in the same boat as the Christians of the Catacombs and the rest of the noble army of martyrs; never realising that their cause is no tenet of an inspired creed, but merely an embodiment of their own pet prejudices; and their sacrifices on its behalf is neither their own life nor wealth, but merely the feelings and the sentiments of other people, says Woman's Life. Such persons are very fond of remarking that they owe it to themselves to say exactly what they think; it never seems to occur to them that they likewise owe it to others to conceal what they think, if such thoughts be inimical to the general pleasantness and well being of society at large; yet surely they have never been taught that their duty to themselves comes before their duty to their neighbors.

ASTONISHED CHILD OF SLUMS.

Pathos in Little Girl's Exclamation of Wonder.

It was a case of the meeting of extremes. A beautifully appointed baby carriage, enameled in white and with all its fittings and coverlets of snowy spotlessness, was being grounded along an uptown street, says the New York Times. In it lay a pink-and-white baby, nestling amid frills of lawn and lace. Approaching from the other direction was a group of little Italian children, evidently on their way home from school. Dressed in heavy-looking clothes of every possible color, the only uniformity presented was the general hue of dirt, which seemed to be common to the clothing, as well as the hands and faces, of all. Certainly the contrast between the baby in the carriage and the children on the street—many of them scarcely more than babies themselves—could not have been more marked. Something of this seemed to impress the children. Pausing for a moment, they gazed at the carriage with admiring eyes, while one little girl, braver than the rest, peering under the hood to get a better look at the occupant, exclaimed: "My! What a whiteness!"

Elephant vs. Crocodile.

An African hunter once found a large crocodile hanging in the fork of a tree about ten feet from the ground. As the place was fully half a mile from any water, it was difficult to account for the crocodile's strange position. When questioned upon the subject the natives explained that it was put there by an elephant. It seems that when the elephants wade into the Lake Ngami to battle the crocodiles are in the habit of worrying them and biting their legs. Sometimes when an elephant is annoyed beyond endurance it picks its tormentor up and puts it among the branches of a tree and leaves it there. —Tit-Bits.

Why Caged Birds Die.

"So the canary's dead, eh?" said a dealer. "It was a fine bird, too—well worth the $40 you paid me for it. But I don't wonder it died. You should keep it hanging near the ceiling. That is why so many birds die. They shouldn't be kept up high at all. These cages should be on tables, not hooks. Up near the ceiling the air of a room is very bad, especially at night. Indeed, at night, if you burn oil or gas, the air is insupportable up there. And particularly in rooms where smoking goes on—you know how smoke, like all other impurities, mounts—it is bad to hang birds high. Why can't the world remember the old catch: 'Birds hung high ever die!'"

Good Location for a Doctor.

Two young physicians were exchanging news for the first time since their graduation from the medical school. "I was surprised to hear you had settled at Beech Hill," said one to the other, laughing. "I've always heard it spoken of as such a healthy suburb. I wondered if you'd find any patients there." "My dear man," said his classmate, earnestly, "it is a healthy suburb, but it is also the stronghold of football; every family has its automobile, and there never was such a place before for giving children's parties. I'm doing splendidly, thank you."—Youth's Companion.

Love and the Man.

Men are delighted to be told that they are never absent from the thoughts of their sweethearts, but the knowledge, while it confesses a trifle wearing. As bad as the clinging vine is the woman who makes her devotion too incessant. She is never tactful, never conscious that he wants to be alone occasionally, never capable of making herself add those attentions a novelty to him. And this is a fatal error on the part of any woman. —Exchange.

Napoleon's Famous War Horse.

Marengo, the famous war charger of Napoleon, is said to have been the greatest horse known to modern history. The emperor rode Marengo for the last time in the battle of Mount St. Jean, where the horse received his seventh wound. The steed died at the age of 36 years.

DEPENDS ON THE POINT OF VIEW.

Can a man be on the loose when he is tight?

All men of mark don't write—some put crosses.

How can a man be in a temper when he is out of temper?

Why did the sunbeam? Because he saw his own sunrise.

Why did the deerstalk? Because they saw the antelope.

What set the deerstalking more? The dreadful stagnation.

Occasionally some of the most strenuous objectors to flat racing go flat hunting.

The women do their best to get into court, and the men do all they know to keep out.

Those who live in lighthouses can never complain of the surroundings being too dark.—Ally Sloper.

MISERIES OF THE GREAT.

Bacon was avaricious, and his greed led him to disgrace.

De Foe had more than one dose of Newgate and the pillory.

Cervantes was poor and constantly annoyed by his creditors

Cowper was all his days overshadowed by the gloom of insanity.

Gibbon was gouty. He grew so stout he could not dress himself.

Palestrina lived in poverty most of his days, and died in great want.

Tasso was poor most of his days. His miseries finally drove him mad.

*Julius Cæsar had a weak diges*tion and was subject to epileptic fits.

Peter the Great was half crazy most of his life through drink and rage.

La Sage was poor all his life. In old age he was dependent on his son.

Selden was once sent to prison for his attack on the divine rights of kings.

Mohammed was an epileptic, and his visions were those of a diseased mind.

GIRLS AND MOTHERS.

A mother who has her daughter's confidence need never fear that she will stray far from the home teachings.

The daughter who has confidence in her mother will never go to others with her little heartaches and her burdens.

A son may, by contact with the rough world, sometimes outlive his early home influences—a daughter rarely does.

A daughter is, in nine cases out of ten, the reflection of her mother. The training of the girl of 15 is shown in the woman of 50.

It is the mother who is a mother who makes the home a confessional for her children. Anything said there is never repeated.

The mother who realizes that the whole strength of her children's lives depends upon the foundation which she builds for them has mastered the great principles of successful motherhood.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

If angels are as nice as girls of 10 or 12 we shall be satisfied.

The only thing some men are ever willing to save is the country.

The only way some women have of showing their love is by jealousy.

Politicians and pugilists are very similar in the matter of their retirements.

If a girl is homely it is safe to assert that she is a great deal of help to her mother.

What has become of the old-fashioned girl who said she wouldn't marry the best man living?

When you do exactly as you please, remember you are the only person pleased.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

UPHOLDS PERKINS ACT

Railroads are Routed in their Fight Against Mr. Perkins' Equal Taxation Statute.

HIGHEST COURT DECIDES

In an exhaustive opinion filed in the Supreme Court at Trenton Wednesday by Justices Fort, Hendrickson and Pitney, the validity of the so-called "Perkins" railroad tax act of 1906, which was attacked by all the railroads of the State, was upheld in every particular. As a result the railroads will be obliged to pay into the State treasury on account of the tax levied for 1906 a total of $3,563,529.70, an increase of $2,632,538.49 over the tax paid the State in 1905 on the same class of property.

The tax in question is that levied on the "main stem" franchise and tangible personal property, assessed at the average tax rate of the State, amounting to $18.01 on each $1,000 valuation under the Perkins law, as compared with the fixed rate of $15 on each $1,000 valuation under the railroad tax act of 1884 as amended in 1888.

Under the Perkins law the State retains an amount equal to $5 on each $1,000 for the use of the State, which sum amounted last year to $969,662.35, an increase over the preceding year, when the total railroad State tax was $950,229.21, of $18,663.14.

The remainder, amounting to $2,593,869.35, will, under the Perkins law, be distributed among the various municipalities to reduce the State school tax and may be available for use during the current year. Newark, according to an estimate made by Governor Stokes, may receive for this purpose $252,582.41, as against $177,521.47 received for the preceding year, being an increase of $255,054.94.

The prosecutors of record were the United New Jersey Railway and Canal Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Results Reached by the Court.

First—That by the transfer act of 1869 the irrepealable contracts contained in the original charters of the several railroad and canal companies composing the United New Jersey Railroad and Canal Company, fixing transit duties in lieu of other taxes, were abolished.

Second—That, if the act of 1869 created any contract, upon its acceptance by the United Companies it was a contract to pay the schedule mentioned in the act, or such other tax as should be imposed upon the property of all railroad and canal corporations.

Third—That the taxation imposed under the act of 1884, as revised and amended in the act of 1888, and 1894, as to those companies or classes of railroad and canal property segregated by the Legislature for taxation, is a uniform State tax.

Fourth—Chapter 82 of the laws of 1906, which imposes upon the main stem or waterway and the tangible personal property and franchise of every railroad and canal company the "average rate of taxation," to be ascertained by computation from the taxing districts of the State, is not unconstitutional.

Fifth—The so-called Perkins act, which requires that what is known as "second class" railroad and canal property shall be assessed and taxed in each taxing district, in the same manner and at the same rate as other property located in such districts, and that the tax thereon shall be paid to the proper officers of the several taxing districts, is not unconstitutional.

According to this decision, Union county's share for 1906 will be $171,269.15. Of this amount Plainfield will receive approximately $34,233.82, Elizabeth's share will be about $85,634.53.

CORTLANDT PARKER'S WILL.

Jersey Jurist Leaves His Large Estate to His Family and Charity.

The will of the late Cortlandt Parker, the aged Newark jurist, who died two weeks ago, was filed for probate in the Surrogate's office in Newark Friday. Aside from a few bequests to charity the large estate is divided equally among the eight surviving children. To each child, grandchild, and great-grandchild the testator leaves $100 to be kept as a keepsake or memorial of himself. The interest of $5,000 for life is awarded to a number of nieces and great nieces.

The testator leaves $2,000 to St. Barnabas's Hospital as a memorial to his wife, $5,000 to Trinity Episcopal church and a copy of Hoffman's picture of "Christ Disputing with the Scribes" to the Sunday-school.

To his wife's nieces, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Tilton, and Mrs. Passmatz, are left bequests of $1,000 each, while the heirs of the late Eaton Stone are to receive the remainder of the estate which was willed to the testator by Mr. Stone.

Congressman Richard Wayne Parker, Cortlandt Parker, and Charles W. Parker, the three eldest sons of the testator, are named as executors.

BENEFIT INCIDENTAL TO BRICK PAVEMENT

OTHER STREETS TO BE IMPROVED IN CONSEQUENCE OF THE WORK.

Through the laying of brick pavement a good deal of material for street improvement in all sections of the city will be made available. The brick paving specifications provide that the crosswalks and all road building material displaced by the improvement shall belong to the city, and all of it will be put to use.

The cross walks will be laid in places where they are needed in different parts of the city. Applications for them have come from pretty much all over the city. There will be quite a lot of macadamizing material "released," and this will be used on a number of streets along the line of the improvement. West Second street, Church street and such thoroughfares will share in the improvement. The material will be confined for the most part, to such nearby by streets in order to save cost involved in moving it to districts further removed.

The work is in the nature of an unexpected benefit from the brick paving. The street department and the Council knew it would be part of the change, but the general public probably had no idea of any such profitable "by-product" of permanent pavement. The material rendered available is worth a good many hundreds of dollars.

DEPUTY GAME WARDEN WAIVES EXAMINATION

STRAIGHT NOW AWAITES GRAND JURY'S ACTION ON BRIBERY CHARGE.

Freeman Straight, a deputy game warden who was arrested at his home, Wednesday night, on a complaint by John Matthews, of Rockview Avenue, charging him with bribery in trying to secure Mrs. Matthews and her son as paid witnesses to appear against W. J. Buttfield, was arraigned Thursday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy on a charge of defendant waived examination for the September Grand Jury and he was released in $250 bonds, the surety being furnished by Howard Toms. The warden appeared in his own behalf. Rev. George Hunter was the bail bearing prepared to furnish bonds for the warden in case he had trouble in securing them.

There is considerable feeling against the warden, especially in the borough, because of his action in the Edward Bimble case. It is said that Bimble's hound dog had run away from home and he had been trying to find the animal when Straight picked it up. William G. DeMeza, Bimble's counsel, has given Justice Snape notice of an appeal from his decision, and he will take it up whether the Justice re-opens the case or not.

WAS NEVER ILL BEFORE; SHE DIED IN 96TH YEAR

MRS. DRAPER'S MENTAL FACULTIES WERE CLEAR UNTIL THE END.

Mrs. Samantha S. Draper, mother of Mrs. Eugene A. Edgar, died Thursday at the home of her daughter, 215 West Sixth street, at the advanced age of ninety-five years. Up to three weeks ago, when Mrs. Draper was taken ill, she had always enjoyed excellent health, and she had never been confined to bed by illness. She retained her faculties with remarkable clearness until the end.

Mrs. Draper was a native of Brooklyn, where she resided for many years. She moved with her daughter, Mrs. Edgar, to Rutherford, N. J., where they lived until eight years ago, when the family came here. For a time they resided on Fairview avenue, in the borough, but later moved to West Sixth street. Mrs. Edgar is the only surviving member of the immediate family. Mrs. Draper's only son died suddenly in Brooklyn last Thanksgiving. She was a member of a Baptist church in Brooklyn and never transferred her letter. Because of the fact that her daughter was a member of the First M. E. church, she became identified with the Ladies' Aid Society of the congregation. Her husband, Jacob S. Draper, died in Brooklyn a number of years ago.

TO REFUSE RENOMINATION

Mr. Ginna Will Not Run For Council Again and Possibly Neither Will Mr. Daniel.

AND G. P. MELLICK, TOO

Montgomery Not Opposed to Another Term—Charles Randolph Consents—Gloak May Also.

It is certain that at least one Councilman, whose term expires this winter will refuse a renomination and there is a possibility that one or two others will take the same position before the primaries are held. Councilman Daniel Ginna, of the Second ward, has announced that it will be impossible for him to serve another term as he intends to spend the winter in Florida with his family. This decision on his part is a severe blow to the city's interests for as cairman of the street committee, Mr. Ginna has rendered valuable service and it is considered that it will be a hard task to find an equally good man for the place.

Whether Councilman Leslie M. Davis, of the Third ward, will consent to run again is not known. As a chairman of the finance committee he has did great work and there has never been the least opposition to him from any source. In fact, Mr. Daniel is generally considered one of the best city fathers that the municipality has had in years. He has given more than his share of times to the city's interests and it is reported that he does not feel like carrying the burden any longer than his present term.

Councilman Francis Montgomery, of the Second ward, has not made up his mind in the matter exactly, but he declared that the decision rests with the people of the ward. "If my constituents are satisfied with my work, I would not object to serve another term," he was asked to run for the office in the first place, and if they want me again I will obey their wishes. There is opposition to Mr. Montgomery on the part of the New Idea men who have been casting around for another candidate for his place. It was said that he declined to become the New Idea candidate, but whether another has consented is not known. The regulars, too, it is said will prefer another in Mr. Montgomery's place, but the leaders say there are no candidates as yet. The Second ward man has been a conscientious and hard-working member nevertheless.

Councilman William L. Gloak has been a splendid representative from the First ward, and the regular leaders are anxious for him to serve another term. The Colbyites, however, are said to be opposed to him, and there nominating committee is alleged to be hunting up available material.

Councilman Charles Randolph, of the fourth ward, smilingly admitted to the representative of The Daily Press today that he would "consent to run if the people say so." Mr. Randolph has tried to please his constituents and to do the right thing at all hazards. He has shown his independence whenever necessary for the good of the city and has made a first rate member. It is hinted, however, that the Colbyites have him slated to go, but it is a good guess to say that he will be renominated if he desires it. There is the Third ward now and hence a nomination will have to come from that district.

Politicians say that the aim of the Colbyites is to get hold of the city clerkship, but the term of the present incumbent, James J. MacMurray, does not expire until 1909. Mr. MacMurray has held the office for years and is probably as well, if not much better informed on the duties of the city clerk and councilmanic regulations than any other similar office-holder in New Jersey. Hardly a meeting is held but when some question is submitted him for solution and his services are well-nigh invaluable. Be as it may, however, the Colbyites believe that it would crush his recognized political strength to take away the clerkship from him. The chances of their success, however, are very slight.

The Second ward is anxious to have Mr. Ginna returned but if he absolutely declines renomination, there are others suggested. Henry L. Hall is one of these, but he is quoted as saying that he does not want to take a nomination. Should he consent, both the regulars and the New Idea men would be sold by him. Then there is Julius E. Erickson, whose father was one of the best councilmen Plainfield ever had. Again, R. Henry Depew's name has been broached and he, like Frederic Butler, Edward E. Iremonger and T. M. Daly, whose names have also been mentioned, would make a first rate councilman.

Both Councilmen George P. Mellick and Montgomery are councilmen-at-large. It is generally considered that only one councilman-at-large should come from a single ward and hence there is a strong movement for Mr. Mellick's renomination. It is not reported that he will accept but every influence will be brought to bear to get him to do so. He has been a most valuable man in the councilmanic chamber and every energy will be bent to have him consent to take another term.

If Mr. Daniel should decline absolutely to run again is the third, someone living west of Plainfield avenue will be urged to accept. Duncan W. Taylor is most prominently mentioned. He is a member of the county committee and is affiliated with the New Idea, but he has a host of friends among the regulars. Townsend Rushmore, R. H. McCutcheon and W. T. Kirk also have many friends who would like to see them in the Council.

Should Mr. Mellick refuse to take another term, it has been suggested that Depew, Hall, Iremonger, Butler or Erickson would be satisfactory to all factions for councilman-at-large.

One of the leaders said today that as a councilman-at-large should come from the Third ward there is a possibility of Roger F. Murray, Dr. F. C. Ard, Joseph Shellabarger, L. E. Waring, William G. Kinney, Percy H. Stewart, W. M. Wherry or Henry C. Irons being named. They are all good men and any one of the eight would be a credit to the city.

A. D. Edgar has been boomed in the First ward in the event of William L. Gloak's refusal to run again. Charles S. Smineck also has some friends who would favor his nomination.

In the Fourth ward, there has been talk of Joseph L. Moore and R. G. Cumback. Winfield S. Angleman would make a crack-a-jack man for the place but it is not likely that he could be prevailed upon to give up the required time to the duties.

STATION FOR DUNELLEN

END OF GRADE CROSSING

Overhead Bridge Likely to Be Built —Other Improvements Contemplated There.

In connection with the extensive improvements being made by the New Jersey Central along this section of the road, it is said none will be more appreciated than the one which will provide for the erection of a handsome new station at Dunellen to take the place of the old wooden structure which has been used for a great many years. The present building is now in a dilapidated condition and since the company has planned to erect a new station, no expense has been expended in the way of repairs.

The new station will be built of brick and stone and will correspond with the other new structures erected along the line of the road within recent years. It will be equipped with every modern convenience. It is also proposed to adopt plans whereby people will not be obliged to use the grade crossings in Dunellen. The arrangement will probably be similar to the one in use at Fanwood, where an overhead bridge has been built.

It is hardly likely that the grade crossings will be abolished, as the cost of the work in elevating the *tracks at that point would be enor*mous. However, every precaution will be taken tending toward the safety of citizens.

DUNELLEN REPORTER BECOMES POLICE CHIEF

WILL COMBINE TWO VACATIONS, HUNTING CRIME AND NEWS TOGETHER.

H. L. Hathaway, of Dunellen, is probably the only newspaper reporter in the State who has the distinction of combining his daily hunt for news with regular police duty, which is equivalent to the position of chief of police in bigger towns or cities. Hathaway received his appointment from Mayor Wyckoff, and it was confirmed by an unanimous vote of the Common Council Tuesday night. After the meeting Hathaway was duly sworn in and presented with a badge.

On the recommendation of Fowler Vail, chairman of the street committee, it was decided to order a carload of bluestone, to used for crosswalks on Washington, Lincoln and North avenues.

Robin Hamilton, of Verdon street, is enjoying two weeks' vacation at the seashore.

Misses Bessie and Edna Carson, of Belmont avenue, are at Asbury Park for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Schwed, of Fairview avenue, are spending the month at Long Branch.

Mrs. John C. Scheack, of the borough, has been visiting Mrs. George Clicker, of Bound Brook.

Gerald Underhill, formerly of Watchung, but now of Weldon, Pa., has been visiting friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heldeloff, of Allen place, left for Asbury Park, today, where they will spend two weeks.

JURY BLAMES PERKINS

Corner's Inquest Holds Assemblyman and Chauffeur Responsible for Auto Fatality.

IN AN ALTERCATION

Republican Leader Told Coroner He Would Try to Have Him Impeached for Influencing Jurymen.

Randolph Perkins, Republican leader in the State Legislature and one of the men who obtained the passage last year of New Jersey's anti-speed law, was held responsible Friday by a Coroner's jury, at Oradel, N. J., with his chauffeur, Michael O'Keefe, for the death last Tuesday of Louis Thompson, a nine-year-old negro, who was run over and killed by Mr. Perkins' automobile. In the course of the inquest Mr. Perkins and Coroner Lees got into a dispute, after which the Republican leader said he would try to have the Coroner impeached.

Mr. Perkins lives in Westfield, N. J., and he has a summer place at Woodcliffe, N. J. He has a real estate office in Jersey City. Last Tuesday he was on his way to his summer home, when his auto struck the negro boy at Oradel.

Miss Laura Kelsey, of Belvidere, N. J., a niece of Judge Blair, of Hudson county, who was with Mr. Perkins at the time of the accident, testified that she had ridden in automo*biles for five or six years, and that* she had often driven them herself. Thus she thought she was a pretty fair judge of speed, and she believed that the machine at the time it killed the boy was going not more than fourteen miles an hour. She said she didn't see how the accident could have been avoided.

O'Keefe declared dramatically that nothing could have prevented the accident. "We were going at about thirteen miles an hour," he testified, "and just before we got to the place where the accident happened we saw two little boys start to cross the road. Just behind them was a baby carriage and several other children. One of the boys decided not to cross, and stood irresolutely in the middle of the road. The other went on across and stood still.

"Now, if I had swerved the machine one way I would have run into the baby carriage and the other children. If I had swerved it in the other direction I would have killed the boy who had crossed the road. I decided that it was best to go straight ahead, though I did all in my power to stop the machine."

Assemblyman Perkins declared that he had been at all times against speeding automobiles, and that he had employed O'Keefe only after finding out that he was a very careful driver. O'Keefe was arrested a month ago in Hackensack for speeding.

Coroner Lees believed that the machine must have been going at the rate of from thirty-five to forty-five miles an hour, and said so, telling Assemblyman Perkins that he needn't think he could come before him and make him believe that his automobile had been making only thirteen or fourteen miles an hour. Mr. Perkins said hotly that this sort of statement should not have been made in the presence of the jury, and that he would impeach the Coroner.

The jury brought in a verdict that both Mr. Perkins and O'Keefe were responsible for the death of the boy.

Miss Clara Heins, of Brooklyn, is a guest at the home of Dr. Richard Moldenke, "The Castle," Watchung.

Mrs. George Dufford, of West Front street, has been visiting relatives at Middle Valley, Hunterdon county.

Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux and Miss Elizabeth Claypool, of the borough, are spending several weeks at Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Miss Margaret Convery, of Trenton, has been visiting at the home of Miss Anna Rafferty, of Sandford avenue.

Mrs. John Rafferty and daughter, of Lynn, Mass., who have been visiting friends in the borough, have returned home.

Miss Hattie Squiers, of the firm of Mullen & Squiers, has returned home from a two weeks' vacation spent in Hunterdon county.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randolph, of Myrtle avenue, left today for the Thousand Islands, where they will spend the remainder of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Goldsmith, of Fairview avenue, left Saturday for Long Branch, where they will spend the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. William Griscom and her daughters, Misses Jean and Edith Griscom, of Sycamore avenue, have gone to Orr Island, Maine, for this month.

Mrs. Flanders and her daughter, Miss Bessie Flanders, of Grove street, are stopping with Mrs. Flanders' sister, Mrs. Walter McGee, at Mouse Island, Maine.

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, of Grandview avenue, who have been sojourning at Nantucket, Mass., are now at Cottage City, Mass., where they will remain for a time.

LIBRARIAN TO BECOME A SETTLEMENT WORKER

MISS ADAMS WILL PREPARE HERSELF IN SCHOOL OF PHILANTHROPY.

Miss Emma Adams, who, for twenty-one years has been connected with the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, and the greater part of that time as librarian, has resigned her position, the same to take effect October 1, for the purpose of engaging in social work. Although she was very reluctant to give up her position as librarian, having become very much attached to the work, she believes that she will find a greater field for usefulness in social settlement enterprise.

Having secured a scholarship in the New York School of Philanthropy, of which Dr. Samuel M. Lindsey is the president, Miss Adams will take a course in that school next winter and spring in preparation for her life work. Hugh F. Fox, of this city, who is president of the State Charities Aid Association, is also interested in the New York school.

Miss Adams will relinquish her duties here October 1. Although the Board of Directors of the Public Library has not chosen a successor to Miss Adams, it is expected that the present assistant librarian, Miss Florence Bullman, of Dunellen avenue, will be appointed, as she is next in line for the place. Miss Adams was appointed librarian in 1888 and by her conscientious and faithful efforts endeared herself to all friends of the library.

ALLOWS INJUNCTION TO BE DISSOLVED

MRS. HOOLEY PERMITS JOHN HERMAN TO REBUILD DAM.

An injunction obtained by Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley, of the Washington Park section of the borough, restraining John Herman from rebuilding a dam at the "Notch," has been removed through the efforts of counsel for Mr. Herman. Plans drawn by Civil Engineer F. A. Dunham for the reconstruction of the dam along improved lines, have been accepted by Mrs. Hooley and it is now Mr. Herman's purpose to commence the work of rebuilding at once.

Permission has also been secured by Mr. Herman to gather the ice from the pond above the dam, and it is largely with this object in view that he will restore the structure.

The injunction preventing Mr. Herman from putting the dam up again, was obtained by Mrs. Hooley two years ago. Her action followed after a heavy freshet had inundated the property of her husband, which did considerable damage.

It was afterwards shown that the rebuilding of the dam in accordance with approved plans by competent engineers would make a re-occurrence practically impossible, hence the removal of the injunction.

Autographs and Holographs.

"An autograph," said an antiquary, "is worth nothing, while a holograph may be worth $1,000 or more. An autograph of a man is his simple signature. His holograph is one of his signed letters, and its value depends on its interest. Some men are such fools that they think autographs valuable and holographs worthless. I know a man who found in his grandfather's chest a lot of important letters of Franklin, Washington, Aaron Burr, Hamilton, Andre and Jefferson. He read these letters; then he burned them, first cutting out the signatures. For the signatures he got 50 cents apiece or thereabouts. For the letters in their entirety he would have got from $100 to $500 apiece. By this loss of about $24,000 the man learned the difference between an autograph and a holograph."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Socrates' Little Joke.

Socrates had his joke. It was his custom to foregather now and then with a select circle of philosophers, geometers and others. On such occasions at the stroke of 2 a. m. he would rise (it is reported of him that he always could rise) and address them thus:

"Mr. President," he would say, "I move you that this circle now go home and square itself."

And his credit was such and people were so used to taking him seriously that it came to be believed that the squaring of the circle was an impossible thing.—Puck.

P. S. G. OFFICIALS HERE

TOUR ALONG THE LINE

Attention Directed to Overhead Wires — Examine Gas and Electric Light Plants.

For the purpose of learning something definite about the holdings of the company through this section of New Jersey, Thomas N. McCarter, president, and Dudley Farrand, general manager, accompanied by three other officials of the Public Service Corporation, made a tour of inspection here Wednesday.

The officials left Newark during the morning in an automobile and visited the important points along the line of the trolley to Plainfield, Metuchen and New Brunswick. It was about 2 o'clock when they reached Plainfield. Their objective point was the electric light plant on West Second street, where they visited every department. They also went to the gas plant on East Fourth street for the same purpose, not forgetting to take a look at the Guion property close by, upon which an option has been secured for the erection of extra gas holders.

Superficial attention was directed toward the system of overhead wiring, especially in the business section *of the city. After the in*Metuchen and New Brunswick, where a similar tour was made about the company's plants, returning to Newark early in the evening.

President McCarter talked freely when asked over the 'phone by a representative of The Daily Press concerning the purpose and result of his tour of inspection. He appeared to be highly pleased with conditions but he expressed an intention on the part of the company to work constantly for the improvement of equipment and service in all its branches.

"We visited the entire central division of our company," said Mr. McCarter, "devoting the day to the task. We examined the electric light and the gas plants in Plainfield, but I only had time to give a superficial look into the matter of overhead wires in the business section." As for that I may as well say that I am not an electrical expert but we have an expert who gives his attention to such matters. I cannot say what will be done, but you can depend upon it that our electrical expert will do what is right."

"Yes, we have bought the Guion property at Watchung avenue and Church street, adjoining our gas plant on East Fourth street. It is our intention to construct another gas holder there, which will be fully as large as that now present. The electric light plant is in good condition in your town. We devoted some time to looking over that property."

President McCarter was unlike the majority of heads of public utility concerns and in this respect he resembles President Wilson, of the Jersey Central, who is always willing to talk to newspapermen on matters of timely importance and of interest to its patrons. He was very frank and showed no disinclination in answering questions put to him by a representative of The Daily Press.

MAYOR FAGAN RATHER THAN "GOV." SOMMER.

"New Idealites" Fear Sheriff's Candidacy for Governor Would Harm Mayor.

About a dozen admirers of Mayor Mark M. Fagan, who are desirous of seeing him re-elected Mayor of Jersey City, had a conference in that city Thursday night at which it was resolved that the indorsement of Sheriff Frank H. Sommer as the Gubernatorial candidate of the Republican League for Equal Taxation and Limited Franchises might prove a handicap to Fagan in the ensuing contest.

It was said that the reason advanced was that many of the voters of Jersey City were imbued with the idea that Mr. Sommer was influential in his ideas, and that his election as Governor might interfere with their way of thinking how the affairs of a community should be conducted. It was plainly intimated that the Fagan men thought Sommer ought to withdraw, so that the "new idea" men could insist upon Senator Everett Colby being put forward as a candidate, but Mr. Sommer has not withdrawn. He stands pat. -

George L. Record told the conferees that the reelection of Mayor Fagan was the paramount issue with the "new idea" wing of the Republican party in Jersey City, and they could not stand for any candidate whose indorsement as such might interefere with the Mayor's chances.

FITZ AS A RACE JUDGE

Pugilist One of the Officials at the Matinee Meet.

NOTEWORTHY PROGRAM

All the Events Closely Contested, and a Large Crowd Enjoyed the Attractive Card.

Run Off.

The program offered by the Flair Acres Driving and Riding Association at the matinee races, Saturday, attracted one of the largest crowds of the season to the Gentlemen's Driving Park. There were four races on the card, one pace and three mixed, and every one was closely contested. The entry list comprised a number of the best horses in this city and vicinity and they worked in a way that made every race an exciting one.

As an extra attraction, "Bob" Fitzsimmons consented to act as one of the judges, deciding to forgo the pleasure of taking in the N. O. P. outing. Fitz showed that he was well up in horse racing and whenever the result was close his decision was found to be right every time. The other judges were Dr. Engler, of Westfield; David C. Smalley, Adam Blair, of this city, and C. M. Sterling, of Cranford.

George Cenover's "Roanview" won the first race handily in 2:32½ and 2:32½. Mayor N. B. Smalley's "Aloysia" took the second race, finishing first in the first and third heats and running second in the second heat. The time was 2:22, 2:22¼ and 2:31½. The third race was won by William Kingston's "Steve K.," J. B. Guttridge's "Sidney Leland," giving him a hard run for the honors. The last race was taken by C. M. Sterling's "Lawrence Da," in 2:38 and 2:41.

Next Saturday's matinee will be a strong attraction, as the prizes comprise eight handsome cups. The club is making great preparation for the Labor Day meet, when several money prizes will be offered.

The summary of Saturday's races follows:

DRUBBED O'LOUGHLIN.

New Brunswick Crack Players Turned Tables on Local "Pro"

Tracy L. Smith and Mortimer A. Wilson, the two crack players of the New Brunswick golf club turned the tables on "Marty" O'Loughlin, the Plainfield professional by giving him the worst defeat he has had this season, Sunday, on the links at New Brunswick, by defeating his best ball 8 up in 36 holes. The match started in the morning, but all three were not at the top of their game. O'Loughlin made 78, Smith 80 and Wilson 82. However, the local cracks were 5 up on the first eighteen holes. In the afternoon all took a brace and Smith made the second best score of the year on these links, getting a 73. O'Loughlin made 75 and Wilson 82. The locals were three up on this eighteen holes, making 8 up on the 36.

It was expected O'Loughlin would break the amateur record of this course made and held by Smith, but the greens were not in the best of condition and O'Loughlin's drives were at times too far. This defeat makes up for the defeat the two local players suffered at the hands of "Marty" on the links here Thursday afternoon when he defeated their best ball 1 up on 36 holes. A large crowd followed the match.

OLD PARTY LEADERS ARE FINANCIAL ALLIES

ALDEN FREEMAN SAYS THEY ARE ASSOCIATED IN BIG COMPANIES.

Alden Freeman, of East Orange, Chairman of the Independent Voters' County Committee of Essex County, gave out on Sunday a statement regarding the meeting of independent voters to be held in Newark Aug. 19, at which George W. Tomkins, independent candidate for Mayor of Newark last year; Judge Elwood C. Harris and Herman B. Walker, of Orange, will speak, and it is hoped 10,000 Independents will attend.

"The purpose of this meeting," said Mr. Freeman, "is not to form a new party. The issue is becoming very sharply defined between special privilege on one side and the rights of the great body of citizens on the other side.

"It has long been conceded in New Jersey that the State administration, whether in the hands of the Democrats or Republicans, rarely appoints any one to the bench, to a prosecutorship or to any board of assessment or taxation who is not acceptable to the railroad, Public Service Corporation, insurance, banking, trust company and brewery combines, which, working hand in hand, rule New Jersey today. Glance at the list of directors of the Public Service Corporation and you will find side by side the names of William C. Heppenheimer, treasurer of the Democratic State Committee, and Ferdinand W. Roebling, President of the Roebling Wire Works, of which Senator Briggs, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, is treasurer.

"Look at the list of directors of the Federal Trust Company, of Newark, ex-Senator Smith, the Democratic boss, who retires from politics with the regularity of an actress on prima donna from the stage, is president. Then there are Joseph M. Bryne and Gottfried Krueger, who are the connecting links with the Union National Bank of Newark, in which we find Judge Gray, of the Courts of Appeals (also among the Public Service directors), and the presidents of the Prudential Insurance Company, the Public Service Corporation, the Fidelity Trust Company and the Fesenspan Brewing Company. In the Federal Trust Company we find also the boss of Union county, Hamilton S. Kean, a brother of Senator Kean, and Peter Hauck, Jr., president of the Home Brewing Company.

"The most recent and significant accession to the financial combine is the election of William S. Gummere, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, as a director of ex-Senator Smith's Federal Trust Company, of Newark."

Mr. Freeman added that the control of both political parties by these men and interests with their various allies, the bosses of other counties, has become a serious matter for representative government in New Jersey.

According to the plans of the Independents, extra ballot boxes will be provided in every election district which petitions for them so that those who may be challenged or who may be sensitive about voting at primaries at which it is the intent of the law they should not vote may vote. Mr. Freeman also says that the problem might be solved if the independents of both parties should rise to the occasion and unitedly vote at the primary of either old party.

REPUBLICANS TO NAME GOVERNOR ON SEPT. 18

CONVENTION AT TRENTON ONE DAY LATER THAN DEMOCRATS.

The State Republican Executive Committee at Trenton today fixed Monday, September 19, for the State convention to nominate a successor to Governor E. C. Stokes. This will be one day after the Democratic State convention to be held for the same purpose. It was learned today that the Democrats have leased Taylor's Opera House, where both conventions will be held, for September 17 and 18.

State Chairman Frank O. Briggs presided at the meeting today. County Chairman F. H. Smith, of Union, was present as proxy for Hamilton Kean, who is on his vacation. Congressman Charles N. Fowler and United States Senator John Kean were also present. The executive committee was authorized to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Secretary J. H. Potts.

The next meeting of the committee will be held at Trenton on September 18.

Son Administrator.

H. H. Coward has been appointed administrator of his father's estate, by Surrogate George T. Parrot. Further investigation fails to show that Mr. Coward left a will, and it is now practically settled that he died intestate.

MR. MELLICK'S POSITION

Desires to Retire from Council But May Take Unanimous Renomination.

MR. FISK WANTS HIM

The Mayor and Others Urge Him to Continue—He Defines the Conditions.

Recognizing his almost invaluable services in the Common Council, friends of George P. Mellick, a member-at-large from the Second ward, are urging him to accept a renomination as exclusively announced in the Daily Press on Saturday. As told then it is by no means certain that he can be induced to continue in office, but the prospects are now more hopeful.

Confirming The Daily Press statement, Mr. Mellick spoke freely last night concerning his inclination to retire at the end of the present term, but he admitted that a condition might arise where he would be impelled to look upon the matter in another light. Should his constituents in the Second unanimously desire him to serve another term, the able councilman, and there never has been a better one, confesses that it would be a duty to the city for him to accept no matter how much his personal wishes might otherwise influence him.

"As you know," said Mr. Mellick last night to a representative of The Daily Press, "I am deeply interested in our city and am always willing and glad to use my humble efforts in its behalf. It has been my intention to retire at the end of my present term, but Mayor Fisk and others seem to want me to continue. I like to do whatever I can for Mr. Fisk and if he believes I can be of any assistance to him as a councilman and if my constituents so desire, I think *it would be my duty to accept a re*nomination. One thing I would like to make plain. That is, I will not allow any contest to be made so far as I am concerned. I would not seek the nomination neither would I enter into any fight for election."

It is said to be hardly possible that the New Idea people would place any obstacle in Mr. Mellick's way, especially in view of his excellent record in the Councilmanic body. As stated by The Daily Press on Saturday, Mr. Gilma has positively said that he desires to spend the winter in Florida and does not want another nomination.

MAY NAME M'CUTCHEN

Real Purpose of Borough Republican Leaders Said to be His Nomination.

MR. SAUNDERS STRONG

It was learned last night by a representative of The Daily Press that it is said that the Republican leaders in North Plainfield are really grooming Charles W. McCutchen for the mayoralty to succeed Mayor Newton B. Smalley, whose term expires on January 1 next. The boom for Councilman Charles L. Lee, it is also stated, was started with the purpose to divert the public pulse and to detract attention from the true purposes of those who propose to have Mr. McCutchen named for the office, provided he can be induced to run. He has been approached on the subject by some of the leaders within the last few weeks.

Mr. McCutchen is the largest property owner in the borough and has always taken much interest in its welfare. The manual training *department of the public school sys*tem is one of his gifts to that municipality. During the annexation campaign some few years ago, he was one of the chief opponents to the scheme and his standing and influence had much to do with the result of that election. More recently, however, he signed the unanimous report of the Bi-municipal Consolidation Commission, which recommended annexation with consolidation.

There does not appear to be any opposition among the Democrats to the nomination of former Mayor William H. Saunders, who may be induced to run provided the platform *of the Democrats will be consolida*tion with annexation and joint use of the city's sewage disposal system.

Mr. Saunders is out of town at present and his attitude could not be learned.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heidelof, of Allen place, are spending the summer at Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, of Manning avenue, are spending two weeks at Ocean Grove.

Miss Mary Leahy, of Brook avenue, has returned after a two weeks' stay at Cooks Falls, N. Y.

MEEKER GETS CONTRACT TO REPAIR FIRE HOUSE

Highest Bid for Laying Permanent Pavement Decided Most Satisfactory.

CALLAHAN FOR SEWERS

Lizabeth Contractor Awarded the Job of Extending Sanitary Sewers—Work to Begin Soon.

C. M. Meeker received the contract for brick paving, and T. Foster Callahan, of Elizabeth, the contract for building the proposed sanitary sewers, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday. Mr. Meeker's bid was $20,441.12. Pennsylvania Clay Company brick to be used. The bid submitted by Mr. Callahan, which was accepted, was $24,089.20.

T. J. McGovern, Layton brick, $36,742.90, which was irregular and thrown out; Hassam Paving Company, Layton brick, $37,734.38; Hassam Paving Company, Clearfield Company brick, $33,566.16; C. M. Meeker, Pennsylvania Clay Company brick, $29,441.32.

The report stated that a test of the various kinds of brick included in the bids, had been made and that the Pennsylvania Clay Company brick, known as "Brady's Run," came up to the standard, while the others did not.

Following the report, Mr. Gloak, acting in the absence of Chairman Ginna, of the street committee, said that he would offer a resolution awarding the contract to Mr. Meeker, if assured that his bid would be accepted by the Common Council. The assurance being given, he forthwith offered the resolution, which was adopted, all the members present voting in favor.

The resolution stated that the bid of Mr. Meeker was the lowest satis*factory bid received and that he be* awarded the contract after the necessary papers in the contract are executed. The successful bidder will be given ten days in which to prepare the papers for approval. The Pennsylvania Clay Company has given a bond for $20,000, agreeing to furnish shipments of brick within twenty days of the time ordered, it being stipulated that the entire number shall not be ordered at one time. This will protect the city and contractor and prevent any delay in the progress of the work.

Similar action was taken by the Common Council in the case of Mr. *Callahan's bid for the sanitary sew*er work. He is also given ten days in which to execute the necessary papers and have his bond approved. It is not known how soon Mr. Meeker will start his work, or Mr. Callahan his sewer work, but it will probably be within the next two or three weeks, or just as soon as the bonds are approved.

It has been decided by City Engineer Andrew J. Gavett to start the brick paving at Park avenue and Front street and go through Park avenue to Fourth street. All of the sewer and other pipe connections have been made underground on Park avenue, between Front street and the bridge, the necessary connections will be made as far as North street. East and West Front street and Watchung avenue will be paved afterward. Contractor C. M. Meeker says that barring trouble in getting materials or unforeseen accidents, he will complete the job before cold weather arrives.

Miss Agnes Cooley, of Westervelt avenue, is spending her vacation at Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. George Macintyre have moved from West Front street to Craig place.

Rev. W. C. Nelson and daughter, of East Ninth street, are sojourning in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Fred Dayton, of Mariners place, is spending a few weeks with friends at New Market.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Case, of the borough, who are abroad, expect to return home about September 1.

Miss Jennie Wenzel, of South Second street, will leave Monday for Asbury Park, to spend two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Druse and daughter, of East Front street, have returned from their vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Garretson, of Allentown, Pa., who have been visiting relatives here, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson A. Miller and family, of Washington avenue, are spending the month in New York State.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randolph, of Myrtle avenue, left Monday for the Thousand Islands to spend their vacation.

President Leslie M. Daniel, of the Common Council, with his family, is spending the month in the Adirondacks.

COMMEEKER NEIGHBORS

Common Council Appropriates $1,613 for the Purpose in Awarding Contracts.

NETHERWOOD'S NOISES

Complaint Made That Gas Engine Exhaust at Rushmore Works Constitutes a Nuisance.

Remonstrating against a gas engine exhaust at the Rushmore Dynamo Works, which they claim disturbs the peace and quietude of their homes in the day time as well as through the night, a petition signed by hundreds of residents of the Netherwood section of the city was presented to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting Monday. Among those who signed the petition are A. V. Davies, Henry L. Hall, A. F. H. Streuli, A. M. Wilcox and Howard J. Runyon.

The petitioners claim that the noise is so annoying that it has become a nuisance and they urge the Common Council to take immediate steps to stop it. The petition was referred to the public affairs committee and will receive early consideration.

A report on several bids received at the last meeting was presented by Chairman Henry D. Hibbard, of the fire committee, and on the recom*mendation of the other members the* bid for the repairs to the West Second street fire house was awarded to Wyman & Haberle for $1,613; that for 300 bushels of oats to Percy S. Dayton for 50½ cents a bushel and that for coal for the various fire houses, to the Consumers Coal Company for $3.73 per ton.

Charles H. Hand and other prop*erty-owners on* Watchung avenue petitioned to have a building line established on that avenue, and this was referred to the street and sewer committee. This petition is the result of the recent action of W. R. Coddington and Walter Manning erecting a new building on the avenue near the railroad, four feet outside the recognized line.

The petition of Whittal Collington for permission to build an addition to his building at 211 Richmond street, and use hollow concrete blocks, was referred to the street and sewer committee as was also one from W. W. Mills for permission to erect a building at 126-128 Madison avenue, and use hollow concrete blocks.

Three special policemen, Harold Warren, Harry Berkowitz and Thomas Flatley, were appointed by Mayor Fisk, and confirmed by the Common Council.

The petition from W. J. Counihan and Frey Ivamy, asking for improve*ments in Pruden's* alley, was referred back by Mr. Gloak, who stated that the $600, the amount necessary to lay a concrete pavement there, had been collected, and the work would be started soon. Mr. Gloak also offered a resolution, which was adopt*ed, authorizing the street and sewer* committee to have a flag walk laid in front of the city's property at 506-510 New street, the expense to be borne by the city.

CANNED BEEF FOR SUPPER, FIVE OF FAMILY SICK

GEO. W. SCRIBNER AND FOUR CHILDREN SUFFERING FROM PTOMAINE POISON.

As the result of eating canned beef for supper last Friday evening, George W. Scribner and his four children, of East Sixth street, are seriously ill at their home, suffering with ptomaine poisoning. Mrs. Scribner, the only member of the family who is not sick, had supper at a neighbor's house that evening.

The four children, with their father, er, ate heartily of the potted beef for their supper and late that night were seized with violent cramps. Mrs. Scribner, who had not been at home for supper, was alarmed at the sufferings of the others and summoned Dr. W. Kempton Browning. A diagnosis showed that all five were suffering from acute ptomaine poisoning. Mr. Scribner feels convinced that the trouble came from the meat, for nothing else which they had at the meal could have caused it.

While none of the partakers of the canned beef are in a dangerous condition, it will be several days before they entirely recover from the effects of the poisoning.

FROM SHERWIN'S SIDE

Counsellor Angleman Makes a Statement on Injunction Proceedings.

SLIPPERS ARE AT STAKE

Mortgage Only Covers a Few Dollars Worth of Unsaleable Stock, the Shoe Man's Lawyer Says.

The legal difference between Horace Sherwin, the shoe man, and Thomas E. Greacen, who claims to hold a mortgage on Mr. Sherwin's stock, to cover a debt alleged to amount to $5,000, is being contended with as much spirit outside the court as in it. Both sides have been making statements to the newspapers ever since the first attempt, two weeks ago, to forclose on Mr. Sherwin's stock. The latest of them was given out by Counsellor Winfield S. Angleman, associated with Mr. W. Nash, Jr., in Mr. Sherwin's interest, this morning. Mr. Angleman intimates that Mr. Coddington authorized a statement yesterday that does Mr. Sherwin a gross injustice, and he sets out to correct it, and to present the result of the legal battle, so far, from the standpoint of his client. Sherwin, he says in effect, is ahead in the battle. The statement is as follows:

"Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 21, 1907

"Editor The Daily Press:

"An article in your issue of yesterday in regard to the case in chancery of Thomas E. Greacen vs. Horace M. Sherwin contains statements made, I understand, on the authority of William A. Coddington, the attorney for Mr. Greacen, which do not conform to the facts. I ask, therefore, that you kindly correct what is a gross injustice to one of Plainfield's oldest business men.

"In the first place, the Sherwin store is not closed and will not be closed. It is doing business today and will continue to do business. There has not be any injunction granted which will close the store or which will prevent Mr. Sherwin from doing business. As Vice Chancellor Howell stated yesterday, in open court, to Mr. Coddington, in reply to his appeals, 'I cannot give you the money, and I can not give you the goods.' The Vice Chancellor then said that he would continue the usual temporary injunction until the final hearing on the merits of the case. This temporary injunction, or restraining order, is the ordinary order given in such cases to preserve intact the goods covered by a chattel mortgage. The only portion of the Sherwin stock affected by the injunction is stock which is not saleable and is stored away in the basement of the store, and consists only of eighty-six pairs of shoes and slippers. The balance of the stock which is up-to-date and of full variety is not affected by the injunction and is on sale as usual. I offered in open court to turn these eighty-six pairs of shoes and slippers over to Mr. Greacen, if Mr. Coddington would assume that, if he lost the case on the merits, he would pay Mr. Sherwin the inventory value for them. This he refused to do.

"There was another order made yesterday, and which was the last one made, which in the light of the statements made in your article is interesting reading. It is now on file in the Chancery Clerk's office in Trenton, and is as follows:

"'It is, on motion of W. S. Angleman, of counsel with defendant, and in the presence of William A. Coddington, of counsel with complainant, de ordered that give security for costs in this cause, according to law, and that if such security be not filed, or the deposit in lieu therefore made within the time above limited, the defendant may apply to dismiss the bill of complaint.

"'And it is further ordered that until this order be complied with all further proceedings in the cause be stayed.'

"The security mentioned in the above order amounts to one hundred and fifty ($150) dollars, and is more than the value of the eighty-six pairs of shoes and slippers. If Sherwin's eighty-six pairs of shoes are tied up, so that they cannot be handled and fifty dollars. Moreover, the shoes are not saleable, while the cash is useable.

"As to the merits of the controversy, it is sufficient at this time to say that the original debt was one of Mr. Sherwin's father, which, on his death in June, 1905, Mr. Sherwin assumed and of which he has since paid thirty-eight hundred and forty-nine dollars and thirteen cents ($3,849.13). Mr. Sherwin's sworn statement on file in the case claims that by an agreement with Mr. Greacen made in consideration of the giving of this chattel mortgage, and by which Mr. Greacen agreed that when the mortgage had been reduced to four thousand ($4,000) dollars, or

DEMANDED CHANGE AT POINT OF PISTOL

ITALIAN COMPELLED TROLLEY CONDUCTOR TO PRODUCE TWENTY CENTS.

Passengers on a West bound Dunellen car that left the Watchung avenue terminus at 7:45 last night, were witnesses to a wordy encounter between the conductor, James Selfridge, and an unknown Italian, that eventually resulted in gun display on the part of the latter. There was a terrific scrambling from all hands to get out of reach but nothing serious occurred.

The Italian boarded the car on West Front street and soon after paying his fare, demanded twenty cents change from the conductor, asserting that he had passed up a quarter. Selfridge insisted that a nickel was all that he had received and refused to comply. The unknown continued his demands and finally became so abusive that other passengers called for his ejectment from the car. When the vehicle stopped at Dunellen's main crossin, the Italian hurried off but before the conductor could signal the motorman to go ahead, he pulled a revolver from his pocket. Levelling it at Selfridge, he exclaimed:

"Drop twenty cents or I shoota."

The ordeal of looking down the barrel of that nickel-plated gun was one under any circumstance and Selfridge complied in order to avoid further trouble. The weapon was lowered as soon as the Italian secured the change and he quickly retreated before anyone could stop him.

The matter was reported to the police but no trace of the fellow could be found. Passengers who sat near the Italian say he only handed out a nickel and that Selfridge was in the right.

SEVENTH DAY BAPTIST GENERAL CONFERENCE

PLAINFIELD WELL REPRESENTED AT IT—NO MORNING SERVICE HERE.

The Seventh-Day Baptist General Conference opens its six-day annual session at Alfred, N. Y., today. The Plainfield church will be largely represented at the gathering.

About thirty members of the local congregation have gone to Alfred. Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the church here, and Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, are among the Plainfielders who will take part in the deliberations of the gathering.

There will be no Sabbath morning service in the local church. The Young People's Societies will meet in the afternoon, however, and the Friday evening devotional service will be held as usual. It is thought that quite a number from the local church will attend service at New Market, where Rev. H. N. Jordan's pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Mr. Dorward, of Stelton.

The new corporation will be known as the Public Service Railway Company. The capital stock will be $38,000,000.

Stryker Defeats Grimes.

James Stryker, Plainfield's undefeated roller skating artist, bested Harry Grimes, of Somerville, in a two mile race at Riverside Park, last night. It was a hot contest from start to finish and the winner crossed the line only half a lap ahead. The time was eight minutes and twenty seconds. John Radel, of New Brunswick, was the time-keeper and C. H. Snyder, of this city, acted as the winner's trainer. Stryker now claims the title of champion of Union, Middlesex and Somerset counties.

"JIM" WITH THE FARMERS

Martine Gets a Great Ovation at the Hunterdon County Grange.

BIG CROWD HEARS HIM

Hailed from all parts of the crowd as "Governor Jim," and greeted with cheers and the waving of hats as he mounted the speakers' stand, James E. Martine addressed 2,000 Hunter*don county farmers* at Hawke's Grove, near Lockten, this afternoon, on the occasion of the ninth annual picnic of the Hunterdon County Grangers. "Farmer Jim" made a characteristic address to the tillers of the soil, who bunched around him, interrupting him with applause from time to time.

Avoiding the subject of politics and the part he plans to take in the coming Gubernatorial campaign, Mr. Martine spoke at length of the agricultural conditions in the country at this time. He said that the farmer was gaining the true position in politics by his control of the balance of power. The farmer has thus secured a position of power in political affairs, and conditions have improved within the past year so that this control is becoming more and more a *prime factor in county, State and na*tional politics.

The farmers will be together at the picnic grounds for two days, and the annual outing has been patronized by practically every "man with a hoe" of the district. They came with their wives, families and friends for a care-free outing.

GOVERNOR WANTS THE INVESTIGATORS TO ACT

STOKES URGES THAT THE SENATE COMMITTEE GET TO WORK.

Governor Stokes and Chairman Bradley of the State investigating committee held a conference yesterday afternoon at Trenton with a view to taking action that would result in the committee getting down to work. Governor Stokes is said to have received complaints from Republican leaders over the inactivity of the Upper House investigators and has promised to do what he can to hasten the inquisition to counteract that being conducted by Democratic Assemblymen. It has been prevented from getting down to work by inability to obtain counsel. Governor Stokes telephoned to Prosecutor Emley, of Passaic, and asked him to reconsider his determination not to serve as counsel. Mr. Emley replied that he could not do so.

Edwin Robert Walker, of Trenton, was suggested and it is probable that he will be asked to serve. Senator Bradley said that he had given up his vacation in order to try to start the committee at work. He added that it will be called as soon as counsel could be procured.

It is the present intention of the committee to take up first the subject of legislative lobbying, which seems to offer a rather fruitful field of research. The disclosures made by the Assembly Investigating Committee in its four of the State departments and institutions have caused a feeling among the Republicans that that party should put a counter attraction in the field as soon as possible.

Former Plainfielder Killed.

"Jack" Robert Gray, who was formerly employed in Bobby Leach's lunch wagon and who had many friends in this city, was killed last week at Watervliet, N. Y. He was employed in the construction of a water works plant and was caught with several other men in the immediate discharge of a stick of dynamite. The body was brought to his former home in Westfield and the funeral was held there yesterday.

MARTINE GETS SUPPORT

South Jersey Counties Urge Union's Democrats to Hustle for Him.

ATLANTIC IS IN LINE

Members of County Committee to Be Elected At a Special Primary to Be Set.

Flattering communications from Atlantic and other South Jersey counties, urging that no stone be left unturned in nominating James E. Martine as the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, were received by the Union County Democratic committee meeting at the rooms on Broad street, Elizabeth, last night. Support of the Plainfielder was pledged by the committees in writing and it was declared that everything possible is being done to have him head the State ticket in November. The communications were received with enthusiasm and the secretary was instructed to reply that "Union is on the job."

The meeting last night was called by Chairman D. F. Collins for the purpose of considering the advisability of changing the time of electing members to the county committee. It has been the custom to elect them at a special primary and not at the regular primaries, which are to be held this year on September 10. After a full discussion, a resolution was unanimously passed not to depart from the usual way of electing the members at a special primary to be held at the call of the chairman of the county committee.

The committee of seven appointed by the chairman to make suitable arrangements for the delegates who will be elected to represent the party at the State convention in Trenton, reported through their chairman, John Lane, of Summit, that suitable rooms had been procured at the Trenton House. An additional member to the county committee from the new borough of Kenilworth was formally seated.

Harmony was the keynote through the entire meeting and every member announced himself as being in line for active duty. Plainfield was represented by a full delegation.

SUPPOSED IT A MIRACLE

Polish Catholics Disturbed by What Seemed a Veritable Weeping Crucifix.

PRIEST'S EXPLANATION

Rain Filled Hollow Statue and Water Dropped Through the Eyes Softening Paint.

What several hundred people in Perth Amboy regarded as a miracle was explained on Sunday from the altar of St. Stephen's Polish Catholic church at that place. Some days ago members of the parish thought they made a discovery that the crucifix in St. Stephen's cemetery was weeping tears and later it was declared that blood was exuding from the wounds in the body of the Saviour.

This was differently interpreted, according to the person who viewed it. Probably the most of them took it as the Perth Amboy Chronicle, that Christ was weeping because of their sins and they became conscious stricken. They knelt before the crucifix and prayed and at night they burned candles before it.

Some held, says the paper, that the strange occurrence was miracle, they believed it, presaged the return of Christ to the world and they feared that the final day of judgment was near at hand.

The explanation came when an examination of the statue was made. It was found that the figure was partly hollow and recent rains had filled it, almost to overflowing. Water trickled through the eyes and the continued moisture softened the red paint and caused it to stain the statue, so that high above the ground as it is, the impression was easily made that blood was actually flowing from the wounds.

FIGHT STRIKE BREAKERS

Local Delegates Talks of Controlling "Scabs" Before State Labor Federation.

A CHILD LABOR TALK

Want 18 Year Night Work Limit—Elect Officers As Convention Closes in Trenton Yesterday.

Because of the recent disturbances throughout the State by men employed as strike-breakers, there was a lengthy discussion on the subject of "scab" labor at the 29th annual convention of the State Federation of Labor concluded at Trenton yesterday. William McConnell, a delegate from this city, was especially active during the discussion, which lasted for a considerable part of the afternoon session. After a discussion by the meeting, he offered a resolution instructing the legislative committee to seek the enactment of a law making it mandatory upon chiefs of police in first and second class cities to inquire into the records and character of men employed by firms as strike-breakers. His idea was to have such "scabs" ordered from a city by the police, if their record could be proved bad. Delegate Thomas McHugh, of Newark, while recognizing the value of such a measure, spoke against it as being unconstitutional, and the motion was lost.

At the morning session, the question of child labor was the main subject of discussion at the meeting. As a result, a resolution was passed urging the officers to request the United States Senators and representatives of the State to support the proposed Beveridge act, bringing child labor within the scope of the interstate commerce act, and requesting that the minimum age for night work be raised to eighteen years.

JEWISH NEW YEAR'S ON MONDAY, SEPT. 9

ROSH HOSHANA BEGINS 5,668TH HEBREW YEAR.

Jewish New Year, or Rosh Hashana, will occur on September 9. The calendar for the year—5,668—according to the Hebrew reckoning, will begin on that day. The day is one of great celebration among the Jews of all lands. The feature will be the blowing of the shofar, or ram's horn. The blowing of the shofar requires considerable skill, so as to sound the proper notes.

In the Pentateuch the shofar is prescribed for the announcement of the new moon and solemn feasts. The first day of the seventh month—Tishri, or New Year's Day—is especially termed a "memorial of blowing," or "a day of blowing the shofar," and the modern use of the instrument survives especially in this connection. In earlier days it was employed also in other religious ceremonials. In the temple at Jerusalem the shofar was usually associated with the trumpet and both instruments were used together on various occasions. On New Year's Day, the principal ceremony was conducted with the shofar, made of the horn of a wild goat, and straight in shape, being ornamented with gold at the mouthpiece. Many reasons are assigned for the ceremony of shofar blowing. The object of certain notes is to bewilder and stagger Satan, who at first, imagining that the Jews are merely complying with the law, is surprised by the second blowing, thinking, perhaps, that the Messiah *is coming, and, finally, is dumfound*ed, expecting the resurrection, with which his power will finally cease.

The observance of the New Year in the reformed congregations is accompanied with fine musical programs.

The beginning of the year, it is probable, was always celebrated with greatest times in some special way like the new moon festival. The passage in Psalms 41: 5, referring to the solemn feast which is held on new moon day, when the shofar is sounded, as a day of judgment of the "God of Jacob," is taken to indicate the character of Rosh Hashana.

A festival meal is an important feature of the home celebration of the day. In modern times the table is supplied with grapes, other fruit and honey. After the benediction is recited: "May it please the Lord our God and God of our fathers to renew for us a good and sweet year." The Jews greet one another on New Year's Eve with "Mayest thou be inscribed for a good year."

COLLISION AND RUNAWAY WITH LUCKY RESULTS

CAUSED LOTS OF EXCITEMENT BUT NO ONE WAS HURT.

Good luck and excitement were plentifully mixed in a collision and runaway that occurred at Park avenue and Front street, shortly after 6 o'clock last night. The participating rigs were a runabout, driven by Miss Claire Toense and accompanied by her mother, of Fairview avenue, and a wagon driven by William Nelson, a well driver.

Miss Toense made a wide swing from Front street into the avenue and her rig struck the other vehicle while the animal was on a fast trot. The runabout stopped short but Miss Toense and her mother kept going and fell to the ground over the dashboard just as the horse pulled itself free of the shafts and started off at full speed.

Something in the animal's path caused it to dart from the road to the sidewalk and with a terrific clatter of hoofs it ran past the flags all the way from the City National Bank to the Iroquois Hotel. A lot of pedestrians were in its way but everyone scrambled into stores or the gutter and escaped getting knocked down. William Stranzenbach was seated on the porch of a store when he heard the racket and jumped to the sidewalk just in time to block the animal's path. He caught it by the remains of the bridle and though dragged for twenty feet or more brought it to a standstill.

Miss Toense and her mother were picked up by Patrolman Charles Flynn and were found to be practically unhurt. Mrs. Toense was in a *nervous state and suffered from sev*eral severe bruises but was able to proceed to her home. The run about, the property of the Plainfield Cab Company, of which Mr. Toense is proprietor, was badly damaged.

LOCAL RED MEN TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

MIANTONOMO TRIBE WILL BE 19 YEARS OLD OCTOBER 9.

When October 9 rolls around, there will be big doings among the local Red Men. On that day, nineteen years ago, Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., of this city, organized their lodge here and held their first meeting. The growth of the organization has been a rapid one, and the Plainfielders have increased its membership rolls from time to time since its organization.

The warriors and braves discussed plans for their anniversary celebration at their regular meeting held last night, and it was decided to have the occasion fittingly observed by the lodgemen. A committee, consisting of Chief of Records Charles L. Hol*stein, and Past Sachems J. T. Green,* Andrew J. Stiglitz, Peter Sheridan, Thomas Connors, Samuel Montross and John Ludgate, was appointed to take charge of the anniversary and to plan suitable entertainment and observance of the occasion.

It is planned to have prominent Red Men from the various lodges of the State present. While the local braves on that occasion and the organization history of the lodge will be reviewed. The board of Great Chiefs of the State will be invited to attend the anniversary ceremonies.

At the meeting last night, one pale face was admitted to the tribe, and two propositions for membership were received.

DEARTH OF MINISTERS

That is of Protestant Ministers, Who Like August Vacations.

VIRTUALLY NONE HERE

Undertaker Had to Use Missionary for Three Funerals and Get a Layman For Another.

"WANTED—Minister of the Gospel to fight the devil during August and to make himself generally useful in a Christian community. No questions asked as to dogma; good wages and every inducement to any energetic sky pilot. Address, Suffering Plainfield."

About the scarcest thing in Plainfield at the present time is a Protestant minister. All or practically all, the pastors of the evangelical churches have been in the habit of going on their vacations in August, and the church people in town awoke to the fact last week that the city was virtually without a Protestant pastor. Complaints have been made over the condition, and it is likely that the congregational officers will be moved to take such action as will, in future years, prevent so complete a dearth of pastors in vacation time.

It was noticed in other years that virtually all the Protestant churches were without pastoral attention in August, but until this summer the complaints of the church fold did not reach noteworthy proportions. Conditions arose last week, however, that brought the matter to a pass that aroused comment too caustic to be overlooked. On account of the lack of pastors in the city, Rev. Lewis Bond, a returned missionary, has been overworked in responding to sudden calls for ministration. One undertaker was compelled to call on him for three funeral services last week. On Friday two funerals occurred, and with Mr. Bond in charge of one, the undertaker handling the other had difficulty in securing some one to conduct the service. He finally obtained the services of a layman, Former City Clerk O. B. Leonard, who is an elder of the First Baptist church.

It is said that the majority of the churches make no provision for ministerial services while the pastors are away, and that the congregations and "worldly" folk with evangelical sympathies find it hard to secure ministration when a death in the family occurs or there is a baby to be baptized or a couple to be married. To avoid such a condition the late Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, could not go on his vacation in August.

"It is time this condition of affairs was changed," said a prominent church member, deacon of one of the most active congregations in the city, this morning. "It leads not only to criticism among the church members but furnishes those not in sympathy with the churches to say caustic and sneering things of the Christian body. Steps should be taken to prevent the recurrence of such a state of affairs. I would suggest that four of the ministers agree to stay in the city during August, taking their vacations in July. These four could take the August vacation the next year, another quartette going away in July."

Thrown From Wheel By Collision With Another Bicyclist.

While riding by bicycle on New Brunswick avenue, at Perth Amboy, last night, Mrs. Nels Lindeberg, Jr., of 46 New Brunswick avenue, collided with Joseph Mergurio, of 2 Ogden place, who was riding a wheel in the opposite direction. Mrs. Lindeberg was thrown to the pavement, falling upon her face. Her nose was broken and she has a light concession of the brain.

After remaining unconscious until this morning, she rallied and it is thought she will recover, although her injuries are considered serious.

FRELINGHUYSEN DECLINES

Senator's Health Will Not Permit Him to Become a Gubernatorial Candidate.

CHEERS HIS PARTY

Believes Republicans Will Win—Addressing Co. Committee He Urges Better Government and Less Politics.

Much to the disappointment of many leaders throughout the State and particularly to his own constituents in the county, State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Raritan, has declined to allow his name to be used in connection with a gubernatorial boom. His decision is final and has been reached notwithstanding the endorsement already given by Somerset county and strong support given him by influential leaders in other parts of the State.

Ever since the Somerset county committee started the boom for the Senator, the latter has tried in vain to convince his physicians that he would be in shape to put the real ginger in the fight were he allowed to come out after the nomination. The doctors, however, were obdurate in their stand against their patient being drawn into a hard campaign and their word was final, though extremely regretted, by the county chairman-to-be.

When a representative of The Daily Press met the Senator at his beautiful country home, a typical English estate, just outside of the prosperous little town of Somerville, Wednesday, Mr. Frelinghuysen had just returned from a morning's fishing on the banks of the Raritan.

"Yes, I've been fishing, but not after the governorship," said the Senator.

"Well, what's the verdict, Senator?"

"Not guilty; that's the return made by the doctors and I pay them for their advice. I can't enter a hard campaign without sacrificing my health and that's more important to me than all the honors that I could strive for, you know. My decision is final."

Senator Frelinghuysen's appearance is that of a robust man enjoying the best of health. But appearances are deceiving in his case at least, for though he is the same optimistic and hearty "Uncle Joe"—and "Papa Joe" too now for there's a little one in the household—he is in bad shape since he underwent an operation for appendicitis while in the West some time ago. The Senator got over the fashionable ailment all right, but while on the road to recovery trouble in his leg developed. It was not the kind of trouble in that member that most well-to-do public men suffer from—it had not been caused too hard—but the doctors say that the veins have not been in their right condition. As a result, "Uncle Joe" has had to keep on his feet as much as possible and won't be able to do any walking—much less running for a governorship—for some time. He hopes to be all right by the time the Legislature convenes again and is looking forward to that day to again be of much service to the State.

The father of the auto laws, who, by the by, is also the father of the pure food laws, talked freely of conditions in the party and of New Jersey affairs generally to The Daily Press representative. There is no pessimism in his make-up, on the other hand he takes a rosy view of the future and deprecates the tendency of the times to try to find a dark cloud above the horizon. Far be it from him, however, to decry the current investigations. He believes that they are good things and most necessary things too for the welfare of the State in which he is deeply interested. But he does see no reason why the Democrats can make any capital out of them; in fact he is of the opinion that they should be non-partisan in character and effect.

In his talk yesterday, Senator Frelinghuysen dwelt at length on the ever-increasing number of needless laws and quoting the epigram, "That country is best governed that is least governed," declared himself in favor of less legislation. Then, too, there should be more simplicity in administration of the State's affairs. He is heartily in favor of a business-like administration minus politics which he thinks too often enters into the matter of shaping policies, particularly those of minor importance. As to desirable candidates, the Senator is mum. He hopes that the strongest and best candidate will be picked but he won't take it upon himself to say who that man should be.

Following is the letter the Senator sent in reply to the Somerset county committee's notification of its endorsement of his candidacy:

"Somerset County Republican Executive Committee:

"Dear Sirs—Though some time has elapsed since you so kindly determined to urge my nomination for Governor, the delay in receiving a response from me has been caused by my strong desire to accede to your wishes, if my health would permit me to do so. It is with great regret that I have to notify you that, although recovering rapidly from my recent illness, my physician advises against my entering the campaign as a candidate or allowing my name to come before the convention.

"During the past twelve years our State, in fact, all the states, have experienced prosperity unparalleled in the annals of the world. Such prosperity, as we all know, has been under the rule of the Republican party. To that party the people have become accustomed to look for progress, and so far they have never looked in vain. Desiring further improvement, the power of the party will, without doubt, be continued by the next election.

"It is true that in the party harmony does not everywhere prevail. The lack of harmony, however, is purely local and in no sense general. A straightforward, honest and open campaign will, I am sure, fully restore it. It is true that charges and counter-charges have been made. It is also true that some minor irregularities have been discovered. All who have the welfare of the party at heart desire and court the most rigid scrutiny of all public matters and welcome an opportunity of exhibiting to the people the workings of the minor details in the affairs of the State. Such investigations should not be partisan; they should not be conducted for political capital; they should be solely for the purpose of exhibiting to all the bad as well as the good features of the present system.

"Such investigations, I am sure, convince all of what I for years have been fully convinced. It will show to all the necessity of effecting such changes as will make the system of conducting the affairs of the State as simple as possible; so simple, in fact, that not only will irregularities in any quarter at once be discovered, but the persons responsible for same immediately called to account. Confined to such simplicity all look forward with confidence to less legislation. While both the population and the wealth of the State are rapidly increasing, we should not forget that that state is best governed which is least governed.

"When I was informed of the determination of the Republican Executive Committee of Somerset county to put me forward as its candidate, I must confess I was gratified at the great honor, and I must also confess that, did my health permit, I would seize the opportunity to strive for harmony in the party throughout the State, and, if elected, would work for *the greatest simplicity in the con*duct of the affairs of the State and for as little legislation as is consistent with the welfare of the public. In short, if elected, would aim to bring about what the people demand —better government and less politics.

"Did my strength permit, I would be most delighted to accept the votes of Somerset in the convention and also the votes of all other counties that would care to follow if lead.

"For me, the future holds forth nothing but victory for the party. I have no sympathy with those pessimists who fear defeat. I only regret that I cannot permit you to enter my name as a candidate for the highest office in the State. If I could, I simply assert that I would win. And if I have no hesitation in saying that, if I were tendered the nomination, with your help and the help of all loyal Republicans, we would win a victory surpassing any of the past. I cannot, however, permit you to place my name before the convention. My present condition compels me to refrain from a campaign and to confine my energies to my duties in the Senate, before the next session of which, I trust, I shall be fully restored to my health and strength. In it I will *continue to work for the best inter*ests of my constituents and in it I hope to give my warmest support to the next Republican governor.

"Again thanking you and the people of Somerset for your kindness and confidence and assuring you of my hearty support of the next candidate, I am,

"Very truly yours,

"J. S. FRELINGHUYSEN."

ANTI-SALOON PLEDGES.

Crusaders Will Seek to Organize Sentiment Among the Voters.

Pledge cards to be circulated among the voters are being prepared by the Plainfield anti-saloon crusaders. The pledge will read as follows:

"I hereby pledge myself not to vote for any assemblyman who will not use his influence and vote to give Union county the right to local option in the sale of intoxicating liquor."

All the voters will be asked to sign the cards, and the names be used for the formation of a Voters' Local Option League. Members of the anti-saloon organization will canvass actively among the citizens to secure signers.

Owners Favor Concrete Walks.

The agitation among the merchants and owners of property in the business part of the city in favor of concrete walks is spreading, and it is believed that with the laying of the brick pavement will come the improvement in sidewalks. Already a number of concrete walks are to be found in the business section and there seems to be no doubt but that they will be extended.

CHECK ON THE SPEEDERS

Senator Frelinghuysen Recommends Revocation of Licenses by Commissioner

BERNARDS IS AROUSED

Fatal Accident of Wednesday the Climax to Unbearable Conditions Brought About By Reckless Chauffeurs.

Aroused by the terrible automobile accident at Bernardsville Wednesday afternoon, which brought to a climax the conditions on the roads about that section created by careless and reckless *chauffeurs, the offi*cials of Bernards township have moved to check the carnival of speed that has grown to be a menace to all users of the highways. State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Jr., author of the auto law, has been stirred to action by the conditions in Bernards, and through him State Automobile Commissioner J. B. R. Smith is to be interested in the reform.

Senator Frelinghuysen is so stirred by the increasing number of automobile casualties throughout the State that he suggests the forfeiture of licenses as a punishment for speeders. In a message to Commissioner Smith, he advised that a general notice be sent out to the effect that all licenses will be revoked on the second violation of the speed law filed with him.

Such accidents were in mind when the Legislature passed Frelinghuysen's amendment to the auto law providing for the appointment of sixteen inspectors to guard against speeders. This law is now placed before the Governor for his approval but for some unknown reason he vetoed it while the father of the auto law was on his sick bed. The same amendments will be enacted again, it is promised, next winter.

Action on an appeal from one of the Bernards township committeemen, Senator Frelinghuysen has asked Commissioner Smith to detail a special automobile policeman to the Bernards district. The following correspondence has passed between the Bernards official, Senator Frelinghuysen and Commissioner Smith:

"Bernardsville, N. J., Aug. 14, 1907.

"Hon. Jos. S. Frelinghuysen, Raritan, N. J.:

"Dear Sir—We had another terrible fatal accident here this afternoon, making two in about two weeks. Today there were two killed instantly and probably two more will die. And all from careless driving. They run through our town anywhere from 20 to 40 miles an hour. We want your assistance in having an officer stationed here and specials if necessary. Does not the State have to furnish the officers when necessary? We have posted notices, but of no avail. The people of our town are becoming alarmed. And the way many of these people run it, is not safe for people to walk the road. Let me hear from you at once and what can be done in the matter.

"Respectfully your,

"Frank P. Bowman,

"One of Bernards Township Committee."

"Frank P. Bowman, Bernardsville, N. J.:

"Have requested special officer from Auto Commissioner. Until arrival have local officer stop speeding and report violations to auto commissioner.

"J. S. Frelinghuysen."

"J. B. R. Smith, Automobile Commissioner, Trenton, N. J.:

"Township Committeemen request special officer Bernardsville section. Please send. People aroused. In view terrible casualties in State suggest also general notice that all auto licenses and registrations be revoked on second notice to you of violation of speed laws.

"J. S. Frelinghuysen."

Republicans Will Have 99 Delegates With 67 Votes and Democrats Many Less.

As chairman of the Somerset County Republican executive committee, Senator J. S. For the State convention, the apportionment shows 32 Republicans to 29 Democrats, while the county convention provides for 99 Republican delegates to 39 Democrats.

The apportionment is made in accordance with the law by which each election district is entitled to one delegate to the State convention for every 200 vots or fraction thereof over 100 cast for the Republican candidate for governor at the last election, and one delegate to the county convention for every 100 votes or fraction thereof over 40 for the Republican candidate for governor at the last election. The apportionment for the various townships and boroughs of the county are announced by Senator Frelinghuysen as follows:

The Republican State committee in connection with arranging for the State convention, has also fixed the number of votes to which each county is entitled at that convention. The power of the State committee to determine this apportionment has been questioned by some, for according to the primary law, the election district is the unit for the selection of delegates, with a representation of one from each district for every 200 votes cast at the last preceding gubernatorial election.

The apportionment must be made according to the official returns filed with the secretary of State, which for the year 1904 showed the Republican vote for Governor to be 231,363, which, on the basis of one delegate for each 200 votes cast, would make the total number of delegates 1,157, making 579 votes necessary to a choice.

The same returns showed *the to*tale number of districts at that time to have been 1,227, which have been increased to 1,277 by the addition of fifty new districts in this county, which will have 244 delegates and be entitled only to 236 votes, as the total gubernatorial vote in 1904 was only 41,222.

The apportionment among the counties showing the number of votes in the Republican convention to which each is entitled and the number of delegates is as follows:

ASSEMBLYMAN SUES SMITH FOR $100,000

H. E. WRIGHT, JR. BRINGS SLANDER SUIT AGAINST FORMER SENATOR.

Summons and a declaration in a suit brought in the Essex County Circuit Court by Assemblyman Edward H. Wright, Jr., against former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., to recover punitive damages in the amount of $100,000 for alleged slander, were filed in the sheriff's office Thursday afternoon at Newark.

The action is based on remarks alleged to have been made by Mr. Smith on the occasion of a public reception held at Governor Stokes on the porch of the Governor's cottage at Sea Girt on August 2 last.

The conversation, according to the declaration, was between the Governor and Mr. Smith in the presence of Edward C. Gray, the Governor's private secretary, and divers other persons of great personal and political importance throughout the State of New Jersey."

The specific words on which the slander suit is based are quoted in the declarations as follows:

"The said malicious lie and statement being made with so much venom and in such a loud tone of voice that his excellency the Governor feared that a number of women who were on the porch of his said cottage would hear the said slanderous lie and statement, the hearing of which slanderous lie and statement by said women on the said porch would annoy and grieve the said Governor, because the remarks of the defendant, James Smith, Jr., concerning and about the said plaintiff, Edward H. Wright, Jr., were of such a vulgar and indecent character that the Governor wished that the said women guests should not hear."

The declaration says of Bell that he is a wine merchant, who has many times during the course of the Legislature of 1907 acted as a "legislative agent of divers persons wishing to procure certain legislation," and, according to the declaration, the said innuendo of the said defendant, James Smith, Jr.," about Wright being that by drunkenness and other dissolute conduct he had made himself incapable of acting freely and for the benefit of the people of the State in the Legislature.

This was so, the declaration asserts, "because he (Wright) had spent his time away from said Legislature with said alleged wine and women, and because of improper and undue influence or by bribery by means of said alleged wine and women, supplied, as alleged, by said Bell, had committed misfeasance and malfeasance in his office as a member of the House of Assembly."

RESCUED JUST IN TIME RALLY AROUND MARTINE

Railroad Fireman Saves Two Little Girls from Would-Be Despoiler.

SUMMARY PUNISHMENT

Brute Has His Eyes Blackened, Nose Broken and Face Cut—Escapes When Punishers Flag In Their Work.

Rescued from the grasp of their would-be despoiler just in the nick of time, two little girls had a narrow escape from terrible outrage in the strip of ground on the city line between Front street and the railroad track near Jefferson avenue Thursday afternoon. They were saved by Archibald Davis, a fireman on one of the two drill engines at the Dunellen yard.

Davis was looking out from his post at the fire-box, along the track, when he saw a well-dressed young man hold two little girls. One of the girls was about six years old and the other about eight. The man's actions were suspicious, and Davis looked him sharply. The locomotive was going slowly, and the group was in clear view. The man's intent became plain as Davis watched, and the fireman's blood became hot with anger as he suddenly realized the danger. Davis called to his engineer to stop, and leaped from the engine. He risked his limbs in the jump but he was too much aroused to regard prudence.

He struck the ground without injury, however, and recovering his footing, dashed for the man on the run. The engineer lost no time in following him. Davis fell on the young man without warning, and began pounding him without mercy. The engineer came up, and joined in the pounding with the same energy. When the two men began to tire, the little girls' assailant managed to break away and run. Fear lent speed to his legs and he managed to keep ahead of the railroad men for the short distance they felt free to run. He disappeared in the direction of Jefferson avenue. Before he got away both his eyes were blackened, his nose was askew and his lips were cut and bleeding.

When the punishment of their assailant began, the little girls appeared to realize for the first time that things were not all right. They broke into tears, and fled. The railroaders were too busy with the young man to stop them. The young man and the girls were not recognized by Davis or the engineer.

NEW ONE-CENT INDIAN HEAD DESIGN ON COIN

Numismatists have received with interest the announcement that new designs for United States coins by the artist, Augustus Saint Gaudens, have been accepted by the government. Three denominations will be affected, the double eagle, the eagle and the bronze cent.

A radical change is made in the design of the cent, and though the Indian head will be retained it will bear little resemblance to the old one, *and is expected to be more characte*ristic of the head of the American Indian with real headdress instead of the present design. The present Indian head is really a Caucasian type, the face having been posed for by a little daughter of James M. Longacre, the engraver of the Philadelphia mint, who designed the present penny in 1859.

On the obverse of the eagle and double eagle the head of Liberty is retained in idealized form. On the reverse of the $20 gold piece, which was also designed by Mr. Longacre in 1849, is an erect eagle, but of new design.

More radical changes are noted in the design for the $10 gold coin. While the obverse still shows the idealized head of Liberty, on the reverse is a flying eagle, closely modeled after the pattern of the dollars and half-dollars of 1836 and 1838. Christian Gobright, who designed these coins, used as his model "Peter," the live eagle, known as "mint bird," which having its home at the mint in Philadelphia, flew all over town, returning each night to roost at the mint, which was afterward killed by being caught in the machinery of the plant.

Mrs. Charles C. Burnet and the Misses Burnet, of Madison avenue, who have been sojourning in Sussex county, have returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew E. Kenney and son, Edmund, of Watchung avenue, the borough, are spending their vacation at Asbury Park.

Rev. J. W. Cubberley, of New York State, who has been spending several weeks in this vicinity among friends, will return home next week.

At the Ives Place Hotel, Hobart, are Mrs. Mary Wallace, and the Misses Laura Runyon, Emma Brokaw and Louise Runyon, also of this city.

Clinton Firstbrook, of Grant avenue, and James Kenney, of West Third street, are spending the week at Ram's Horn Camp, Lake Hopatcong.

RALLY AROUND MARTINE

Purpose of Union's Special Committee is to Enlist Aid of Distinguished Democrats.

SUMMARY PUNISHMENT SAUNDERS VOLUNTEERS

Prominent Boroughite May Make a Speech at Convention for the Farmer-Orator.

It transpires that the real object General D. F. Collins, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, had in view in appointing a committee of seven members to arrange for the accommodation of the local delegation to the Gubernatorial convention of the party at Trenton next month was to enlist the interest of prominent Democrats throughout the State in the candidacy of James E. Martine. The "farmer orator" has been indorsed for the nomination by the Union County Committee and the aim is now to boom his candidacy in improved fashion. To this end, distinguished members of the party, not active politically, will be urged to present Martine's claims to the convention. No pains will be spared in putting the real ginger into his campaign.

Already a number of prominent Democrats have volunteered to lend their assistance, among them being former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, who is mentioned as the probable candidate of the party for mayor in that borough. Mr. Saunders is not a Bryan man but is loyal to his party in National and State campaigns, it is said. He is the president of the Warranted Steel Drill Company, of New York, and takes a deep interest in his party's welfare.

"You can say for me," said Mr. Saunders in discussing Martine's boom, "that I would rather be a delegate to the State convention for Martine than even be mayor of North Plainfield. He is a splendid fellow and a loyal Democrat at all times. I like him personally and I have faith in him, sufficient to believe that he would make a most creditable governor. He has a mind of his own and cannot be swayed by selfish or mercenary purposes from the true path of duty. I do not know that I will be named as a delegate but be as it may I will be at Trenton to urge Jim's claims as best I can."

It is said to be the purpose of the Somerset Democrats to name Mr. Saunders as one of its delegates and if he gets on the floor of the convention a ringing speech for the farmer-orator may be expected from him. From what is learned today it is safe to say a number of equally influential members of the party, not active in State politics, will work with might and main for the Plainfielder.

The special "boom" committee consists of John J. Lane, of Summit, chairman; Owen Farrelly, of Elizabeth; J. V. F. Dilts, of Plainfield; Charles H. Moore, of Elizabeth; George B. Cladek, of Rahway, and Judge Owen P. Mahon, of Elizabeth.

POLITICS IN SCHOOLS, SAYS EX-SUPT. SHEARER

ASSERTS HE WILL PROBE HIS SUCCESSOR'S APPOINTMENT.

Asserting that the appointment of Richard E. Clement, until recently principal of School No. 3, to be City Superintendent of Schools in Elizabeth, was the outcome of a political deal, Dr. William J. Shearer, who for years was City Superintendent, announced Friday he had engaged counsel to take into court the action of the Board of Education in making the appointment. He says also politics had to do with the appointment of Peter J. Campbell to succeed Clement in School No. 3, notwithstanding that Campbell simply was promoted from vice principal.

Shearer said he would apply for a writ of quo warranto requiring his successor to show by what right he got the appointment. That, Dr. Shearer said, put the burden of proof on the Board of Education. He asserted that under the Meeker act his term had not expired, but that it ran to January 1, 1908.

The board holds the term of the superintendent was not extended by the law in question and that the position became vacant in July last.

Miss Helen Whitney, of Central avenue, has been entertaining Miss Jessie Dallas, of Westfield.

Miss Kanenna Hansen, of East Second street, has recovered from a recent accident and tomorrow will leave for Oakdale, Ontario, where she will visit relatives for several weeks.

Arthur Denton, who has been spending several days with his mother on Washington avenue, has gone to Asbury Park for the remainder of the month. In September he will return to Brown University, where he is a senior.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

Aug. 25: "Bearing false reproach," "Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you and persecute you and say all manner of evil against you falsely for My sake."—Matt. v. 11, 12.

by REV. WALTER J. YATES, D.D.

Passages for reference—Acts v. 41, 42. 1 Thess. ii. 13-15; Heb. x. 24-39; 1 Pet. iii. 14-18.

This word "blessed" is a great word. It is as peculiar as it is great. It does not mean the same as the words pleasure nor the same as the word happy. It is above both of these, in a different realm. When one has been hungry and thirsty and then finds a fine dinner, there is a feeling of satisfaction that is pleasant, but that feeling is in no sense like blessedness. When one has been perplexed and after a long and hard thought has found a solution of the difficulty or has made a valuable discovery, there is an exhilaration of spirit that makes him happy, but that is not blessedness. There is in each of us capacity for higher enjoyment. When one has come to know that a certain course of action is right and against all inclinations to follow other way has decided to go the right way, there has come a sense of self approval which is high above all the other enjoyments he has known, from either the satisfaction of bodily appetites or mental needs.

When to follow this right course has cost hard struggle and opposition from others, the feeling of approval has been heightened. When to do the true thing has taken all the manhood and womanhood in us, and we have stood firm amid all opposition, conscious that we have been worthy and have made no compromise with evil and wrong, then we have come to know something of the feeling of blessedness. It is heaven and we have paid the cost. No recognition by others can ever equal in value the approval of one's own soul.

When we have chosen our course knowing that it has the approval of God and we have done it because of our regard for God and love of Jesus Christ, we have begun to tread the high places of personality. Opposition will now only make us more firm for the right and good.

There are many things in this world we would like to have, but which we can do without and not suffer great harm. There are some things which we cannot do without and be free from great loss. It will not much signify by and by how many dinners we have enjoyed or lacked. Nor will our knowledge of things, however extensive and accurate, be a source of special gratification. All these things pass. But it will make much difference whether at any moment we have been true in thought, heart or act. These do not pass. They stay and make us what we are to be everlastingly.

These oppositions and persecutions are like the hammer strokes on the iron laid on it and are not in the least in the nature of the metal, but are to actually form it into proper shape. We are in a great part made by the things we suffer. Hardships mold us and beat us into shape. To be sure there is danger of our own going to pieces under the hammer of ridicule and strife, but that only demonstrates that you did not have the right stuff in you to make anything worthy. If you are good for anything you will only toughen like fiber in the blood, and will shout under the fierce fires of the furnace as the dross fuses out and you know yourself coming into purity and value.

Best of all, He who sits as the refiner and fuller knows the heat of the furnace, for He has been through the fires Himself and He watches us and rejoices with us as He sees the work in process.

"Rejoice and be exceeding glad."

God's Diamonds.

There is always a way in which a lapidary tells whether a diamond is genuine or not. He breathes on it, and if the breath lingers there it is a false diamond. If the breath immediately vanishes, it is a real diamond. So he has a searching process after all. So you can tell God's jewel. If the breath of temptation comes on it and soon vanishes, it is a real diamond. But if the breath lingers and it is hard to blow it, it is a false diamond. But better and than all is the grinding machine of affliction. If a soul can go through that and keep bright it is one of God's jewels.—T. De Witt Talmage.

A Refuge When We Clutch.

We cannot only take our hopes and our needs to God, but we also can take Him our mistakes. "God is thy Savior even from the wrong of thy own judgment," as George Macdonald expresses it. We are so apt to be unconsciously our own worst enemies that we continually need such a refuge in God's mercy and wisdom from our disastrous blunders. Even when we cannot forgive ourselves, He forgives and restores us.

How to Save Others.

Because He loved He gave
His life for ye or me or us;
Who would another save
Must give his heart's love thus.
The secret of the Savior's way wait
Till love unlock the golden gate.

Some gifts are only alms
That have no love behind;
In them there are no balms
To heal the troubled mind.
Who gives them has nor joy nor pain,
Who takes them has but little gain.

But he gives more than gold
Who gives because he must.
Riches of worth unfold,
Treasures of love and trust.
Giving must be cannot thus
Unless his heart and hands may give.

So learn thou to bestow
From the great Giver, Christ.
Love's gifts will freely flow
When the heart keeps its trysts.
And no one stops to count the cost
Who's whole glad life to love is lost.
—Marianne Farningham in London Sunday School Times.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Foreign missions—Christ in Mexico and South America.—Ex. xx. 1-6. In this commandment is that which it forbids sets forth the true religious conditions in Mexico and South America. Since the earliest settlements of these great lands they have been largely dominated by Roman Catholicism. This fact, taken together with the natural conditions of the inhabitants of Latin America, has made the vast majority of them idolaters and image worshipers. They have seen Christ represented in images and symbols and have not been able to get far beyond the images. Their conceptions of the real Christ have fallen far short of what a true Christian's conception of Him ought to be.

But a brighter day is dawning in Mexico and South America. Vast progress has been made, especially in South America, in the last twenty-five years, industrially and politically. The great wealth of the various countries is being realized, and they are coming more and more in touch with the life of other nations. The character of the people is being gradually raised to a higher standard.

Moreover, Protestant missions were introduced about the same time as the industrial awakening took place, and good results have followed. The difficulties in the way have been very great, but they are gradually being overcome. It is unquestionable that everstained the soil of these countries with the blood of martyrs has entirely passed away. Though Mexico is so close to the United States, yet in the days of early Christian work no less than sixty of seventy missionaries suffered martyrdom in that land. The American Bible society, the Christian Endeavor society and the prominent religious denominations of our country are earnestly at work in both Mexico and South America. Almost every country in South America is now opened to the gospel, with the result that thousands have been led to Christ. In Brazil especially good results are being produced, and as Brazil goes so goes the whole continent. But there is still a vast amount of work to be done, and every Endeavorer should do his part. Mexico and South America need, above all, our prayers and our sympathy. Consecrated money is also needed. And our country, under the Monroe doctrine, protects them from foreign invasion, the Christian church, under Christ's commission, should protect them from sin and superstition. What will you do for this great work?

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. lii. 12; Nah. i. 15; Ps. cxxxv. 15-21; Prov. ii. 25-31; II Cor. vii. 1-5; Matt. xxvii. 19, 20; Luke xv. 1-10; Rom. x. 14, 15.

The Importance of the Prayer Meeting.

The prayer meeting has fallen upon evil days in many of our churches. The materialism, the rush, the hurry, the unspiritual trend of the time, are against us in many quarters. It needs some reviving influence. The church will always need the unabashed testimony of outspoken believers. "Wanted —A testifying church," might well be printed in every church paper and inscribed over every church wall. That church can never flourish while one man, however eloquent and gifted, does all the preaching and all the praying. It is undemocratic, unscriptural, suicidal. The community of the disciples is the upper room, we may infer from the narrative, did not listen to a sermon, but did engage in a prayer and testimony meeting. Wherever the pentecostal spirit has flourished the prayer meeting or something like it has always existed. Wherever souls are saved and men are brought near to Christ there is some provision for united prayer and open confession of the Master.—Francis E. Clark, D. D., in Pine Tree Endeavorer.

Near Antioch.

A new Christian Endeavor society has been organized at Kassab, at the foot of Mount Casslus, a day's journey from Antioch, in Asia. This society consists entirely of girls and has nearly fifty members. Nearly 200 girls go to the meetings, but many are not ready to join as active members. So many younger children are interested in the work that they will soon start a Junior society for both girls and boys.

A Brightener of Faith.

Many a rusty anchor of our faith has been scoured and polished by the young servants of the church, enlisted under the banner of Christian Endeavor.—Rev. W. W. Sleeper.

Junior Endeavor Song.

My Juniors for Jesus! Saviour mine
Accept these young lives I make Thine.
Not one, but all who round me meet
Bring in contrition to Thy feet.
The Spirit's power in love impart,
And captivate each youthful heart.

My Juniors for Jesus! To my care
These dear ones committed are.
While on my knee they learn to say
The charge which oft my faith sustains
"Go, train these precious souls for Me,
And I will thy rewarder be."

My Juniors for Jesus! One and all
Shall hear through me the Saviour's call
For souls I toil, nor will I rest
While one remains unsaved, unblest.
If Christ could give His life to save,
Sure I can disappointment brave.

My Juniors for Jesus! He who gave
His all for me should surely have
All I possess. My Juniors I bring
And on His sovereign mercy fling.
Each loving soul that He may bless
And fit for endless happiness.

My Juniors for Jesus! Oh, the bliss
Of feeling all my charges is His.
And when the roll-me-one shall come,
The large response will be "Here I am."
How sweet to meet Him in the throne
The Juniors on earth I called my own.
—Herbert Wright in the Australian Christian Endeavor List.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Not a Local Question.

"The liquor question," says the Trenton Free American, "is a local question."

This is not entirely true. It is true that the local option advocates would make the question of licenses or no license purely a local question, and that the Sunday saloon advocates would make the matter of Sunday opening one for local option. Under any locality can decide either of these questions for itself, however, the authority for the locality to exercise such option must be delegated by the Legislature. The liquor question is wholly and solely a State question, as is every question of local government and police power, until authority is delegated by the State to the locality. Under such option law, either as to Sunday selling or no license, Cape May would not be affected. The State as to what should be the excise regulation in Essex, but a Senator or Assemblyman from Cape May has an equal voice with any other legislator in saying whether or not local option in excise matters shall be granted to any part of the State. South Jersey would be opposed to letting down the bars to Sunday selling, as North Jersey is supposed to be opposed generally to no license, but neither section can obtain local option on either phase of the liquor question without the consent of the State, which has a general law delegating such local authority in the matter. For these reasons, the News suggested that the politicians of both parties get together and find a way out of the liquor muddle by letting the people settle the question for themselves by means with the referendum. It is not to be expected that South Jersey Senators will declare themselves in favor of local option on the Sunday selling question, more than it is likely that a majority of North Jersey Senators will declare themselves flatly in favor of local option on the no license question. Whether either form of local option is to be granted, however, is a State question, and must be settled by the whole State. Political expediency, if no better reason, might suggest that it is a safer plan to let the voters of the whole State settle both questions for themselves, by referendum vote, than for either party or any candidate or set of candidates to settle it for them. Declaring for either side of the controversy without consideration or regard for what the popular demand may be in the matter. Whether or not the News's suggestion is the only way to settle the liquor question it will be settled in fact let the people settle it for themselves and it is as logical and sensible to permit a majority of the people of the State to settle what the State's excise policy shall be as it is to allow the people of a smaller locality to settle the local excise policy for themselves. A referendum vote on the establishment of the local option system is simply applying to the establishment of the system the same principle which is to be applied after establishment.—Newark News.

Opposition to Perkins.

The Plainfield Daily Press advises against the renomination of Assemblyman Perkins. It does not doubt the Assemblyman's ability to make a good fight, but calls attention to the lack of wisdom in opposing the strong exhibition of public opinion which has appeared in this district. The "new idea" forces are said to be much opposed to him, the local option people are among his bitterest political enemies, and the organization people generally "knows something about whether a candidate is strong enough to win or not, is said not to favor Mr. Perkins. "It is not a matter of record," adds the Press, "that the ambitious Assemblyman has ever consulted with his constituents before regarding matters of public moment. As a matter of fact, he has acted without consulting anyone, and his acts have not always been such as his people would have them." Possibly among other things, the Press has in mind Mr. Perkins's attitude on the Vanderbilt appointment, which not only did not meet the wishes of his constituents in this county, but was frowned upon by the State generally. The forces working against Mr. Perkins are so strong that it would seem as if the battle would hardly be worth his while. Evidently something is wrong with the Assemblyman in this county, and the sources of the opposition are such as to arouse widespread doubt as to whether he can possibly hope to win.—Elizabeth Journal.

Mr. Burke's Methods.

J. Frank Burke is engaged in an effort to curb the saloons to the point of denying them legal existence. With that in hand a quarrel. He is paid for the work that he does and that is no more than right. Mr. Burke has the support of the churches. Honest, God-fearing men are behind him. So they should be. The one puzzle about Mr. Burke and his labors in New Jersey is his ability to hold the support with which he began, while he resorts to such tactics as have characterized his frequent attacks upon Peter Tillman, one of the Union county Assemblymen, who, while Mr. Tillman was so ill that for many days none conversant with his condition could see any chance of his recovery, Mr. Burke thinks that he should have been in Trenton, attending to labors as a legislator. Only a few days ago, in an address the assault upon Mr. Tillman was renewed and he was denounced as a traitor. It does not seem possible that Mr. Burke can know the facts and still attack Mr. Tillman as he does, and yet, if he does not know the facts, he shows an inattention to details which should be utterly foreign to the work of such a public crusader. —Perth Amboy Chronicle.

A Candidate Eliminated.

A pretty substantial boom for the nomination of Elvin W. Crane for Governor on the Democratic ticket was started in Essex county some days ago but was promptly nipped in the bud when it was brought to his attention by his supporting that he would not consider such a proposition. It must be a matter of regret to Democrats all through the State that such an available candidate and one who possess so many elements of strength as Mr. Crane is thus eliminated from consideration as a candidate. Mr. Crane as a compromise candidate embodies about all the qualities that Democrats throughout the State could ask for in a nominee around whom they could rally and conduct a rousing campaign.

This is all said with full consideration of the fact that Democrats throughout Union county and none more heartily than members of the party in Summit will give to James E. Martine of Plainfield their firm support for the Gubernatorial nominations. But it does not necessarily follow that Mr. Martine's contest will be successful for no one can foresee the complications liable to arise at a State convention. In the event of inability to secure the nomination of Mr. Martine we have heard no name thus far advanced for the honor who would be so certain to lead the party to success as Mr. Crane. He would carry with him the distinction of a long and honorable service as Prosecutor of Pleas in Essex county, and of having brought the party nearer to success when he opposed Foster M. Voorhees than any Democratic nominee in fifteen years and that too under peculiarly trying conditions. He would go into the fight with the prestige of more than a quarter of a century's close connection with politics and public life and without the least taint of a scandal of any kind attached to his career, something that few women in public walks of today can boast.—Summit Record.

Union County's Outing.

Over in Union county a vexatious question has arisen. It is, whether "Bob" Fitzsimmons or the Republican county executive committee has the less power to draw a crowd. It's a singular question to come up at the August end of a political campaign, but it may be settled in fact. The Union County Republican executive committee arranged for its annual outing, with clambake, refreshments, etc., at a grove on Long Island Sound. Hitherto, these outings have been largely successful and very successful; so much so that candidates and other contributors have had to go a second or third time into their inmost pockets to pay for the lobsters. This year the managers invited "Lanky Bob" to go with them and bring free of charge. He doesn't belong in Union, for he lives in Middlesex, but they seemed to think he would draw a big crowd and they could get points for the coming political fight. But strange to say, Fitzsimmons didn't come, the Union crowd didn't come and only small fragments of the county ring came. It was the most unsuccessful outing the Republican county committee ever engineered, and they didn't know whether they or the prize-fighter came the cropper of interest. Codding was there and Perkins was there, but of the faithful but few were present. It seems to indicate a very peculiar condition of political affairs in Union county. —Newark News.

Regular Fiction.

What in former days were known as "campaign lies" now go under the name of fiction. It is a regular fiction, with a special emphasis, this year, on the word "regular." About the first of these of any importance was the recent announcement, in a regular Republican organ, that City Judge Runyon, of Plainfield, had quit *the Colby movement; and the infer*ence was that so far as Union county was concerned Colbyism and reform was dead as factors in the coming campaign.

Judge Runyon led the "new idea" wing of the Republican party in that county last year and made some excellent speeches. What he disclosed of Plainfield politics and politicians had an effect that was abundantly manifest in several parts of the county. For Judge Runyon to quit the reform after making such a success of it would have been a misfortune indeed.

When the Judge was shown the report that he had abandoned the Colby movement, he declared, "This is a lie," and in very emphatic language writing." But not one of the papers that gleefully published the report of his disaffection has taken the trouble to correct it. The Judge has not the time at his disposal, owing to pressure of business, to give the attention to politics he did last fall, but he's a Colbyite and a reformer as much as ever. Indeed, he's a Colbyite candidate for city Judge of Plainfield, and will undoubtedly receive the indorsement of the regular Republicans. If that's an indication of the demise of the "new idea" in Plainfield, make the most of it.—Newark News.

Mr. Perkins' Candidacy.

One by one the elements of weakness in Mr. Perkins' candidacy have been brought forward until many of those who recognize the fact that the Assemblyman has qualities which make him a good legislator, and that he was not without honor at Trenton, have begun a doubt whether it is possible for him to secure a renomination. There is also considerable doubt as to whether he ought to seek a renomination, in view of the opposition which he finds himself facing. Naturally, the Republican organization does not want to takes any unnecessary risks with any candidate. They want to win. What are Mr. Perkins' chances or election? This is the question which those in touch with the situation are asking.

Unfortunately the situation in Union county has grown steadily worse for the Assemblyman. The growing feeling that he is no longer more than technically a resident of the county, the persistent criticism or the local option forces, however unjust they may be, the appearance of a strong feeling that three terms are all that he is entitled to; the revolt against him by the "new idea" people; and lastly and intimately connected with the fact that there is so much opposition to down—is the attitude of the regular party organization, which appears to think that Mr. Perkins has become too great a burden to carry. It is only natural, perhaps, under the circumstances, to find the Westfield Assemblyman openly advised in the press of the county to withdraw from the race.—Elizabeth Journal.

WESTFIELDERS DECLARE FOR RANDOLPH PERKINS

The Union County Standard feels that Westfield is much wrought up over the stand taken by the Republican leaders that three terms is enough for Assemblyman Randolph Perkins and that the latter should let some other worthy party man have a chance to represent the county at Trenton. That Mr. Perkins is due to "walk the plank" there can be no mistake for excepting a handful of men there does not appear to be any strength being in addition to be a perpetual representative in the Lower House. The men who are "barking" for him are said to be Charles H. Angleman, of Rahway; Dennis Burke, of Elizabeth; Charles Codding, of Westfield, and it is alleged City Clerk James T. MacMurray, although the leaders declare that MacMurray is not committed to Perkins by a long shot.

Angleman, himself, is said to have ambitions to go to the Legislature provided Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rahway, does not want another term and is quoted as saying that he will not run. Another Rahway man who would like to go to Trenton is G. M. Howard and still another is T. H. Roberts.

The Westfield Republican committee has endorsed Mr. Perkins for a fourth term. According to the Standard the committee on Monday night took up the matter of assembly candidates, and it was the consensus of opinion that the local organization ought to do all in its power to secure the nomination of Randolph Perkins. It was pointed out that Mr. Perkins was not responsible, it was stated, the town would lose the right to nominate a local man for the lower house, he being the most available local man for the place. Mr. Perkins record in the assembly was carefully reviewed by the committee, it is said, were of one mind in agreeing it was worthy of the unqualified endorsement of his constituents in this town. Mr. Perkins had, it was declared, showed himself an able and independent representative. It was pointed out that the sentiment throughout the county was not adverse to Perkins. His enemies, it was said, were opposing him for personal reasons. The fact that he had already served two full terms in the assembly would not, it was thought, injure his chances for re-election. On the other hand, it was held, his experience and familiarity with legislative matters better qualified him for service."

QUITE A CHANGE.

Halibut only a few years ago was despised except by the poorest. It was used principally as a fertilizer. Halibut steaks today are 25 cents a pound.

The planters of the south when hiring out their slaves stipulated they should not be fed on diamond back terrapin oftener than three times a week. Terrapin is now $100 a dozen.

Hudson river steamboat crews refused to eat "Albany beef" (sturgeon) more than four times a week. At the time a sturgeon weighing 6 pounds, if a female with roe, would sell for $3 or 3. Today such a specimen would bring $125.

Shad! To be called a shad eater, especially in Connecticut, was equivalent to being proposed as a candidate for the poorhouse. A large roe shad was worth at the highest 2 cents. Today the price is $1, and they are scarce at that.—New York Journal.

LITERARY

The August American Magazine is a story number from beginning to end. Even the leading article by Lincoln Steffens is a story. It is an account of the early life of Francis J. Heney, the man who has prosecuted "Abe" Ruef and Mayor Schmitz in San Francisco and the land thieves in Oregon and elsewhere. Mr. Steffens describes Heney as "a fighter who has fought, not only for his life but for his principles." In this first article of his new series, Mr. Steffens takes us Mr. Heney's career for his own life in the wild west. The stories he tells are exciting, and, in some instances, blood-curdling.

The August fiction number of McClure's is an excellent illustration of the development which has taken place in this magazine during the past year. The fiction number of 1906 was remarkably good. The fiction number of 1907 is a marked step forward in the distinctive quality of its stories, the power and authoritative value of its articles, and the general broadening and deepening of its editorial policy. The Orchard Confession, which appears in its second instalment, is of absorbing interest, not only as a remarkable contribution to the literature of criminology, but as a human document which throws light upon one of the most intricate economic situations which has ever existed in this country.

Mr. George Wharton James has contributed an article to the August number of The Circle concerning "A Little Visit to the Home of Luther Burbank" which for several reasons is of peculiar interest. Mr. James is a fellow Californian and an intimate friend of Mr. Burbank, and this "little visit" is but one of many which have made him thoroughly conversant with Burbank the man, as well as with Burbank, the horticulturist. . . . In his story, "Jim," *Mr. D. L. Pierson tells of the splen*did work which the George Junior Republic is doing in the lives of those boys brought up under unfortunate influences, who yet have had a the good fortune to come at last under the sway of "Daddy's Government."

The August issue of the Red Book Magazine comes to hand with an unusually brilliant collection of short tales, just the sort best designed to beguile the idle hours of midsummer in the hammock. The variety of the stories is such, moreover, that it is safe to assume that no one in short fiction may discover something within the brilliant covers to satisfy it. Among the more famous authors who are represented in the issue by their latest work, are Maarten Maartens, the well-known Dutch author who, living in France, writes stories in English

The August Everybody's is a midsummer number, bright with color and offering an inviting spread of short stories for vacation days. However, those who look to a magazine for something besides entertainment, even in hot weather, have not been forgotten, as a generous share of fiction being happily balanced by the first instalment of a new series by Charles Edward Russell. Under the title, "Where Did You Get It Gentlemen?" the author proposes to investigate the sources of some of our "swollen fortunes," beginning in this number with an account of the rise of Thomas F. Ryan.

The fiction number of Scribner's Magazine has been an institution for several years. It has always appeared some of the most notable short stories, stories that have made the reputation of their authors. The present fiction number (August) preserves this worthy tradition, and each story is of unusual interest as a story and of remarkable skill in execution. James B. Connolly writes one of his most amusing comedies of Gloucester fishermen, "The Commandeering of the Lucy Foster," Mary Stewart, in a picturesque language of Captain Wesley Marvin, how a British revenue officer was outwitted by that astute sailor.

The Popular Science Monthly for August contains the following articles: "The Problem of Age, Growth and Death," by Prof. Charles S. Minot; "The Place of Linnaeus in the Unfolding of Science, His Views of the Class Mammalia," by William K. Gregory; "Recent Legislation on the Mississippi River," by Robert Marshall Brown; "Notes on the Development of Telephone Service," by Fred DeLand; "The Re-awakening of the Physical Conscience," by Dr. Richard Cole Newton; "Probability—The Foundation of Eugenics," by Prof. Francis Galton; "Some Little-known Mexican Volcanoes," by Prof. Herdman F. Cleland.

In the August issue of the National Magazine appears a notable effort in contemporaneous literary work. The editor, Joe Mitchell Chapple, publishes a series of timely articles on "The Triumphs of the Canadian West," giving in one number a complete encyclopedia, up-to-date, terse, forceful and sketchily written, of the great Western Empire. It has a tremendous power of Today about it.

THE DUTCH.

The Dutch are not at present much addicted to immigration.

The number of Netherlanders in the Dutch East Indies is barely 12,000.

In the United States, at the time of the last census, there were only 105,000 persons of Dutch birth.

SURFACE MAP OF STATES

Entire Country's Topography Laid Out in Detail with Every Hamlet.

More progress than ever will be made this year on the great map of the country which shows all the surface forms of the land, every hamlet, and every house excepting where they stand closely together in towns and cities. New sheets will be made this season in thirty-one States and four Territories. The summer field work is all outlined except in New York and Pennsylvania. Survey parties are in the field and the work is being vigorously pushed.

No country has ever made such rapid progress with its topographical surveys, area for area, as the United States. Only a little more than a third of our territory is yet surveyed for the purpose of the big map, but this is merely because our land surface, including Alaska, is nearly as large as the whole of Europe. To make as good a map of our domain as that which we can now buy of nearly the whole of Europe we shall have to do nearly as much surveying as all the European powers have done together. Only four of our States—Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey—have so far been completely mapped, but the maps of several other States will soon be finished.

The maps of these States in which the national survey is being carried on with the largest amount of State co-operation will make the most rapid progress. Thus in Ohio, which contributes very liberally in trained men and money to the topographic work in the State, it is expected that thirteen more map sheets will be completed and published in the course of the present season.

The Fairbanks region along the middle Tanana River, Alaska, where many hundreds of miners are working in the placer fields, is being surveyed in detail and a map of it on a scale a mile to an inch will be published next winter. The survey for a map on the same large scale of the Kasaan Peninsula, on Prince of Wales Island, in southeast Alaska, is also being made. A large region spreading across the divide between the Yukon and Tanana Rivers, from the international boundary near Dawson to Fairbanks, will also be surveyed for a map on half that scale. Less than half of Alaska is as yet covered even by preliminary reconnoissance surveys, and it is gratifying that such considerable additions are to be made this year to the detailed surveys for maps on a scale large enough to give us a clear geographical picture of these areas.

The United States Geological Survey for several years past has annually averaged about 35,000 miles of completed topographic surveying. The Bulletin of the American Geographical Society recently said that this is more than the area of any one of a State nearly the size of Indiana and greater than Maine or South Carolina. It is an area nearly equal to that of Portugal and as great as that of Switzerland and Denmark combined, and yet is scarcely one-hundredth of the total area of the United States inclusive of Alaska. The average appropriation for these topographic surveys is about $350,000, and the cost for several years has averaged about $10 a square mile, except in States where more detailed work is done.

When a State contributes to the carrying out of the survey its contribution is devoted to giving the State larger scale maps in which more detailed work is done. Thus the maps of those States which show their interest by helping to defray the cost of the survey contain more information than those of States in which the national survey is working alone.—New York Sun.

PHAETON RUNS INTO PAINTERS' SCAFFOLD

ACCIDENT UNDER RAILROAD BRIDGE; DRIVER HURT; PAINTER ESCAPES.

Failing to notice the high wooden horses placed under the Park avenue bridge, used as a scaffold for the men employed in painting the new iron bridge, Thomas Hyland and Patrick Moran, of Dog Corners, allowed the rig in which they were riding to collide with one of them, while driving beneath the bridge Friday afternoon. The collision upset the one seated phaeton, throwing the two men out. The wooden horse was turned over, but the painters escaped injury to themselves by catching hold of the iron girders and then dropping into the roadway on their feet.

Hyland, the owner of the rig, complained of being injured considerably. His hand was slightly cut, but notwithstanding that he was able to walk about. He had a very hazy idea of how the accident occurred when Patrolman George Dobson questioned him. In reply to every question, he said: "I think so." His phaeton was slightly damaged, but the horse was uninjured.

FRELINGHUYSEN WITHDRAWS.

It is to be regretted that State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen has been compelled by reasons of ill-health to forego a campaign for the gubernatorial nomination. That he had a splendid chance of capturing the nomination—and "capturing" in the right word, for the Raritan man goes after anything he wants hot and heavy—few will deny. As a county chairman and as a State Senator he has made a fine record and has done much for the good of his own constituents and for the betterment of the State's welfare. He is a clean, frank and intelligent type of citizen: one who always fight in the open and keeps himself within the rule of "a square deal for every man."

It is true Senator is but thirty-eight years old despite the fact that the head on his shoulders would give many the impression that he is much older in years as well as in experience. He is conservative to a marked degree but at the same time is a hustler and a live man along progressive and aggressive lines. Probably it is as the father of the auto law and the pure food measure, that he is best known to the people of the State but there are not a few tried and one other excellent ideas and enactments that have been benefited by his able championship.

As he has not yet reached the middle time of life, it is reasonable to expect that he will yet be honored as a candidate for the highest honor that the people can bestow on a citizen of the State. Surely, if he keeps up his present record, and there is no reason to suspect that he will do otherwise, he will make an equally formidable candidate as the equally desirable nominee three years hence. In the meanwhile, we look for him to be as bright a light in the halls of legislation as he has been in the past.

SOME GOOD IDEAS.

In his letter of declination Senator Frelinghuysen supplies the Republican party with some good campaign material. His advocacy of "better government and less politics" and more simplicity in administration and less legislation are keynotes upon which a successful campaign may be waged. In fact the whole issue before the Somerset county committee is filled with ideas which the State committee should "read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" before mapping out its plan of action this fall.

Funny how every man you meet is dead sure that so-and-so is going to get this or that nomination, but then you don't meet the real candidate makers as they are busy enjoying themselves. In this fall these big guns will be back and not until then will they make a "guess" as to which will be picked by the dear "pee-pul."

DOG CATCHER SPURTS ON WIND-UP OF HUNT

HIS ACTIVITIES WILL END ON SEPTEMBER 1—EFFECTS OF HIS WORK.

In a sort of last spurt, Dog Catcher James Babbitt is rounding up unmuzzled canines with the activity that characterized the first few days of his work. The dog-catching will end on this side of the line on September 1, and Babbitt and his assistant are hustling to clear all the strays and worthless dogs from the center of town before the closed season on bow-wows comes in.

The strays have been pretty well cleared from the heart of the city, and the most thickly populated residence districts. Some of the dog-owners have got the muzzle habit, but Babbitt got seven dogs yesterday and six this morning. He and his assistant will hustle every day from now until the first of the month, and it is expected that by then practically every dog without a permanent home will have been cleared out of the city. The effect of the dog catcher's work has been apparent ever since it started. The difference in the number of unmuzzled dogs and of dogs of ill-kempt and worthless appearance, compared with last year, has been more than noticeable.

A DEMENTED MAN GUARDED $40,000

REMOVED TO STATE ASYLUM MADE FIGHT TO PROTECT VALUABLES.

The extremes of old age and youth each showing odd dementia, have been received at the Somerset county jail at Somerville during the twenty-four hours expiring Saturday noon. Philip W. Brown, eighty-two years old, was brought to the jail on Friday hugging an old tin box which contained cash, bonds and securities valued at $40,000, and Frank Sutter, thirteen years old, was turned in last night with an odd delusion in his youthful brain.

The old man with the money was picked up in the Central Railroad Station here he had spent many hours in guarding the treasure, and pleading for a passage to Philadelphia, that he might escape thieves whom he imagined pursued him.

He finally became violent and standing on his treasure box, told a crowd of the value of its contents and defied any one to come near him. He was subdued after a stiff fight and even then it was possible to move only by main strength on him to retain the box. The two were inseparable in the county jail, and every attempt to take it from him was met with violent resistance. He was removed to the State Hospital for the Insane at Trenton and the box, and it was not until he reached the asylum door that Policeman Koch was able to wrest it from him. The policeman carefully guarded the box and handed it over to the authorities.

Brown, who is said to be a resident of Philadelphia, was visiting relatives in East Somerville. He recently showed signs of insanity and had been closely watched. He escaped from his friends in the night.

Young Sutter is said to be a victim of nickel novels. He is the son of Mrs. William Sutter, a widow, who owns a small farm on the Watchung mountain, north of Somerville. The boy spent his days poring over the yellow-covered books until the lurid scenes became as facts to his youthful mind. The blood-curdling dramas were more than his youthful brain could stand.

Two weeks ago he disappeared from his home. He was later picked up in one of the parks of New York city and taken to Bellevue Hospital. He was turned over to his mother, who took him home, but the youth fled, and was locked up here late last night by Superintendent of Police Durling after he had annoyed people on the streets.

GO. K. MEN ARRANGE TO SHOOT AT SEA GIRT

MEMBERS WHO HAVE NOT HAD CHANCE TO SHOOT WILL MAKE SPECIAL TRIP.

Arrangements were completed at a special meeting of Co. K held at the armory last Monday to finish the shooting at Sea Girt within the next few weeks. During the week that the local military were in camp at the shore, there was no opportunity for all of the men to finish the shooting in the qualification for standing at the various distances. The local company has an enviable record when it comes to shooting, and ranks high in numbers of men to qualify for the titles. About thirty of the men were able to finish up the shooting and qualify as marksmen.

At the meeting last night, it was the general sentiment that the shooting be finished up as quickly as possible. There are about a dozen men who are eligible to compete on the range for expertships and probably more than twenty who have a chance to *qualify as marksmen. It was de-*cided that those eligible to shoot at the 800 and 1000-yard range for the title of expert should go to the Sea Girt range this week, Friday and Saturday, to finish up their shooting. It will not be possible for all those who are eligible to compete for marksmen's medals to go to the range at any one time, so it has been arranged that they will go in two delegations, part next Saturday, and part the following week. This is shooting at the 200, 300 and 500-yard ranges.

Washing in the Philippines.

"I am glad to get back home," said the bronzed young soldier, "because I'll be able to get some washing done at last. They don't understand washing in the Philippines. They don't pretend to get the dirt out of your clothes. They take them down to the river—the water is salty—souse them in, lift them out, lay them on a board, and pound them full of holes and break all the buttons with big stones that they hold in each hand. To conclude, they smooth them out with a stick."

Beware of Evil Tidings.

He (at the telephone)—Your mother—yes, how is she this morning? Is she worse?

She—No, she is much better; out of danger this morning.

He (hanging up the receiver)—An infernal machine, this telephone.—Bon Vivant.

"I WILL STICK"-PERKINS FITZ AS RAGING JUDGE

New Idea Opposes his Candidacy for Renomination to Assembly.

HE MEETS MACMURRAY

Assemblyman, City Clerk and Elizabeth Leader Hold a Conference—Claim 75 Delegates.

Assemblyman Perkins, against whom war has been declared by regular leaders and the local option people as well as by the New Idea, came to Plainfield Monday to hold a conference with City Clerk James T. MacMurray. Dennis Burke, an Elizabeth liquor dealer, who is said to be managing Perkins' campaign at the county seat for a fourth term for the Republican leader of the House, also joined the party and after a dinner at Truell Hall they went over the situation thoroughly. Perkins was very optimistic though he admitted that County Chairman Frank H. Smith and others were up against him. The Perkins boomers claim seventy-five delegates to the county convention but the regulars will concede them but a few in Elizabeth and none elsewhere.

When Mr. Perkins was seen today by a representative of The Daily Press he discussed the situation frankly and boldly. He declared that he had heard no sane reason for his being "turned down" and as far as he has been able to ascertain there is no real sentiment against him in Union county.

"You may depend upon it that I will stick to the end for I see no reason for my withdrawal. It has been my constant endeavor to serve the people's interests as their representative at Trenton and the records of the Legislature will show whether I have or did what is best for my constituents and it will also show just how and why I voted on every measure. I do not claim all the credit for the passage of the so-called Perkins equal tax law but it was my aim to bring about that law and I am glad to say that it is on the statute books.

"I only know of one leader who is opposed to me and I don't know his reason but you may depend upon it that I will learn it. Today I have been trying to find some opposition to me here so that I might have a chance to be heard but I have failed for no one I have seen appears to be opposed to my renomination. As for my being 'pig-headed,' there is no foundation for such a report. I have always tried to learn the wishes of my constituents, and to carry them out. I voted against John F. Dryden because the people of Union county did not want him sent back to the United States Senate, in fact I have worked hard for the people's in*terests and I don't think they will* go back on me now."

George W. V. Moy, chairman of the Third ward New Idea committee and prominent leader of the Colbyite faction here, said today that Mr. Perkins could expect no support from that wing of the party. He said that in his opinion the New Idea would be solidly against his renomination. As the Colbyites received the majority of votes in the municipal primaries last fall, his statement is taken as significant of the situation so far as Perkins is concerned.

After the Union county committee meeting in Elizabeth, Monday night, there was a prolonged discussion on the candidacy of Assemblyman Perkins and although there were large representation from Plainfield, Summit, Cranford, Rahway and Elizabeth it is declared that there was no one to say a word in favor of the Westfielder.

STATE SANCTIONS THE WARRENVILLE ROAD

ROAD WILL BE RECONSTRUCTED FROM WATCHUNG TO WARRENVILLE.

The North Plainfield township officials were notified yesterday that State Road Commissioner Hutchinson had sanctioned the construction of two miles of macadam road from Watchung to Warrenville. The improvement is one that has been sought for a long time and its completion will bring increased traffic that way. The Somerset Board of Freeholders has advocated the construction of the road and Freeholder William Demler, of Watchung, has been particularly active in the agitation.

Under the New Jersey statute, the State will pay half the cost of construction, Somerset county will pay a quarter and North Plainfield township stands for the remainder. The property owners along the way are not assessed directly. The roads runs from Watchung past Pedeffous' hotel and the township authorities had agreed to have it properly lighted the entire distance. It will be sixty feet wide all the way and the macadam will be of the heaviest construction.

The number of deaths that occur on the globe amounts to sixty-seven a minute, and the births from about sixty to seventy a minute.

CHURCH INFLUENCE IS DEFEATING PERKINS

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUER TELLS OF MORALITY'S POWER AT LOCAL CHURCH.

*Speaking on the anti-saloon move*ment at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church yesterday morning, Prof. W. M. Burke, of Newark, brother of the Anti-Saloon League superintendent, said that the politicians of New Jersey were beginning to realize the power of the church. He intimated that Assemblyman Perkins was feeling the effect of that influence.

Especially in Union county, the speaker said, was the power felt. The chief element of local option in the legislature last winter, he continued, came from Union county. He was not and would not be the candidate of his party for re-election to the legislature.

Prof. Burke gave a history of the anti-saloon movement. He said in part:

"The work of the Anti-Saloon League could not have been done had it not been for the W. C. T. U., the Prohibitionists and kindred societies, which were the pioneers in temperance reform. Anti-Saloon League work is done in three ways, by agitation, by law enforcement and by legislation.

The church as the conservator of the morals of the community should not be interested in partisan politics, but should endeavor to secure the officers who stand for moral reform. The saloon-keeper is non-partisan, and works merely to advance his business. The Christian should not be more loyal to his party than to his Saviour.

"New Jersey has the poorest liquor legislation of any State in the Union. The Christian people of New Jersey will never allow the Bishops' law, which is merely a law-enforcement measure, to be repealed."

Prof. Burke spoke in the place of Rev. R. R. Curtis, who was unable to come. He occupied the pulpit of the New Market Baptist church, last night.

Boneset Tea.

To make boneset tea take one tablespoonful of boneset, put it in a pint of hot water, letting it draw for fifteen minutes. Sweeten with molasses. When cold take two tablespoonfuls every half-hour. This old-fashioned herb may be obtained at any drug store.

COP BREAKS UP CRAP GAME ON THE SIDEWALK

TWO OF THE GAMESTERS ARRESTED—REGULAR GATHERING FOR PLAY.

Covering his beat in the East End yesterday morning, Policeman George Dobson saw a score or more of young men gathered about a crap game on the sidewalk above Leland avenue on Second street. They caught sight of him as he approached, and ran. Dobson recognized Clarence Sharkey and "Gus" Sutterlein among the fugitives.

Sharkey had a bicycle and started off on that. Dobson was mounted on a wheel, and gave chase. Sharkey rode on the sidewalk and should have out-distanced the policeman, who road on the unfinished roadway, but the cop is an ex-professional racer, and he cut down the fugitive's lead. Sharkey jumped off his wheel after a quarter-mile sprint, abandoned it on the sidewalk, and started across a field on foot. Dobson says he ran faster than he rode. The policeman confiscated the wheel and allowed Sharkey to run.

Dobson arrested Sharkey and Sutterlein this morning, and brought them before Judge Runyon. Accord*ing to their testimony a crowd of* crap shooters have been in the habit of shooting in the East End on Sundays. The woods near where the policeman discovered them yesterday had been the favorite scene of their gatherings.

Sutterlein was fined $10. Sharkey who had never been arrested before and made a frank statement of his part in the game, was released with a warning. He paid Sutterlein's fine. The police heard yesterday that he had won $70 from Sutterlein.

In passing sentence, Judge Runyon said that the crap shooters touched the pinnacle of boldness when they took to playing on a public street, in sight of the passengers on the trolley cars, on Sunday morning. Chief Kiely has detailed men to break up the gatherings, and to round up the players.

WEST END GROCERY WIPED OUT BY FIRE

PREVALENCE OF YOUNGSTERS LENDS COMEDY TO THE EXCITEMENT.

Mrs. Joseph Handelman, whose husband conducts a grocery at Third street and Spooner avenue, undertook to do some sewing on a machine in the rear of the store shortly before 8 o'clock, Monday. She placed a lamp near by and in shifting about knocked it over. The oil tank from which Proprietor Handelman drew his supply for West End customers was just a short distance away and it got the benefit of an explosion that followed. The result was a fire that wiped out the grocery and the building and caused a loss of $1,000.

The store structure was attached to a residence which houses four families, those of Handelman, Simon Klarfeld, Wolf Ox and Antone Aloni. At the first cry of fire everybody turned out pell-mell and when flames were seen shooting from the grocery, a frantic effort was made to save household goods. One of the families is made up of eleven children beside the parents and as the others are plentifully supplied with off*spring the scene can be better imag*ined than described. The youngsters attempted to help in the saving process but only got in the way of their elders and volunteers and every twenty seconds one or more would get stepped on. The mothers finally stopped carting furniture to grab up little Simons, Sam, Rosies and cachaels and corral them in the backyard.

An alarm was turned in from box 43 and the firemen quickly had the blaze under control, keeping it from getting into the residence proper. The only damage it incurred was due to water. Handelman places his loss at $700 with an insurance of $600. Jacob Bachar, the owner of the building, says he is out $300 by the blaze, and Klarfeld figures that $50 will put his furniture back in shape. The department worked forty-five minutes before the recall was sounded.

GOOD TO KNOW.

A pinch of salt added to the coffee will improve its aroma.

Boil lamp burners in a solution of soda and water or weak lye. Then polish.

A salt ham should be soaked in cold water for twelve hours before being cooked.

Oil of sassafras will drive insects from shelves and its odor is very distasteful to flies.

To remove a stain in a marble basin caused by dripping water, apply, with an old tooth brush a little pulverized chalk moistened with ammonia.

Olive oil is superior to lard or butter as a frying medium. Meats, potatoes, in fact everything to be fried in a skillet, taste better for being cooked in oil.

Chemists claim that it takes more than twice as much sugar to sweeten preserves, sauces, etc., if put in when they begin to cook as it does to sweeten after the fruit is cooked.

Makes the 18th Hole, 125 Yards, in One Stroke on Country Club Course.

F. O. REINHART'S WORK

He Captured First Honors For Golf Committee Cup—D. H. Barrows Was Second.

Lieut. N. Pendleton Rogers, Jr., who has just returned from Lake George, where he has been on a furlough pending his return to the Coast Artillery Corps, to which he was recently assigned, accomplished a most remarkable feat in golf on Saturday at the Plainfield Country Club. On the homeward journey playing the eighteenth hole, a distance of 125 yards, he took but one stroke. The play is all the more remarkable because of the fact that it is the second time that Lieut. Rogers has made this hole in one. He did not post his score in the weekly competition.

There were a number of fine scores made on Saturday. Frank O. Reinhart again captured first honors for the Golf committee cup, posting a 74 from scratch. This is a decided improvement in his work of late. Dudley H. Barrows took second honors with a 76 from scratch, while Howard G. Lapsley made a 76 with a handicap of 9. Lester Gurney was next, returning a score of 79 to which was added one stroke, making his net 80. Altogether it was a strong field considering the time of year.

Frank O. Reinhart, 74, 0—74; Dudley H. Barrows, 76, 0—76; Howard G. Lapsley, 85, 9—76; W. Lester Gurney, 79, plus 1—80; Roger F. Murray, 86, 5—81; H. E. Butler, 91, 6—85.

In the weekly competition for the Green committee cup, C. C. Burke, Sr., and Harry Williams were tied for first honors with a net score of 80, while W. F. Merrill finished next with a net of 84. These scores were posted for the trophy:

C. C. Burke, Sr., 90, 10—80; Harry Williams, 107, 27—80; W. F. Merrill, 101, 20—81; C. P. Hamilton, 102, 20—82; Hugh F. Fox, 98, 15—83; W. L. C. Gurney, 105, 19—86. Roger F. Murray made a log on the Scratch cup with a net score of 85. Charles B. Morse finished second with an 88, while E. A. Lyon came in third with an 89.

For the club cup, scratch competition, Mr. Morse won first honors with a 98 and E. A. Lyons and Leon R. Thurlow were tied for the remaining points. These scores were posted for the two cups:

W. V. Bayard, 102, 18—85; Charles B. Morse, 98, 10—88; E. A. Lyons, 111, 22—89; R. V. Carpenter, 117, 26—91; W. E. Lough, 116, 20—96; Leon R. Thurlow, 111, 11—100.

DUNELLEN TAKES GAME FROM RUSHMORE A. C.

RUSSELL PITCHED GILT-EDGED BALL; PLEASED MANAGER IS BOGARDUS.

Great pitching by Russell, catching as brilliant by Moffatt, and timely hitting made the Dunellen A. C. easy victors over the fast Rushmore A. C., of this city, at Dunellen, Saturday afternoon. The score was 9 to 3.

Moffatt nailed five man stealing. Colwell pitched well for the Rushmores, but his support was not exactly the feature of the game. Conway's base-running was noteworthy. Manager Bogardus was pleased more than a little bit by the victory. It was the first game after the turndown of his application for a place in the Inter-City League, and he told his men to go in and demonstrate what they could do when the spurs were at work. Their performance made him look like Jimmy Jim's pet pupil. He is ready to demonstrate that his men are as good as the Bound Brooks or the Y. M. C. A. nine whenever those teams want to give him a date.

Screen Cases Are Weak.

It is now generally admitted that *there is no hope for the city of Eliza*beth winning any considerable number of the cases brought against saloon-keepers for alleged violation of the screen law, which grew out of the Grand Jury crusade. The case with which Lawyer Edward Nugent had secured the dismissal of the charges against the clients in the four trials which have been held has convinced all that the city's chances of winning are very meagre. Sixty cases are yet to be heard.

BANK ON RAILROAD TAXES

Both Stokes and Briggs are Elated Over Recent Court Decisions.

SEE A VICTORY IN FALL

Increase In Revenues In Which Every One of the Taxing Districts of State Will Participate, Removes Bugaboo.

Governor Stokes and United States Senator Briggs, chairman of the Republican State Committee, are especially elated over the court decisions sustaining the constitutionality of the railroad tax acts passed by the Republican Legislature of 1906. These acts increase the taxes on the railroad property of the State from $1,000,000 to $4,000,000, and every taxing district in the commonwealth profits thereby. This eliminates the threatened bugaboo of "State" tax" and benefits the public school system of the commonwealth by the great increase in revenue.

The new laws give to the local taxing districts the taxes from all railroad property outside of the main siding. The main siding, that is the highway of the railroad, is reserved to be taxed by the State at an average tax rate of all the municipalities. The proceeds of the latter are, with only a small percentage, deducted for State purposes and devoted directly to the public schools. This will permit the reduction of the school tax from $2.75 on $1,000 valuation to, perhaps, $2.

Because of this increased revenue the State will this year apportion, in addition to the $1,679,519.42 already apportioned, the following sums for school purposes in the various counties: Atlantic, $97,255.24; Bergen, $97,723.74; Burlington, $46,583.25; Camden, $100,034.64; Cape May, $32,466.98; Cumberland, $32,905.05; Essex, $679,115.65; Gloucester, $20,026.47; Hudson, $481,442.24; Hunterdon, $31,479.35; Mercer, $127,885.73; Middlesex, $75,041.74; Monmouth, $123,352.82; Morris, 962,389.62; Ocean, $23,121.26; Passaic, $211,994.42; Sussex, $21,244.03; Salem, $20,983.2; Somerset, $22,079.87; Union, $153,269.15; Warren, $21,311.98. The total amount use for school purposes for the year will be $7,048,945.96.

The amounts to be collected by the different counties from special-class railroad property, to be used for local purposes, will be about as follows: Atlantic, $6,314; Bergen, $10,035.87; Burlington, $2,910.94; Camden, $32,336.79; Cape May, $3,610.67; Cumberland, $4,162.82; Essex, $75,926.36; Gloucester, $1,774.32; Hudson, $868,164.56; Hunterdon, $5,566.24; Mercer, $13,518.88; Middlesex, $46,960.24; Monmouth, $9,079.13; Morris, $10,626.08; Ocean, $2,719.50; Passaic, $13,489.87; Salem, $562.67; Somerset, $2,324.94; Sussex, $2,138.2; Union, $46,908.16; Warren, $10,078.19.

With this fine record in catering to the interests of the people, the Republican leaders enter into the present campaign with confidence that they will be continued in charge of the affairs of the State, particularly in view of the additional reforms now pending before the Legislature and sure to be enacted next winter, if not before the adjournment of the present session.

Another thin in favor of the Republicans is the fact that the investigation now being conducted by members of the select committee of the Democratic House has failed to disclose anything radically wrong, excepting at the State Hospital for the Insane, this city, which has been for years under Democratic domination.

"MARTY" BESTS BOGEY BY FIVE.

Local "Pro." Wins Match Against Mackie and Adams, With Ease.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the Country Club "pro" went to New York yesterday, with J. Duff, of Yonkers, and played J. Mackey and Henry Adams, in a foursome, at the Dyckman course. The Plainfielder and his mate were victorious, beating the other team two up in eighteen holes. When the match was arranged, Adams was to play with George Tiffany but Tiffany did not show up and Mackie, the professional, who was at the club house, went in with Adams to make up the foursome.

The local "pro" was in fine form and finished with a net five strokes under the bogey for the course. "Marty" put three fours in on 435, 480 and 385-yard holes near the end of the match, and his mate, Duff, made a 230 and a 260-yard hole in three strokes apiece.

"BEEBE" WAS VICTIM OF ALCOHOL AND FATE

TALE OF YOUNG MAN, UNDILUTED SPIRITS AND EVIL FORTUNE.

A young man full of uncorked joy attracted Judge Runyon's attention in an Arlington avenue trolley car last night. He announced himself as Kid Beebe, pugilist, and told the passengers what a good man he was in the ring. He asked a young man next to him to hive a drink and tried to give his transfer to the magistrate.

When Max Calehuff, 31 years old, of Piscataway township, arrested on Somerset street by Policeman Con McCarthy last night, for helpless drunkenness, was arraigned before him this morning, the judge recognized him as "Kid Beebe."

"Are you Kid Beebe?" was asked by the magistrate.

The prisoner grinned.

"Sir," he said, "Beebe is a fancy kid. He's the lover of the prize ring. He, I'm just a good drinker. What put me under yesterday was alcohol, plain alcohol. I drank nearly two bottles of it. I can suck up twenty shots of thirty rollers right under, and my gait on whiskey is just as good. But I aint got my guage on alcohol yet."

Calehuff's alcohol drunk was not attended by any disorder, and Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

Calehuff discovered the real reason for his arrest in bathering up the things that were taken from his pockets when he was searched. He showed it to a reporter.

"There's what did me," he said with conviction. It was a blue card from a "fortune telling" machine, with a "fortune" printed on it. The second sentence read: "Go ahead carefully; law is unfavorable to you."

"There was no beating that," said Calehuff. He regarded the card with silent respect, then put it carefully in his pocket.

FRANK O. BRIGGS TO GIVE THE TROPHY

FOR NEW TEAM MATCH NEXT MONTH AT SEA GIRT.

After the National Rifle Matches and those of the National Rifle Association, which will be shot at Camp Perry, Ohio, the attention of the rifle world will be turned toward Sea Girt, where the matches of the New Jersey State Rifle Association will be shot from September 30 to 7 inclusive. Probably a majority of the teams from Camp Perry, certainly a large number, will proceed to Sea Girt for these matches. Sea Girt has long been famous for its rifle matches and possesses one of the best ranges in the country.

The principal match will be that for the Dryden Trophy, presented by former Senator Dryden, of this State, one of the handsomest trophies in the country. It is open to the same teams as are eligible for the National Match, except that the teams shall be composed of eight instead of twelve men. The distances are 200, 600 and 1,000 yards.

The Dryden Trophy carries with it $150 in cash, with $100 to the second team and $50 to the third team. There is also the Interstate Regimental Team Match, open to battalions and separate organizations of the United States service and to the regiments of the National Guard. This is a new match, the trophy for which was presented by Hon. Frank O. Briggs, United States Senator from New Jersey, and carries with it a number of cash prizes.

There will also be the Company Team Match, Company Tyro Match, Columbia Trophy Match, Carbine Team Match, Veteran Organization Team Match, Gould Rapid-fire Team Match, Individual Rapid-fire Match, All-Comers Military Match, Hayes Match, Gen. E. F. Meany Match, New Jersey State Rifle Association Trophy Match, Spencer Match, Reading Match, Hale Match and Press and Inspectors' Matches.

There will also be a number of revolver matches. A new match will be the trophy for the Sea Girt championship of 1907, for a medal given by the Governor of New Jersey, and a number of cash prizes.

Altogether there will be several thousand dollars in cash distributed as well as the prizes of a large number of medals. The railroads have made a special rate of one and one-third fare for the round-trip to this match.

No Two Mouths Alike.

Dr. Paul Prager, an Austrian army surgeon, who has made a special study of methods of identification, recommends that prisoners should be identified by the shape of their palates. Dr. Prager declares that the method would be much more relible than any at present used, for among the thousands of moulds he has taken of the interior of the human mouth he has failed to find two which even slightly resemble each other. Although the teeth alter greatly with time, the markings of the palate remain unchanged throughout life.

WELCOME MR. ACKERMAN

While Gathering Data Abroad for State, Senator Receives Marked Honors.

IN LONDON ESPECIALLY

Admitted to Floor of House of Commons During an Important Debate—Home Office Helps Him.

Signal honors have been paid to the State of New Jersey by foreign countries where State Senator Ernest R. Particularly was this is the case during his stay in London.

tion and marked kindness of a member of Parliament from Ireland, a personal friend of Mr. Ackerman, particular considerations were given by the Home office over which Herbert Gladstone, son of the late prime minister, presides, to the inquiries propounded by Mr. Ackerman and much valuable data was secured in connection with the mission abroad.

Mr. Ackerman also had the privilege of practically enjoying the courtesy of the floor of the House of Commons while in session and at a time of important public debate. The Prime Minister of England and the Chancellor of the Exechequer were present—one latter making extended remarks upon the finances of the British Empire, that subject being under discussion.

Among the other countries where Mr. Ackerman received marked consideration was Belgium. He visited its capital, Brussells, about two weeks ago and gathered some valuable data there. It is understood that the Senator is now at The Hague.

FROM SHERWIN'S SIDE

in effect, when fifty per cent of the indebtedness had been paid, he would cancel the mortgage, that the debt is now fully paid and that the chattel mortgage should be cancelled. Mr. Greacen has not yet denied this agreement under oath. This may account for the strenuous and unusual efforts being made to make the public think that Mr. Sherwin has been forced out of business. The usual place of ascertaining the truth of a fact is in the courts and not by coercive measures in silence and injure one of the outside.

"Respectfully,
"W. S. ANGLEMAN."

BOUND BROOK DEFEATED

Clinton Avenue Team Wins With Ease With Randolph in the Box.

SCORE WAS 9 TO 1

Manager Dorflinger Has Arranged Three Games With Somerville For Next Month.

The coming champions—the Clinton Avenues—had everything their own way at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, when they played the Laurels, of Bound Brook, in one of the amateur league contests. The visitors were simply outclassed from the start, and could not possibly hope to win against the effective pitching of Randolph. He allowed them but four hits and there never was a time when there was any danger of the Laurels getting away with him. The final score was 9 to 1 in favor of Clinton Avenue.

On the other hand, the home team touched Harney up for sixteen hits, including a couple of three sackers and a couple of two baggers. They scored three runs in the first inning, one in the second, four in the sixth and one in the eighth. Bound Brook's only tally was in the fifth inning and that was more of a mistake than anything.

On Saturday Clinton Avenue will play the first of a series of three games with Westfield, at the latter place. At the same time the Y. M. C. A. will play Scotch Plains on Crescent Oval. Manager Dorflinger has arranged three games with Somerville, to be played in September.

LOU WILTSE BACK IN EASTERN LEAGUE FOLD

REINSTATED AND SIGNED BY THE NEWARKS—PITCHERS STRONG GAME.

Lou Wiltse reappeared in the Eastern League yesterday. He has signed with the Newark Club. The deal with Johnstown, of the Tri-State League, was completed Saturday, and Lou promptly reported to Manager Burnham, prepared for anything in the way of batsmen.

He was given an early chance. La Belle, who was sent in against the Rochesters, was hammered hard, and sank in an ocean of runs before the end of the third inning. With the score 9 to 0, Low went in and checked the mad rush of the Broncoes. They got four hits off him.

The ex-outlaw feels fine, and is ready for the hardest kind of a campaign. His arm, he says, was never better, and he intends to keep himself in this pink of condition. The Johnstown management and fans are sore over his going. The manager who was generous enough to consent to his return to the Eastern league was released yesterday for having done it. Wiltse has been playing well, and as a drawing card for the Johnstowns, in every game, the stick practice he has had ought to make him valuable to Burnham.

Mrs. O. M. Meeker has been serving as substitute stenographer of the Plainfield street commissioner, in her old position.

Frederick Holden is spending three weeks at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Tappen, of Piscataway.

D. C. IVINS COMES OUT IN FAVOR OF MARTINE

HE IS ANXIOUS TO GO TO CONVENTION AS A "SHOUTER."

In support of the candidacy of James E. Martine for the Democratic nomination for Governor, DeWitt C. Ivins has written a strong letter from his country place at Big Moose, in the Adirondacks. He comes out for the Plainfield leader, as strongly as did former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, who spoke enthusiastically in favor of Mr. Martine's nomination.

The letter from Mr. Ivins is addressed to Mr. Martine himself. He offers to go to the Democratic convention as a Martine delegate, and assures the Farmer Orator of his eagerness to figure— the words are his own—as a "Martine shouter."

The support accorded Mr. Martine by Mr. Saunders and Mr. Ivins is significant. The former is head of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, and the latter is a contractor doing a big business in New York. Both are more widely known as prominent business men than as politicians, and this lends to their support unusual strength at this stage of the Martine boom. The endorsement of men of that character compels attention from the Democrats who are purely politicians.

SUMMER REFRESHMENT.

It must be a dainty morsel to tempt us in the hot summer afternoons and evenings, and yet an appropriate little spread is just the thing to refresh one on an oppressive day.

It is impossible to buy fresh biscuit or wafers in bulk. To be good they must be newly-baked and perfectly protected.

The National Biscuit Company comes to the rescue with biscuit and wafers of all kinds in moisture and dust-proof packages that so preserve their oven freshness, that their real age dates only from the time the package is opened.

Perhaps the most popular for the summer season are Social Tea Biscuit. For porch or lawn, picnic or party, luncheon, supper, tea or dessert, they are equally good and always appropriate.

Social Tea Biscuit should be served from the original package if you wish to enjoy them to the fullest extent, because when the box is opened and the crisp little biscuit eaten at once, it is just like taking them from the oven. All their goodness and flavor is there for you to enjoy. The package itself is artistically designed that its attractive appearance alone would prompt you to serve Social Tea Biscuit in this way. The first trial will suggest to you at once the various uses and occasions for which they would be just the thing.

Magnifying Choir Leader's Voice.

In the old village of Braybrook in Northamptonshire, England, is a megaphone trumpet five six inches in length, and having a bell-shaped end two feet one inch in diameter. The trumpet is made up of ten rings, which in turn are made of smaller parts. The use of this trumpet—only four of the kind are known to exist at the present day—was in magnifying the voice of the leader in the choir and summon the people to the church service. At the present time neither the choir nor the service is in need of this xtraordinary "musical instrument," but the vicar of the church takes care of the ancient relic and is fond of showin it to all visitors.

Establishing a Fact

By W. CRAWFORD SHERLOCK.

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"I'm an utter failure, Margaret."

"Don't talk that way, Tom," urged Margaret, soothingly. "You are not a failure, and you're not worthless nor incompetent, either. You are just the best boy that ever lived."

Tom Carlton stretched his great length on the grass by Margaret's side and for a few minutes contented himself with fervent, admiring glances into her dark blue eyes.

"It's nice to have some one who believes in you," he said at last; "but I'm afraid your confidence is misplaced. I've been discharged from the office."

"That was through no fault of yours," she declared confidently. "You always try to do your duty."

"The chief wasn't in a very good humor, so he began to squint over my work and found two mistakes. Each of the same amount, on opposite sides of the ledger. It balanced all right, but it was dead wrong, all the same. Well, the chief ripped off a yard or two of choice but rather inelegant English and wound up by declaring that there wasn't another man in the world who would have made such mistakes, egregious blunders he called them."

"Everybody makes mistakes," affirmed Margaret spiritedly. "You should have told him that."

"I didn't," Tom returned dejectedly. "I got fired."

"Poor boy," whispered Margaret, tenderly stroking his curly brown hair. "Don't worry about it; you will get another and perhaps a better place."

"Margaret, I'll never be a clerk if I live to be a hundred," declared Carlton with conviction. "I have tried my best and made more mistakes than any man in the office. You'd better cut loose from me, Margaret, before I ruin your chances in life."

"I'll do nothing of the kind, Tom," asserted the girl emphatically. "I'm not afraid to trust my future to you. You have brains and will make a name for yourself yet. That attention of yours would bring you a fortune if you could only get it started."

"That's it, Margaret, but I can't get it started without money, and money I have not, nor any prospects of any."

"Are you sure your Aunt Sarah did not leave you some?" inquired Margaret earnestly. "She promised to, you know."

"I believe she intended to leave me some money," returned Carlton bitterly, "but I can't prove that she did. Aunt Sarah was under some deep obligations to my father in his early life, and always said she intended to do something liberal for me, but old Arnold, her husband, kept her tight string on the family purse during his life and at his death left his money in trust for his wife during her life-time and then to his four children. Aunt Sarah told me over and over again that she was saving every cent of the income for me, but when she died my cousins knew nothing of such a plan, nor was any will found. Consequently, I get nothing."

For fifteen minutes neither spoke. Carlton was gloomily reflecting upon the possibilities of providing a home and caring for the girl to whom he had been engaged for the last three years. Margaret, meanwhile, was debating within herself the advisability of giving up her trip to Europe as companion to Mrs. Harper.

"Tom, I'm going to stay at home. I will not go to Europe with Mrs. Harper."

"You're a good girl, lassie," declared Carlton, rising on his elbow and slipping his arm around her waist, "but I want you to go. You would lose a position and it would be a loss of two of a kind then. I have a plan that may make our fortunes and I want you to go."

"What is your plan?"

"I can't tell you, Margaret. I want to find out whether my aunt really did intend to leave me any money and I am going to try a ruse on my beloved cousins."

The following week Margaret sailed for Geneva in company with Mrs. Harper. Carlton was at the wharf to see them off and watched the big steamer until it was out of sight.

For several days after Margaret's departure Carlton remained at home, and every evening a soft-clad, soft-treading man, dressed in black, called to see him.

It soon became rumored in the neighborhood that Mr. Carlton was quite ill, and this news was sent to his cousins, who called to see him. His condition seemed to be of some concern, however, and one morning the neighbors noticed a black crepe on the door of the little cottage.

In the parlor was a plain coffin in which Carlton lay. His face was pale and dark circles were beneath his eyes, as if he had suffered greatly during his illness. By the side of the coffin stood Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Hopkins and Thomas and John Arnold, the four cousins of Carlton and the children of Aunt Sarah.

"What a pity poor Tom died so young," said Mrs. Porter, wiping her eyes with a dainty handkerchief. "He was such a handsome man, so like his father."

"I feel just dreadful, Mary," sniffed Mrs. Hopkins, hysterically, "when I think what we did to him when mother died. It was just awful."

"It was our mother's money, Clara," observed John Arnold, coldly. "We had more right to it than Tom Carlton had."

There wasn't any will," interposed Thomas Arnold. "All mother left was a scrap of paper saying she wanted the twenty thousand she had saved to go to Cousin Tom."

"It was signed by her," argued Mrs. Hopkins, "and even if it wasn't witnessed, we ought to have carried out her wishes. I am going to take my share and build a handsome monument over this poor boy's grave."

"There'll be no need of that, Cousin Clara," observed a voice in no degree sepulchral. Tom Carlton had risen in his coffin and was surveying the group with a bland smile. "Just give me the money in cold cash. It will do me more good."

At this unexpected announcement Mrs. Hopkins sank back in a chair speechless with fright, while Mrs. Porter uttered a series of screams that would have aroused the neighborhood if Carlton's home had not been somewhat isolated. John and Thomas Arnold stared in blank amazement at the supposed dead cousin.

"What does this mean, Carlton?" demanded John Arnold, sternly. "What kind of a trick have you been playing upon us?"

"I wished to find out if Aunt Sarah had left me any money," returned Carlton affably, "and I have succeeded. I shall expect each of my beloved cousins to hand me over five thousand dollars."

"You'll never get it," retorted Thomas Arnold savagely. "What you have learned to-day will not do you any good."

"Mr. Tyndall!" called Carlton, and the soft-voiced, soft-treading man in black stepped from behind the portieres. "You have heard what these people said about my aunt's intentions regarding me?" Mr. Tyndall bowed affirmatively. "Now, my cousins," continued Carlton quietly, "I'm going to give you a chance to settle this matter quietly or take the consequences. The courts have decided that a bequest, duly signed by the testatrix, even if not witnessed, is a will and the law provides a fitting punishment for those destroying or withholding a will. I may lose the case, but it will produce some publicity that will be decidedly unpleasant for you."

A lengthy consultation ensued between the brothers and sisters, during which Carlton washed the dark circles from beneath his eyes and the powder from his face, while Mr. Tyndall removed the crepe from the front door and carried the coffin to the attic.

When the result of his cousins' deliberations was made known to Carlton he rushed out and sent the following cablegram to Margaret:

"Aunt Sarah's legacy received. Come home."

POLITE LANGUAGE FAILED HIM.

Comment on Soup Was Worth Forfeiture of Nickel.

There are two little brothers, now living in New York, who came here not long ago from a Western army post. Their father, an officer, had been stationed there for several years, and the boys were born there. The free, outdoor life threw them much with the cavalry troopers of the post, and their vocabulary is picturesquely sprinkled with vigorous expressions. This fact, somehow, was not so noticeable in the west, but after the youngsters came here to live the family began a determined effort to break them of profanity.

"I will give each of you two boys five cents for every day on which you don't swear," said the father, "but, mind you, you lose it if you forget yourself even once."

Since then the two have earned considerable money, and, though there have been many days when the sum had to be forfeited, there has been a steady improvement.

There are times, however, as the boys can bear witness, which pass beyond all endurance. For instance, the other evening when the brothers were dining with their parents at their grandfather's, a soup, which was a distinct failure, was placed upon the table. The grown people, after tasting it, were too polite to make any comments, but contented themselves with leaving it unfinished. Not so the boys. Disappointment and disapproval were evident on their faces. At last in the case of the younger his feelings had to find expression.

"Papa," he asked, "will you surely make me lose my five cents if I swear?"

"Certainly, son; you know that," was the answer.

"Well, then," *remarked the five-*year-old, "you can keep your money to-day, for this is d—— bad soup!"—New York Times.

Literary Arts and Crafts.

There is an explanation of the dearth of poetry offered by the Youth's Companion that deserves consideration. It is that the poets have been drawn into the maelstrom of commercialism and have established rising factories, when they used to devote as much time to producing a single sonnet as if now taken to turn out a volume. Perhaps some literary arts and crafts society will start a revival of hand-made poetry.

Even Nature Needs Advertising.

It is worth while to note the stern fact that even the wonders of creation do not actually attract any special attention unless some advertising man gets busy. The railroads really make Niagara falls go, the Philistine truly says. They are advertising it continually as a continuous performance and filling people with a desire to go there, then transporting them for a consideration.

MAY REMOVE THE CASINO

Plans to Place Structure on the Riding and Driving Club's Grounds.

MUCH NEEDED THERE.

Building Would Be Used As Club House By Two Organizations About to Be Merged.

Plans are under consideration for the removal of the Casino building from its present location at Arlington avenue and West Seventh street to the show grounds of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club at Randolph road and Woodland avenue, where it may be used jointly by the organization and the Watchung Hunt Club, according to the proposed merger. Mayor Charles J. Fisk, as president of the hunt club, it is reported, is interested in the matter, and has consulted an architect, who declares that the plan is a feasible one and can be easily accomplished. The scheme is to take the structure down in sections and in this way transport it to the new location. Owing to the size of the building it would be impossible to move it intact through the streets.

The Casino has for a long time been used as a playhouse and for society affairs, in fact it is the only place in the city where it is possible for the class of functions which have been held there, as well as the numerous meetings of all kinds including those of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, the Monday Afternoon Club, the Civic Improvement Committee and many other organizations.

An effort was made last winter to form a university club, take over the property and adapt it to the needs of a college club. The proposition to make it strictly a college organization met with some opposition because it was claimed that there are not a sufficient number of graduates to make the scheme a paying one. Then it was proposed to take in other influential men who were not college graduates, but this did not meet with any better success.

Still another plan to organize a club for men, similar to the old Union County Country Club, failed. A committee was appointed to secure subscriptions and to draft a constitution and bylaws. This was done, several hundred dollars being subscribed. The constitution and bylaws were received and approved, but since then nothing has been done and it is not likely that there will come a time when the latest scheme seems to meet with the approval of all the members of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, as well as the hunt organization, and the chances are strongly in favor of it being accomplished.

The building is suitable in every way for a clubhouse such as is needed at the show grounds and if a new building should be erected, the general arrangement could scarcely be improved upon.

BOROUGH CLERK HAS FORMER MAYOR FIELD

GETS SQUARE WITH MR. MORSE BECAUSE LATTER FIRED HIM OUT.

Frank W. Morse, of this city, who enjoys the distinction of being Garwood's first Mayor, and C. D. Castleight, borough clerk of that place, met in the office of the former at Garwood a few days ago and in discussing borough affairs differences arose which resulted in a war of words, culminating in the arrest of Mr. Morse on the charge of assault. The former Mayor gave bonds and was held to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The trouble which led to the arrest of Mr. Morse came when he ordered the clerk to leave his office. Mr. Castleight refused to go and Mr. Morse started to eject the official from the place. The fact that he is said to have placed his hands on the clerk in carrying out his intention to remove the clerk from the office constituted a technical charge of assault, which Mr. Castleight preferred against Mr. Morse. The incident caused a sensation among the residents of Garwood, and it is expected that when the case comes up the whole borough will be on hand to witness the proceedings, but it is not believed that the case will be taken seriously by the grand jury.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Vanderhoef, of West Front street, will go to Asbury Park, this week to spend their vacation.

Charles Smith and family, of Grove street, have gone to Pelmly Farm, Lebanon, N. J., for their vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Lynn and daughters, of Grant avenue, are spending their vacation at Atlantic City.

Miss Minnie Brokaw, of this city, has been spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Brokaw, of Harlingen.

STILL ANOTHER CLAIMANT FOR ENGLISH MILLIONS

MORRISTOWN WOMAN WANTS SHARE OF SIR THOS. MOORE'S WEALTH.

Mrs. Steward Wilson, of Cleveland street, Morristown, has recently proven, she believes, a clear title to a share in the estate of Sir Thomas Moore, of England, which has for many years been tied up in the courts of Great Britain, and which Mrs. Wilson has been informed amounts to something like $40,000,000. Her lawyers have lodged a claim to a share of the estate for her, her descent from Sir Thomas Moore being clear. Sir Thomas had, it is said, three sons, Thomas, Joseph and Benjamin, the dates of their birth being 1703, 1705 and 1707. They came to America in 1725 and located in the southern part of this State. When an announcement of the death of their father was received here the eldest son, Thomas, returned to England to take possession of the estate. Several years later Thomas died intestate, leaving no issue, and his two brothers, still living in New Jersey, claimed the estate and filed their claim in the proper English court. While their claims were being adjusted Benjamin died, also intestate and leaving no issue, and the estate then vested in Joseph, the sole remaining heir. Joseph's eldest son, Edminster, whose baptism and death are of record, and who remained in this country, as did his brother, three sons, Joseph, John and Gersham, all three of whom enlisted in the Patriot army at the time of the Revolutionary War. John was killed during the war, his brothers surviving, and among their children Ruth Moore, daughter of Joseph, married John Stites, they being the grandparents of Mrs. Wilson. All of the births, marriages and deaths, back to Edminster, are traced in family Bibles, now in possession of Mrs. Bolsterli, who is a descendant of Gersham Moore. Mrs. Wilson, who is about sixty years of age, says there were always family legends regarding the fortune awaiting them in England, but when she was 16 she declared they are no longer a myth, but their title to the fortune is a well authenticated fact and only awaits the action of the English courts to give them some enjoyment of it.

ASSAILS THE JUDICIARY

Aldert Freeman Accuses Justice Gummere, C. W. Riker and Others.

GRAND JURY SECRETS

New Idea Leader, Says Riker, Backed By Gummere, Strove to Stop Indictment of Public Service Officials.

Alden Freeman, chairman of the Essex County Committee of the Independents, was at a dinner at his home in East Orange, Thursday, to Frank H. Sommer, sheriff of Essex county and a candidate for the nomination for Governor, bitterly attacked Chandler W. Riker, who is spoken of as a possible candidate for Governor on the republican ticket; his brother, Supreme Court Clerk William Riker, Chief Justice William S. Gummere, and ex-Senator James Smith, Jr. In doing so he revealed the proceedings of the Grand Jury which investigated the wreck of a trolley car crowded with school children in Newark. He charged Chandler Riker and Justice Gummere with having endeavored at that time to prevent the return of indictments against the officials of the trolley company for criminal negligence.

"I would warn the people of New Jersey against electing to public office, especially to the Governorship, any man who has been appointed to the Judiciary, to a Public Prosecutorship, or to any State Board of Taxation or Assessment," said Mr. Freeman. "The Trail of the Serpent" lies over them all.

Welcomes Riker's Defection.

"So I say that I only rejoice at the apparent defection from the Colby ranks of the 'Boss of Orange,' William Riker. He was not at the earliest meetings in which the Colby campaign was started. When Gardner Colby told me that Mr. Riker was coming to a conference at Everett Colby's house in Llewellyn Park, I strongly protested, but was overridden. I said to Gardner Colby that I was sure he would live to regret the day that William Riker was included in our counsels. I told him that I could never see any difference between Boss Riker and Boss Lentz save the one was in power and the other out.

"His brother Chandler W. Riker's connection with the movement has been even less. This spring Everett Colby called me up on the telephone and asked if I could stand for Chandler for Governor. I said I could stand for any man who sincerely stood for the principles we are fighting for. I later saw Mr. Colby at headquarters and told him I should believe Chandler W. Riker was really converted to the new idea if he would stand for two things: The taxation of trolley and other public service franchises on the same terms that you and I pay our taxes, and that he agreed to openly support the Colby Assemblymen.

"Mr. Colby went out to lunch with Mr. Riker, and about 2:30 o'clock I saw him again, when he said that Mr. Riker was unwilling to stand for either proposal. Regarding equal taxation, Mr. Riker said he had a much less drastic plan, which was the Ford Franchise law, passed and approved when Roosevelt was Governor of New York, and since declared constitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Not a Foe to Special Privileges.

"In connection with my personal knowledge of Chandler Riker's activities this seemed very significant and conclusive to my mind. The former public prosecutor of Essex county was never either a foe to special privilege nor likely to take the side of the people in any contest with corporations. My earliest knowledge of him was as the chief representative for the trolley companies, while they were fastening their grip upon the highways in the Oranges.

"But I feel that I made the acquaintance of the real Chandler Riker when a member of Sheriff Nicoll's first Grand Jury, the December jury, of 1902. On that terrible 19th day of February, 1903, which Newarkers will never forget, I was still on duty in the Grand Jury. Aside from the horror of it which grew as we examined the crippled victims on crutches in the jury room or in their cots at the hospital, my most vivid recollection was the strenuous effort on the part of both Chandler Riker and Chief Justice Gummere, to prevent the bringing in of an indictment. The jurymen were most unanimous in favor of separate individual indictments for manslaughter against various officers of the North Jersey Street Railway Company, and each member of the Executive Committee of the corporation, and directed the public prosecutor to prepare such indictments.

"For a week we kept asking for the indictments ordered from the prosecutor. Different members of the jury in the meantime told me that they were being approached from the outside. One man told me he was offered fifty one-thousand-dollar bills by the son of one of the officers of the company to use his influence to quash the indictment. The same man told me of loans called by financial institutions of Newark and contracts held up.

"After this week of suspense Mr. Riker finally brought in an indictment of all the men in a bunch instead of the separate, individual indictments ordered. I protested with all the power I possessed, and was ably supported by some of the finest men I have ever met, but the week's delay of the prosecutor had done the work, although the trick of the blanket indictment was fully exposed.

"Mr. Riker was greatly excited. I recall that his hands shook as though with the palsy, although his face remained immobile. He made his final effort when he said the Chief Justice wished us to go before him and let him advise us. I resented the invasion of the rights of the Grand Jury. I said that if Justice Gummere had anything to say to the Grand Jury, let him come before us like any other citizen, that the functions of the Grand Jury and those of the Chief Justice were entirely distinct, and that he had no right to thus encroach upon the rights of the Grand Jury, which was a co-ordinate part of our judicial system, and the only weapon left in the hands of an outraged people with which tyranny can be successfully met.

"Chandler Riker's pleadings finally prevailed against me then, and a committee was appointed to wait upon the Chief Justice. It was insisted that I should go along.

Justice Gummere Attacked.

"The Chief Justice received us, and we found Justice Gummere even more agitated than the Public Prosecutor. The Chief Justice made a long argument against indicting. He said we must have reasonable ground to show criminal negligence. We brought up the warning of Mayor Doremus in his message, and various warnings of a similar nature by citizens and particularly the words of the President of the Lackawanna Railroad, Samuel Sloan, who told the trolley people before they laid their rails across the railroad tracks that there would inevitably be an awful smash-up some fine day and that as a mere matter of business it would be much cheaper to carry the trolley tracks over the railroad on a bridge than to pay the damages in civil suits which would follow the death of the children. Unanimously.

"I cited the testimony of officers of the trolley company that there were twenty-one other trolley grade crossings equally dangerous in Essex county, and finally asked the Chief Justice if, knowing of the collision of Feb. 19 (we call it an accident) and the butchery of the High School children, would he (the Chief Justice) then consider that these trolley officials had knowledge of the danger sufficient to call it criminal negligence if (which we were disputing) nine other school children were being done to death at any one of the other twenty-one unprotected, unguarded grade crossings over the railroad tracks?

"Justice Gummere made no reply, and we filed out without a word.

"When we returned to the Grand Jury room, the indictments went through as prepared by Mr. Riker, but with a solemn pledge on the part of the Grand Jurors that if a miscarriage of justice resulted from the failure of the Grand Jury, then the Jurymen should unite in a statement. This miscarriage of justice certainly ensued, but the members of the December Grand Jury of 1902 have never broken their solemn pledge.

"I followed the trial with the closest attention, and the Public Prosecutor utterly neglected to bring out the essential point in the testimony. The engineer of the trolley company, Arthur A. Reimer, under oath, told us of the Grand Jury that Clifton avenue, where the disaster occurred, was long considered a place of danger, and that he was directed to prepare plans for a derailing device at Clifton avenue by David Young. He himself drew up the plan for such a device. It was found that his mechanism cost more than $1,000, and he testified that Mr. Young told him they would not put it in, as the company could not afford the expense.

"This was the essential point in determining the criminal negligence of the officials of the company, and Mr. Riker never brought out a word of the most important testimony in the whole case. At the close of the trial, when Justice Gummere and his associates refused to permit the case to go to the jury, I myself heard Roosevelt Shanley, one of those on trial for manslaughter, in shaking hands heartily with Chandler W. Riker, the public Prosecutor, say most heartily:

"Thank you, Chan!"

Will Start Work in Two Weeks.

It is expected that the street paving with brick will be started within the next two weeks. The brick has been ordered and other materials will arrive here by the time Contractor Meeker is prepared to start. In some of the streets a number of underground connections must be made before the brick is laid, so that there will be the least possible chance of tearing up the street afterward. The Pennsylvania Clay Company has assured City Engineer Gavett that he will have no trouble or delay in the shipment of bricks, according to the contract and bond furnished by them.

Join Early Closing Movement.

Among the other merchants who have joined the Saturday early closing movement are Woolston & Buckle, Marsh & Worth, Hanson, and in fact all of the painters. These firms will close their places of business at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon during August.

CRAZED WOMAN AT LARGE

Twenty Year Old Daughter of Thos. Wormser of Watchung Escaped from House

WANDERS ALL DAY

Farmers, Shocked By Her Appearance, Finally Effect Her Recapture—Long Mentally Unbalanced.

Leaving her home early Thursday morning clad only in her night clothes, Barbara Wormser, the twenty-year-old daughter of Thomas Wormser, a farmer who lives on the Slater farm, near the planing mill of Fritz Myers, at Watchung, spent the greater part of the day wandering about in the fields of the vicinity. The young woman has been mentally deranged for several years, and has always been kept in the house. The family were unaware that she had left the house until they were informed of the fact by neighbors.

The young woman left the house after the family had finished breakfast, slipping out unnoticed when it was supposed she was still in bed. Scantily clad as she was, she ran down the road to Myers' mill, where she attracted considerable attention among the employes as she stood in the road, with clothing torn and hair deranged. Several of the employes started in pursuit of the girl, but she only ran off through the fields. Through the entire morning, the young woman wandered in the vicinity of her home, for her parents were unable to persuade her to come back, or overtake her. Shocked and surprised by her appearance, at their homes, many of the property owners in the vicinity finally formed an expedition and recaptured the girl shortly after noon. She was hysterical and in a highly nervous condition at the time of her capture and had torn off all of her clothing.

Several pedestrians who saw the woman from the street reported the incident to the borough police, but she was captured by the neighbors before the assistance of the latter oughites. Wormser said that the woman had been weak minded since she was a child, but had never escaped from the house before. It is believed that she can no longer be controlled at her home, and will be sent to the State asylum.

LITERARY

Success Magazine for August contains a very significant article by Frederick Upham Adams upon the unprecedented increase in the world's supply of gold. Mr. Adams points out the causes of this deluge of the precious metal and declares that gold as a standard of values is decidedly discussed. Henry Beach Needham contributes the third and last of his articles on professional baseball. The psychology of the "fan" and the inner workings of the baseball trust are the phases dealt with Appleton Morgan, President of the Shakespeare Society, one of the most influential literary organizations in the country, speaks of Current Literature as the best magazine published in English and, as far as he knows in the world. On reading the August issue of this wonderfully timely magazine one feels that the editors have succeeded in living up to that reputation. There is no subject that is touched upon in Current Literature without being illuminated. "Dark Days of Russia," "Japan's Comments on the "Yellow Peril," "A Setback for Uncle Sam at The Hague," and the "Overthrow of the German Court Camarillis" will make even the seasoned newspaper reader look up and take notice.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF CLIFFORD LONG STAATS.

Young Man's Many Friends Gathered at His Late Home To Pay Their Final Tribute.

Touchingly impressive in its simplicity was the funeral of Clifford Long Staats, of West Second street, held Friday afternoon at his home. Rev. Lewis Bond conducted the service, reading and commenting upon portions of Scripture and speaking tenderly of the character of the lad's passing. Miss Edna Long acted as accompanist. There were masses of flowers, tributes from those who had known the deceased. Among the floral offerings was a handsome wreath from the Plainfield theatre, with which the lad had been associated for some time. It was the shape of a pillow, and was inscribed: "Our Little Friend." The pall bearers were Raymond and Alfred Manley, Ralph Martin, Russell Huston, Robert Goldersleeve and Chas. Kregar. The interment was at Hillside cemetery.

Will Re-open September 9.

St. Gabriel's Academy, at Jackson and Watchung avenues, will reopen on September 9, for the fall and winter term.

THE FAIR TO ECLIPSE ALL PREVIOUS EVENTS

PURSES THIS YEAR FOR TROTTING AND PACING TO AGGREGATE FULLY $6,500.

Secretary Margerum and his force of able assistants, are working like beavers in shaping matters for the annual exhibition of the Interstate Fair Association, at Trenton, and to judge from the preparations the "Big Show" will eclipse previous attractions, which is evidence that this year's fair will be a real one, indeed.

Intending exhibitors are writing for space, and this feature of the fair promises to be better than last year. The attractions this year will be of the top-notch order. It is proposed to hang up $6,500 in purses for the trotting and pacing events. Trenton is on the big fair circuit comprising ten of the leading fair associations in Eastern Pennsilvania and New Jersey.

The light harness events will take place on the last four days of the fair. Monday being reserved for special events. Secretary Margerum plans a number of surprising big events for the opening day.

The fence in front of the grandstand is being rebuilt, and in front of it will be placed a wire netting, which is to prevent the attendants and horse owners from swarming on the track during the progress of a race or exhibition. The grandstand has been repainted in the familiar orange and black colors.

The vaudeville attractions this year bid fair to be of the sensational order. Schreyer, the dare-devil loop-the-gap auto artist, is booked, as is Calvert, performer on the high wire and "Minting, the Marvel," who rides on his bicycle down a spiral slide. M'lle. D'Morak, a daring young Frenchwoman, is to loop-the-gap in an automobile and turn two somersaults in bridging the chasm. Wooster's hippodrome equine exhibition will be one of the real attractions. Four expert young horsewomen, riding astride, will contest in a relay horse race every afternoon. The women will have a fresh horse at the end of each half mile.

M'lle Omega, black wire artist, and Rae and Bessette, performers on the revolving ladder, are other acts booked. The balloon and parachute events will be more thrilling than ever. Two aeronauts will make escensions and in descending via parachute, will make three drops. Roy Knabenshue, the world famous aerial navigator, who made a successful fight last year, will be on hand with a new ship, said to be able to attain great speed at a dizzy height.

HORSE OWNER FINED AS WARNING TO OTHERS

DRAKE WASN'T VERY CRUEL BUT SENTENCE WAS IMPOSED FOR EFFECT.

Charles Drake, of West Seventh street, arrested on a charge of cruelty to animals, brought by the S. P. C. A., was fined $10 by Judge Runyon in the city court Friday morning. The magistrate said, however, after listening to the testimony, that he didn't believe Mr. Drake had been guilty of any great cruelty, and imposed the fine merely as a deterrent of needless punishment of horses.

The prosecutor alleged that Drake, in driving his horse from a pasture to his yard, had hit it with five or six "clubs." Counsellor Francis J. Blatz, for the defendant, brought out testimony that reduced the half a dozen clubs to one switch. Dr. F. C. Herbert, a veterinary surgeon, testified that the amount of excitement force to constitute abuse or cruelty would leave an unmistakable mark for three weeks, and that he could find no mark at all on the horse a few days after the alleged cruelty.

Former Judge W. A. Coddington, counsel for the S. P. C. A., contended that Drake struck the horse needlessly, because Drake himself had testified that the animal had a halter on and he was near enough to it to take hold of the halter and lead the horse away. Judge Coddington said the S. P. C. A. had no desire to be overzealous or ask for heavy punishment in such a case, but he believed a fine should be imposed for deterrent effect. Judge Runyon agreed that a fine would have a deterrent effect on horse owners with cruel tendencies, and imposed the sentence.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

To make lemon extract grate the rind of three lemons into half a pint of alcohol. After allowing it to stand four days, pour off into another bottle and add an ounce of oil of lemon. Orange extract may be prepared in the same manner.

When ants are troublesome sprinkle sugar through a small piece of sponge and leave where about the pantry shelves. In a short time the ants will be holding a high carnival. Plunge the sponge in boiling water and set again.

Wash new glasses for the first time in cold water; this will give them a brighter look than if hot water is used. Glasses that have been used for milk should also first be washed in cold water, or they are apt to look cloudy when dried.

FOR NEW STATION HOUSE

Police Committee Preparing to Move to Home of the Department.

MAY ERECT BUILDING

Structures In Other Cities Being Inspected For Hints—New Headquarters to Have Several Improvements Over Old One.

The Police Committee is getting things in readiness for the removal of the station house and headquarters necessitated by the sale of the property on East Front street, where the department is now housed to Henry Barrard. There is a possibility that the city will build a structure for police purposes, and steps in that direction, of a tentative nature, have been taken.

It is felt that the city might do worse than build its own station house at this juncture. While the money is not exactly available, there is no doubt that sooner or later such a structure will be deemed desirable, and there is no particular reason why it shouldn't be put up now. At its meeting this week the Board ordered plans for a station house drawn by an architect, and these will be used as the basis of the new department home. Mayor Fisk and members of the committee have taken several trips to house-of-detention houses of nearby places of Plainfield's size, in search of hints and estimates.

The new station house, whether it is in a leased structure or one of the city's own, will be an improvement on the present one. Pretty nearly anything would be an improvement, as far as that goes, but the Board will aim to make the new house a model one of its kind. The ventilation and lighting, two features in which the present station house suffer a great lack, will receive particular attention. It is hoped to make a better partition between the cell-room and the court, and other improvements will be incorporated.

The Board at present hasn't the faintest idea of where the new head-quarters will be, available locations in the center of the city are not plentiful. The few sites in view are a bit too expensive for the municipal blood. The Board is optimistic, however, and is hopeful of solving the problem presented by the removal in a most satisfactory way.

WANT BARBER SHOPS CLOSED ON SUNDAY

Following their meeting Thursday the boss barbers were not at all communicative as to what was done, taking the stand that aside from the fact that they agreed to close their shops all day Labor Day, the other business does not concern the public. It is known that the bosses received a communication from the journeymen barbers asking for a regular day off every two weeks.

This petition, it was learned, was discussed at some length and it was stated that a number of the bosses have been giving their men a day off every two or three weeks and paying the mfor the time lost. Besides the shops are closed on Sundays, which is not the rule in some towns and cities.

One of the bosses in talking of the matter today, said that it has been the custom in all the better class shops to pay the men for all time lost whether caused by illness or for other reasons and that for five years he had an established rule to give his men one day off every two weeks with pay. He scouted the reputed talk on the part of some journeymen that unless they received the regular day off they would quit their job.

Despite the fact that a majority of the barber shops close on Sunday, there are one or two shops conducted by Italians who keep open on that day and close on Saturday, taking advantage of the rule established by the Seventh-Day denomination. This has caused a feeling among the other barbers, who claim that when the Common Council passed an ordinance closing barber shops on Sunday, it meant all shops. No distinction was made. The ordinance was passed at the request of the barbers.

While it cannot be learned what word was sent to the journeymen barbers as the result of Thursday night's meeting, it is known that a communication was sent. It is understood that a compromise proposition was offered. The journeymen will meet Tuesday night to receive and take action on the communication.

Rev. Nicholas Forsyth, of Montana, is visiting relatives in this city fo. a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. George Chandler, of Somerset street, spent Sunday at Budd's Lake, N. J.

Mrs. S. T. Wilson, of Sycamore avenue, is spending some weeks in the Berkshire Hills.

BRIGGS FOR WORTHY MAN

U. S. Senator Says Gubernatorial Nominee Should be a Conservative.

SITUATION DISCUSSED

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs was the guest at an informal luncheon in the Hotel Marlborough, New York, on Thursday afternoon, of a committee representing the Frank O. Briggs Republican Club of Essex county, the first organization to be named after the new senator. The general political situation was discussed, and Senator Briggs expressed his entire satisfaction with the outlook. The respective merits of some of the candidates for the various State and county offices were discussed, but the Senator refrained from stating any choice. He said he wanted to see a worthy and respectable candidate selected.

Senator Briggs, after telling some humorous political experiences, thanking the gentlemen for their kindness in inviting him to the luncheon with them and said che had stood, and will always stand, as a "regular" in his party.

General interest was centered on the Senator and State chairman when Mr. Bower inquired from Mr. Briggs who was likely to be the next candidate of the party for governor.

The Senator replied that he regretted he was unable to make any definite prediction as to the individual candidate, but he said he desired to see the candidate of the party, whoever it might be, elected. To facilitate the election he wanted to see some worthy, respectable and conservative man chosen by the convention.

He said that a large number of names had been mentioned for the candidacy, but he felt that it was the duty of every Republican to endeavor to select the candidate whom he thought best fitted for the place.

TROLLEY STOCK IS NOT OFFERED FOR SALE

VICE-PRESIDENT CARLTON SAYS NEW ISSUE WILL BE HELD.

Public Service officials and President Usal H. McCarter, of the Fidelity Trust Company, which holds, as trustee, all the trolley and United Electric stock acquired by the Public Service in exchange for the latter's perpetual inter-bearing certificates, said Friday there is no intention of attempting to retire the $14,200,000 of the certificates issued to acquire the trolley stock by a bond issue or to place a single share of the new issue of $38,000,000 Public Service stock on the market.

Every share of the latter stock will, if the merger of the North Jersey, Jersey City, Hoboken and Paterson and United Railway Company of Central Jersey is ratified by the stockholders of the three systems next Tuesday, be transferred to the Fidelity Trust Company in exchange for the stock of the merged companies on a trust basis to guarantee the perpetual interest-bearing certificates issued by Public Service to acquire the property.

President Thomas M. McCarter, of the Public Service, in taking a long vacation could not be interviewed in connection with the formation of the new trolley company or the rumored attempt to retire the perpetual interest-bearing certificates.

Vice President A. B. Carleton said the merger long been contemplated, in order to get the entire trolley system in this end of the State under one head in name, as it is in fact, inasmuch as practically all of the stock of the three systems are owned or controlled by the same persons.

The merger will, Mr. Carleton said, affect some saving in operating expenses inasmuch as it costs less to keep three companies in one company than twenty, and all the property owned will be operated as one, thus resulting in a division of profits over the entire system irrespective of which part may show the greatest net earnings.

This, in Mr. Carleton's judgment, will make the stock which it is proposed to issue in exchange for the stock of the three systems now held by the Fidelity Company, as trustee, more valuable as collateral security than the original stocks. Incidentally, he said, it should increase the value of the perpetual certificates now outstanding which the Public Service cannot, of its own volition, and in his judgment, has no intention of retiring.

ARMED WITH A SANDBAG

Boarding House Thief Appears Before Court in Bad Guise.

PLEADS FOR LENIENCY

Judge Says He Can't Regard Lightly a Sandbag in Possession of Man Coming From New York.

None of the admiring consideration that sometimes meets those who are "from New York" in interior towns was accorded Harry Hadley, a young man with an alias, in the city court Saturday. As a matter of fact, his acknowledgment that he came to this city from the metropolis was a factor in deciding Judge Runyon to sentence him to the county jail for forty days.

Hadley, who has also gone by the name of Crawford, was arrested Friday morning on complaint of William J. Smith, assistant to Bobby Leach in the latter's lunch wagon, who charged him with stealing a coat and a pair of trousers from his room at a boarding house on West Second street, last week. Hadley, who acknowledged the charge this morning, went into Smith's room while the latter was at work, and exchanged his own frayed coat and trousers for Smith's natty garments. Hadley had never seen Smith, having been at the boarding house but two days when he made the exchange, so he didn't know the lunch wagon representative when he ran for him. He walked into the wagon unsuspectingly yesterday, just before noon, with Smith's coat and trousers on him. Smith hustled out for a cop as soon as he recovered from his astonishment, and the arrest followed.

The prisoner at first refused all information about himself, and he was regarded as a mystery until Chief Kiely took him in hand in the afternoon. He was searched and a sandbag was found in his hip pocket. The chief put him through grilling cross examination, and he finally consented to give his name, and make a statement.

He repeated the statement before Judge Runyon Saturday. He said he took Smith's clothes to make himself more presentable in searching for work. The sandbag, he said, was made for protection. The accounts of holdups and assaults in the papers had made him afraid to travel about a strange place without means of resisting attack. He got the sand from a building in course of erection in New York, he said, and made it on the night he remained in the metropolis. He said he was a workingman, and not a professional thief. He was given a sentence leniency.

"I will hold you in $200 bail for the grand jury on the charge of theft," said the magistrate, "and as for the sandbag, I cannot but regard that as a serious matter. A man who acknowledges coming here from New York, where there is so much sandbagging and lawlessness of the strong-arm character going on at present, with a sandbag in his pocket can only be looked upon with grave suspicion. I cannot treat that with leniency. I will sentence you with sixty days in the county jail for carrying a concealed weapon."

The police will seek to learn something of the prisoner's record. They suspect him to be more than an occasional offender.

WEEDS OF VALUE.

New Zealand flax is one of a number of wild weeds that yield their gatherers great wealth, says the Scientific American. This flax, the strongest known, grows wild in swamps. When it is cultivated its dwindles and its fibres become brittle and valueless.

Indian hemp grows wild and out of it hasheesh, or keef, is made. Next it looks like rows of chopped straw. It is smoked in a pipe; it is eaten on liver; it is drunk in water. It produces an intense, a delirious happiness, and among Orientals it is almost as highly prized as beer and whiskey with us.

The bananas are the wild ones. They grow throughout the Malay Archipelago.

But the most valuable weed of all these wild growths is the seaweed. The nitrate beds of South America, which yield something like $65,000,000 a year, are nothing but beds of seaweed decomposed.

Reception to Their Pastor.

Arrangements have been completed by the parishioners of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church for a reception to be given at the parsonage Thursday evening, September 5, in honor of Rev. J. Thomas Briggs, pastor of the church, and his wife. The affair is to celebrate the recent wedding of the pastor as well as his entering upon his duties at the church. The guests will be entertained from 2 to 5 o'clock, and in the evening. Local colored pastors will join the committee in receiving the guests.

Will Reside in Philadelphia.

W. C. Leek and family, of the New Madison building, will remove to Philadelphia September 1, Mr. Leek having made arrangements to assume the management of a business conducted by his brother-in-law. He has been an active work in local church and Sunday-school work and he will be greatly missed.

HASSAM PAVEMENT NOT PROPERLY CLEANED

SOMERSET STREET PROPERTY OWNERS WANT "WHITE WINGS" TO WORK THERE

Now that Somerset street has its Hassam pavement, there is a movement on foot among the property owners to secure a street sweeper to keep that pavement clean. The borough boasts no street sweepers, though some of the men are send out with carts to clean up mud on the principal streets after heavy storms and to keep the storm sewers clear. The only cleaning given the stretch of Hassam pavement is a daily flushing down by the water wagon. This is unsatisfactory because the refuse matter is not satisfactorily disposed of by this method. The inadequacy of the nearby storm sewer to wash off solid waste matter causes such refuse to be washed to the curb by the flushing process, and it remains heaped there after the water has run off. In this way the roadway is cleaned, but the refuse is left in the gutters.

In the interest of maintaining a sanitary clean street, the property owners feel that the borough council should at once consider the advisability of having a street sweeper to keep the block where the pavement is laid clean, and its gutters clear. A single week within three hours. The Old Orchard Hotel is the only one of the many which remains standing. The people driven from their hotels were obliged to spend the night on the bench and many suffered, especially children. Brush wood fires were kept going all night, around which the refugees sat in shivering groups waiting for the dawn. It is believed that part of the burned district will be rebuilt before next season. One of the killed was Philip Partridge, son of Rev. Dr. Warren G. Partridge, pastor of the Fourth Avenue Baptist church, Pittsburg. He was graduated from college last June and was spending the summer at the Partridge cottage.

line there result in the presence of a pool of standing water there, which is both unsanitary and unsightly. It is maintained that the pavement people should have completed better connections and grading, so that the water could pass by the cross walk to the storm sewer conduit at the corner. Among the property owners, there is talk of a petition to be submitted to the council at the next meeting.

EARLY WOMAN AERONAUTS.

Ballooning is a sport which has always attracted women. Between 1783 and 1849 forty-nine women made balloon ascents, half of whom were Englishwomen. A quaint writer has accounted for this by saying in most unpoetical language the likeness between women and balloons.

Mme. Phible, the first woman aeronaut of the world, ascended from Lyons, says the Woman at Home. Mme. Blanchard was, however, the first female professional balloonist, and she ascended from Parish with her husband, the famous aeronaut, in 1732. DeFonvielle writes of her this not very reassuring epitaph: "She was born an aeronaut and died in the air." The Comtesse Henri was another Frenchwoman who made balloon ascents about this period. She accompanied DeGernerin on his second voyage in 1798.

The lovely Mrs. Sage was the first Englishwoman to make a balloon ascent. She went up with Vincente Lunardi in 1784, a cat, a dog and a pigeon also being of the party. Mrs. Sage was young and graceful. She wore a plumed hat and feathers and a gossamer scarf tightly drawn about her shoulders. After a few hours aloft Mrs. Sage and her costume descended at Harrow unharmed.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The German emperor and empress are expected to visit London in November.

Princess Fedora of Sieswick-Holstein, the youngest sister of the German empress, has published her first book. It is the story of a poacher and his daughter and is entitled "Hahn Berta."

The czarina is a talented musician. She sings well and is a very gifted pianist. Indeed, he majesty plays the piano there so well that if she were in another sphere of life and became a professional she would win great fame.

Prince William, of Sweden, who will visit America shortly, although he speaks excellent English, is anxious to get the right American accent and to be conversant with American expressions. He has secured the services of M. Michias, a well-known teacher of languages in Copenhagen, to instruct him.

PLAINFIELDER DESCRIBES OLD ORCHARD'S FIRE

A. E. HOAGLAND TELLS OF CONFLAGRATION AT THE RESORT.

Old Orchard, Maine, the popular summer resort for many Plainfielders, in past seasons, is in ashes and as a result the present season has been abruptly terminated. Two lives were lost and five persons were injured, three seriously, as a result of the fire which swept through the resort Thursday night, causing a loss of $500,000. The insurance is about one-third.

Among the Plainfielders at Old Orchard are Mr. and Mrs. Alvin E. Hoagland and son, Elston, of West Front street. In a letter to a friend here, Mr. Hoagland says:

"All burned last night and much more. As much as Park to Central avenues and front to Second streets, entirely in ashes. Tents and furniture all about. One hundred feet of pier also burned. Many people about in evening dress: all they have left to wear."

Seventeen summer hotels, sixty cottages and a score of buildings occupied by stores were destroyed. The burned buildings were of wood and therefore an easy prey of the flames, which spread with remarkable swiftness, reducing to ashes a section of half a hundred acres within three

BENEVOLENT COUNCIL CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

S. S. SWACKHAMER GIVES A PATRIOTIC TALK TO REJOICING JUNIORS.

The sixth anniversary of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., was celebrated Friday with an informal program of speeches and music, and a short sketch of the growth of the council, in connection with the ceremonies and had charge of the program.

Benevolent Council was the third lodge of that order organized here, following Franklin Council, No. 41, and Somerset Council, No. 104. While some of the members came from Franklin and Somerset, a majority were new members.

Today the council numbers about 100 and is in a strong and flourishing condition, it is said.

One of the principal features of the evening was a patriotic address by S. S. Swackhamer. After congratulating the council upon the completion of its sixth year under such favorable conditions and wishing the members continued success, Mr. Swackhamer gave a stirring address on the principles upon which the order is founded. He recalled countless deeds of heroism which had helped to make this country glorious and which had been brought freedom to every son who subscribed to the cardinal principles. Mr. Swackhamer's address was listened to with interest and at the close he was given a hearty round of applause.

Other features of the program were the musical selections by the Minion brothers, of Newark, who have appeared here several times. They gave a pleasing entertainment and were well received. After the program cigars were passed and a social time enjoyed.

TOILET HINTS.

A good hair tonic is 16 grains or bi-sulphate of quinine, four ounces of alcohol, one-half ounce of bay rum, one-half ounce of glycerine, water sufficient to make one pint. Friction the scalp with this every night.

Very long nails are no longer fashionable; neither are stubby nails. The style is betwixt-and-between one. Nails that are bleached pink with dyes are quite the style again, and to this must be added a very high gloss, for the day of the polished nail has returned.

"Getting Even."

In savings banks it is customary to require a new depositor to sign an identification blank. In a certain savings bank recently a woman was somewhat unwilling to comply with this request. "What is your husband's name?" asked the clerk. "My husband's name is Peter Jones. What is your wife's name?" snapped the fair depositor.

Making Reparation.

In some unaccountable manner little Frank had spilled a bottle of ink on his grandmother's carpet. "I'm awful sorry," he apologized, "but"—thinking of his little savings bank—"I'll buy you another bottle, grandma."

WAITE STILL ESCAPING

Fake Clairvoyant Proves Himself as Hard to Catch as Ever.

SLIPS NET IN CHICAGO

He Is Chief Kiely's Pet Fugitive from Justice—Always Manages to Clear Threatening Jail Doors.

The kindly fate or something else in the way of a pull that has stood between Harry Waite, a fake clairvoyant and swindler of women whom the police of this city have been seeking to arrest since 1900, and Chief Kiely operated as effectively as usual in Chicago, last week. Chief Kiely learned this morning, from the Chicago police, that he must give up the hope, awakened last Friday, of Waite's capture in that city. The much-sought quarry escaped the Windy City police trop, and the local authorities are left to nurse back into activity other prospects hope.

Waite, who is rated the cleverest man in the game he follows, is wanted in so many places that no police department has yet succeeded in compiling a complete list of them. He is always well supplied with money, and makes it serve his purpose, when in a tight corner, in a free and easy way or another. He has never hesitate to jump his bail, and various counties and municipalities must have acquired a total of many thousands of his stolen money. When such methods are necessary he doesn't hesitate to use primitive methods in escaping. He called a revolver into play in getting away from officers at Lancaster, Pa., two or three years ago. That was one of the times Chief Kiely thought he was going to get Waite.

The "Professor" worked in this city in the early part of 1900. He got $650 from one woman, and she was induced to make a complaint. He slipped away from the police with his usual facility, and Chief Kiely started on the chase that was to become the hunt of his life. He had only an ordinary amount of interest in the chase when it started, but as Waite slipped from his grasp time after time, and the man's record swelled, his capture became the pet idea of Kiely's career for the chief. He has made up his mind to get Waite or bust something in the attempt.

For seven years the chief has held to the hunt after Waite with bulldog tenacity, and the repeated slips and disappointments, always particularly aggravating to Kiely, in no way came as the result of foolishness or carelessness on the part of other departments, have not lessened his energy in the chase. The disappointments were climaxed about three years ago, when the chief, when locating the slithery grafer and having him arrested, travelled to Chicago with Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, to arrange for extradition. Arrived there, the chief was upset to discover that the hearing before the Governor was not being hurried a bit, and that the officials there were complacently preparing to admit Waite to bail. The chief, almost with tears in his eyes, begged them not to do it. They didn't listen, and the bail was duly followed. The chief and his man were at the State House when the application for extradition came up and so were the Illinois officials, but not "Professor" Waite. "I told you so," said the chief, with some bitterness; and took the next train home.

When the sting of that experience subsided the chief took up the still hunt again, and struck the trail once more. Last week he learned that Waite was again operating in Chicago, and he wired the police of that place to get busy.

"There is nothing to it," their wired, or words to that effect. "We've got Waite where he can't slip. It's a sure thing. Have you an indictment or just a warrant?"

The message breathed certainty, and the chief chortled to himself as he got out all the papers in the "Professor's" case, and laid them in a neat bundle, ready for a trip to Chicago. He stopped chortling and put the bundle back when he received a message from Chicago this morning.

The Windy City cops went after Waite on Thursday. A young man met them at the door of his house. He said he was the "professor" and held them in conversation for a while. They discovered after a bit that he wasn't the "professor," but by that time Waite had decamped. He left no directions as to pursuit, so the Chicago police marked him "missing," and set themselves to composing a message of condolence to their friend Kiely.

"I've got Waite yet," said the chief this morning. He is a hopeful man, is the chief.

CO.'S CONVENTION DATE

Three Assemblymen to Be Selected By Union Sept. 12 at Elizabeth.

COMMITTEE'S MEETING

Parrot Slated For Renomination As Surrogate—Little Talk of Candidacy.

The apportionment of delegates for the county and State convention was the main business at the meeting of the county Republican committee at their rooms in Elizabeth, last night. There are to be sixty-seven delegates to the State convention from the district, and thirteen of them will be from this county. The appointment for the county convention will be the same as last year from this city. It is expected that the call will be issued this week.

The date of the Republican county convention has been set as Thursday, September 12, and arrangements are practically completed. Contrary to expectation, there was little discussion of candidates. The committeemen seemed solid in their support of Parrott for surrogate, but in a discussion involving other officers, there was no consensus of opinion as to candidates. The candidates for each office were informally suggested by various committeemen, name after name was brought up, but there was little united opinion, and no stand taken by those present which could be construed as a consensus of opinion. The chances of Assemblyman Randolph Perkins at the coming elections were discussed at some length, but none of the members present came out strongly in his support.

There was a good sized quorum of the members present when the meeting was called to order in the committee rooms. Among those present were Frank Smith, Andrew McCardell, Herbert Buxton, Duncan Taylor and Robert E. Hall, all of this city.

SMITH THOUGHT SUIT WAS MERELY A JOKE

THAT'S WHAT HE SAID WHEN HE HEARD OF WRIGHT'S ACTION.

A summons was served on former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., in his office in the Federal Trust Company, Newark, Friday, in the suit brought against him by Assemblyman Edward H. Wright, Jr., to recover $100,000 for an alleged slander. Before Mr. Smith had received the paper he was asked about the suit and expressed himself as being greatly mystified.

"I read in the papers," Mr. Smith said, "that an action for slander had been brought against me, but didn't know what to make of it. It was the first intimation I had received that such a thing was in contemplation in the mind of any one, and I don't know now that the story is true. It sounds to me like a joke."

Assured that a declaration had actually been placed in the hands of the sheriff, Mr. Smith said:

"If that is the case, all that I can say is that Mr. Wright has either been wrongly informed or he is being badly advised. It looks to me as if he is being used by politicians without his knowledge, and I think that if he will only take time to think the matter over he will not continue his action.

"Mr. Wright must know very well that I have always been a very good friend to him and would not be likely to do him any harm intentionally."

To the question whether he cared to say anything about the specific charge in the declaration that on a certain occasion in a conversation with Governor Stokes he had uttered an alleged slanderous statement concerning Mr. Wright, Mr. Smith said:

"No, I don't think that I care to say anything more just now than I have already said."

As published, Mr. Smith is alleged to have slandered Wright in the course of a conversation with the Governor on the porch of the latter's cottage at Sea Girt on the occasion of a public reception, August 2 last.

Snap for Amateurs.

Amateur photographers who wish to turn their art to a commercial account by selling snapshots to their human victims have discovered a new field of endeavor. They haunt riding academies and the equestrian paths in the parks and photograph the riders as they go horseback, have a weakness for being photographed. Many a rider who could not be persuaded to pose for a photograph in conventional attitude or garb is quite willing to be taken astride a fine horse and any photographer who can snap him successfully is sure of a market for his picture.

TOWNSEND THE CHOICE

Republicans and Democrats to Fix Up Local Slates Tomorrow Night.

A MAYORALTY FIGHT

Arnold Does Not Want to Be Mayor—Smalley's Successor — Other Booms.

A mass meeting of Borough Republicans, to be held tomorrow evening in Sangerbund Hall, has been called by Mayor Smalley, of the party executive committee. The meeting will be a public one, and Non-Plainfielders will at this time prepare a slate of candidates for the coming election. The Democrats will caucus at the same time at the Somerset street school house. The main interest in making up the ticket in this fall's campaign will lie in the naming of a candidate for mayor. A slate was made up, it is said, at a caucus held by Republican leaders last night.

The terms of Councilman Frank C. Krewson and John H. VanWinkle Jr., expire January 1, 1908, and the party this fall is to name successors to their positions when the ticket is made up tomorrow night. The men have served three years, in a single term, for their offices was extended by the adoption of the new law controlling the dates of office of these officials. Boroughites are not taking much about successors for these men, for mayoralty booms have been coming in too thick and fast to allow time for councilmanic discussions. It is the opinion of many prominent Republicans, that the two will be renominated. Van Winkle's record in the council is an especially commendable one and his work has clearly been conscientious effort for the best interests of the borough.

Of the other borough officials to be named on the slate, George F. Brown is the leading candidate for renomination as Tax Collector. Mr. Brown is now spending his vacation at Mt. Pocono, and Mayor Smalley telegraphed him today to return home so that he could sign his acceptance for renomination. This is in accordance with the primary law that the acceptance of nomination must be signed and filed ten days before primary day. Assessor Justus H. Cooley's term also expires, as does that of Freeholder John Emmons. Both are spoken of as candidates for renomination. Another office mentioned for County Surrogate. Other vacancies to be filled when the party slate is made up include a justice of the peace and a constable.

The Republicans will likely name Samuel Townsend for mayor.

"It's a wonder you newspapers wouldn't come and see a man before you put his name in the paper," said James K. Arnold, when asked whether he was after the Republican nomination for the mayor this year. "Why no, I'm not a candidate," he added.

Jeppe Sorensen's Funeral.

The funeral of Jeppe Sorensen, whose death occurred last Friday night at Saranac Lake, was held at the home of his father, Christian Sorensen, of Webster place, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. A. S. Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church and was attended by a gathering of relatives and friends. During the service two selections, "Abide With Me" and "Lead Kindly Light," were rendered by E. E. Runyon. The floral tributes were numerous and included several set pieces. Burial was made in Hillside Cemetery, the pall-bearers being Charles M. Suhr, James Conway, James Erickson and Charles Kirchner.

Dirt Piles Troublesome.

The Daily Press has been requested by a West Front street resident to call the attention of the Public Service Corporation to four piles of earth left in the gutters of that thoroughfare between the Baptist church and Plainfield avenue. They were put there by Public Service workmen in setting new poles, the holes being filled with crushed stone. The dirt is directly in the way when vehicles meet a passing trolley and they are compelled to go over the top of them.

Funeral of Infant Son.

The funeral of Everett Kennedy Sherwin, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Everett Sherwin, was held at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace M. Sherwin, of Washington street, yesterday afternoon. Rev. George H. Whitney officiated and burial was in Hillside.

Frances Coffey.

Frances Coffey, the infant daughter of John and Mary Coffey, of West Front street, died yesterday. The funeral was held at the house this afternoon and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

SAYS HIS JAW BONE WAS BROKEN BY KICK

ALLEGED KICKER DENIES CHARGE; ONLY USED FIST, HE SAYS.

On complaint of Patrick Joseph Martin, employed at the riding academy, Hugh Gormerly, another attache of the academy, was arrested this morning by Chief Kiely, charged with assault.

Martin says Gormerly broke his jaw with a kick. The men quarreled yesterday afternoon, and started pounding one another. Martin says Gormerly knocked him down and kicked a fracture in his jawbone. Gormerly acknowledged fighting, but denies the kicking.

He said Martin's jaw was damaged by a blow from his fist, if any damage was done. Martin's jaw is fractured right enough. The injury was attended to by Dr. Hedges.

The police say that Gormerly's contention that Martin started the fight is borne out by their investigations so far. Gormerly was released by Judge Runyon a short time after his arrest, on his own recognizance. He will be arraigned tomorrow morning.

GOLDEN EAGLES HONOR HORACE J. MARTIN, SR.

DISTRICT NAMES HIM FOR STATE OFFICER—A SURPRISE SUPPER.

By unanimous vote, Horace J. Martin, Sr., was named last night as the choice of the lodges of this district for Grand Sir Herald of the Knights of the Golden Eagle. The vote was cast at a meeting of the past Chiefs' Association held at the castle hall of Freedom Castle, No. 42.

The district comprises Orange, New Brunswick, Somerville and this city. Past chiefs of all the cities in the district attended the session to the number of twenty-nine. Mr. Martin's name will be presented at the meeting of the Grand Lodge, which opens at Trenton Labor Day. The district is enthusiastic in support of him, and his election is extremely probable. The nomination of candidates must be signed and filed ten days before primary day. Assessor Justus H. Cooley's term also expires, as does that of Freeholder John Emmons. Both are spoken of as candidates for renomination. Another office mentioned for County Surrogate. Other vacancies to be filled when the party slate is made up include a justice of the peace and a constable.

The past chiefs met after the regular meeting. Following the session they had supper and smoker in the banquet hall. It was called a surprise because the good and welfare committee had given no hint of its nature beforehand, and none of the rank and file knew what to expect.

The supper proved to be a Heinz affair of delectable character. All the dishes were of the fifty-seven varieties. The menu included tomato soup, baked beans and boiled ham, sauces, preserves, pie and cigars. Mr. Martin and visiting past chiefs spoke. At the lodge meeting Whitney Frazee played a cornet solo.

The good and welfare committee, which had charge of the supper, is made up of John G. Bicknell, chairman; Joseph G. Randall, John Gaub, Whitney Frazee and Frank Neidig. Noble Chief Peter C. Bennett assisted them.

In harness horses shown before a runabout, Miss Hooley Ryes Baker was assigned third place and in the class of harness horses to be shown before a lady's appropriate vehicle, lady driving, Miss Hooley's Quaker Maid came in for second honor and Dorothea third.

Disorderly Women Fined.

Charged with using the dressing room and the refreshment booth at Crescent Oval as a hangout, Maud Parsons, 26 years old, Mary Willis, same age, Edward Britton and Harry Molleson, were arraigned before Judge Runyon in the City Court this morning, as disorderly persons. They admitted the offense and Judge Runyon fined each of them $20 or forty days in jail.

STATE CONVENTION DATE

New Jersey Democrats Postpone Gubernatorial Nomination Until Sept. 23.

STATE COMMITTEE ACTS

Change Due to Jewish Holiday—Convention Will Be Held at Trenton.

The executive committee of the Democratic State committee met at the summer home of Mayor Katzenbach, in Spring Lake, last night, and changed the date for the meeting of the State convention of the party from September 18 to 23. The change would have been made to an earlier date, it is said, but none is available. The primaries will be held September 10, and September 11 or 12. September 12 is a hoodoo. The fourteenth is on Saturday on which the Trenton opera house could not be secured, and Monday, September 16, the local conventions are to be held.

The reason assigned for the change is that September 18, the day fixed at the last meeting of the committee, is the Jewish feast of Yom Kippur, and many probable delegates would be unable to attend on that occasion. Tuesday, September 17, was the date for which Taylor's Opera House was first engaged, and the special committee in charge, of which City Counsel James R. Nugent, of Newark, is chairman, immediately arranged to change the date to September 18.

Since then it was learned that Yom Kippur observance actually begins at sunset on September 17 and continues until sunset on September 18, making the latter the more important day of the two so far as the duration of observance of the feast is concerned.

At first the committee did not feel inclined to make a further change in the date, but when informed that even the local United States civil service examiners had decided to abandon September 19, originally fixed for the examination of applicants for government positions, on account of the feast day, the committee decided to do likewise.

CASE THROWN OUT.

Judge Newcorn Directs Verdict In Lee's Suit Against P. S. C.

The only contested case in the District Court today was taken from the jury by Judge Newcorn, after counsel had battled for a verdict for over two hours. The action was instituted by William Lee, a Scotch Plains hotel keeper, against the Public Service Corporation for $300 damages.

Lee sued to recover for the loss of one horse, a depreciation in value of another that resulted from a smashup between a car and one of his wagons, about a year ago, in which the driver of the rig lost his life.

When S. S. Swackhamer, counsel for Lee, had presented his case, John A. Bernhard, of Elizabeth, lawyer for the company, moved for a nonsuit on the ground that the facts submitted were not sufficient to raise a question on the company's contention that there was no blame attached to it. A precedent was submitted and Judge Newcorn granted the motion. Mr. Swackhamer took the usual exception.

Vagrant Sent to New Brunswick.

Bernhard Gabriel, who hales from Morristown, was found by Marshal Keller, of the borough police force, wandering about back yards at Park place and Grove street late last night. The officer gathered him in and he was arraigned before Mayor Smalley at the session of borough court this morning. He said he was a baker by trade and was on his way to New Brunswick, where he had a job waiting for him. His capital consisted of forty cents. The Mayor directed that he be put on a trolley car for New Brunswick. "And don't ever come to North Plainfield again," he said, as the prisoner was led away, "there are enough Angel Gabriels fluttering 'round here now."

Song Service at Netherwood.

A delegation from the societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church was at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, last night, where a song service was conducted in which the 200 children at the camp took part. There were recitation and songs by the camp children, after which candy was distributed by George E. Hall, who was in charge of the meeting. Arthur S. Mosher rendered several selections on the violin.

RECOVERED STOLEN RIG

Police Looking for Michael Spillane Accused of Stealing It.

SALES AGENT BUNCOED

William Perrine's Hasty Shift From Spillane's Side and Its Result—The Rig Bought For $35.

A horse and wagon stolen from John Maloney, of Cranford, a peddler, was recovered yesterday in this city by Chief of Police Kiely. The police are looking for Michael Spillane, a whilom resident of Plainfield, who is accused of stealing the rig.

Spillane was in Maloney's employ. He was hired to peddle vegetables in this city, and made several trips over Maloney's route here with the horse and wagon that was stolen. He took the rig out as usual Friday morning. He failed to return with it that night, and Maloney had a search for him instituted. Chief Kiely, who had been asked to look for him and the missing outfit, struck the trail yesterday. He found the horse and wagon in the possession of Nicholas Cody, of East Seventh street, who bought it, the police say, of Spillane on Friday night, paying $35. Cody made the purchase in good faith, the seller being vouched for by a neighbor.

Spillane, it is alleged, disposed of all the vegetables, pocketed the money and set out early Friday evening to find a purchaser for the rig. William Perrine, of Westfield, the police say, was asked by Spillane to help him find a buyer, $10 commission being promised. An unsuccessful effort was made to sell the rig in Scotch Plains, and then Perrine learned that Cody might be induced to buy.

Perrine says that after the sale was concluded he started with Spillane for Bound Brook on a trolley car. He asked about the $10 and Spillane told the latter that he had enough. A while after Spillane told Perrine that he had better move away from him. He said he had a lot of close companions with nippers all about him, and they might creep over onto Perrine. The latter moved hastily to the other end of the seat. Spillane seized the first chance after that to jump from the car and run off in the darkness.

Spillane's whereabouts at this juncture are unknown. Maloney got his horse and wagon back yesterday afternoon.

One feature of the case has disgusted Chief Kiely. A policeman made the sale of the rig and it never struck him that the transaction might bear a little investigation.

BROKE HIS LEG.

Jeremiah TenEyck Fell Through Opening in Basement Floor.

While walking in the basement of J. F. Marshall's residence on East Front street, shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, Jeremiah Ten-Eyck, the South Plainfield coal dealer, fell through an opening in the floor and sustained a broken leg. He was taken upstairs to the office of Dr. Cornwall and the injured member was set by Drs. Pittis and Endicott. Dr. Cornwall being away on his vacation. He was then removed by ambulance to his home in South Plainfield.

Mr. Ten Eyck was preparing to have his workmen place some coal in the MacDonald bins when the accident occurred. The light in the basement was poor and he failed to notice the opening as he was walking about. He was resting easily this afternoon and beyond the break is suffering from no other injury.

RIKER QUITS THE RACE.

Will Not Run For Governor in Jersey —Either Colby or Fort Now.

Chandler W. Riker, of Newark, called his political friends together yesterday and told them to cease all efforts to name him as the regular Republican candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

All through the campaign so far Mr. Riker has steadfastly refused to declare himself a candidate. The Colby people seem to be stronger now with Riker out of the way, and Sheriff Frank Sommer of Essex, as their gubernatorial candidate, will probably be regarded as a much more formidable candidate than heretofore.

There were many here today, however, who said that no one could win the Republican nomination and be elected except Justice J. Franklin Fort or Senator Colby.

Attended Reception to Prince.

Miss Mildred Caleen, of Orchard place, who is visiting relatives in Providence, R. I., attended a reception tendered to Prince William, of Sweden, who is visiting this country as the representative of Sweden, by the Swedish churches of Providence, Monday night. NEW IDEA MASS MEETINGS

Colby, Sommer, Runyon and Perkins to Address Plainfield Voters.

START THE CAMPAIGN

Perkins the Attraction at Reform Hall Friday Night and Colby Some Night Next Week.

Following up its attack on the regular county organization which appears to have selected C. B. Pierce as a candidate to succeed Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, whose third term expires this year, the New Idea people in the Fourth ward have invited the Republican leader of the lower house at Trenton, who seeks a renomination, to speak at Reform Hall under their auspices on Friday night. City Judge William N. Runyon, the New Idea candidate for re-election to his present office, will also deliver a political sermonette.

Some night next week it is expected that State Senator Colby will address the local voters, on the invitation of the Central Committee of the Plainfield Republican League for Equal Taxation. That meeting also will be held in Reform Hall and among the other speakers promised are Sheriff Frank Sommer, of Newark, as candidate for governor, and Judge Runyon. These two meetings are the first of a series to be held here under the direction of the Colbyites who declare that they will sweep the city when their case is properly laid before the voters.

From the Perkins camp today came a story that the turn-down of the Westfielder as they call it, is the first step in an effort to capture Union county for United States Senator John Kean in 1911. The next step they say will be an effort of the Kean following to defeat State Senator E. R. Ackerman for re-election. The story is branded by the Kean people as being without the slightest foundation.

The Prosecutor has detectives at work, but they have not been able to learn anything of value.

CHILDREN CAUGHT RAIDING BUTTFIELD FRUIT TREES

THREE CULPRITS PROMISE "NOT TO DO IT AGAIN."

Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough police department, received a hurry-up telephone call this morning from the caretaker of W. J. Buttfield's premises on Rockview avenue to the effect that a crowd of small boys and girls was playing havoc with the fruit trees on the place. The informant declared appearances indicated that the trespassers had come prepared to take everything in sight and unless the police interfered there would be nothing left for Mr. Buttfield on his return home.

The chief swooped down on the youngsters and caught Joseph Miner, of Prescott place; Annie Keenan, of South Second street, and Elsie Green, of Pond place. They were taken to police headquarters, amid pleadings and tears, and were arraigned before Mayor Smalley. "They crossed their hearts" they'd never steal fruit again and the official finally let them go after a severe lecturing.

Residents throughout the West End section of the borough have been bothered in a similar way and Chief Weiss stated after the three culprits were released that he would take steps to put an end to the trouble.

GUBERNATORIAL FIGHT AS SEEN IN TRENTON

ESSEX WOULD DIVIDE DELEGATES TWIXT FORT AND SOMMER.

There was every evidence about the State house at Trenton yesterday that the campaign for the Gubernatorial nomination is on in earnest. It was almost the sole topic of political discussion among the Governor's visitors, who included Sheriff Frank H. Sommer, of Essex county; Senator Bradley, of Camden; former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, of Union; Chairman Alfred N. Dalrymple, of the Essex County Republican Committee; Robert Carey, of Hudson; Supreme Court Clerk William Riker, Chancery Clerk Vivian M. Lewis, Quartermaster-General Murray, and a score of lesser political leaders, who gave the corridors the appearance of an old-time Governors' day.

Sheriff Sommer had a brief talk with the Governor, assuring him that he was in the fight for the nomination to stay, and had not even the first thought of withdrawing.

Chairman Dalrymple told everybody that Essex County would divide its delegates between Justice Fort and Sheriff Sommer, and predicted that Fort would win out handily in the end. This view was apparently shared by Mr. Carey, who told the Governor that the situation in Hudson was clarifying, and looked better for the Republicans than it had for some time.

This would have been good news for the Republican managers had it been confirmed, but unfortunately they could not view the subject in just that light.

The name of Gilbert Collins was spoken of more prominently in connection with the nomination than it ever has been here, and a considerable undercurrent of sentiment seemed to prevail for him.

"MARATHON" WEISS WINS

Chief of Borough Police Captures His Man After a Chase to Smalley's Quarry.

HIS WEARING RACE

Henry Swody, Wanted On Warrant, Says Chief Weiss is a Second Bonhag and Complimente Him From His Cell.

Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the borough police force, showed that he was no "molly-coddle" on his job, when he pursued Henry Swody, an athletic young boroughite for a racking mile and more across field and brook till he finally overtook him at Smalley's stone crusher, where he passed out a warrant for his arrest as Swody lay panting on the ground. The chase, which took place early this morning, was the result of an attempt made by Chief Weiss to arrest Swody on warrant issued through Justice of the Peace Snape's court. William Jeroloman, of the borough, has brought action in tort against the man for $40 damages.

The action arises because of an unpaid bill at a local garage for damages to Jeroloman's automobile which Swody borrowed for a spin to Bound Brook with his brother some weeks ago. Swody had an accident near Bound Brook and broke the springs and the motor. He telephoned a garage in this city and had the machine towed in and repaired. Then came the hitch about the bill. When Jeroloman came to see about collection, Swody claimed he had no money. The auto owner waited a while, but finally issued a warrant against Swody.

The chase started at Park place and Rockview avenue, when the Chief first caught sight of his man. Swody recognized the officer and surmising that he was wanted, started off on a run. The Chief, abandoning his wheel, immediately started in pursuit. Pursued by the officer, Swody ran at top speed to his home, on Greenbrook road, near Grove street, then dashed in the back door and out again at the front, closing doors in the Chief's face so as to gain time. Once on the street again, he started at top speed for a distance run toward the mountain.

Chief Weiss lost time in the house, and when he finally emerged from the front door, his man was some three blocks to the good, and streaking along like a Longboat. Despite the fact that he was encumbered by the weight of his official badge, the Chief started to do the Marathon act, and the two ran through meadows, vaulted fences and dashed through streams in a wild chase toward the mountain. Swody lost ground all the time, after the Chief got his third gear on the everything running free. The capture was made near Smalley's stone quarry, where Swody, "all in" after the long run, gave himself up.

They panted their way to the borough lock-up together, making the return trip more slowly. Once installed in a steel cell, Swody complimented the Chief on his running. "I ain't no gunner," he said, "I kept stumbling all the time. You're a good one, Chief, and you deserved to get me."

And the Chief replied, with a modest shrug: "Well, I used to be considered a pretty good runner when I was a kid."

Swody will be turned over to Sheriff Cooper this afternoon, and one of the borough cops will take him to Somerville for that officer this afternoon. His term will probably be fifty days.

A Lighting Improvement.

The lights recently put in place on Park avenue from Avon Park to Rev. J. T. Lansdale's, residence at the South Plainfield road, were turned on for the first time last night. Tonight the remainder of the new lights put up from Avon Park to the Plainfield line will be in use, making a continuous illumination from this city to beyond Metuchen. The improvement was brought about through the complaints of automobilists and drivers who found the darkness a menace to traffic.

Borough Council Meets September 6.

The North Plainfield Common Council will hold its regular monthly meeting Friday evening, September 6. All bills against the borough must be in the hands of Borough Clerk Frank Rowley by Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Huff, of Codington avenue, are entertaining friends from Philadelphia.

REFORMERS ATTACK FORT

HUSH BRIDGE SCANDAL

Big Meeting of the Independent Voters' Party in Newark Makes War on the Regular Republicans

—Some Hot Shots.

Another bombshell was thrown into the camp of the machine Republicans of Essex county at the meeting of the Independent Voters' Party in Oraton Hall, Newark, Monday. The hall was packed and rang with cheers for the reformers. Demands were made for an investigation into the official conduct of Supreme Court Justice J. Franklin Fort, who is now mentioned as the leading "machine" possibility for Governor.

At the same time it was announced that a little body of men in the State had been busy for a long time looking up the records of several men who hold big appointive positions, and a hint was thrown out that such men who sought elective honors had better look out that their records before consenting to run for office.

Previous to the meeting a dinner was given in the Continental Hotel to the members of the County Committee of the Independents headed by Alden Freeman, the county chairman. The meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. William Hayes Ward, and addresses were made by Mr. Freeman, Judge Elwood C. Harris, Francis L. Chrisman, Fitzmore Condit, John R. McLean, the labor leader; Herman H. Wedeles, G. I. Tomkins, H. D. Dawson and W. R. Munroe.

The sensation of the evening was contained in an address at the Oraton Hall meeting by Charles A. Bloomfield, of Metuchen, who attacked Justice Fort on the ground that he was responsible for the failure to prosecute the Middlesex County Freeholders for the illegal acts in connection with the Amboy bridge over the Raritan River. Mr. Bloomfield spoke of the charges of extravagance and fraud in the bridge building. When One Grand Jury, he asserted, was told to pay no attention to the bridge matter. The next Grand Jury was instructed to investigate and made a presentment against the Freeholders. When Mr. Bloomfield a little later asked the Prosecutor why he did not take up the presentment and act upon it, he was told that Justice Fort had directed that nothing be done about it.

When the Legislature passed the Jackson bill validating the bridge bonds and all the acts of the Freeholders and shielding them from prosecution, Mr. Bloomfield said he had gone to Gov. Stokes to oppose the signing of the measure, and that the Governor had approved the bill on the advice of Justice Fort. Continuing, Mr. Bloomfield said:

"Justice Fort has taken refuge behind the judicial ermine and claims that to defend his judicial acts would not be becoming. In an interview in The Newark Sunday Call he is quoted as saying: 'My acts in connection with the matter involved, as well as all other matters in which I sit, are of public record. I cannot become involved in any public controversy over any of them.'

"This statement has recently been followed by the letter cited at a recent political meeting in East Orange, written by Justice Fort to one of his sons stating that he was actively in the field as a candidate for the Governorship and his name is being strenuously boomed by party bosses and machine politicians in several counties.

"I have come from my home in Middlesex county tonight to sound a note of warning to the voters of Essex county. If disloyalty to public interests while a judge; how much more dangerous may such a man become in the larger field of the Governorship.

"The Call article states that the bridge troubles had been thoroughly investigated for months and that Justice Fort had been particularly active in the matter. The same paper says that private detectives were brought into the case at Justice Fort's direction and that with his knowledge and aid they worked unceasingly for weeks in an effort to obtain proof of illegal acts in connection with the Amboy bridge which would be sufficient to cause indictments and bring about convictions. Time, energy, and money were spent without stint, declares The Call article, to get at the bottom of the matter and to snatch anything of a criminal nature which might have existed, but it was all in vain.

"In reply to this I would state that I know of no investigation as to the acts of the Board of Freeholders of Middlesex county, so far as the Amboy bridge is concerned, no money exceeded in any such investigation except that carried on by the manufacturers and shippers of bricks to the Amboy bridge over the Raritan River under the direction of the chairman of the committee, who is now addressing you. All the expenses connected with that investigation were met by that association and not by the county. Any experts or detectives that were hired were paid by said association.

"In reply to the statements in The Call, I wish to state that I had requested the Prosecutor of Middlesex county to obtain from Justice Fort an examiner to investigate books and papers, and he came back with the word that the Judge had said:

"'Let the bridge!'"

Chairman Freeman, in the course of his remarks, made an attack on Chandler Riker, who is also a candidate. He also attacked Justice Fort.

WELL-KNOWN CIRCUS WOMAN PASSES AWAY

TWO OF HER HUSBANDS WERE VICTIMS OF MURDERERS.

Mrs. Agnes Lake, a retired circus performer, died Thursday at the home of her son-in-law, Gilbert Robinson, No. 791 Montgomery street, Jersey City, at the age of eighty-one year. Her maiden name was Mersman, and she was born in the town of Sterzing, Aug. 23, 1826. With her parents she came to this country and at the age of sixteen years, in Cincinnati, she became acquainted with William Lake, a well known circus clown. An elopement and marriage followed. Mrs. Lake joined the circus, performing as a tight-rope walker.

Lake afterward became the owner of a circus. In 1869, while the circus was at Grants, Mo., Lake ejected a desperado named Jake Killen. That night Killen returned to the circus and shot Lake through the heart. Mrs. Lake continued the circus until 1872, when she retired, investing all her money in a printing business in Cincinnati. In the panic of 1873 Mrs. Lake lost all her money and she was forced to return to the circus.

That same year she met and married James W. Kickok, known as Wild Bill, who at the time was Marshal of Cheyenne. Hickok, in 1876, was shot and killed in a row, and the famous circus performer was again a widow. Once more she returned to the sawdust ring. This time she became an equestrienne, producing a circus version of Mazeppa. She was quite successful. In 1880 she retired, assuming the name of Lake. Since then she made her home with her son-in-law, who also was a circus performer.

Mr. Hardin's Withdrawal.

In view of the fact that Essex county will undoubtedly be the battle-ground of the coming Gubernatorial campaign, the positive withdrawal of John R. Hardin from the list of candidates is of much significance. He declares that he has never been approached by any one in connection with the nomination, has never been a candidate, never thought of being one and will not be one. If he had wanted to stop practicing law he would have taken the Supreme Court judgeship recently offered to him.

It has been claimed that Mr. Hardin was the choice of the Hon. James Smith, Jr., or, as it was more bluntly put, that he was "Jim Smith's man," and that his nomination was a part of the scheme whereby Robert S. Hudspeth, a "Bob" Davis man, was made chairman of the Democratic State Committee. The two antagonistic bosses of the party had thus, according to current report, apportioned out the spoils agreeably to the terms of the alleged peace pact. But if no one even approached Mr. Hardin in connection with this subject he was certainly not cognizant of any such compact; and if he was Mr. Smith's choice the latter never told his political love, but let concealment gnaw the bud till Mr. Hardin himself dashed the opening flower to earth. The withdrawal of Mr. Hardin's withdrawal at this time lies in the fact that it leaves but one eminent Democrat in Essex county as a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination. Former Judge Child now has this field to himself, and the strategic point which an Essex man must have in the coming campaign makes him a very strong possibility. On the surface he is the strongest by far of any that are now in the race, but the "hull of the serpent" may be just undefiled.

Katzenbach, of Trenton, has not the entire Mercer backing, to begin with, and is not remarkably strong in Essex—that is, with the voters. Martine, of Union, will undoubtedly have the county's full and enthusiastic support, but Union has only sixty or seventy delegates at most. Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, has withdrawn—if he was ever in the race enough to withdraw—and any others of these named seem to be practically disregarded.

On the surface, therefore, former Judge Child seems to have a mortgage on the Democratic nomination, likely to be foreclosed on September 17, unless he files a quit claim, as Mr. Hardin has done. But appearances may not always to be relied on in politics. There are very strong financial interests in Essex which would much rather have Katzenbach than Child, and Mr. Smith is deeply involved in these interests. If the Democratic platform were to denounce corporation influences in politics, and meant what it said, then Mr. Child would be the logical candidate; but if such a declaration were merely a blind, the corporation Democrats of Essex might once more lead their aid to the Republican ticket.—Newark News.

PRAISE STATE EXHIBIT

Jersey's Showing at Jamestown Awakens Favorable Comment.

MANY VIEWS SHOWN

Exhibit To Be Moved to Capitol Museum After the Exposition—Belongs Mostly to the State.

Trenton, Aug. 21.—Since his return to Trenton, Francis B. Lee, who is in charge of the New Jersey Historical Exhibit at the Jamestown Tercentennial, has been in receipt of much favorable comment from exposition officers and the Virginia newspaper press concerning the exhibit. While Mr. Lee was among the late arrivals, and had to confront the problems of inefficient local labor and intense humidity, he reported the exhibit as being ready before the History Building was open to the public.

In accomplishing this end, he was assisted by the curator, Miss Cornelia Lewis White, of Eastontown, Monmouth county, and two prominent local visitors, Assistant Attorney General Nelson Burr Gaskill and Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Pleas William R. Piper, who arranged manuscripts andld boxes, tacked burlap and wielded varnish brushes with the skill of veterans.

The New Jersey exhibit is free from overcrowding. Every object is fully described. The trouble involved may be seen by an examination of the twelve hundred pictures contained in the "Postmaster's Collection" of historic post cards and "hull of the serpent" may be just un- views were collected, sorted, classified, mounted and described under Mr. Lee's direction, during the past spring and summer.

In the centre of the room are the cases containing firearms and pistols from the collection of the State arsenal and James N. Coombes, of Newark. These guns embrace a period from 1755 to date, and illustrate, by type-development the growth from the flint lock to the latest machine gun.

Wall maps were painted by Captain William E. Pedrick, of this city, and illustrate the location of Indian tribes, the growth of counties, first settlement, revolutionary battlefields, the appearances of General Washington in New Jersey (1775-1783) and some "first things."

Through the courtesy of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company Mr. Lee obtained a set of photographs illustrating the development of transportation in New Jersey from the days of the Indian pack carrier to the latest type of locomotive and from the dugout canoe to the modern ferryboat. The rare views of old Elizabethtown, Jersey City, Trenton, Newark, Camden and many rare maps and in the manuscript department, the original town book of Burlington, loaned by the courtesy of the township authorities.

Mr. Lee having completed his work, has left the collection in the care of the curator, Miss White, who will have charge of the exhibit, until the exposition closes on the first of December. The exhibit will then be removed to the museum of the State Capitol, according to present plans, as, with a few exceptions, the collection belongs to the State.

MAYOR SMALLEY APPOINTS BOROUGH STREET CLEANER

"WHITE WINGS" WILL KEEP HASSAM PAVEMENT SANITARY IN FUTURE.

Because of the complaints made by property owners of the unsanitary condition of the stretch of Hassam pavement on Somerset street as a result of improper cleaning, Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, has appointed a street cleaner to keep the stretch of new pavement cleaned. The roadway will be kept in condition by a street sweeper who will be on the job daily on the roadway between Lincoln place and Park place. The street will be washed off by the water wagon and the refuse will be swept up and collected.

Firemen Eldon Smalley and Patrick McDonough, of borough headquarters, got after the new job with the fire hose this morning and washed down the whole street, forcing the refuse along the pavement to Park place, where it was collected. The men worked with two hundred feet of hose, attaching it to the hydrants at Lincoln place and later at Manning avenue. All the refuse was removed and the street washed clean, ready for the borough "white wing" tomorrow. Mayor Smalley superintended the work of the firemen.

STANDARD OIL'S ATTACK BEGINS MOSQUITO WAR

Trust Issues Statement Declaring President's Action is for Political Effect.

BLOW AT INDUSTRY?

Alleges That Famous Trial Was Gross Injustice—Preface "A Word In Advance."

The directors of the Standard Oil Company have issued a pamphlet of 32 closely printed pages "to its employers and stockholders" as a result of the $29,420,000 fine assessed against the corporation by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, of Chicago, after its conviction on a charge of accepting rebates. While the pamphlet is largely made up of newspaper comments, criticising the great fine, the directors write "A Word in Advance," in which they say:

"The directors of the Standard Oil Company, in printing this pamphlet, desire to emphasize for the half million of people directly interested in its welfare the assurance of the company's absolute innocence of wrongdoing in any of the practices lately instituted against it in the federal courts. Nothing in this is said in the recent Chicago and Alton railroad case, made notorious by the sensational fine of $29,240,000 imposed on the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

"It should be known as widely as possible that this is no case of rebate or discrimination, but simply of the legality of a freight rate. It should be known that the verdict was obtained by the government upon the most hair-splitting technicality, aided by the rigorous exclusion of evidence that would have removed all presumption of guilt.

Analysis of Fine.

"If the judgment in question be allowed to stand, the company will be forced to pay $20,000 (that is, fifty times the value of the oil) for every carload of oil shipped in the Alton road during two years at an open 6-cent rate—a rate used over three competing railroads for from ten to fourteen years! The trial judge refused to allow proof that the 6 per cent. rate had been filed by the Chicago and Alton with Illinois, and was, therefore, a legal rate. He refused to allow proof that linseed oil, for in*stance, was carried at eight cents,* and other bulk commodities as low as five cents. He insisted that eighteen cents was the only legal rate for oil when no one had paid it, and when it was authoritatively sworn that it did not apply to oil.

"The case has been taken on appeal to the higher courts, to which we must look for such a judgment as which will rescue the rights of the citizens from the field of public clamor and from the domain of vindictive politics.

"So persistent and adroit has been the warfare waged with all the overpowering authority of the federal administration against the Standard Oil Company that it has been manifestedly difficult to get a fair hearing before the public or in a large portion of the press, the latter, to its great harm, swayed unlike by sensationalistic outcries below and political pressure from above.

Attack On the President.

"As proof of the latter it may be noted that in the president's message of May 4, 1906, attack was made on the Standard Oil Company for the purpose of influencing the passage of the bill remitting the duty on denatured alcohol—a measure in which the company was not interested. May 17, 1906, the issue of Commissioner Garfield's report on petroleum transportation, a tissue of old misrepresentations, was timed to influence the Hepburn rate bill then before Congress. May 20, 1907, while Judge Landis had still under consideration the judgment in the Chicago and Alton case, Commissioner Smith' illogical and partisan report on pipe lines was made public. The commissioner's second report on petroleum prices and profits—a wholly false deduction from incomplete facts—was sent in advance to press for publication at least 5 hours before the Judge Landis would pronounce judgment August 3. Here surely is evidence of a combination influencing all sources of public opinion, disturbing the orderly dispensation of justice, sanctioning in advance and supporting when made the most sensational opinions and judgments hostile to the company.

"What motive underlies the campaign of defamation need not here be discussed, but, for all, friends and foes, it is reiterated that the Standard Oil Company is carrying on a widespread business of great moment to the prosperity of the American people in absolute obedience to the soundest principles of business and to the spirit and letter of the law. Attacks upon it of the kind described are aimed at the nation's industrial and mercantile life."

RED TAPE IN VILLAGES

But Much Has Been Accomplished—More Labor is Needed

—Outlines His Plans.

New Brunswick is the home of the State Entomologist, and most people there had thought that he would look after ridding his own town of the pest before giving relief to the rest of the State, and has was asked to explain. And his reply was promptly made.

"I have never had any very active assistance in Middlesex county in the mosquito work that I have attempted to do," said Professor Smith. "New Brunswick breeds few locals and suffers mostly from specimens that come from the Raritan marshes on the lower reaches of the river. Neither Perth Amboy nor South Amboy have manifested the slightest interest in the subject and the officials have practically ignored all of the communications that I have addressed to them.

"The city of Newark expended a considerable sum of money in work started, as I was certain that the City paid for all the drainage work done within its borders; the city of Elizabeth paid almost half of the amount required to drain its meadows. I owed it to these municipalities to use the State funds as far as possible to protect them from the mosquitoes that breed in the marshes here completely, and we have taken up in succession Linden, Carteret, and are getting ready for Woodbridge.

"But I was not unmindful that a good many people live within the range of the Raritan meadows, and I started, as soon as I was certain what funds would be available this year, to get up an interest along this river. Sayreville responded promptly, and all of the salt marsh within that township has been drained. There will be no more mosquitoes from that territory. Raritan has a much larger territory, and by the time that all the red tape was unwound the marshes were full of mosquitoes and mosquito wrigglers. We are now working in Raritan township and expect to get through soon after the beginning of September.

"There will be little relief this year from the work on the Raritan River. The red tape in Woodbridge township has not yet been unwound. It is nearly at an end, but we will not be able to get to work until the last week of the present month at least, and meantime the biggest brood of the season has developed on the meadow, and for the next week or ten days we can expect invasions in New Brunswick, Metuchen and the surrounding country extending up a considerable distance along the Raritan River.

"Very few persons seem to realize the amount of work that has already been done and finished and the amount of work that is required in order to produce a notable impression. If it were merely a question of destroying home breeding the matter would be simple, but these swarms that breed in the salt marshes will fly many miles and infest territories that are absolutely incapable of doing anything to control them.

"It is not generally understood, either, that while there is a nominal appropriation of $350,000 for mosquito work, the actual amount that is made available during the current season is only $22,000. When the amount of work to be done is contemplated and the small amount of money available to do it is considered, I think that the work that we have accomplished during the present season must be accounted very satisfactory.

"Please remember that the mosquitoes have been with us for hundreds of years, and that the mosquito campaign, in its practical form, is less than one year old."

$4,000 DAIRY DESTROYED

Fire at Willow Grove Farm Barns Wednesday Believed to be Incendiary.

WHOLE HERD IS LOST

18 Cows, 3 Horses, Farm Machinery and Hay Lost When Roesel's Barns Go Up in Flames.

The third of a series of unexplained fires at Willow Grove, near Egg Corners, destroyed the barns and cattle sheds of Peter Roesel, of the Willow Grove dairy at midnight Wednesday. Eighteen cows, and three farm horses were burned, and the three buildings, together with farm machinery and hay, were a total loss. The illumination was plainly visible from this city. When the flames were discovered, the main barn was blazing fiercely, and the efforts of the neighbors, who formed a bucket brigade, were insufficient to check the flames, which destroyed the other barn and a cow shed.

Roesel, who had retired early in the evening, can in no way account for the origin of the fire. He was awakened by the shouts to find his barns in flames. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin, as last night's blaze is connected with the unexplained fire two weeks ago which destroyed the barns at John Lambert's place, and the recent fire at the farm of Mrs. William Steele.

The fire must have started after the cattle in the main barn, for the part of the building was a mass of flames when the fire was discovered, and it was impossible to save any of the cattle, so that the entire dairy herd was burned. About thirty tons of hay, which had just been put in the barn, were destroyed. Seeing that the building could not be saved, the neighbors, attracted by the bright illumination, devoted their efforts to saving the contents of the adjoining barn and shed. They then formed a bucket brigade and fought hard to prevent the spread of the flames. The Westfield fire department was summoned, but the blaze had gained too much headway before they arrived. The clanging of the chapel bell, rung when the fire was discovered, brought the neighbors to the scene, and a bucket brigade was organized to fight the flames. Two wagons and some farm machinery were saved, but harness, farm machinery and tools, which were in the other barn and the new shed, were destroyed.

The loss will amount to nearly $6,000, as the buildings are entirely destroyed. Roesel carries about $1,500 insurance.

DEMOCRATIC EXCURSION BIGGEST OF ITS KIND

AND J. E. MARTINE WAS THE BIGGEST FIGURE IN THE CROWD.

The Democratic County Committee's excursion to Witzel's Point Grove, College Point, L. I., Thursday, was the biggest thing of its kind ever held by a political party in this county. Fifteen hundred of the faithful went on it, among them James E. Martine, of this city, who was the chief celebrity. The affair was a big success in every way. Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., and the staff a dozen other local leaders accompanied Mr. Martine on the trip. got home with him at 11:28 o'clock Thursday night. They said it was a lovely trip.

All sorts of booms were discussed, but as far as the nomination for the Governorship was concerned, it was a Union county crowd, "Jim" Martine was the whole show, and Frank Katzenbach, of Trenton, who is generally believed to have a better chance than any other Democrat of getting the nomination, looked a lonely man in one corner of the boat. He did more than his share of handshaking. It may have helped some; for quite a few declared in his favor and all said that if the convention favored him he would have no more ardent supporters than those from Union county.

Mr. Martine, Mr. Katzenbach and State Senator George Silzer, of New Brunswick, made speeches at the grove, after dinner. They lauded one another with compliments. Enthusiasm was not very noticeable for anyone.

Birthday Party at Truell Hall.

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent, Wednesday, at Truell Hall by a dozen little maidens when Miss Violet Johnston celebrated her eighth birthday. They enjoyed themselves by playing games on the lawn until 5 o'clock, when a dainty luncheon was served in the Japanese room. The room was decorated with wisteria and lighted with Japanese lanterns, and the same effect was carried out in table decorations and favors. Among those present were Ruth Johnston, Eleanor Johnston, Violet Johnston, Elizabeth Johnston, Margaret Bates, Margaret Alling, Miriam Alling, Marjory Douglas, Margaret Evans, Beatrice Smith and Hannah Shaw.

MARTINE ON COMMITTEE.

Sewer Committee Appointed by Judge Swayze Will Meet Westfielders Monday.

James E. Martine, Judge J. Williams Crane, of Elizabeth, and ex-County Clerk William H. Howard, of Rahway, who was recently appointed a committee by Judge Swayzy, of Elizabeth, for the purpose of ascertaining the benefits and damages for the construction of a sewer in Westfield have arranged to meet the citizens of Westfield concerned in the matter at the Westfield Town Hall Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Troubles over assessment and territory covered by the sewer, which was of large extent, have led to the retention of Reed & Coddington, of this city, as attorneys in the matter by several of those interested in Westfield.

HEPTASOPHS TO CONVENE

TO ELECT A DEPUTY

J. V. E. Vanderhoef's Election to Higher Office Leaves No District Deputy.

Heptasophs from all parts of the State will send representatives to this city early in September to convene in this city on the occasion of the election of a district deputy to take the place of J. V. E. Vanderhoef, whose recent election to a higher office has necessitated his resignation as deputy.

At a meeting of the lodgemen held Monday evening, V. W. Nash, Sr., was appointed delegate to attend the meeting here and to cast the local organization's vote for Mr. Vanderhoef's successor. Delegates from District No. 59, of which Conclave No. 505, the local order, is a member, will come to this city from Trenton, Perth Amboy, Atlantic City, the Oranges, Newark, Morristown, and nearby cities. There will be about twenty-five out of town lodgemen present to ballot. The leading candidate for the office is a Trenton physician.

As was the case at the last visit of State Heptasophs to this city about four years ago, the local lodgemen will provide for their entertainment in the best of style. In connection with the business meeting, the visiting delegates will be entertained at the lodge rooms and given opportunity to meet the members, and there will also be a banquet given at the Hotel Kensington in honor of the visitors. V. W. Nash is in charge of the arrangements for the guests' entertainment.

Mr. Vanderhoef has held the office of district deputy for nearly three years. He was elected to a higher office in the lodge in January and shortly afterwards tendered his resignation as district deputy. It was his duty in this office to visit the various conclaves throughout this part of the State and conduct the rite of installing the officers.

SLIGHT FIRE CAUSED IN AN UNUSUAL WAY

BROUGHT ABOUT BY WIRE ATTACHED TO ELECTRIC IRONER.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters, Thursday, for a slight blaze at the home of A. M. Parker, of 965 East Seventh street. The *flames had practically been extin*guished before the apparatus arrived by Philip Macintyre, a next-door neighbor, who had noticed the reflection through a window.

The fire was caused in an unusual way. Mr. and Mrs. Parker went out for a ride and no one was at home. A servant had left the current turned on in an electric ironer and the connecting wire came in contact with a radiator. Through a break in the insulation, a spark was brought about and the wire covering was ignited. Sparks dropped to the floor and set fire to some clothes in a basket. When Mr. Macintyre entered the room it was filled with flame and smoke and there was no time to put a hand could not be placed upon it. The damage will reach about $75.

Another still alarm was received at 6 o'clock Thursday for a chimney blaze at the Baker residence on East Fifth street, near Watchung avenue.

RESCUED HIS DOG.

Ivamy Called to Turn on Overzealous Canine Snarer.

Fred Ivamy rescued his valuable brindle bulldog from the dog-catcher this morning. "Conjunction" Jones, who is the most energetic of the dog-catching quarters, picked up the dog from in front of Ivamy's fish market on East Second street. In corralling the dog Conjunction failed to observe that the bull was standing within Ivamy's stoop line, and therefore in a safe position to be invaded by dog-catchers on business bent.

Ivamy lost no time in making complaint at police headquarters, and Chief Kiely, in turn, lost no time in ordering Chief Dog Catcher Jim Babbitt to the dog back. The dog returned home in triumph, Babbitt leading it back for a formal and apologetic restoration to loving and indignant friends.

She was to come next week to take charge of the local institution while the matron, Miss Beatrice M. Banker, is away on her vacation.

PLAINFIELDER'S SHIP IS WRECKED OFF CHILI

Captain Winn and His Crew Picked Up at Sea After Abandoning Vessel.

NO LIVES WERE LOST

The "Tillie E. Starbuck" Deserted —Meagre News From Coquimbo Yesterday.

In a meagre report received at the New York office of Lloyds, yesterday afternoon, news of a shipping disaster in which Captain William Winn, of the Jackson building, was a prominent figure, was conveyed. It stated that the "Tillie E. Starbuck," a splendid steel vessel of which the Plainfielder was commander, had been totally wrecked and abandoned off the coast of Chili. Captain Winn and his crew were picked up last Thursday morning by the British Barkentine, "Cambuskenneth," and conveyed to Coquimbo from which place the report was forwarded.

Although attempts have been made by the owners of the vessel and Mrs. Winn direct, no further news of the disaster has been obtained. It is not known whether the mishap was occasioned by a storm or by fire in the cargo, whether the men had been adrift for days or were picked up immediately. The owners look for a full report from Captain Winn within a few days.

The "Tillie E. Starbuck" was an iron ship of 2,024 tons gross and was built at Roaches yards, Chester, Pa., in 1882. She was one of the finest vessels of the kind afloat and had safely weathered gales in every part of the globe. She arrived in New York last March after a year's trip and sailed on April 10 for Honolulu with a general cargo. A good part of it was coal and it is possible that fire may have started in it and defied all attempts to put it out. The crew comprised in all twenty-four men besides the commander.

Captain Winn has followed the sea practically all his life and has been captain of various vessels for more than thirty years. Although he was afloat almost continually, he had never lost a ship by storm and only one by fire. He had been in charge of the "Starbuck" for several years and her loss marks another depletion in the ranks of a once famous class of American shipping.

FORMER PLAINFIELD GIRL A "LEADING" ACTRESS

MISS VIRGINIA ANDERSON HEADED CAST IN "MONTANA".

Though the fact was known to few in the audience, the leading actress in the production of "Montana," at the New Plainfield theatre, Thursday night, is a former Plainfield young woman. She is Miss Virginia Anderson, daughter of the late Mrs. J. B. Anderson, who at one tiime conducted a needlework store in the Codington building on Park avenue. The family resided on Madison avenue until a few years ago when they removed to Bergen, in which city Mrs. Anderson died.

Miss Anderson is but nineteen years old but has been on the stage since she was sixteen and has made rapid progress in the profession. She was at first in musical comedy but abandoned it for the dramatic field and was selected by Henry D. Cary to head the "Montana" cast after he had witnessed her work in another production. The young woman has a charming personality and her acting last night in the role of "Flo Harper" received the stamp of approval from people unaware of her identity. She was especially *strong in the emo*tional parts.

During her stay in the city, Miss Anderson was the guest of her school chum, Mrs. Bertram C. Firstbrook, of Madison avenue.

Invite Old Exempts.

The Somerville Fire Department has invited members of the Exempt Firemen's Association, of New York, to participate in the parade in that place on October 10. The Sixty-ninth Regiment Band will accompany them. Job C. Kenyon, W. J. Keyes and W. J. Logan, members of the old New York volunteer fire department, and A. B. Rohrs, Jr., and Joshua Doughty, Jr., ex-Chiefs of the Somerville department, have been appointed a committee to entertain the old exempts.

Perkins' Opportunity.

In going after a re-election in Union county, Assemblyman Perkins is going to have an opportunity to show us what kind of a fighter he is under pressure.—Trenton State Gazette.

LOCAL BROKERS ASSIGN

Mills Bros. & Co's Failure Announced by Manager W. de La R. Anderson.

HE MAKES STATEMENT

Some Plainfield Customers Hit— Richard Canfield Said to Be Responsible For Failure.

On the floor of the New York Stoke Exchange, Thursday, it was announced that Mills Brothers & Co., the stock brokerage firm which operates a branch in this city, had made an assignment. The news came as a great surprise to the financial world and speculation was rife as to the paramount cause but no details were given.

When W. de La R. Anderson, manager of the Plainfield branch, was seen by a Daily Press reporter at noon Thursday, he confirmed the report of the failure. He made the fact known to local customers will also be regret. In speaking of the matter he declared that when he became connected with the firm last December in order to start the Plainfield office, he took pains to have the firm looked up in every possible way. His learned that members were well thought of in banking circles, both as to financial responsibility and also as to reputation for excellent judgment marketwise, and having good connections and financial backing, the Mills brothers, of which John D. Archbold, vice president of the Standard Oil Company, and Mr. Mason, the third partner, a wealthy man and a member of the Union Club, of New York.

As far as Mr. Anderson has been able to learn, the outcome of the assignment was brought on by a wealthy customer of the firm giving orders for large amounts of stock of course, putting up sufficient margin at the time. When the stock had declined so far against him as to necessitate his account being closed he repudiated his order of purchase and *demanded the amount of money or*iginally put up. This action meant a suit at law and pending this suit the firm decided it would be for the best interests of the customers to assign.

Continuing, Mr. Anderson said *that fortunately, owing to the unset*tled condition of the market, he had as few people as possible interested in it, and there will be comparatively small number of Plainfielders who will suffer should the firm not pay its debts in full.

It was declared by people in a position to know both in New York and Plainfield to-day, that the customer who had repudiated his order of purchase is Richard Canfield, of gambling fame. It was stated that he had instructed the firm to buy $200,000 worth of Missouri Pacific at 47. It bought shortly afterward and when it reached 20, Canfield, it is said, made the repudiation and called for the money put up.

PROBABLE CANDIDATES IN SOMERSET COUNTY

SHERIFF AND SURROGATE TO BE PICKED AT NOVEMBER ELECTION.

The offices of sheriff and surrogate will be filled in Somerset county this fall. The two leading candidates for sheriff at present are David Buist and Robert Kay, both of Bernards township. Bernards has not had a county office in some years and there seems to be a disposition to give it the right in this year. Surrogate the Republicans have no stated candidate. George F. Brown and Dr. J. H. Cooley, both of the borough, have been talked about. A Democratic candidate for sheriff is Frank T. Ross, of Bridgewater, who was defeated by Edward E. Cooper three years ago. For surrogate William J. DeMond may be a candidate for re-election.

Freeholders will be elected this fall in Bedminster, to succeed David Philhower; Branchburg, to succeed Henry W. Baird; Hillsborough, to succeed Richard W. Hoagland, and North Plainfield, to succeed John Emmons. It is expected that Mr. Philhower will not be returned from Bedminster. W. C. Powelson and Zachariah Smith are candidates for the place. Ie seems likely that Henry W. Baird and Richard W. Hoagland will be returned for another term. There is no opposition to Mr. Emmons in North Plainfield.

A Paradox in Age.

At an entertainment provided by the Woman's philharmonic society the most widely advertised attraction was a dancer, who, ho it was whispered, "had become too old to teach in the public schools and had taken to dancing for a living." That remarkable announcement drew a crowd of curious persons who were anxious to see what a woman looked like who was too old to teach but young enough to practice the terpsichorean art in public. Also, everybody wanted to know what the topsy-turvy age might be, but of course, no one found out.

CANFIELD MAKES REPLY

Through Counsel, Denies that He "Welched" on Mills Bros' Brokerage Firm.

HAD LARGE ACCOUNT

But Alleges That Concern Conducted Many Unauthorized Dealings With His Stock.

The news of Mills Brother & Co.'s failure Thursday, had practically no effect on the stock market, as the suspension of the firm was regarded as unimportant from a Wall street standpoint, but it caused a flurry of interest in another way. This was ntodue to the statement that Richard Canfield was the chief customer of the firm and admittedly a heavy loser through the failure and that steps taken by him to recover his claims had precipitated. These facts were published in yesterday's Daily Press.

When seen in Saratoga Thursday Mr. Canfield refused to discuss the matter, referring inquiries to Battle & Marshall, of New York. H.Snowden Marshall, of the firm, who is Mr. Canfield's personal counsel, said that it was true that the brokerage firm had carried a rather a heavy account for Mr. Canfield.

Mr. Marshall said that without notifying his client the firm had closed out the account with Mr. Canfield was absent from the city. On his return to New York Mr. Canfield demanded delivery of the stocks he had bought, and also made demands *for a balance, but no satisfactory ar*rangement could be made. It was stated that Mr. Canfield had on deposit margins far above the legal banking requirements.

"In a statement made to us," said Mr. Marshall, "there are transactions amounting to $18,000,000 which Mr. Canfield says he did not authorize, and he knew nothing about them until he received the statement from the firm. It shows that after all the stocks had been disposed of there was owing to him about $91,000.

"Mr. Canfield insisted that Mills Brothers turn over his account with the balance to some other broker. Until we are further informed with regard to the transaction it will be impossible for us to decide what action to take."

It was stated that Mr. Canfield maintains that several hundred thousand dollars is due him. From other sources it was learned that Mr. Canfield had on deposit with Mills Brothers $1,000,000 in money to cover purchases made by him of 20,000 to 30,000 shares of Pennsylvania, Illinois Central and Delaware and Hudson.

It is evident that some misunderstanding arose of the account. The stocks were sold and for the last six weeks efforts have been made to adjust the difficulty. Counsel for Mr. Canfield on Wednesday made a final demand for the stock. Members of the firm had a conference with Battle & Marshall Thursday, and the result was that the brokerage house decided to announce its suspension.

Edward Harding, of No. 43 Exchange place, New York, was appointed the assignee. He stated later in the afternoon that to all appearances the firm might adjust its affairs and continue in business, but he was not then prepared to state the amounts of assets or liabilities. The cause of the failure he ascribed *to the firm's inability to collect out*standing obligations.

Members of the brokerage house, while admitting that Mr. Canfield had been one of their customers, refused to comment on their transactions with him. The members of the firm are S. Frederick Mills, J. Harry Masson, Jr., and Philip O. Mills, the latter being the Board member. He was admitted to the Stock Exchange on May 19, 1905. The firm was organized on September 29, 1905. Philip O. Mills was formerly well known in athletic circles, and in 1904 and 1905 was a member of the Harvard football team.

It was reported that the failure of the firm was to a large degree an aftermath of the recent suspension of James W. Henning. Friends of Mr. Henning, however, said that he had paid in full all of his obligations to Mills Brothers & Co.

Brokaw Not to Run Again.

In a letter to the Bound Brook Chronicle, Mayor R. H. Brokaw, of Bound Brook, states positively that he will not accept a re-nomination to the mayoralty office. He states that a mayor should have plenty of time to give to the duties of the office and says that business engagements will make it impossible for him to accept re-nomination.

Baptist Church Directory.

An attractive booklet, containing annual statements of the various departments of the First Baptist church, with a list of the officers and a directory of the present members of the church, has just been issued. The cover design includes excellent reproductions of photographs of the church and of Faith chapel.

Improving Storm Sewer.

The street department is improving the storm sewer on Somerset street. New inlets are being built. The sidewalks are being improved also. The work at the bridge is of a rather difficult character on account of the lowness of the buildings.

NUPTIAL SERENADERS BECOME INDIGNANT

BECAUSE BRIDEGROOM TREATS CALITHUMPIAN CHORUS WITH COOLNESS.

About fifty young people of Piscataway who went to Mahlon Mundy's house Wednesday night to serenade Mr. Mundy and his bride, Miss Sarah Martin, who were married last Saturday and had just returned from their wedding trip, were very much put out when the objects of their serenade turned a deaf ear to the metallic importunities.

The serenaders had made elaborate preparations for their calithumpian chorus, including the annexing of a big wash boiler and many tin pans. The serenading custom has always been followed in the far corners of Piscataway and it is an unheard of thing there for bride and groom to fail to recognize the delicate attention.

The reception was so entirely icy that one of the serenaders was moved to toss a lemon through the window of the Mundy house. At length, they declare, they heard Mr. Mundy tell his wife to get him a revolver.

That riled the serenaders even more and finally they inveigled the bridegroom outside. When he came, they assert, he threatened to shoot. In the meantime, however, the serenaders had armed themselves with a lot of fly-paper and they let some of this drive at the bride-groom, and afterwards declared proudly that some of it took personal effect.

Subsequent to the fly-paper episode the serenaders retired and held an indignation meeting. Among the serenaders were James Hanson, William Barlow, Mrs. Warner, Mrs. Clapp, the Misses Bowers, Miss Stout.

The Uses of Worry.

Worry of one sort and another is necessary to the complete health of the spirit; worry is as surely related to effort on demand as effort is necessary on the other. It is as wholesome an exercise for th espirit, and as refreshing, as the physican exercise which the man finds so necessary to his well-being. The spirit must have its peculiar gymnastics; the soul cannot afford to become stagnant; its waters, if one may say so, must be stirred occasionally if they would be kept fresh and sweet.—Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus' Magazine.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY

Published a.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

R. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 29, 1907

THAT $20,240,000.

Should John D. order the Standard Oil Company of Indiana to pay the fine imposed by Judge Landis, it would require 177 flat cars with a capacity of 32,000 pounds to haul the total sum, $20,240,000, to the United States Treasury provided payment was made in silver dollars. What this vast sum represents has been figured out by the Memphis, Tenn., News-Scimatar, which says:

It would build five Brooklyn bridges or a new subway for New York.

It would yield a perpetual income of $4,027 a day.

It would make 914 tons of silver dollars, requiring 304 teams to transport it.

It would build 2,924 homes at $10,000 each.

It is the income for one year at 4 per cent on $731,000,000.

It is about 2 per cent of the national debt of 1906.

It is 35 cents for every man, woman and child in the whole country.

It would take 48,736 three day laborers one year to work out the amount.

It is the annual revenue of Mexico.

It is nearly one-half the capital of the Bank of England.

It is nearly one-half the number of silver dollars in circulation.

It is twenty-nine times the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the corporation fined.

It is 4,783 times the annual salary of Judge Landis, who imposed the fine.

WHY PERKINS IS OPPOSED.

Sifting it all out the only real opposition to the renomination of former Assemblyman Randolph Perkins is because he has served his third terms and the Republican party is opposed to life tenure in office. There is no question about his fitness for the place or his political probity. Mr. Perkins has done good service as a public servant, but resignation in office is an established theory of our form of government. The bitter attacks made on him by Mr. Burke and his co-workers in the anti-saloon movement, will cut little figure in deciding on his political future, that matter rests entirely with the party he represents. So far as the average voter is able to form an opinion, there is no ground for complaint against the bright young lawyer's work at Trenton, but at the same time there is not just a chance that him holding a perpetual tenure of the office.

JOLLYING AN INNOCENT ONE.

Some one ought to tell former State Senator Childs, of Somerset county, that the Democratic leaders are only getting him to honor to make a fat contribution to the gubernatorial campaign. The action of the Somerset county committee in endorsing him for the nomination is merely intended for that purpose, he being trotted out as a "favorite son" in order that his wallet may be in reach of the bosses when the campaign is underway. Were the rural county of Somerset to express its wishes for a Democratic nominee, it is safe to say that there would be a big majority in favor of Miles E. Martine. At any rate it is hardly likely that a man with as little political experience and with such narrow acquaintanceship in the party councils would be picked for such high honors. Mr. Childs has the proportion of gumption he should be able to see through the bosses' scheme.

PARTY MADE TO SUFFER.

It is unfortunate that the Governor's procrastination in the Dickinson case has furnished the Democrats in Hudson county and for that matter throughout the State with good campaign material. The right time to have eliminated the Secretary of State was when his term was about to expire but the Governor thought that he could let him continue in office and wait developments. In so doing he has brought the party into unenviable notority for Dickinson is so thick-skinned that he will not retire although he knows that he imperils the future of the party in which he professes to be so deeply interested.

Finger Crushed at Scott's.

While at work in Scott's Press Works at about 9 o'clock this morning, John Hoffman, a machinist living on East Front street, caught his right hand in the gear of some machinery, crushing and lacerating the little finger. The injured man was removed to the hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the end of the finger. He is still at the hospital.

Barbers Close Labor Day.

The barber shops in the city and borough will be closed all day Labor day, as a result of an agreement recently entered into by the local barbers.

JACK MARTIN AND O'LOUGHLIN HEROES IN WESTFIELD CONTEST.

Without Jack Martin and Billy O'Loughlin in the game, there is no telling what would have happened to the Clinton Avenues at Westfield Saturday afternoon. Jack choked the enemy off at a critical period, and his fellow-hero brought in all the Plainfield runs. The score: Clinton Avenue 3, Westfield 0.

O'Loughlin started things in the second with a single. He stole second, and dusted in on a wild chuck by the catcher. In the sixth, Bill came to the bat with two on base and two down. He picked a shoot that was just to his fancy and spoiled it for another safety. The runners pounded the pan before the pellet came back. At his post back of the plate that laning, Bill was forced out of his position by an injury to his index finger. The digit was badly split. *H. Giles took his place, and he fin*ished in right field.

In the fifth inning the Westfields had three men perched on the corners, with two out. The batter slashed a hot drive on a line that looked good for a hit, two runs, and the unguessable damage that comes from a batting rally. Jack Martin smothered the Westfield nope with a scorching one-hand stab.

Clinton Avenue has two other games with Westfield, one Labor Day morning and the other on September 14. Both will be played here.

Score by innings:

Clinton Ave.....0 1 0 0 0 2 0 0 0—3
Westfield .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

MONTCLAIR HORSE SHOW ON WEDNESDAY SEPT. 25

ENTRIES FROM ALL TOWNS IN ESSEX COUNTY.

An event which is looked forward to with much pleasure and anticipation is the coming show of the Montclair Riding, Driving and Automobile Club, which will take place on the grounds of the Athletic Club at that place on Wednesday, September 25, although not a month off, the several committees are busy arranging the details. Last year, which was the first exhibition, the entries were confined to four towns, but this season the affair is planned on a larger scale and will include all the owners of Essex county outside of the city of Newark.

The club is composed of the leading men of the town, many of whom are prominent in New York's professional and business world. There are about three hundred members.

The president of the organization is Oliver Wren, and the secretary is L. Leroy Chinn, to both of whom the success of the undertaking is largely due. The board of directors is composed of Messrs. Oliver Wren, Andrew Morrison, L. Leroy Chinn, Paul Wilcox, R. H. Adams, William T. Evans, V. S. Mulford, Captain William A. Bryant, Benjamin Graham, James N. Jarnle and L. O. Ivey. The headquarters of the club is at Montclair.

On the evening following the horse show a ball will be given in the Montclair, which will be participated in by many influential society people of Essex county.

ELIZABETH CHURCH PEOPLE GIVE FARCE AT CAMP.

Amateurs Make a Big Hit in "The Obstinate Family," Given for Camp Children.

The children at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home and a number of Plainfielders who visited the camp last evening were entertained by members of the Westminster Hope Chapel, of Elizabeth, who were at the camp and presented a three act farce, "The Obstinate Family." The play was given in the out-door auditorium at the camp and was a very successful amateur reproduction.

The incidents hinge on the sentence "Thank goodness the table is spread," and there are quarrels between newly affianced butler and maid, their employer and his wife, and their parents as a result of this simple statement. These conditions run through the first two acts, but in the end all comes opt well. Those who took part did especially well, even the minor parts being made the most of by the amateurs.

SNEAKTHIEVES' LOOT.

David M. Runyon, cashier of the First National Bank, whose house was one of the two on Arlington avenue entered by sneakthieves Sunday afternoon, came home yesterday from Lebanon, where he has been staying, to take stock of his possessions. He reported to the police that silverware and money to the value of about $200, had been stolen. The thief took only those pieces of silver that struck his fancy.

Charles L. Parker, whose house was entered by the same thieves, has not completed his inventory. The police expect to get his list this afternoon.

ENDORSE MR. TOWNSEND

Boroughites of Both Parties Would Be Staunch in His Support Should He Run.

WANT ROBERT CLARK

Strong Feeling That Former Councilman Would Work Well With J. O. Osgood Supporting Campaign Issues.

The endorsement given Samuel Townsend by Charles W. McCutchen and William L. Saunders in letters published exclusively in The Daily Press Saturday is being enthusiastically received by borough Republicans. There are several prominent boroughites who have referred to Mr. Townsend's candidacy with the statement that should he run he would be heartily supported, and would be the strongest possible nominee for the mayoralty.

In reference to the statement made in Mr. Saunders' letter that J. O. Osgood could be prevailed upon to accept a nomination for councilman, and put that body in the interests of sewers and consolidation, supporting Mr. Townsend, other boroughites take a similar stand, endorsing Mr. Osgood for council. In speaking to a Daily Press reporter today, an influential Republican borough proper-ty owner and business man spoke enthusiastically of ex-Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., to run with Mr. Osgood for council. Should Mr. Clark consent to re-enter the political field, he would undoubtedly receive hearty support from the party at the polls, for his work while a member of the borough council for two terms several years ago, showed him to be a man whose influence with the present party issues at stake would be invaluable.

Since he refused to be a nominee for mayor of the borough at the conclusion of his councilmanic service to North Plainfield, Mr. Clark has not been active in politics, but has still remained a staunch supporter of his party and that party's principles *at the polls. His views of the consoli*dation and sewer questions, the principal issues in the campaign this fall, are in accordance with those of Mr. Osgood and stated in Mr. Saunders' letter. Boroughites would call upon him for his support as a member of the council, and the issues of the campaign would be strengthened by the influence which could be exerted by Mr. Osgood and him in the council.

As far as the support of Mr. Townsend by others than members of his party is concerned, there is a feeling that he would be by all odds the strongest candidate in the field. No definite statement has yet been received from Mr. Townsend regarding his acceptance of the candidacy, but he has announced that he has the matter under his careful considera-tion, and will issue a statement within a few days. Word of his accept-*ance, it is reported, will cause sev*eral borough Democrats to go over to his support at the coming election.

SEWER COMMISSION ORGANIZE AT WESTFIELD

FIRST MEETING HELD TO ASSESS BENEFITS AND DAMAGES.

The commission recently appointed by Judge Swayze to assess benefits and damages through the building of the Westfield trunk sewer, met in the Westfield town hall yesterday afternoon. Organization was perfected by the election of Judge William Crane as chairman and former County Clerk William Howard as secretary, James E. Martine being the remaining member.

A large number of the property owners interested were in attendance, and were represented by former Judge William A. Coddington, of this city. Paul Q. Oliver appeared for the city, and the matter of the assessments were discussed at some lenght. Afterward all parties concerned adjourned to the line of the sewer and viewed the premises affected. Further statements from the people interested and it was then decided to have the town prepare suitable maps and blue prints before proceeding further. Accordingly, adjournment was taken for one month in order that this might be done.

The amount of money involved in the assessment is placed at about $30,000.

MYSTERY IN TWO THEFTS

Thief Got in One Place Without Breaking and Plunder.

HE HAD PLENTY OF TIME

Yet Passed Over Much of Value, After a Thorough Search—Police at Sea Over the Case.

Two Arlington avenue houses were entered by sneak thieves Sunday afternoon. The places raided are those of Charles L. Parker, 1045 and Dr. M. Runyon, cashier of the First National Bank, No. 1,052. Both families are out of town, and the police have been unable to learn how much plunder the thieves secured.

The Parker house is in the care of a maid. She went out yesterday afternoon, shortly after 12 o'clock, with a woman friend. They returned to the house at 6 o'clock. Everything seemed all right from the outside, but indoors they were confronted by evidences of intrusion on every hand. The maid telephoned police headquarters, and Chief Kiely investigated the case at once.

It looked puzzling. The rooms on the lower floor and a front bedroom were upset, as if the thief or thieves had made a thorough search for valuables. Nothing of value to plunder easy enough to carry, had been left. Not a door or a window had been forced. As far as signs went, the thief went in through a keyhole. The maid went out by the kitchen door and left the key in an iron box that stands in the yard. Although this key was found where the maid put it, the police believe the thief, having learned where it was to be found, made use of it. If he took time to replace the key, he was not frightened away, and his lack of interest in the loot under his hand is hard to understand.

Nobody was seen to enter the house by neighbors. The police were told that the maid and her friend met a man as they left the house, but the maid told Chief Kiely she met no one.

When William P. Spangenberg, brother-in-law of Mr. Runyon, heard of the Parker house robbery this morning, he decided that it might be well to look over the Runyon place. Nobody had been left on guard there. It took him only about a minute after he reached the scene to discover that the thieves had been there.

A parlor window had been forced, and the thieves had gone in. Everything was in disorder. As in the Parker house, the thieves had rummaged through the place where valuables might be found, but left valuables usually considered worth taking. The discovery was made at 11 o'clock, and the police were notified shortly after. Lawyer H. C. Runyon, brother of D. M. Runyon, telegraphed to the latter at the seashore.

The police have no clues to the identity or the trail of the thieves.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARDS ARE SERIOUSLY INJURED

BADLY HURT IN A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT IN RHODE ISLAND.

Mr. and Mrs. Maze Edwards, of this city, who have been spending the summer at the Highland House, Block Island, were both seriously injured in an accident at that resort on Saturday last. At present they are confined to their rooms in the hotel with two doctors and a nurse in constant attendance.

According to word sent to local friends today, Mr. Edwards and his wife went out for a drive and while proceeding along one of the reins broke. It caused the horse to get beyond control, and it ran away, overturning the carriage. Both occu*pants were thrown out and were* picked unconscious.

When taken to the Highland House it was found that Mrs. Edwards had sustained a fracture of the right arm near the shoulder and general bruises about the body. Mr. Edwards received a contused hip and thigh besides other injuries, other serious complications, the result of which cannot be fully determined. Inquiry today revealed the fact that both patients were resting easily.

Knights to Attend Field Day.

Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P., has made arrangements to attend the annual field day exercises to be held at Schuetzen Park, Union Hill, Labor Day. The members will assemble at the East bound station at 8:30 in the morning and proceed to the park. DEMOCRATS NOT DORMANT

Plenty of Material for County Nominations Brought to the Fore.

J. P. OWENS MENTIONED

Considered Splendid Man For the Assembly—LeRoy S. Gibby, of Summit, Boomed for Surrogate.

While the Republicans and New Idea men in the county have been advancing candidates for nomination next month, the Democrats have not been slow and are coming forward with lots of material. The Assembly seems to be the objective point for more than one adherent of the party and names have been cropping up with unceasing regularity.

From the home county came the news today that the men lost prominently mentioned for nomination are Harry Coulter, of Rahway, who was on the ticket last year; William S. Tuttle, of Cranford; John P. Owens, of Plainfield; William Mayo Atkinson, of Elizabeth, and William S. Brower, of Summit. All these men have been identified with Democratic movements for a long time. Tuttle is engaged in the practice of law and has a large following, as has also Atkinson, who stands high with the Elizabeth people.

The Plainfield man mentioned for a place on a ticket is also well known throughout the county as well as in his home town. Like many other Assembly aspirants he is a member of the legal profession and has been a faithful worker for the party since casting his first vote. Though he has not held office previously, he is considered competent in every way and is regarded as one of the best men yet named.

For the surrogate nomination, the Democrats have advanced but one man, LeRoy S. Gibby, of Summit. He has announced himself in the field and there is but little doubt that he will be the party choice. He has been prominent in Union politics for years and is popular in his home town. The wise ones say that in the event of his being on the ticket he will give his Republican opponent a "run for his money" and that no one need be surprised if he finished ahead.

MAYOR FURBER COMES OUT FOR MR. PERKINS

RAHWAY MAN EXPLAINS WHY HE SHOULD BE SENT BACK.

Mayor James B. Furber, of Rahway, is working for the renomination of Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, and in a letter to Chairman Peter Tillman, of that place, will become an inspector of denatured alcohol, is fighting as hard as the other way.

Mayor Furber has sent the following letter to Mr. Perkins:

"I take the earliest opportunity to congratulate you upon the courage you have shown in opposition to the so-called 'bosses.' I can conceive of no justification the voters of Union county can have for failing to give you their loyal and hearty support.

"If to aid the cause of the people in opposition to the railroad and other corporations, and to oppose the election of a U. S. Senator who represents the corporations instead of the people, is to be the cause of your defeat, then defeat becomes more creditable than a victory won by deserting your constituents.

"Is it the bosses who have established the precedent that just at the time when our assemblyman has learned the ropes, and has become valuable as a representative he shall be turned down for a third or fourth term? If they are responsible for that precedent, then the agitation against the bosses has another justification.

"If the rule is applicable in the choice of an assemblyman, then why not in the choice of a Congressman? The absurdity of the proposition is self-evident and in this case it does not require the utmost amount of courage to break the precedent and establish a new one which shall be founded entirely upon the quality of the service rendered by the candidate for re-election.

"The resulting benefit of your services in behalf of the public schools alone should ensure your election by a largely increased majority. Any service I can render you may count upon so long as your legislative record is in behalf of the people of Union county, and therefore of the State at large."

SISTER'S LONG JOURNEY HAS A SAD ENDING

ARRIVES AT SARANAC LAKE TO FIND HER BROTHER DEAD.

Jeppe Sorensen, who has been at Saranac Lake for the benefit of his health and whose relatives were summoned by physicians Friday, died at the resort late Friday night. His sister, Miss Christine Sorensen, hurried to the lake immediately after receiving the message, but did not reach there until late Saturday morning. The body was immediately prepared for shipment to Plainfield and reached here yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Sorensen was the son of Christian and the late Maren Sorensen and was thirty years old. In the bicycle days of the middle '90's he was well known as a fast rider and won many events in amateur races. Previous to the time his health called him he conducted the Crescent Market, at Fourth street and Watchung avenue. He leaves a little daughter, his wife having died about a year ago. He is also survived in addition to his father by one sister, Miss Christine Sorensen, and two brothers, Morris and Chris. Sorensen, Jr. The last named is the business representa*tive of Arthur Pryor's Band*, at present located at Asbury Park.

FEW PLAYERS ON LOCAL GOLF LINKS SATURDAY

W. D. RIGGS WON FIRST HONORS IN COUNTRY CLUB COMPETITION.

The links at the Country Club were heavy and soggy Saturday afternoon, as a result of the heavy rain, and there were few players out to compete for points in the contest for the various cups. Though the greens were slow, there was but little standing water on the course and those who went around played under fair conditions.

The week's honors for the Golf Committee cup were taken by W. D. Riggs, whose card showed a 77 net. G. F. Schoonmaker, with a 95, made a net score of 78, winning two points for the cup; Will Glenney, with a handicap of 2, got a point with his 79. W. D. Riggs also won a leg on the Scratch cup with his 84.

These cards were posted for the Golf Committee cup:

W. D. Riggs, 84- 7—77; G. F. Schoonmaker, 83, 5—78; Will Glenney, 81, 2—79; J. E. Erickson, 92, 10—82.

Among the Class B players in the contest for the Green Committee cup, H. F. Fox, 94-80; C. C. Burke had an 82 for second honors, and the point for third best score went to G. E. Cathcart, with an 83. These scores were posted for the Class B cup:

H. F. Fox, 94—80; C. C. Burke, 92, 9—82; G. E. Cathcart, 87, 4—83; J. P. Murray, 98, 12—86; W. F. Merrill, 109, 20—89; H. Williams, 113, 26—87.

There were no cards turned in at the Park Golf Club in the season's competition for cups. The course was in poor shape after the heavy rains and though there were several players at the club in the afternoon, but few played the eighteen holes. No scores were posted for the tro*phies.*

Runaway Heard From.

William McCarthy, a mason, father of one of the two boys who took 10-year-old Charles Callahan with them on a runaway trip, and lost him in Asbury Park, where the police found him on Sunday, has heard from his son. The boy wrote a postal saying he was at work at Asbury Park. Nothing has been heard of William Richter, the third boy. He is an experienced traveller, and knows how to take care of himself on the road.

Fined $3 Apiece.

At their hearing before Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough court last night, Harry Smith and John Diltz, boroughites, arrested Friday night by Marshals Pope and Kiernan were fined $3 apiece for being drunk and disorderly on Somerset street. Both men paid the fine. Saturday morning they had furnished $10 half apiece to secure their freedom until the hearing.

Harry B. Suydam, a New York broker, will be the choice of the Fourth ward's regular organization for councilman-at-large and Herbert Buxton, the present councilman-at-large, will be run as a ward candidate for Council. Suydam was an ardent New Idea man in the last campaign.

TEN-YEAR-OLD RUNAWAY

LOST HIS COMPANIONS

Small Charles Callahan Discovered in Rude Burrow Under the Seaside Board-walk.

After three days of anxious waiting, fear for the safety of their ten-year-old son, Charles, was ended for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Callahan, of 746 East Second street, yesterday. The boy was found at Asbury Park, by the police of that place, yesterday morning.

Charles went away in company with a boy named Richter, who has figured in several runaway trips, and another small boy with the wanderlust. All three boys live close together. Charles had never been off with the Richter boy before, and when his parents learned that he had gone away they were frantic with fear that some harm would befall the little traveller.

Nothing was heard of the trio un*til yesterday morning, when the As*bury Park police telephoned the local authorities that Charles was in their custody. He was found burrowed in the sand under the boardwalk, where he had crept for shelter.

He told the Asbury Park police that Richter and the other boy had become separated from him, and he had no idea of their whereabouts. It *is supposed the other two are wan*dering about the seaside city, and the police there will hunt for them.

Charles was washed and fed, and the message announcing his recovery was sent, without delay. The police here notified Mr. Callahan at once, and the overjoyed father took the first train to the shore.

NETHERWOOD CAMP CLOSES NEXT MONDAY.

Children Will Be Returned to New York In Time for School Opening.

Next Sunday will be the last regular service of the year at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, and on Labor Day, the New Yorkers will pack up and move back to the city, after two months' vacation at their invigorating quarters. There were nearly 350 at the camp for the service yesterday, and another delegation of about twenty-five were brought to this city from New York this afternoon. None of the children now at the camp will return until Labor Day, when the camp will formally break up for the winter. The New York schools open next week, and Miss Curry, the matron at the camp, is anxious to let as many children as possible get at least a few days' vacation.

This evening members of the Westminster Hope Chapel, of Elizabeth, will be at the camp, and will present the three act farce, "The Obstinate Family." The play will be given in the camp auditorium, and will begin at 8:30. Tomorrow evenin. there will be a song service at the camp, conducted by the church societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Thomas Hargreaves, Percy Cannon and Clarence B. LaRue are to be at the camp. The blind man has taken great interest in the life at Netherwood during this summer, and has been present regularly at the meetings. He will play the accordion for the children, and Mr. LaRue will be the speaker of the evening. Friday evening, Clarence A. Titus will be at the camp again, with a delegation from the St. James' Methodist church, of Elizabeth.

McCUTCHEN AND SAUNDERS DECLINE MAYORALTY

IN FAVOR OF TOWNSEND AS BEST FITTED MAN

Former Disapproving Government by Telephone Bars Himself from Borough Nomination.

PICK LOGICAL NOMINEE

Both Give Their Views On Local Questions — Saunders Would Rather Fight in the Ranks for Consolidation.

That he places the municipality's interests above party and that he believes that one who is not tied up by needless attention to business interests elsewhere should be the next mayor of North Plainfield are ideal expressions made by Charles W. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, besides being the largest property owner in the borough. Mr. McCutchen possesses civic interest far greater than to be found in the general run. He has given much time to the borough's welfare, only recently playing an important part in the work devolving upon the borough sewage commission as well as the municipal consolidation commission.

Republican leaders have been urging Mr. McCutchen for two weeks or more to become their standard bearer for the mayoralty. His answer together with the salient reasons are to be found in an appended letter in response to some questions asked by The Daily Press. Mr. McCutchen recommends that Samuel W. Townsend, a member of the Board of Education, who has been working hard for the borough's interests for years, be made the next mayor. The fact that Mr. Townsend is a Democrat does not carry any weight with Mr. McCutchen, who tells the ways and wherefores in the following letter:

Editor, The Daily Press:

"Replying to your letter, addressed to me at Lake Placid, asking if I would accept the mayoralty nomination of the borough, and requesting a statement of my views about sewers, consolidation, etc., I beg to say that I have no intention of allowing my name to be presented as a candidate for the office in question. If I had no other reason, the fact that my business and other personal interests necessitate my daily absence from the borough would be a sufficient one. Along with other citizens whose vocations are likewise in New York, I am practically a non-resident. I consider it of prime importance that the mayor of North Plainfield should be a day resident, not merely a night dweller in the borough.

"Past experience has clearly demonstrated that the public affairs of the borough can be more satisfactorily and efficiently administered by a mayor who actually lives in the community, and who comes in close touch each day with its citizens. The mayoralty administrations of Col. John F. Wilson, and of the present incumbent, Mr. Smalley, are conspicuous examples of the advantages of this policy. Mr. Fisk, the honored mayor of the city, recognizes this in his distinctly wise and unselfish arrangement of practically withdrawing from his large business affairs during the time he is in office. The borough cannot be governed by absent treatment, nor satisfactorily administered by long distance telephone.

"It would therefore, in my judgment, be most desirable that a citizen be selected, if possible, to serve as mayor of the borough who does not belong to the commuter class. This naturally restricts voters in choosing a suitable candidate, and eliminates a class of citizens among whom mayoralty timber and talent could no doubt be easily selected. Undoubtedly, however, there are excellent men outside of the New York contingent who would be in this, and all other respects, qualified. There occurs to me at the moment the name of one citizen who would, in my opinion, admirably fill and adorn the qualifications of the position. I refer to Samuel Townsend, at present a member of the Borough Board of Education, who has rendered excellent service in that department. He is a citizen of the North Plainfield unusual executive ability, and enjoys the confidence of the whole community. If he could be persuaded to allow his name to be presented for the mayoralty, I am satisfied that he would receive the votes of the majority of his fellow citizens.

"In regard to the question of sewers;—I thing my opinion is perhaps quite well known, as I am connected with the commission which recently filed its report with the borough Council recommending the immediate installation of a thoroughly modern sewer system under a contract with the authorities of the City of Plainfield for the disposal of the North Plainfield outfall. I am strongly in favor of the borough authorities promptly acting upon the recommendations of the commission.

"As to consolidation, in like manner my views are expressed in the recent report of the Consolidation Commission, of which I am a member. The practical conclusion reached by that commission was that consolidation without annexation is not feasible.

"I am, dear sir,

"Yours very truly,

"C. W. McCUTCHEN."

Former Mayor W. L. Saunders, who has been slated as the probable Democratic candidate, has decided not to allow his name to be connected with the nomination and in a letter has made an urgent appeal to Samuel R. Townsend to run for the office. Mr. Saunders is the father of the annexation and consolidation movement and is one of the best citizens a municipality could possess. His endorsement of Mr. Townsend can not fail to do the latter's candidature credit.

Mr. Saunders' letter follows:

"North Plainfield,

"August 23, 1907.

"Mr. Samuel Townsend,

"North Plainfield, N. J.

"I have seriously considered the question of running for mayor, and have decided not to run. You know that I would make great sacrifices for the cause of consolidation, and I would run for mayor and make the sacrifice did I not feel that the situation, so far as consolidation is concerned, might not be improved, and that I could be of more use on the outside. Furthermore, I still think that we had better keep the issue of consolidation out of the present campaign and make the issue sewers.

"Since we met the other day, I have talked with Mr. J. O. Osgood and others, and since I have given my definite decision to the Democrats, there is a unanimity of sentiment that you are the man to run for mayor. I believe that Mr. Osgood will make his sacrifice and go into the council in the interests of sewers and consolidation if you will stand for mayor. Such a ticket cannot be beaten.

"I believe it to be a fundamental condition to the success of consolidation in the Legislature that both mayors of Plainfield and North Plainfield, go to Trenton to urge the passage of the bill in accordance with the report of the bi-municipal consolidation commission. If one of these mayors is a Republican, as Mr. Fisk is, and the other a Democrat, meaning you, it will be very difficult to prevent the Legislature from giving us a referendum consolidation bill, as recommended by the commission.

"If I should run for mayor, the question of consolidation would surely come up at the election. There are all sorts of ways by which this issue might be complicated, and I still feel that it might hurt us in the Legislature to have consolidation stand as a Democratic measure. With you running for mayor, there would be no special issue of consolidation at the election, but I know you to be a strong consolidationist. You would cement all factions; you would carry more Republican votes than I could hope to get, and you would have the solid support of the Democrats.

"I can quite understand that we are asking a good deal of you in this matter, but it seems to me the only logical outcome of the situation. You are the man, and with Osgood to help you, you can do this community a great service.

"Very truly yours,

"W. L. SAUNDERS."

STOLE FROM HIS UNCLE.

For Which 17-Year-Old Carl Javlonskey Is Jailed.

On complaint of his uncle, Paul Nachtwey, who accuses him of petty thefts, Carl Javlonskey, 17 years old, was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning on a disorderly conduct charge. The boy acknowledged his guilt, and was sent to jail for two months.

Nachtwey keeps a delicatessen store. His nephew has been in the habit of tapping the till whenever moved by a pressing need for money, and Nachtwey grew tired of the practise. He didn't want to make a charge of theft, and the magistrate accepted one of disorderly conduct. Javlonskey's thefts are said to have amounted to $32.

PIERCE VERSUS PERKINS

Cranford Man Announces His Candidacy to Succeed Westfielder in Assembly.

PERKINS SEES KEAN

Leader of Republicans in Lower House Serves Notice On Organization That He Will Fight for Renomination.

FOR ASSEMBLY

John R. Moxon, of Elizabeth, of Rahway, Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford.

Such is the regular Republican slate to date, with Rahway yet to be heard from. The news broke in the campaign, Mr. Pierce, a New York lawyer, who has resided in Cranford for nearly a quarter of a century, made his appearance on Saturday when he formally announced his candidacy to succeed Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, who is making the fight of his life to be returned to Trenton. There are several men in the field from Rahway since Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of that place, as exclusively told in this paper, decided not to seek a renomination. Among the number are Charles Angleman, G. M. Howard and T. H. Roberts, but it is not believed that any candidate will be agreed upon for some days.

Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, who is opposed by the organization on the ground that he has already had three terms, one more than is generally allotted by the party, was on the scene early today and was down town to work to push his candidacy with renewed ardor. When informed that Mr. Pierce had announced himself a rival candidate, Mr. Perkins said the announcement was no news to him. He said he had never heard of Mr. Pierce but did not doubt that he was a very fine man.

"I had a talk with former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean one day last week, said Mr. Perkins. "He told me in the course of our conversation that the real reason that Le opposes me on is that I have had three terms. I impressed upon him the fact that others were in the same boat and that I propose to leave it to the people of Union county to say whether I can go to Trenton again for them. I asked him the direct question whether the organization was not satisfied with my record and he replied point blank that there was no protest against me on that ground, adding that my record was all right. I gave him to understand that fact two or three people should sit in judgment on my fate; that Union county contained more than 40,000 voters and I would wait until I heard from them at the county convention."

"You will recall, continued Mr. Perkins, "that two years ago I fathered the bill to divide the State into assembly districts so that there could be more "home rule" in the way of electing our representatives. That act was declared unconstitutional by the courts and last winter I gave my support to the proposed constitutional amendment permitting of a return to the old method of selecting the assemblymen. This I pointed out to Mr. Kean, and likewise other matters which I shall not dwell upon." My record is open to the people and I challenge any man to show that I have not worked hard and conscientiously for the best interests of the people. And now I make my appeal to them. They are the ones to judge me and I feel confident that they will send me back to Trenton once more."

"MRS. WHEELER" AGAIN?

Woman Who Swindled Local Tradesmen Bled Bay Shore Merchants.

NOW "MRS. GRENELL"

Changed Her Name When She Left Here and Has Been Working Same Game On Long Island.

Residents in the neighborhood of Ninth street and Madison avenue, and especially certain local tradesmen who still have accounts open on their books with "Mrs. Wheeler, wife of Colonel Wheeler, of Alabama," or any of the six members of her family, will be interested to learn that "Colonel Wheeler" has died, and the woman, now known as "Mrs. E. M. Grenell," has just left the tradesmen of Bay Shore, L. I., with about $3,000 coming to them, and gone away to swindle the shops in some other city. The woman, who came to this city with her family about six months ago, is now being sought by Long Island police, who have a bunch of warrants for her arrests from Bay Shore tradesmen, who have been defrauded out of amounts up to $800 because they extended credit to "Mrs. Grenell" until a mythical remittance should arrive.

The "Wheelers," or the "Grenells," or the "Fitz-Marrays," for that may be the name under which they are charging goods today, came to this city about last February. The family consisted of "Mrs. Wheeler," her four daughters, and her little son. They remained here a few weeks and his trip abroad had made them leave their home in Alabama until his return. The woman rented a house on Madison avenue, near Ninth street, and ran accounts with a score of local tradesmen on the strength of the expected remittance from Paris. When credit failed because of the non-appearance of the legal tender, the "Wheelers" left town suddenly, and have just recently been identified as the "Grenells" at Bay Shore, where one of the daughters went by the name of "Mrs. Lillie Wheeler," a widow. No mention was made at Bay Shore of "the Colonel."

At Bay Shore, the family rented one of the handsomest houses some five weeks ago, and have been living on their credit, "awaiting remittance" until they made a disappearance, late at night, in a new, unpaid for, automobile. Two of the Bay Shoe tradesmen, warned by Sam, the negro butler, succeeded in collecting their bills. Then it was that the "prosperous" looking "Mrs. Grenell" and her family left town and changed their name.

NOMINATIONS IN ELIZABETH.

Republicans Select Candidates to Run at Primaries.

The Republicans of the First and Fourth Wards in Elizabeth last night took initial steps in preparation for the coming campaign. Well attended meetings were held and candidates nominated to be voted for at the primaries. The First Ward Republican ward committee met at Grand Republican headquarters and Sidney M. Williams acting as chairman, made the following nominations:

Delegates to the State convention, Richard Burke, Dennis P. Murphy, and William Haller; members of the city central committee, James Grimes of the First District, and William Roehner, of the Third District; member of the City Council, William Sterritt; member of the Board of Education, William Wagner.

In the Fourth Ward the following nominations were made:

Delegates to the State convention, Charles Ernest and Dr. P. DuBois Banting; member of the city central committee from the Second District, Robert J. Kirkland. Two candidates for City Council are yet to be named.

"BOB" ABBOTT CHAMPION

Plainfielder Wins Title in Big Amateur Golf Tourney at Deal.

BEATS SCOTCHMAN

Dudley Barrows and Licut. Rogers Meet In Semi-Finals—Barrows Beaten In Finals.

"Rob" Abbott, intercollegiate golf champion for 1905, gathered in new honors for himself among amateur golfers Saturday when he defeated E. M. Richardson, the young Scotchman, who is in this country for the season, in the finals at the Deal Golf and Country Club tournament, and as winner of the three days' tournament, brought away the big silver President's cup and the title of champion. The Yale man's victory was especially laudable because his defeat of the Scotchman kept the big trophy in this country. Abbott proved the "dark horse" of the tournament, for George T. Brokaw, who trimmed Walter J. Travis, the Garden City vet, in a second round match Friday, was picked to win the title.

Despite the fact that rain in the morning made the greens heavy and slow for the finals in the afternoon, Abbott played steady, consistent golf, in his match against the Scotchman, who beat Harold Wilcox, of Montclair, 3 and 2 in the semi-final round. The Plainfielder made a 42 out, for the first nine holes, and was 1 up on Richardson. After the turn, Abbott made a 39, which was consistent, and was one up on the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth holes each, and two up on the fifteenth, the two splitting even on the tenth and fourteenth. This good play gave the Yale boy the match and title, 5 up and to play. The bye holes were not played.

Abbott's match in the semi-finals with Brokaw was an eventful one. The Plainfielder finally won by 1 up after an uphill fight. The two were square at the sixth, but Abbott was 2 up to the turn, as well as a 40. He braced right there, however, and came back with a 36, winning the tenth, twelfth, fourteenth and sixteenth and breaking even on all but the fifteenth. Brokaw's 39 on the last nine gave Plainfielder the match, 1 up for the eighteen holes. Abbott's card in this match, showing an 82, was the best golf of the day. It was:

Abbott ....5 6 5 5 5 4 7 4 5—46
Brokaw ....5 7 6 5 4 3 6 3 5—44
Abbott ....4 4 4 2 4 4 4 4 6—82

Two Plainfielders, Dudley H. Barrows and Lieutenant N. Pendleton Rogers, Jr., were pitted against each other in the semi-finals for the Vice President's cup yesterday. Barrows had a hard time of it, with the luck on several holes because of the sloppy turf, and took the match 8 up and 6 to play. He was beaten by F. R. Upton, Jr., a Baltusrol, player, 2 up and 1 to play in the finals.

Barrows and Rogers, who were scratch, who had a card of 77. Dudley Barrows' 82, 5—77 gave him a place among the leaders in this play

FUN WITH THE PROFESSOR.

Erudite Teacher Deceived by Conscientious Student.

A well-known professor remarks that the passion for any science may make a man hopelessly narrow in a way. As an example he cites the case of an elderly professor in Middletown, Conn., whose love for philology was so excessive that it frequently led him to disregard the broader principles of language in his minute searches for the particles binding an ordinary English word to its Ayran or Sanskrit ancestry.

Once a student thought to have a bit of fun at the learned professor's expense. Assuming an air of great modesty, he rose.

"Doctor, I've been thinking a great deal of late about the derivation of the word 'Middletown.' What is your idea of it?"

The professor was a bit taken aback. "Really," he stammered, "I—er—really, young man, that is a subject that will require much reflection. May I ask whether you have chanced upon anything that would throw any light on the question?"

"It is my firm belief, sir," responded the student, with great gravity, "that Middletown is derived from Moses."

"Dear me, dear me!" exclaimed the guileless professor. "And pray tell, how do you derive Middletown from Moses?"

"Very easily, doctor," replied the joker; "by dropping 'oses' and adding 'iddletown.'"—Lippincott's Magazine.

WARNINGS OF NO AVAIL.

Sinner Went on Evil Way Despite the Manifestations.

This curious tale of old-time spiritism is taken by Defoe from Beaulieu's (1615-1691) "Historical Discourse on Apparitions:" "There is now in London an understanding, sober, prious man, oft one of my hearers, who has an elder brother, a gentleman of considerable rank, who having formerly seemed pious, of late years declined to fall into the sin of drunkenness. He often lodges long together here in his mother's house, and whensoever he is drunk and has slept himself sober, something knocks at his bedhead, as if one rapped on the wainscot. When they remove his bed it follows him. Besides other loud noices on other parts where he is, that all too mouse bears, they have often watched him and tied his hands lest he should do it himself. But his mother declared that she had seen his elbow under the bed taken up and nothing visible to touch them. The drunken sinner refused, in spite of these solemn warnings, to abandon his evil ways."

Lindy's Select Patronage.

It was during the time of the Spanish-American war. An officer of a Massachusetts regiment, carrying under his arm a bundle of soiled linen, called at the home of a colored woman living on the outskirts of Jacksonville, who had made quite a reputation for good laundry work among the soldiers.

"Does yo' belong t' de Fif' Mah'land?" Lindy was asked.

"No."

To de Hund'ed-an-fifty-fif' Indeeany?"

"No."

"Th'd Pennsellvany?"

"No."

"Twen'y-second Ohio?"

"No!"

"Wale, yo' all clar outen here. I'se kep' private wash-lady by dees fo' reginents!"

Caught Mother, Too.

A little girl went with her mother to see a baptising which was being conducted at a lake a short distance from her home. She watched with great interest while the men cut a long hole in the ice, it being winter, and when the preacher took one of the candidates for baptism by the arm and led him down into the water and immersed him, the little watcher, thinking no doubt, that they were all to be treated in like manner, turned and fled to the house. A short time after that her mother, who had been baptized, came up to the house dripping wet and was astonished by the following from the little one:

"Well, mamma, they caught you, didn't they?"—Judge.

How to Light a Fire.

Most people when setting a fire lay the wood flat, criss-cross, and the paper in the bottom of the grate, but let them try placing the wood sloping from the sides of the grate to the center. This forms a funnel for a free passage of air, and so the flame travels up the stick more quickly than it does across the result is that fewer pieces are required, and the grate burns up more brightly and in half the time that usually takes. Woman's Life. Then when placing a lump of coal on the fire if you wish it to last a long time lay it with the grain of the coal running across, as the flame travels more slowly across than upward.

Removal of the Stomach.

The entire stomach was first successfully removed by Schlatter, of Zurich, in 1897. B. Vasallo, a surgeon of Argentina, reports having now performed 15 gyloroctomies and considers the gravity of these operations more apparent than real. Four months after the last complete removal of this organ, the patient was in excellent health, with no incovenience except the necessity of eating often and but little at a time.

MADE USE OF HER LEGACY.

Aunt's Bequest of Use to Ease Niece's Feeling.

When people asked Miss Amanda Green what she received from her aunt in the city as a legacy, Miss Green always smiled grimly and stepped toward her fireplace.

"Aunt always said she should remember me in her will," Miss Green would say, "and although I knew the family traits, I did calculate on a few hundred dollars, she being worth somewhere up in the hundred thousands. But what she didn't leave to her son all went to the college where he got his education.

"It was stated in the will that I was to choose 'any remembrance from among the household furnishings that I wished.

"I chose this pair o' bellows," and Miss Green would lift a well-worn article from the peg where it hung. "Some folks wouldn't sense the fun I've got out o' these old things. Aunt Rebecca wouldn't ever let 'em be used for fear they'd start the fire up too much. I've sat over a dying blaze in her fore-room with my eyes on this pair o' bellows till it seemed as if my gaze would fetch 'em right off their hook!

"Now I take 'em down, even when 'tisn't necessary, and I work 'em back and forth hard as I can, and it eases my feelings so that by the time I hang 'em up I'm ready to say: 'Poor old Aunt Rebecca!' instead of—well, something quite different."—Youth's Companion.

TEACHER WAS ALL RIGHT.

Had Answered All Questions in a Satisfactory Manner.

I was staying over night with a farmer, says a writer in the Chicago Daily News, and after supper we were talking about educational matters, when I mentioned the fact that I had passed a schoolhouse about two miles west of his farm that afternoon and that the female teacher, who was standing in the door, was an intelligent-looking girl.

"Yes, I got her the place," he replied.

"Then you are what is called the moderator? You had to ask her various questions to see if she was fitted for the place?"

"Well, not so very many. I asked her about the Rocky mountains and the Atlantic ocean and who Shakespeare was, and she answered right off. Then I said something about Turkey and how many times 10 went into 80 and her answers showed me she was right up to the mark. Then I asked her in case my old woman died during the summer if she'd marry me in the fall, and she said she'd be durned glad to, and I told her to bring along her duds and take the job."

Haggard Tells a Story.

In a letter to the London Times concerning a statement recently made that he was responsible for the land policy of the British government, H. Rider Haggard, the well-known novelist, tells the following story:

"I am reminded of a story of a certain Daniel Lambert of a Boer who, being caught napping by savages, rushed to his horse exclaiming, 'O, Lord, help me mount!' So abundant and vigorous was the heavenly aid vouchsafed that he not only reached the saddle, but flew right over it to the veldt beyond, and as the Zulus came up and speared him we heard to declare reproachfully, O, Lord, thou has helped too much!' In like fashion I may say, 'O government, thou has helped too much!' for I have always aimed, not at revolution, but reform."

Intoxicated Insects.

Citizens of Pasadena, Cal., have made complaint to the authorities that bees and flies, intoxicated in fermented orange juice, have become a nuisance that should be abolished. They say that the proprietors of a nursery near the town have a large force of Japanese employed extracting seeds from partly decayed oranges, and in the process of squeezing the seeds from the oranges a small stream of orange juice flows from the place, which attracts millions of flies and bees, which become intemperate. The nursery uses the seeds for planting.

Be Singular.

Are we growing too much alike? Some one has asked this disturbing question, and some one else—evidently a pessimist—has been rushing about "taking stock" of the appearance of people in general. They may be prejudiced when they record that we have no higher ambition than to be mistaken for our neighbors; still, it cannot be denied that few of us are content to remain in addition which marks us as singular among the many, even though it may be singularly beautiful, healthy, happy, or wise.—Lady's Pictorial.

Churchyard Under the Sea.

When the coast erosion commissioners visited Walton on the Naze yesterday they were shown a spot north of the pier, and about a mile from the shore, which was formerly a churchyard, says the London Daily News. A quarter of a century ago the tombstones could be seen under water at ebb tide, but since then the sea has further encroached, and even when the tide is extraordinarily low and the sea clear the old burying ground is covered. EPWORTH LEAGUE

Sept. 1: "The duties call," . . . did not choose Me, but I chose you and appointed you that ye should go and bear fruit and that your fruit should abide."—John xv, 16.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Matt. iii, 13-17; Luke ii, 11, 25, 34, 47-49; xviii, 35-43; Acts xxvi, 13-20; II Tim. i, 9; iv, 6-8.

(Epworth League Daily Devo)

In a very true sense Jesus Christ calls men now, as He did in the days of His earthly lifetime, to follow Him. And those who heed His call and obey it are sent out into the world to do His service. Those called are from all occupations and all grades in society now, as they were then.

We do not always realize that there were many whom Jesus called who did not respond to His summons. Some were too much engrossed in business affairs, while others thought too much of the position they occupied in society which they would forfeit in becoming His followers. It is the same today and ever has been.

Those who obey the call and devote themselves thereafter to active service are plenty of it. They are called to bring things to pass. They are glad to be understood that they are "pressed to obey and live the obedient life to the Master, and as He commands so they are to do. They are to follow Him. That does not always mean to follow just as He did. We are not to be imitators of Jesus, but followers, which is a far different thing. We are to know the divine life within us as He knew it, and then it is to bring forth in us fruit, as it brought forth fruit in Him. But it will be one in the main in individual task. Peter cannot do as John, nor James as Paul must do. Neither one can be a Christ. Is the question for each to ask is how what does some one else do, not even what would Christ do, but "What will I then have me to do, Lord?"

This is the essential lesson for all Leaguers to learn at the outset. Our one work is to do the Master's will. Before we can do it we must know what it is. This He reveals to us and to us only. No one else can tell you what duty for you is. This is a very solemn fact and not always a pleasant one, for it means much personal responsibility and perhaps much trouble or persecution. Nevertheless it is true.

This is great work the Lord has in hand, and to those who join Him in the work there comes an enlargement of nature, a growth of soul, until meekness like His own begins to be theirs.

Then the days of preparation are passed, and now the real work of busy life begins in earnest. The outlings have brought many and varied experiences to all. Are we better than when the summer began? We ought to be. Have we received some uplift, any higher impulse, from the past few weeks? If we have, now is the time to let it become apparent in better work for the Lord. If we are not in as good spirit before we closed as when we began, but have lost ground, now is the time to make improvement.

This season ought to mean much for every one of us. The King's work requires haste. This business is urgent and cannot be deferred. It calls for earnest and whole souled consecration to the service, with the firm determination to live for Christ more devotedly than ever before. The work demands it; we need it, and, above all, the Master desires it.

Whatever hindrances there may be in the way, it is better to face them and settle the matter once for all that, as for me, I will follow Christ at all times and wholly.

Severing the Line to a Diving Message.

When we turn away from some duty or some fellow creature, saying that our hearts are too sick and sore with some great yearning of our own, we may only sever the line over which a divine message was coming to us. We shut out the man, and we shut out the angel who had sent him on to open the door.—Edward Garrett.

Things to Think About.

Our greatest glory consists not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall.—Goldsmith.

If a man is to be a pillar in the temple of his God by and by, he must be some kind of a prop in God's house today.—M. J. Savage.

I would that all party names and party creeds were forgotten and that all would sit at the feet of Jesus.—John Wesley.

Nothing can bring you peace but yourself. Nothing can bring you peace but the triumph of principles.—Ralph W. Emerson.

The very first condition of lasting happiness is that a life should be full of purpose, aiming at something outside of self.—Hinck.

Love and love of country are the two noblest passions in a human heart. And these two unite in home missions.—Henry Van Dyke.

God hides some idea in every human soul, and life finds its noblest spring of excellence in the hidden impulse to do our best.—Robert Collyer.

While the cup of blessing does and often does run over, I doubt if the cup of suffering is ever more than filled to the brim.—George MacDonald.

Look not mournfully into the past—it comes not back again; wisely improve the present—it is thine; go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear and with a manly heart.—Longfellow.

Never meet trouble halfway. It will come soon enough, and then you will meet it as God meant you should meet it and where He will help you to bear it.—Spurgeon.

When a man does a noble act, he has him that; forget he did it, but his noble act be the standard by which you regard him. . . . The test is that is good you have a record of that.—Henry W. Bellows, D. D.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 1.

By REV. A. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—"I can" and "I can't."—Isa. xxxv, 3, 4; xxx, 15; Heb. iii, 14.

"Can" and "can't" are two small words, and yet their influence upon the lives of men is tremendous, affecting even their eternal destinies. The man who possesses the "can" spirit is usually able to accomplish the work which he desires to perform, while the one who lacks confidence in himself and folds his arms and says "I can't" seldom accomplishes anything. When Napoleon spoke of leading his army to Italy, the difficulty of the Alps was mentioned. He declared, "There shall be no Alps," and in such a spirit he was successful in his campaigns. On another occasion he said, "There is no such word as 'can't' in my dictionary." Would that all men possessed this spirit of determination, not for the selfish purposes of Napoleon, but for the purpose of living for God in Jesus Christ and living for the benefit of humanity.

Never say "I can't." Any Christian Endeavorer should be ashamed to use such an expression. Even if we have not sufficient confidence in ourselves or the grace and power of God to say "I can," yet let us at least be willing to say "I'll try," and if we try persistently we shall succeed. How dare any one say "I can't," especially to God's command? Before we utter the words can we know that we cannot do that which is required of us? How do you know you cannot pray in public if you have never tried? How do you know that you cannot speak to an unsaved person about his soul's salvation if you have never tried? How do you know that you cannot help the weak and strengthen those who seem to be helpless if you have never made any effort to do so? We may little dream of the possibilities of our lives, the talent taking. Make the effort, and God may wonderfully use you in His kingdom.

Try always to say "I can." Paul said it concerning all things. "I can do all things through Christ." Self should have no part in our opinions of what we can do. "Through Christ I can" should be our motto.

Ask the Saviour to help you;
His will carry you through.

progressive state president in the person of Rev. E. P. Lawrence of Minot. In a recent letter speaking of the needs of North Dakota he said, "The young people have a mighty work to be done here, and there is no better agency to direct the activities of our young people of today and for the future years than the Christian Endeavor movement."

Japan to Geneva.

This message was cabled to the Geneva convention:

The Switzerland of Asia to the Switzerland of Europe—Greeting.

Kyoto, the old capital of Japan, the home of Neesima and his Doshisha, city of this year's convention, sends a message to Geneva, the metropolis of Switzerland, the city of John Calvin and the valiant defender of civil and religious liberty.

Higher than your Alps or our Fuji are the hearts of Christian Endeavor, loyalty to Jesus Christ and His universal church.

We join with you in pledging ourselves to strive without ceasing toward hastening the triumphant reign of peace among the nations. In token whereof we send the spiritual fellowship in Christ Jesus among all God's children on earth.

The Profits of Missions.

The Epworth Herald thus outlines a good plan for a missionary meeting: "A most striking exhibit of the gain of missions may be made by dividing the subject into three parts: The commercial gains, the geographical gains, the scientific gains, the gains of civilization in general, the spiritual gains. The missionary libraries have abundance of material which will illustrate the power of prayer and remarkable answers to prayer in the mission field. Every missionary who has won success will testify that the use of prayer in his work has been the chief secret of its progress."

A New Invasion of Russia.

A note from Rev. Frederick Blecher, secretary of the German Christian Endeavor union, says: "We have now two Christian Endeavor societies in Russia and hope for more soon. One of our leading evangelists will visit the Baltic provinces, Petersburg and southern Russia in September and October. We intend also to support a field secretary for Germans and Letts speaking Russia, Rev. Mr. Baltz of Riga, in conjunction with our English brethren, who will contribute an 'Endeavor penny' on next Christian Endeavor birthday."

Its Chief Work Ahead.

"The Christian Endeavor movement," wrote the Rev. F. B. Meyer recently, "has achieved marvels in the twenty-five years which are behind us, but it is not its greatest work lies ahead."

ZELAYA'S TROUBLES REACH A HAPPY END

SON OF NICARAGUA'S PRESIDENT FORGIVEN FOR MARRYING AMERICAN GIRL.

Forgiven by his distinguished father for his marriage to an American girl without a fortune, Alfonso Zelaya, a graduate of the Cedarcroft School, and son of President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, is about to start for his native land with his bride.

The trouble which began with the young couple's romance nearly two years ago is ended. With it have passed days of poverty and discouragement, when young Zelaya was forced to play the piano in Washington music halls for his living. Upon his return to Nicaragua he will enter the army, which his father is strengthening to support his well-known policy of a confederation of all the Central American States.

Alfonso Zelaya came to the United States six years ago, and under a special arrangement with the United States government entered the Military Academy at West Point. He prepared for the Academy at Cedarcroft. He went to Washington two years ago and met Miss Margaret Baker, daughter of Dr. W. W. Baker, an employe in one of the government departments. The young Nicaraguan fell deeply in love with Miss Baker, but his father considered the romance detrimental to other plans he had made for his son.

The couple planned to marry, but on the eve of the ceremony detectives took charge of the young man and hurried him to a train bound south, his father having instructed the Nicaragua Legation here to prevent the marriage.

From New Orleans Alfonso sent a letter bidding Miss Baker to be of good cheer and declaring he would return. This promise he made good, despite the displeasure of his father, and the marriage took place eighteen months ago. President Zelaya practically disowned his son.

Mr. and Mrs. Zelaya were penniless, except for the little the husband earned by playing the piano, and the bride became seriously ill and had to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Although he received word yesterday that he was forgiven and was asked to return home, young Zelaya finished his duties in a music hall.

"I will not didn't even know my address," said Alfonso, "and I received word of his forgiveness through the legation here. I had a long conference with an attache of the legation and it is all arranged that I shall sail from New York next Tuesday. Until then I will remain at the consulate in New York.

"Ah, that woman—how she has stuck to me! Very few women would stick to a man as she has to me, and there's no power that could make me forsake her."

FORMER JUDGE STRONG DIES FROM DYSENTERY

OLDEST LAWYER IN STATE EXCEPT VICE-CHANCELLOR PITNEY.

Woodbridge Strong, who served three terms as judge of the Middlesex County Courts, and who was the oldest member of the New Jersey bar excepting former Vice Chancellor Pitney, died late yesterday afternoon at New Brunswick after an attack of bronchitis and dysentery. His sons, Allen H. and former Senator Theodore Strong, and his daughter, Elizabeth, were at his bedside.

Mr. Strong was born in Clinton, N. Y., February 23, 1827. He was graduated from Rutgers College in 1847, went to California during the gold fever in 1849, returned in a few years and was admitted to the bar in 1852. In 1874 he was appointed law judge of Middlesex, Governor Joel Parker signing his commission. He served five years and retired to practise. In 1896 Governor John W. Griggs appointed him law judge for another term. Governor Foster M. Voorhees reappointed him for a third term in 1902, the expiration of which he retired from the bench and was succeeded by Judge Theodore B. Boorsem.

After his retirement from the bench Mr. Strong devoted his time to horticulture and originated several new and valuable varieties of pears. He was married August 4, 1852, to Harriet A. Hartwell, daughter of Jonathan Hartwell, a prominent farmer, Democratic politician and State legislator of Littleton, Mass. They had five children, Edward Woodbridge, a lawyer, of Cincinnati, O.; Allan H., of New Brunswick, counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad; Elizabeth B., residing at home; former Senator Theodore Strong, of New Brunswick, and Joseph M., who died in infancy.

Edward Keller, of the borough, left today for Lake Hopatcong, where he will spend two weeks.

Miss Julia Lutz, who is employed in one of the department bureaus at Washington, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lutz, of West Fourth street.

Miss Lizzie Manning, from near Hillside, has gone to Western Pennsylvania to visit friends.

LITERARY

"With the August number of "the most beautiful magazine in the world" the Burr McIntosh Monthly appears in a new size. The pages are a trifle wider than heretofore, which enables the publishers to present their wonderfully attractive photographic reproductions in a more perfect form than was possible in the former shape. The color work in this August issue is very attractive and suitable to the season. In the Department of Painting and Sculpture the life and work of Auguste Rodin, the celebrated French sculptor, is presented in most interesting detail. Among the people of the stage photographed are Lillian Russell, Anna Held, Helen Ware, Florence Reed and Adele Ritchie.

Recreation for August. The remarkably striking cover design of this magazines' midsummer number will stir the blood of every one who has tasted of the joys of "goin' swimmin'." It makes you want to hustle into a bathing suit—or "a state of nature," condition—will permit—and dive in for a swim. The caemra has caught three swimmers in midair, as they are diving off a pier, and instinctively you listen for the splash that never comes.

The Phi Beta Kappa address delivered in Sanders theatre by the Rt. Hon. James Bryce on June 26 appears as the leading article in the August number. It will be recalled that our distinguished American ambassador, James Russell Lowell, delivered an oration before the same society and in the same hall twenty-one years ago, and that this also was printed in the Atlantic. Mr. Lowell spoke on the Harvard University; Mr. Bryce on "What is Progress?" His speech is a series of inquiries, in themselves half answers, into the universal human problems of intellectual, moral and physical improvement, of happiness and of its relation to pleasure.

The September Woman's Home Companion is remarkable principally for two things—the exquisite cover by Earl Stetson Crawford, which won the $1,500 prize recently offered by the Companion, and for an excellent article on "The Influence of Business Life on Women," by Anna Steese Richardson. The September cover represents the highest achievement in magazine-cover work yet produced, and the article mentioned above will make a profound impression on all people interested in the subject of women's business life, as it is the candid expression of a woman who h as made a pronounced business success herself.

Lippincott's for August shows a sumptuous feast of fiction, seasoned to suit critical readers who may be loafing by sea or mountain, or under their own roof-tree. Entertainment is the key-note of the contents; every line of advertising has no taxailing breaking off just when interest is at fever heat— and a thirty-day wait recommended before finding out what happens next! There is the always popular novelette. This month it is Marie Van Vorst and its title "When Spring Comes Late," seems singularly appropriate to 1907.

War in modern times presupposes some fundamental dispute or antagonism that cannot be dealt with by diplomacy or arbitration. Furthermore, war is unusually attended by deep feeling on both sides. But it so happens that there does not now exist, nor has there ever existed, any cause of war whatsoever between Japan and the United States. Nor is there any war-like feeling in this country against Japan. On the part of the great majority and influential people of Japan, furthermore, there is no warlike feeling toward the United States. Neither is there any question of interest involved, such as leads nations sometimes to find pretext for war because of some conquest or acquisition they desire to make.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for August.

One Way Round It.

A minister says that one Saturday he was strolling along the shaded bank of a pretty stream when, unobserved, he approached a group of small boys, who were comfortably clad in jacket and trousers only. One freckled face little fellow stepped to the edge of the bank, turned his back to his companions and said: "Say, one of you fellers push me in, will yer?" he begged in the chums demanded in chorus. "Aw, me mudder made me promise I wouldn't go in swimmin'; go on an' push!" the conscientious youth replied.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Discarded dimity skirts make very attractive bureau scarfs. They may be bleached white, if necessary, and then conventional designs worked on them with floss or cut out crotcheone designs applqued on.

When you are troublesome sprinkle sugar through a small piece of sponge and leave these about the pantry shelves. In a short time the ants will be holding a high carnival. Plunge the sponges in boiling water and set aside.

A good remedy for keeping moths out of fur and woolen pieces is to wrap the fur tightly in a piece of newspaper that has been soaked in turpentine. Place in an old pillowcase or bog. There is absolutely no danger that the moths will disturb any piece so treated.

BOB ABBOTT'S FINE GOLF

Plainfield Collegian Wins Match Against West, of Princeton, at Deal.

PLAINFIELDERS WIN

D. H. Barrows and Lieut. Rogers Also Win Matches in First Two Rounds of Big Tourney.

Local golfers were victorious in their matches at Deal yesterday and Robert Abbott, Dudley H. Barrows, and Lieutenant N. P. Rogers, Jr., de*feated their opponents in the day's* play and won places in the semi-finals by taking their matches in the first and second rounds for President's and Vice-President's cups. C. B. Morgan was the only local man who had bad luck, and he went down in the first round of play for the Vice-President's cup. Tracy Harris, the local Utah man, won his match against the local man, 1 up in eighteen holes.

The best play of the day was by Robert Abbott, who beat W. T. West, the Princeton player, 3 up and 2 to play. Abbott was in fine form and won by that game, in which department of the play he excelled the Princeton player. His 84 in the qualifying round yesterday, made *him eligible in play for the Presi*dent's cup, of the lowest score played. In the match in the first round he had no trouble in disposing of F. F. Briggs, of the Wilmington Club, 4 up and 2 to play. Winning his match in the second round against West, he will play today in the final round for the silver President's cup, offered by the club.

In the second bunch of players, determined by scores handed in yesterday for the preliminary round, Dudley H. Barrows, Lieutenant N. P. Rogers, Jr., and C. B. Morgan were eligible to compete for the Vice-President's cup. Morgan's defeat in the first round was the only lost match of the local players. Dudley Barrows took his match with F. C. Humphreys, of Dunellen, 3 up and 2 to play, after some good golf on the trip in. Lieutenant Rogers beat H. V. Seggerman, of St. Paul, 1 up. In the second round, Barrows met J. F. Shanley, Jr., of the Deal Club, and won his match 3 up and 1 to play. *Lieutenant Rogers found an easy op*ponent in C. H. Bowles, of Spring Lake, coming off victorious 4 up and 2 to play.

The local players are still at Deal and will compete today in the semi-final rounds of the big amateur tournament. About 200 players took part in yesterday's matches, and the feature of the day was the match between Walter J. Travis, the Garden City veteran, and George L. Brokaw of the Deal Club. The old vet was off his game, and played around in $1, to the Deal man's 78. A big gallery followed the match.

MRS. RACHEL R. BOICE DIES AT RIPE OLD AGE

PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY AT HER PARK AVENUE HOME.

Mrs. Rachel R. Boice, widow of David P. Boice, died at her home on Park avenue at Fifth street, shortly before 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. The infirmities of old age were the primary cause as she had been ailing more or less since last Jye.

Mrs. Boice was in her eighty-ninth year and had lived in Plainfield all her life. She was the daughter of Jonathan and Nancy Fitz-Randolph, themselves pioneer Plainfield residents and of the Fitz-Randolph family prominent throughout Middlesex county. Mrs. Boice's husband was the founder of the present lumber firm of Boice, Runyon & Co., for many years having a yard on Park avenue, adjoining the railroad and running through to Arlington avenue. When it was destroyed by the about fifteen years ago, the estate bought out A. D. Cook & Bro., and began the big business now conducted on Park avenue, opposite North. With the death of John D. Runyon a few years since, Mrs. Boice has been the senior member of the firm.

Mrs. Boice was a character of decided integrity and a generous giver to philanthropic organizations. She was greatly interested in the local Y. M. C. A. and for many years had made numerous contributions for the advancement of its work. She was a member of the First Baptist church and attended faithfully until about two years ago, when her physical condition made it impossible to continue. Her life as a whole was spent very quietly, both of whom live at the religious seal and her passing has removed a faithful servant of the Master.

There are surviving Mrs. Boice, two daughters, Mrs. Sarah Runyon, widow of John D. Runyon, and Miss Anna Boice, both of whom live at the Park avenue residence. The funeral will be held at the late home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. S. Schuyler, of Belvidere avenue, has returned from her summer outing.

The Speaker's Mace.

At the right of the Speaker's desk in the hall of the House of Representatives in the Capitol at Wash*ington stands a large cylindrical* pedestal made of highly polished green marble.

When the House is called to order each day, the sergeant-at-arms or one of his deputies, places upon the pedestal the mace, which is the symbol of authority in the House. When the body adjourns he removes it and keeps it in safety until the House meets again.

This mace is of very ancient and honorable origin. Under the old Roman republic the magistrates passed on foot from one place to another administering justice, trying public offenders and imposing penalties.

Each of these magistrates was attended by a small body of men known as lictors, whose duty it was to make way for the officers of the law, preserve order, arrest accused and inflict punishment on condemned citizens.

Eeach of these lictors carried with him a bunch of rods tied together with thongs and having an ax bound to the outside of it. The thongs were used for scourging and the ax for beheading. Sentences imposed by the magistrates were at once carried out. Those bundles of rods were known as fasces. When the Romans conquered Britain the use of the fasces as a symbol was brought with them, and many other Roman customs remained with the British people.

When it was no longer used for inflicting punishment, it continued to be used as a symbol by the early English magistrates, and when an officer appeared carrying the fasces his authority was immediately accepted by all. It was, in effect, his badge of office.

The English form of these fasces was slightly changed in that the ax was placed inside of the bundle of rods, with the blade protruding from the top.

The great councils of the early Saxons gradually developed into our general body, which in the fourteenth century became known as the House of Commons. In all these earlier councils the use of the fasces was continued, but it then came to be known as the mace, which has remained as the emblem of legislative authority in that body down to the present day.

The House of Representatives of the United States was modeled closely after the House of Commons by the framers of our Constitution, and the usage of the mace was borrowed from the English custom.

The first mace adopted by the House was destroyed by the fire when the British burned the Capitol in 1814. From 1814 until 1842 a mace of painted wood did service, but in the latter year the present mace was made after the model of the original one.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AS TO NUMBER SEVEN.

Hippocrates declared that the number seven, with its occult virtues, "lends to the accomplishments of all things, and is the dispenser of life and foundations of all its changes."

That the ancients considered uneven numbers to have special forces and efficacy there is abundant proof. Shepherds of ancient Greece were especially enjoined to see that the number of their sheep "be not even."

That there were seven ages of ancient Greece and just seven wonders of the ancient world savors very much of chance or coincidence.

Even in this twentieth century the luck in odd numbers—13 alone excepted—is largely believed in.

The folks were in olden times occasionally "scared out of their seven senses" clearly indicates the number supposedly under the influence of the seven planets. On this and other theories and ancient Hebrews, Egyptians, Persians and Greeks founded their respect and reverence for the number seven.

One of the most prominent proofs of the original significance of seven in use at the present day is the "seven years' lease," instituted because life was supposed to be in danger and to undergo a change every seven years.

Dumas, in his "Isabel of Bavaria," refers to an ancient privilege which authorized the deputies of the six merchant bodies to accompany the kings and queens of France upon their entry into Paris from the gate of St. Denis to the palace, followed providing for a material reduction in transportation rates.

Members of the executive committee have recently visited New England cities, where Old Home Weeks have been in progress, and from the information gained from their observations in these places are able to promise to make Elizabeth's celebration a great success.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Alice Johnson has a vaudeville player entitled "The Nightingale."

"The Earl of Pawtucket," is reported to have made a hit in London.

Nora O'Brien has recently been engaged for May Robson's company.

Sadie Harris, a sister of Lew Fields, has joined Thomas E. Shea's company.

Lotta Faust has been engaged for the cast of "The Girl Behind the Counter."

Rosabel Marrison is to produce in vaudeville a sketch of Mexican life called "Junista."

W. J. Ferguson will play the comedy part in "The Movers," one of the pieces of the coming season.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

The players of the Fifth Avenue Theatre stock company will undergo a quick change next week, for after appearing in a rural play in which nearly every member of the cast was called upon to personate a country character, they will be transported back to city life for in "Hearts Aflame" there is every act the atmosphere of society, with all the formality and lack of sincerity and all that goes to make the man and woman from the country so different from those found in the society and artistic circles of a large city. "Hearts Aflame," which was written by Genevieve Haines, was first produced at the Bijou, where it met with instant success and has since proved one of the best paying society plays on the road. In it Miss Josephine Fox, La Carpice of the Imperial Music Hall, will have an opportunity to appear to special advantage. The action of the play hinges on the relations existing between some of the leading characters and the music hall girl, and Miss Fox as the chanteuse devil may care, enchantress will have one of the best parts she has had since she became a member of the company. Augustus Phillips will play Paul Charteris; Harold Kennedy will appear as Reggie Brown, one of those characters for which he is particularly suited; Ben. F. Wilson as Courtenay Bryce; Arthur Evers as Harry Harmony; Edwin H. Curtis as Jonathan Leigh; Miss Olive Grove as Mrs. Leigh; Miss Jessie McAllister as Allison Deyo and Miss Eleanor Wisdom as Mrs. Alec Dunbar, a widow who marries the second time.

The Sutcliffe Troupe of Scotch athletes and acrobates will make their first American appearance at Keith & Proctor's 23rd street theatre next week. The Sutcliffes are entirely different from any other acrobatic act now on the stage. They make their appearance wearing kilts, and it is said they wear the plaids of a different Scottish clan at every performance. As they play bagpipes, the impression is gained that it is a musical act, but the bagpipes are soon discarded, also the kilts, and in tights the members of the troupe do some astonishing feats. The return to vaudeville of Patrice after two years' absence in "A New Year's Dream," will also be an event of importance. Patrice was one of the first leftimate actresses to enter vaudeville, and when she left the Proctor company to appear at the Union Square it created a sensation. In recent years she has been starring at the head of her own company. La Belle Blanche, whose imitations have been making a tremendous hit, is also on the bill at this house. Also Paul Conchas, the juggling husar, whose development and feats of strength are unexcelled. Jack Notworth, the college boy, monologuist and song writer, is another strong attraction. Dorothy Newton and a number of others make up a bill of exceptional merit.

ELIZABETH'S CARNIVAL.

The most extensive collection of midway carnival attractions ever gathered together in the State of New Jersey will be the feature of the Old Home Week at Elizabeth, Oct. 6th to 12th of this year. Every dealer in concessions within one hundred miles has made application to the corresponding secretary, Charles A. Trimble, of the Old Home Week Committee, for carnival privileges, and from the list of attractions the best that can possibly be secured will be selected.

Contracts are already out for many of the leading shows at prominent summer amusement places, which will cease to exist after this season closes in September. The midway grounds will be located in a part of the city easily reached by trolley or railroad.

Another prominent feature of the Old Home Week will be the industrial exposition, in which manufacturers and others interested in industrial products will find a most elaborate display showing the remarkable progress which Elizabeth has made along manufacturing lines.

Realizing the fact that many, if not the majority, of those who will visit Elizabeth during Old Home Week will be from outside towns, some from other States, the committee in charge has made special arrangements with all railroads providing for a material reduction in transportation rates.

Members of the executive committee have recently visited New England cities, where Old Home Weeks have been in progress, and from the information gained from their observations in these places are able to promise to make Elizabeth's celebration a great success.

NEW IDEAITES SWING TOWARD PERKINS IN THEIR FIGHT AGAINST KEAN'S ALLEGED POWER

Judge Runyon and Howad Tracy Commend Him; Fourth Ward Endorses. George P. Mellick— Judge Runyon Renamed Enthusiastically.

Marked friendliness toward Randolph Perkins, who is seeking a fourth term in the assembly, and the wishes of the Republican county organization, was manifested by the Colbyites at their primary nomination meeting in Reform Hall last night. Chairman H. C. Tracy and City Judge William N. Runyon recommended him for his independence, in the only two speeches made, and characterized the announced reasons for refusing him another term as weak. The Fourth ward branch endorsed Mr. Perkins outright.

The meeting was well attended. It was not public, and there was no expectation of filling the hall. Prominent workers in the isolated precident ranks from all the wards were present. Howard C. Tracy, of the Second ward, was in the chair.

The nominations for councilman-at-large were made by acclamation. The nominees are R. Henry Depew, of the Second ward; Duncan W. Taylor, of the Third ward; and Jesse A. Babcock, of the Fourth ward. The ward councilmen were named as follows: First, J. B. Hill; Second, Robert E. Hall; Third, Frederick E. Mygatt; Fourth, Henry Liefke. Judge Runyon referred to the latter candidacy in his speech, in terms of eulogy that evoked applause.

Amid the heartiest burst of handclapping of the evening, Judge Runyon was nominated to succeed himself. Vice President S. O. Lovell, of the Board of Education, was also endorsed to succeed himself. The meeting was marked by enthusiasm all the way through.

In opening it, Chairman Tracy said, in part:

"This meeting has been called to carry out one of our fundamental principles—that is direct opposition to the practise of the machine up to last year, of naming candidates by a small coterie of the inner circle. The general situation which confronts us I will touch on but briefly. In the State convention the interest centers on the nomination for Governor. Senator Colby has so repeatedly declined to consider the nomination I believe he should be taken at his word. The situation is such, however, that the executive committee does not believe the delegates should be instructed.

"In the county situation the renomination of Randolph Perkins is prominent. We opposed Mr. Perkins, but after his election he manifested consummate independence in spite of the threats we know were made against him. He has shown this willingness to act on his own initiative. For these reasons it may be said he has earned his respect. The newspapers say we oppose him, but I know of no official opposition to him. The regulars oppose him on the ground, that he antagonized the liquor dealers, the local option people, and that he has had three terms. We can sympathize with the liquor law, and I have it from his own lips that he is in favor of local option. So far as the three terms go, I think the argument is a weak one. A good man becomes more valuable the longer he serves.

"As to the situation in this city, it is one desire and intention to name men deserving of general and hearty support. I have one announcement to make in this connection. Mr. George P. Mellick, who it would have been our pleasure to name for councilman-at-large, has declined to serve. Mr. Mellick made some bitter attacks on our organization last year, but we recognized his worth as a municipal servant, and we would have taken pleasure in naming him."

Judge Runyon spoke after the general nominations had been made. He said, in part:

"I said last year, and I wish to reiterate the statement that I never worked with a more invigorating body of men than those with whom I labored in our last campaign. I believe the need to look carefully over our candidates is as urgent this year as last. It seems to me the Republican party needs a housecleaning. (Applause). If the party is not big enough and brave enough to purge itself, the people will arise and clean it out. (Applause). The acts and duties of the corporation furnishing it; for a public announcement of the result of the investigation; for prompt measures to bring the matter before the people; and instructed the candidate for council to take a firm stand on the question. The resolution was passed unanimously.

The Fourth ward organized with Elmer D. Cutting as chairman. Fred C. Lounsbury, Jr., as vice chairman, and N. Mansfield Smith, secretary.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

HIS COURTSHIP ROMANTIC

Jonas Lie, Artist, Wooed His Bride-elect Among Norway's Mountains.

COMES HERE TO WED

Promise She Gave When With Them-ing Party in Own Country to Be Fulfilled in Plainfield This Month.

The announcement of the approaching wedding of Jonas Lie, the well-known landscape artist, of this city, and Miss Charlotte Nissen, of yesterday's Daily Press, is the culmination of a pretty romance which had its beginning in the Norwegian mountains during the summer of 1906. It is of especial interest because it will unite two Norwegian families, which have attained eminence for their artistic talents.

Miss Nissen, who had been visiting her cousin, Dr. H. Nissen, of Minneapolis, since last February, is now spending a few days in Chicago, prior to coming to Plainfield for her wedding. She is expected here the latter part of the week.

The romance, which will bring one of this already-scattered family to America, began in the summer of 1906 in the Norwegian mountains, where the couple were two of a party, which spent fourteen days tramping on foot about the mountains. Amid such romantic surroundings and possessed with a nature susceptible to such beauty, it is not to be wondered at that the young Norsemen and the painter fell in love with each other. After the marriage, which will be an extremely quiet one, the couple will make their home in this city. A year hence they may take a trip to their native land to visit the scenes of their childhood, but they will return to this city afterward.

Dr. Oscar Nissen, father of the bride, is one of the best known physicians in Christiana and Miss Nissen's mother, Mrs. Erika Nissen, was a celebrated pianist, considered the best in Norway and famed throughout Europe. She died two years ago. Miss Nissen's brother, Karl Nissen, has already reached fame. This year he played in London before Queen Alexandria. The other two brothers are engineers, and it is the bridegroom's hope that her brother, Oscar, will stop in New York on his way to South America this fall to be present at her wedding. Stranger as it may seem, her sister, Erika Lie, is the wife of a second cousin of Mr. Lie and they are now in Paris.

It is to the fond hope of the couple to return for a time to the mountains of Norway, where Mr. Lie can transfer the wonder of that northern scenery on the canvas. And the midnight sun.

In his delicately broken English, the Norwegian girl often tries to tell of the beauty of that sun, which she has seen several times. After many efforts, just as everyone else must, she had finally to be silent and let shining eyes tell how it thrilled her. "And I can't tell him so that he can paint it," she says. "He must see it." Miss Nissen is famed for her natural beauty and many accomplishments.

Mr. Lie is probably one of the best known among the younger artists of this country. His uncle is one of the best of Norwegian authors and from point of number of readers ranks ahead of Ibsen and Bjornson. Mr. Lie left his native land at the age of thirteen years, going to Paris. He remained there a short time, when he came to this country. Speaking the Norwegian language mostly, he determined to learn the English language so that he could speak it without accent. To do this he dropped his native tongue completely until he mastered the other language. Later he picked it up again under considerable difficulty and now speaks both equally well.

He has traveled into all parts of the world and his work has gained recognition in many of the most famous galleries. He constantly receives more invitations to have his pictures in galleries than he is able to accept. During the past summer he has camped out on the mountains back of North Plainfield, where he has busied himself with his work in preparation for the fall and winter exhibitions.

The exact date for the wedding will not be fixed until Miss Nissen reaches Plainfield, but the affair will be so simple that but few details will be necessary to arrange for the event. Both Miss Nissen and Mr. Lie are adverse to a otoriety and display and when they become one will steal away at once decided that the wedding should be as void of pomp as possible.

Miss Hooley at Newport Horse Show.

CITY NATIONAL GETS $10,000 BOND ISSUE

ITS BID FOR LOT AT PAR ACCEPTED LAST NIGHT.

The Council at its regular September meeting, last night, authorized the issuance of ten $1,000 5 per cent street improvement bonds for macadam work. After Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, presented a form of bond proposed, he offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the issue. The City National Bank offered to take the entire issue at par with accrued interest. The offer was accepted in accordance with a resolution by Mr. Tolles. These bonds are to run for three years from $1,000 5 per cent. The resolution reserves the right to redeem one or more any time within that period upon giving the required legal notice to the bank.

In connection with the proposed issue of bonds, Mr. Tolles offered a resolution authorizing the city treasurer to have prepared a number of blank bonds and $50 was appropriated for that purpose.

Regarding the offer of the City National Bank to take the $10,000 bond issue, Mr. Buxton wanted to know whether the matter had been before the finance committee for consideration. Mr. Tolles said that the action was taken upon the advice of Mayor Fisk, and besides he said that the city has the right to award an issue of bonds in this way without advertising for bids. President Daniel added that the provisions under which the bonds were issued precluded their being sold at a premium.

CHIEF KIELY'S WARNING TO LOCAL HOUSEHOLDERS.

Advises Residents to Guard Against Sneak Thieves in Guise of Corporation Employees.

Chief of Police Kiely issued a warning today against fake telephone men, census takers and meter inspectors. Sneakthieves working under the guise of corporation em*ployees and census men are acting* in surrounding cities at this time, and the Chief advises householders to be on their guard.

The thieves represent themselves in plausible guise, and having gained admission to the house they seize the first opportunity to steal. Sometimes, in the residences of the rich, they act as scouts, seeking information as to the lay of the rooms and exits. In all cases, where men representing themselves to be workmen or inspectors not personally known by some one in the house, sight of their badge or credentials should be demanded be fore they are permitted to enter.

Miss Leahy Grieved.

Miss Mary Leahy, of this city, is among the number who was grieved to learn of the death of Richard Mansfield. Miss Leahy traveled with his company last season as private secretary to Miss Emma Dunn, who took the leading woman's role in "Peer Gynt," Mr. Mansfield's new play.

DANIEL ACTS AS MAYOR

Councilman Signs Pay Vouchers at Common Council's Meeting.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Some Reports and Petitions Filed—Minor Matters Take Up Much Time.

Owing to the failure of the arrangements made for approving the claims against the city in the absence of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, the Common Council found it necessary to take an hour's recess at the September meeting last night to give President Daniel, acting Mayor, an opportunity to sign the bills. It was first decided to adjourn the meeting until tonight for this purpose, but as a number of the members could not be present it was afterward agreed to hold the recess, thus preventing any hold-up in the payment of claims.

Felix Sargois and Frank Ingraham tendered their resignations as call-men and the same were accepted on motion of Chairman Hibbard, of the fire committee. Their places were not filled last night.

A petition to open up and grade a street between Garfield avenue and Terrill road was received from Edward Ellis and others, the petitioners agreeing to dedicate land for the purpose. The matter was referred, as was also a petition from Jacob Sachar, the new owner of Bennett Britton's property on Clinton avenue, who asked the city to provide pipe for carrying water through an open ditch in this property, it being his intention to improve the land.

The petition from Charles H. Hand asking that a building line fourteen feet six inches from the curb be established on Watchung avenue, between North avenue and East Third street, was referred to the street and sewer committee, as was also one from Theodore F. French, requesting that the building line on Somerset street, between Green brook and Front street be established 29½ feet from the curb line on either side.

E. F. Feickert, of Belvidere avenue, asked that the assessment to remove a sewer assessment against him for the property at 1101 Park terrace on the ground that the property is owned by E. S. Sharp. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Commissioner Gavett reported that thirty sewer permits were granted last month and Building Inspector Doane reported the granting of twenty-six permits. Clerk H. G. Adams, of the district court, reported receipts for the past month of $85.22, expenditures of $34.22, leaving a balance of $54.

On a motion offered by Mr. Gloak all of the checks of bidders on the Plainfield avenue storm sewer contract, except the one of C. M. Meeker, who submitted the lowest figures, were returned. Mr. Meeker's *withheld for the reason that the Com*mon Council may decide to undertake the work. In that case he would get the contract.

The petition of W. W. Mills for permission to use hollow cement blocks in the construction of a building on Madison avenue was granted on motion of Mr. Hibbard.

Several resolutions offered by Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, were adopted. Two provided for the borrowing of $10,000 for sewer improvement work; another for borrowing $5,000 with which to start the brick pavement work, and another provided for the borrowing of $20,000 for the fire department and $4,000 for the poor fund in anticipation of the collection of taxes.

O'Loughlin and Sherman Win.

I., with Wharton and Ericksen, of that place.

GEORGE P. DUPEE DEAD

Prominent Resident of North Plainfield Succumbs to Bright's Disease.

PHILANTHROPIC CITIZEN

Vestryman of Holy Cross—Member of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M.—Funeral On Saturday.

George P. Dupee, for over thirty years a leading citizen of North Plainfield, died at his home on Rockview avenue at 4 o'clock this morning, following a long illness with heart trouble and Bright's disease. Although Mr. Dupee had been in poor health for over a year, he was able to be around until five weeks ago. The last time he went out was on a Saturday afternoon five weeks ago, when he witnessed the baseball game at Crescent Oval in which his son, George H. Dupee, pitched for Y. M. C. A. He was extremely fond of the National game and was a regular attendant at local contests.

Mr. Dupee was born in Boston, Mass., sixty-one years ago last month and he resided there for twenty-three years. When a young man he engaged in the manufacture of hats. For several years he was one of the leading men in this business in Boston. Afterward he moved to New York, where he formed a partnership with C. H. Tenney under the firm name of Tenney & Dupee, the place of business being on West Fourth street. Mr. Dupee took charge of the straw hat department, while Mr. Tenney looked after felts. Owing to failing health Mr. Dupee retired about seven years ago. The firm was rated as one of the largest in the wholesale line in the East.

Especially in church affairs was Mr. Dupee active. For over twenty years he was the senior warden of the Church of the Holy Cross and through all its many changes he stood faithfully by the parish, it being his one idea to see it prosper at any cost. He was exceedingly charitable and no worthy cause was failed to receive from his open hand. He contributed liberally to every department of his church.

As one of the founders of the Park Club, the exclusive social organization of the borough, he was always its chief supporter. He was elected treasurer at the organization and held the office until a few years ago. He was also a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M.

Mr. Dupee is survived by a wife and two sons, George H. Dupee, who lives at home, and Charles Dupee, who is engaged in insurance business in San Francisco. He has been summoned home by telegraph.

The funeral service will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

BIRTHS EXCEED DEATHS IN CITY LAST MONTH

REPORT SHOWS PLAINFIELD REMARKABLY FREE FROM DISEASE.

Reports showing the excellent sanitary condition in the city, were read at the September meeting of the Board of Health yesterday afternoon. The city has reason to be remarkably free from communicable disease. During August there were but two cases of scarlet fever, one each of diphtheria, chicken-pox and typhoid fever.

During the month forty-seven dairies were inspected and seven bottling places and creameries. Samples of all the milk sold in Plainfield were analyzed. The general average of the milk is improving, especially in regard to the butter fat. The milk from one dairy was found to be badly watered. The dairyman was warned, but his milk has not been sold in Plainfield since.

There were reported during August—eight marriages, forty-four births, one still-birth and forty-one deaths. Permits were granted to John Anderson to "collect garbage and to William J. Dealaman, Frederick Widmaier and Miss E. M. LaRue to sell milk.

To Clean the State House.

After a thorough investigation made as to the merits of the two systems, the Dunn-Locke Vacuum Cleaning Company, of New York, and of which a number of Plainfield people are stockholders, has been awarded the contract for cleaning the State Capitol building at Trenton. Its only competitor for the job, the Vacuum Cleaner Company, made a bid $300 lower than the successful bidder but the commission decided that the scrubbing process and general efficiency of the Dunn-Locke concern was superior and for that reason decided to expend an extra $300 for the work.

DANIEL FORCE IS FIRED

Convicting of Insubordination, City Fathers Dismiss Fireman.

AT TRIAL LAST NIGHT

Chief Doane Acts As Complainant and City Clerk MacMurray Is Made Defendant—Marsh As Prosecutor.

Daniel Force, formerly a call-man in the fire department and against whom charges were preferred by Chief T. O. Doane, after his failure to either resign or perform duty, did not appear or make any defense at the time appointed for the trial at the September meeting of the Com*mon Council, last night. Corporation* Counsel Craig A. Marsh appeared for the city and followed the usual procedure of law in proving the charges, just as though the defendant was present. Afterward a resolution drafted by Mr. Marsh, was offered by Mr. Hibbard, chairman of the fire committee, dismissing Mr. Force from the department. It was adopted.

The case was a unique one. Mr. Force was appointed a call-man on April 28, 1902, but since January 1, 1907, had failed to perform any duty. Although he was on the pay roll, George Feiring on one occasion, as brought out in the latter's testimony, that he was through and surrendered his badge and keys, he refused to resign. Furthermore, he declined to take any notice of letters and communication sent to him by Chief Doane, Corporation Counsel Marsh or Chairman Hibbard, of the fire committee. And when requested to call on these officials for conference he ignored the invitations as though they had never been sent.

The regular order of business was suspended when the Common Council met to hold the trial. Mr. Marsh asked if the defendant was present and learning that he was not, proceeded. He stated the case briefly, declaring that it would be necessary to prove the charges as though a defense was made.

The first witness called after City Clerk J. T. MacMurray took the necessary oath of office, acting as the defendant, was Chief Doane, and by his testimony it was shown that he had served a copy of charges against Mr. Force on him in person. The charges were for neglect of duty and misconduct in office. Chief Doane testified that on January 1, 1907, Mr. Force had not reported for duty at any of the numerous fires. He was not given leave of absence nor excused from duty.

Captain George Feiring, of No. 1 Engine Company, testified that Mr. Force in his presence early in 1907 surrendered his badge and keys and declared that he was through and that he had failed to report for duty since that time. Warren H. Marsh, clerk in the office of the corporation counsel, produced the letter written by him for the latter to Mr. Force, calling his attention to his dereliction and informing him that if the charges were proved he would be expelled from the department.

These were all the witnesses called, and Mr. Marsh then declared that the evidence produced showed that Mr. Force was guilty of violating section sixty-four of the rules and regulations of the fire department, by failing to respond to duty or to resign; that between January 1 and May 28 of this year he did not report for duty, and that by surrendering his badge and keys and yet refusing to resign he was guilty of misconduct. He further declared that Mr. Force's action was extremely embarrassing to the city as his office was not vacant. He then informed the members that they could expell Mr. Force from the department. With that end in view Mr. Marsh submitted a resolution, which was offered by Mr. Hibbard and provided for the expulsion of Mr. Force. The vote was unanimous in favor of the adoption of the resolution. No explanation for Mr. Force's actions were offered and the members seemed much puzzled to know why he had adopted such a course.

Helen May Mills, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer B. Mills, of 1217 West Front street, won second prize for one of the prettiest children at Steeplechase Island, Bridgeport, Conn., last Wednesday, where the child is visiting her aunt, Mrs. B. Downs.

Exit Muzzles.

The "dog days" came to an end Saturday, and there was a general shedding of muzzles all over town. Canines may now look "Jim" Babbitt in the face without fear.

Drunk Released.

Max Newman was arrested last night for drunkenness. Judge Runyon suspended sentence in the city court this morning.

THOUGHT $25 PER DAY TOO MUCH FOR OUTING

SO COMMON COUNCIL GAVE CHIEF DOANE $18 PER DAY.

When Chairman Hibbard, of the finance committee, proposed at the September meeting of the Common Council, last night, to give Chief T. O. Doane $100 with which to attend *the annual meeting of the Interna*tional Association of Fire Chiefs at Washington, October 8, 9, 10 and 11, there was considerable opposition to the amount named.

In the opinion of President Daniel, $25 a day was a too generous allowance, and Mr. Mellick concurred in that view. Mr. Daniel was puzzled to know how Chief Doane could spend the sum requested for such a trip. It was explained by Mr. Hibbard that it had been customary to allow Chief Doane $150 for these trips west of the Mississippi River, and $100 for trips east of it and it did not seem to him to be excessive.

The resolution was amended by Mr. Mellick, $75 being substituted *for $100. Mr. Buxton and Mr. Hib*bard voted against the amendment, but there being seven votes in favor, the amended resolution was passed by a unanimous vote.

MINISTERS MAY OPPOSE ASSEMBLYMAN PERKINS

MOVEMENT ON FOOT TO FIGHT AGAINST HIS RENOMINATION.

It is reported that there is a movement on foot among certain local ministers to have their congregations take a stand against the renomination of Randolph Perkins to the Assembly for a fourth term, the objection to him being his attitude in the local option fight in the Legislature last winter. The Westfield's actions at that time displeased the church-going who oppose the Anti-Saloon League's bills for self-government in excise matters and they are ardent, it is reprited, in their opposition to his ambition to again represent Union county.

Rev. A. C. McCrea, paster of the First M. E. church has interested his fellow ministers in the fight against Perkins. Today he stated that nothing definite had been done although he had personally consulted with all the dominies who have re*turned from their vacations. It is not* unlikely that some of the preachers will call the attention of their people to the part Mr. Perkins played in the dispute which resulted in J. Frank Burke, the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, being de*nied privileges in the Legislature.*

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip, before returning to Oak Tree, where they will reside in the handsome new home Mr. Voorhies has built for his bride.

The groom has been a resident of Oak Tree for some time and is highly esteemed among the residents there.

Back From Adirondacks.

Taylor Mehaffey, who has been playing on the Hotel Ampersand nine at Ampersand in the Adirondacks, returned home this morning. The nine wound up its season Monday. It rained too hard to play. The team was a winner all through the season, and Mehaffey had a large share in its glory. He will probably finish the season in Scotch Plains, where he started, at third.

MR. IREMONGER QUITS CHAIRMANSHIP IN DISGUST

New Idea Leader Resigns as Head of City Committee After His Faction Snubbed Him.

FLETCHER TOO IS SORE

Too Much Bossism In New Idea Ranks Said to Be the Real Cause—City Convention On October 10.

Dissention has broken out in the ranks of the New Idea people in Plainfield, the internal strife becoming apparent when Edward E. Iremonger last night resigned as chairman of the regular Republican city committee. Mr. Iremonger, last fall one of the most conspicuous leaders of the Colbyites' movement, has quit because of ill health, as he stated in his letter of resignation, but behind it all is something far more important. There was only a handful of members of the committee present last night when he resigned and none would talk today, but a Daily Press representative has learned the true cause of the unexpected move.

Bossism within the ranks of the faction which decries that practise is the true cause for Mr. Iremonger stepping down and out. A year ago he was chosen a member of the committee, winning his seat as a New Idea member. That faction boomed him for chairman and the regulars fell in line with the sentiment, although they formed a majority of the body. It soon developed that the new chairman was not altogether in sympathy with some of the "new ideas" and since that time it is said that he has not been so much in favor with the Colbyites.

When it came time this year to name members for the committee, Mr. Iremonger was slighted in the slate fixed by the New Idea nomination committee and his name was omitted from the list from the Second ward, where Howard Tracy and R. Henry Depew are the Colbyite leaders. The anti-organization leaders gave as an excuse that they did not know the latter although the secretary of the regular committee and others had it. So Mr. Iremonger was not put on the slate to succeed himself and therein lies the tale of dissension. Realizing that he had been slighted, the Second ward man quit last night *before his term ex*pired. It is not supposed that Mr. Tracy will be his successor although Vice Chairman Andrew McCardell, a regular, says it will be up to the New Idea fighters to name the man. He won't take himself and adds that he doesn't see why the regulars would conduct the campaign this fall when the Colbyites seem so anxious to do se.

G. B. Fletcher, a member of the committee from the Third ward, was also left off the New Idea slate for renomination. He's through with the game too and is willing to let the alleged New Idea bosses run the campaign as they see fit. Together with Iremonger he is not altogether pleased with his turn-down and it is said that there is trouble brewing in the Colbyites ranks.

The City Committee last night fixed the date for the city convention It will be held on Thursday night, October 10.

LIBRARY'S DIRECTORS COMPLIMENT MISS ADAMS.

Pass Resolution of Appreciation of Retiring Librarian's Services.

Engrossed resolutions of appreciation of services have been prepared by the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, for presentation to Miss Emma Adams, the retiring librarian, and at the September meeting of the board, last night, action was taken, each member signing the resolutions. They attest the high esteem of the board of the long and faithful service of Miss Adams and regret her departure from the work.

The special committee on preparing and printing the library report was received. It was stated that 750 of the 1,000 copies had been sent out and others would follow. The librarian's report for August was read and placed on file.

Miss Adams has severed her connection as librarian after a service of nearly twenty years to take up social work. This fall she will enter a New York college to prepare herself for the work.

MARTINE NOW STRONGER

Friends of Farmer-orator Candidate for Governor Get Encouraging Reports

MAKING BIG CLAIMS

Expect to Receive Support from Hudson and Essex As Well As Atlantic, Burlington and Monmouth.

The elimination of John F. Hardin and the failure of the Essex County Democrats to endorse Judge Child for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, is given much significance by the James E. Martine boomers in Union county for they declare that they see the handwriting on the wall for not only Child but Katzenbach as well. The farmer orator's friends have persistently claimed that James Smith, Jr., would not raise a finger against his candidacy and that when the time comes he will repay the Plainfielder for having him from an untenable position when he could not alone make good his promise to bring Bryan to Newark about a year ago. Although Robert Davis is away, some of his chief lieutenants, The Daily Press has been reliably informed, have given Martine's managers to understand that Senator Johnston Cornish and Assemblyman Joseph Firth are quarantine will be given some time to all the delegates from Hudson. Senator William H. Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, is looking after Martine's interests in that county and a solid delegation is promised. William H. Bannon and others in Atlantic are working up Martine sentiment in that county which is expected to be for the Plainfielder. After a complimentary vote for former Senator Childs, Somerset, it is said on the vest of information will swing into line, and after a complimentary vote for Senator Jas. Hinchliffe, Passaic is said counted upon.

The Martine boomers are making use of the statement made by former United States Senator Gifford Blodgett, of Long Branch, last winter to the effect that he hoped to see the day when Martine would be governor and that he would do all in his power to that end. Blodgett, Geisenheimer, Conover and others in Monmouth are out for the farmer-orator, it is declared, and after a complimentary vote for Terhune, it will vote for him. On the first ballot Burlington will be in his column according to recent reports received from the leaders there. Former ing Martine's interests in Warren. After Camden gets through voting for Judge Carrow, its support is expected.

Despite the ugly attacks made on Martine's part in the effort to salvage Katzenbach's claim, a Trenton paper declares that the Democrats must name a man who will poll Republican voters for the minority party who cannot win without help. As Martine came within 1 0 votes of defeating Congressman Charles A. Fowler in a Republican district only last fall, where the normal Republican majority is over 5,000, it is argued by his friends that if such a position is to be taken he is the best Republican vote drawer that could be named.

The Democratic leaders of Passaic county have agreed upon Senator John Hinchliffe, of Paterson, as the candidate for Governor at the State Democratic convention. Congressman Hughes, who has been mentioned for the nomination, declares that "I am not a candidate for Governor under any circumstances."

His Qualification.

A certain alderman was asked, when he became elected, what he had political ambitions. "At least," said he, "my qualifications he had for that office. The aspirant for public honors proceeded to name a number of his accomplishments. Finally he wound up by saying:

"But what counts for more than all else is that I can write figures in their own language. And, that, let me tell you, is no mean qualification. Of all persons who wish to enter the state of matrimony none are so restricted in their choice of conversing clergyman or magistrate to the deaf and dumb. There are a few lovers in town capable of performing a marriage ceremony in that language, but a couple of mutes who wished a civil marriage alone would be hard put to it to find a competent person among the city officials who learned the sign language in a few years ago, when I was kid up in a cupola, and I think it would be a good thing to give me a place for the benefit of mutes who wish to be wed."

The man was elected, and in recognition of his one shining talent he really has been called upon to officiate at a number of those "quiet" weddings.

Force of Habit.

Hedd—I see that Mat Cinn has got an automobile.

Greene—And it was quite amusing to see him the first week he had it.

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER MARRIED IN THE WEST

CHESTER A. MATHEWSON WEDS MISS JENNY IN CINCINNATI.

The wedding of Chester Arthur Mathewson, of the city High School faculty, and Miss Nan Olivia Jenny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Jenny, of Cincinnati, Ohio, took place at Bond Hill, the home of the bride, Wednesday. Mr. Mathewson, who for the past year has been athletic director and coach of the High School teams, did not announce his engagement until school closed in June. He was an instructor in the biology department at the High School and taught classes in second year German. He will not return to the High School as teacher in the fall, but will reside at least temporarily in the West.

Though Mr. Mathewson had done considerable research work in biology, and prepared a monograph on a biological subject during his course last year, he will be especially remembered for the interest he took in the advancement of athletics in the local school. Acting as coach as well as being an athletic director of the school, Mr. Mathewson was popular with the players of the various teams because of the personal interest he took in working with the individual players. He was a college ball player in undergraduate days and is the "prof" who scored the winning run for the High School faculty in the baseball game with the school nine at the end of the school year.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FRESH AIR HOME

CAMP'S SEASON WILL COME TO AN END ON LABOR DAY.

The work of the past year and plans for the future were discussed at the annual meeting of the executive committee of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, held at the home of David Hand, on Berkeley avenue, last Thursday. It was unanimously decided to close the camp Labor Day, and the last of the summer's outdoor meeting is to be held in the auditorium Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of Monroe Avenue church, will lead the meeting, and there will be addresses by S. H. Atkinson and Alfred Sutro, of New York, who is especially interested in Miss Curry's work at the camp.

The committee decided that it would be advisable to have the outdoor auditorium enclosed on the sides for next year, and John D. Loizeaux, of the building and grounds committee, was appointed to look after the matter. Canvas blinds or rolling slat partition walls will probably be used, so that they may be lowered in case of rain. The finances of the Home were reviewed by George H. Chapman, chairman of the finance committee. The report through the month of July shows a balance, which will be sufficient to meet the expenses of the past month. Discussion of a possible occupant for the main camp building during the winter was unfavorable, a decision that this matter be left to the supervision of Mr. Morgan, donor of the building. It is possible that Miss Curry's brother, with his family, will be the occupants this winter as last. The annual meeting of all of the representatives of all church societies connected with the Netherwood Home will be held Thursday evening, September 26, in this city. At this meeting reports of the summer's work will be made, and the election of the forty-five church societies and officers will be elected for the coming year. A committee composed of George A. Chapman, as chairman, Miss Sara Curry, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, George E. Hall and John D. Loizeaux, was appointed at last night's meeting to arrange for an annual meeting, and this committee will act as nominating committee at the elections.

ATKINSON DECLINES.

Announces That He Is Not Candidate For Assembly Nomination.

William Mayo Atkinson, of Elizabeth, who has been mentioned for one of the three Democratic Assembly nominations from Union county in the next Legislature gave out this morning to the following declination of nomination: "The mention of my candidacy by my party associates and friends generally as a Democratic Assembly candidate this fall is very kind and flattering. But that this office has great responsibilities as well as much honor attached to it, was again and again impressed on me last winter when I was in attendance on the Legislature working for Assemblyman Wright's Railway Commission Bill. My law practice will not permit me to devote sufficient attention to the next Legislature as a member should give to this exacting office. It is therefore only fair to the party that I should promptly now state this inability to serve, if nominated and elected this coming November. I thank the party, my friends irrespective of party and to gentlemen of the press for their confidence and courtesy."

RETURN STAMP LATEST INNOVATION OF P. O.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT MADE REGARDING RETURN POSTAGE.

A new postage stamp, or rather the equivalent of a postage stamp—a reply coupon, as it is officially called—has been designed and will be put into circulation October 1 next by the international bureau of the Universal Postal Union, at Berne.

The new postal token is in the form of a ticket, entitles the holder to exchange it for a postage stamp of the value of twenty-five centimes, or the equivalent of that sum, in those countries that have adopted the arrangement concluded last year by the delegates of most of the civilized nations assembled at the Postal Congress in Rome.

The arrangement was to the effect that a coupon should be devised to enable a person to write to a correspondent in a foreign land, inclosing the value of a stamp for a reply. Incidentally, also, the coupon will enable persons to pay small accounts in foreign lands without going to the trouble of procuring a money order.

For instance, a resident of the United States may write to a correspondent in Denmark or Germany and desire to prepay the stamp required for the answer. All he has to do is to spend six cents for a reply coupon at any American postoffice and enclose it in his letter. The Danish or German addressee will exchange the coupon at his own postoffice for a Danish or German stamp with will prepay his reply.

It was the British postoffice that proposed the innovation. The adoption of the coupon scheme was not made compulsory for all the nations comprised in the Universal Postal Union, but the following have signified their acceptance of it: The United States; Great Britain and most of her colonies, including Canada; Japan; Germany and her protectorates; France and her colonies; Austria, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Belgium, Spain, Denmark and her colonies; Switzerland, Greece, China, Hayti, Hungary, Cores, Luxemburg, Roumania and Siam.

The coupons are supplied to the postal administration of the above countries at cost price and are interchangeable between them at the price of twenty-five centimes or its equivalent. So far 5,000,000 have been printed, of which 3,793,000 have already been taken up by the various postal administrations. Upon the international bureau at Berne will fall all the administrative work, which bids fair to be of considerable magnitude, as every single token must ultimately find its way back again to that central office.

BREAKS HIS LEG AS HE ALIGHTS FROM TROLLEY CAR

W. W. ROWLEY INJURED ON WEST ST., NEW YORK CITY, YESTERDAY.

Alighting from a belt line car on West street, New York city, Thursday morning, W. W. Rowley, of Linden avenue, in some way caught his foot in an umbrella belonging to another passenger and stumbled to the street. He felt a painful twinge in his left leg, but thinking it just a strain, paid no attention to the injury until his return to this city. He was in such pain then that Dr. B. VanD. Hedges was summoned and found that the leg bone had been broken.

The accident happened at Desbrosses street. Mr. Rowley was with his niece, Miss Cora Rowley, of Rochester, N. Y. Miss Rowley has been visiting her uncle in this city and was on her way to the West Shore Railroad terminal to go home. Mr. Rowley was on his vacation and was to resume his business in New York Tuesday. The injury will detain him from business for at least a fortnight, till the bone can knit again.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

All over the world there are 562,436 miles of railway now open. America has 285,781 miles, and Europe is a poor second with 193,133 miles.

A German article describes a locomotive equipped with feed water heaters which has recently been put into service on the Egyptian state railways, and effects a saving in coal of 21.4 per cent, or over $1,000 a year to each engine.

New York city is to have the largest passenger car yards in the world in Jamaica, Long Island city, when the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has begun work preparing ground from one-quarter t otwo-thirds of a mile wide and three miles long, on which will be laid eighty miles of railway track.

"Of course," said Henpeck, "I don't always do what my wife tells me"—

"What!" exclaimed Meeker, in surprise.

"No; you see, if she's in a sarcastic mood when she orders me to do anything I know she wants me to do just the opposite."

QUESTIONS FOR PERKINS

State Superintendent of Anti-Saloon League Shows Up the Westfielder.

BURKE EXPOSES HIM

Declares Office-Seeker Cannot Play Role of People's Candidate In This County Successfully.

In an open letter to Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, J. Frank Burke, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, says:

"As the representative of the church people of New Jersey in this work, which includes Union county, may I venture to suggest that you can hardly play this role on the stage in Union county, or elsewhere, with any marked degree of success.

"Were you representing the people when you voted one year ago last winter in such a manner on the Local Option Bill as to say to the people that saloons should continue to be thrust upon the people of every community against the communities' consent and against the communities' protests; or, were you representing the brewers, distillers and saloonkeepers, the moneyed interests engaged in the liquor business?

"Were you representing the people, when as a member of the Judiciary Committee of the last Assembly you got possession of a measure proposing to grant to the people the power to veto the issuance of licenses on their own petition and you held it and declared that you would not allow it to come to a vote on the floor of the Assembly—were you, I say, representing the people, or were you again representing the brewers and distillers and saloonkeepers, and the moneyed interests engaged in the liquor business entirely?

"Again, when the measure came to a vote in the last General Assembly, and on one side was the moneyed liquor interest insisting that the saloons should be continued to be forced on every community and the people have no power to repudiate it; and on the other side the church people and the rank and file of the citizens of the State, demanding that no obnoxious institution, regardless of the money back of it, should be forced upon any locality without that locality's consent, and you took your stand with the distillers and brewers and saloonkeepers against the church people, were you representing the people then?

"Again, did it evidence that you were representing the people of Union county, when after declaring to the representative of the church that he did not care a pin for his statements, and the friends of this movement rented a hall in your own home town and invited you to appear; did it evidence, we ask you, your right to represent the people when you accepted their invitation?

"Again, we ask you, did you represent the people or were you willing to give an account to them when fifty-five men of your own party at Roselle signed a statement requesting you to appear and give an account of your record to them as a part of your constituents, that you should refuse and give as your excuse the fact that the Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League had been invited to speak in your home town?

"Again, did it evidence that you are a representative of the people and willing to have them direct and suggest, when at the very meeting at which you failed to appear in Roselle and the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League was there, they passed a unanimous vote to take you at your word and request you to come to a meeting and give an account of your record, a proposition which you, yourself, proposed and which they knew you would accept. I say, were you representing the people at that time when they had gone to the trouble of making arrangements for a hall at your suggestion, and when you saw that you failed to meet the citizens, you disappeared?

"Mr. Perkins, we ask why this metamorphosis? Wherefore this change? You point to some good things in your record. It is difficult for a man to stay very long in public life, or very long in any position, without doing some commendable acts. We do not deny them, but the question is, did you stand by the people and the peoples' rights, or did you stand by the rule of the brewers and distillers and saloonkeepers in New Jersey? You certainly have a perfect right to return if you represented them. The reason I write you in this manner is to clear up any false impressions that you might be holding by your urging that you were the peoples' representative.

"Now, Mr. Perkins, may I give you a word of suggestion. It will be unprofitable for you to simply call names, we accept them all, and wear them as a badge of honor coming from certain sources; but the point at issue is your record, the position you assumed on a measure demanded by every decent citizen in this State in the interests of a square deal. You cannot avoid it. It is no answer to say that you voted right on some other propositions, that you stood true at some one time. Where did you stand when the question of democracy was before you,—of the peoples' government?

"Very truly yours,
"J. FRANK BURKE.
"State Superintendent."

REPUBLICANS MAKE SLATE AT SCOTCH PLAINS CAUCUS

GEORGE BALL SUPPORTED—KICK AT $800 POLICE APPROPIATION.

Republican of Fanwood township made their party slate at a meeting held at Excelsior Hall, Scotch Plains, Thursday. About thirty-five members of the G. O. P. were present, and nominations were talked over by the meeting before the ticket was made. George H. Johnson, of the county committee, called the meeting to order, and William D. Johnson was elected to the chair. W. B. Noble was chosen as recording secretary.

The slate was made up with but little opposition. The only opposition of the meeting was in the matter of police appropriation. The party leaders recommended the $800 appropriation asked for, but this met with strong opposition when mentioned in the meeting. The previous appropriations have never exceeded $100, but the plan to have the borough patrolled by an officer at night, with the appointment of more officers, will account for the extra expense asked for in the appropriation. When the question was put to vote in the meeting, the $800 appropriation was carried by a single vote. An appropriation of $2,250 was ratified in the making up of the ticket and $300 was voted for a sidewalk appropriation. Both these appropriations were voted through after opposition.

The meeting was solid in the support of George Ball for the delegate to the State Convention, and he was the unanimous candidate for the ticket. There were three candidates named for delegates to the county convention, E. L. Hand, James Johnson and Freeholder Robison. The first two were ratified for the ticket by the vote of the meeting. George H. Johnson was nominated for member of the county committee, to succeed himself. Henry C. Meyer was put on the slate as member of the township committee, in place of Theodore Bruchmann, a Democrat, now serving as assessor, a local boom for William D. Johnson.

Constable Robert Walpole was renominated for a three year term and H. Clifford Smith was put on the ticket for the two year term. Overseer of the Poor Hull was renominated to succeed himself and was also named with Andrew Schaefer as surveyors of the highways.

NAMED FOR MAYOR BY DUNELLEN REPUBLICANS

CENTRAL RAILROAD ENGINEER HEADS TICKET OF SUBURBAN ORGANIZATION.

Frank R. Wynkoop, a Central Railroad engineer, was named for mayor by the Republicans of Dunellen, Thursday. Lewis Churchill and Albert Giddes were named for Council.

The caucus was held in the Borough Hall. It was harmonious, and the business was transacted swiftly. The attendance was not large. Dr. P. W. Brakeley was chairman, and Wilson S. Frederick secretary.

Wilson S. Frederick and Abner S. Coriell were named as delegates to the county convention, and Henry S. Gaetson as delegate to the State convention. C. Wesley Blaine was named as constable. The committee on vacancies is made up of Albert N. Randolph, Charles A. Coriell, Jr., and Arthur J. Hamley.

Before adjournment, a resolution was adopted that the tax rate should not exceed two per cent., and the borough appropriation not to exceed $3,500.

WATCHUNG REPUBLICANS' CANDIDATES ARE PICKED

MEETING ENDORSES DR. MOLDENKE AS DELEGATE TO STATE CONVENTION.

The Republicans of Watchung have announced their ticket, made at a party caucus held Thursday as follows: Delegate to State convention Dr. Richard Moldenke; delegate to county convention, A. P. Voorhees; town committeeman (three years' term), William H. Titus; surveyor of highways, Hippolyte Texier and Frederick H. Herkstroter; pound keepers, Emil Clementz and Soren Sorensen. There was a fair representation of the party present, and names were announced for discussion by the voters before they were put on the slate.

It was voted to support an appropriation of $2,000 for repairing and building roads for the year, and decided by the meeting to request the repair of the sidewalk from Watchung to Johnston's Drive. An appropriation of $600 for the poor as supported and it was the sentiment of the meeting that the salary of the committeeman be $75.

State Convention.

The Democratic State convention will be held at Trenton on Tuesday, September 17.

YEAR'S WORK STILL TO BE DONE ON CONVENT

BUILDING WILL HAVE OWN WATER SUPPLY AND FIRE PROTECTION.

Work on Mt. St. Mary's Convent on the slope of Watchung Mountain between the east end of the city and Scotch Plains, is being steadily pushed. The structure was commenced a year ago, and another year will probably pass before it is completed. It is to be entirely of stone, the interior bein finished in concrete. It will be a markedly handsome building, and much of the effect of the big pile may now be obtained.

The water for use in the building and for fire safety appliances will be pumped into a reservoir, 150 feet above the building, near the crest of the mountain, from the Watchung Springs. No finer water exists in the country.

It will have its own electric, fire and house plants. Lying as it does two-thirds up the mountain, there will be much grading to be done, and a new road has been built, extending to Terrill road. Other roads leading to the top of the mountain to connect with the Johnson Parkway, will also be laid out.

The building is 150 feet above the sea level and the views from it are magnificent. It may be seen from the main line trolley cars as they go by Terrill road.

BIG AUTO VAN BREAKS DOWN GARAGE FLOOR

VACUUM CLEANER CO. WAGON ALMOST GOES THROUGH TO CELLAR.

Under the weight of a big commercial automobile, a section of the floor of the F. L. C. Martin garage, Park avenue, collapsed Wednesday afternoon. Comparatively little damage was done, but the occurrence threw a great deal of the garage force and made a lot of talk.

The car that carried the floor down is the huge machine of the Vacuum Cleaner Company. Its insides are mostly engines, pipes and other iron things, with 900 pounds of rubber hose on the top to lend the finishing touches to the load. The whole outfit weighs something over 9,000 pounds.

William Banks, the engineer in charge of the car, drove it into the garage shortly after 6 o'clock, to lay it up for the night, and the right of the entrance is a section of the garage that was formerly used as a waiting and shopping room, designed for the use of women patrons of the garage. The flooring there was not especially designed for bearing all kinds of automobile monsters, as was the section that lay on the other side of the old partition. Banks didn't know anything about that, and backed his car into the weak area.

There was a cracking of timbers and boards and the car sank down. Banks made a flying leap, and turned to look at his car with bulging eyes. Floor and car stopped going down after a three-and-a-half-foot drop. The front wheels remained on the strong driveway section and the top of the car's cab was jammed against the side wall, holding the car up. If the car had cleared the wall it would have gone down a five-and-a-half-foot drop with a great thump. Banks figures that he had something of a narrow escape, because he creeps in under the car every night right after backing it into its berth to turn off a "thingamajig" or two, and he felt a bit shakey every time he thought of what would have happened to him if the collapse had held off until he was stretched under the 9,000 pounds.

The section of floor borne down measured about fifteen by twenty feet. Car and floor were shored up from the cellar to prevent further sinking.

The rifle was introduced into the British service about the beginning of the last century. It was of such primitive make that mallets were served out with each rifle to ram the bullets home.

THEY WANT "FARMER JIM"

North Jersey Voters Enthusiastic Over His Boom for Gubernatorial Nomination.

LEADERS FAVOR HIM

In Morris, Sussex and Warren Counties the Plainfielder Is As Popular As Roosevelt, a Local Man Declares.

State Democratic politicians who have been laboring under a delusion that James E. Martine's Gubernatorial boom is on the wane, should take a trip to northern New Jersey where a strong sentiment is developing daily for the candidacy of the Farmer Orator. As a general rule, in the rural districts, politics fail to assume any definite proportions until a few weeks previous to election, but this year proves to be an exception to the custom. Instead, the voters appear to be more interested than ever which is probably due to the legislative probe which was inaugurated last May and which is creating an unusual amount of interest among the rural voters.

A Plainfielder who returned to town today after a three week's visit to towns in Morris, Sussex and Warren counties informed a Daily Press reporter that Martine is a universal favorite among voters of all classes in these three counties. The feeling in favor of Martine is not confined to Democrats alone, but also to voters in the Republican ranks. "In these counties," said the Daily Press informant, "Martine is just as popular as President Roosevelt. He is close to the hearts of the people and his name is a byword in the county inns, taverns and stores, where the farmers gather from day to day to discuss current events. If he receives the Democratic nomination there is no reason not to believe that he will carry the State by a substantial majority."

Prominent Republicans in Dover, Hackettstown, Phillipsburg, Newton, and other towns are not backward in stating openly that they will vote for the Farmer Orator should he receive the nomination. The Democratic leaders, to a unit, in these sections express the sentiment that delegates are being elected to support him in the convention.

Firemen's Day at Hackettstown on Thursday proved a sort of a political tee for the politicians of Warren and Sussex counties. In the receptions given Newton which attended the festivities all of the leaders from the Sussex county seat were emphatic in their declarations of support for the "Farmer Orator." The sentiment was not confined to the Newton receptions but the same spirit prevailed all along the line.

Captain Woodhull Bird, of Port Morris, who has been a staunch Democrat all his life and who has cast his ballot for all the Democratic presidential candidates in the past ever since President Polk's time, said last week that there are two men he hoped Providence would spare his life to vote for. They are William J. Bryan for the presidency and James E. Martine for governor.

In extolling the good qualities of Martine, Captain Bird said, "I like him very much for his frankness and honesty. I have met him several times campaigning up here during the last forty years and I think he is just the right sort of a man to have in the governor's chair at Trenton, and I think his time has come to win out, b'gosh. Anyhow he'll get my vote and hundreds of others up around here."

"CONJUNCTION" WARMLY WELCOMED BY SCOTTS.

Red Slat and a Beer Bottle Figure Largely In His Reception.

The natural law that declares "Conjunction" Jones, colored, shall figure in a police court case every little while worked Thursday afternoon. "Conjunction" got in a row with Mrs. Sarah Scott, colored, of West Third street, and promptly landed in the station house.

The row was a picturesque affair. It started either because (Conjunction's version) he wouldn't buy Mrs. Scott a pail of beer, or (Mrs. Scott's version) he made love to Mrs. Scott's young daughter. Be that as it may, in full swing Mrs. Scott and "Conjunction" were pulling, hauling and pounding each other, and Janey and Howard Scott were slipping in a dig for their mother whenever opportunity offered. A red slat and a beer bottle figured in the fracas. The bottle was broken over somebody's head, but nobody could tell from the testimony in court this morning whether it was "Conjunction's" or Mrs. Scott's.

The hearing was lively, "Conjunction" and Mrs. Scott had several tilts and Mrs. Jones, who came down to see what happened to "Conjunction," had something to say to Mrs. Scott. Judge Runyon let them talk themselves out, and shortly after suggested arbitration. Mrs. Scott and "Conjunction" were weary enough to consent, and Judge Runyon sent them away under a flag of truce.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleming, of Park avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Fleming, to Frederick Lindsey Curtis, of New York.

EPWORTH [illegible]

Sept. 8: "Receiving the word. The seed is the word of God."—Luke viii. 11-15.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Josh. i. 8; Ps. i. 2; Isa. iv. 10, 11; Mark xiii. 31; John v. 24; Heb. iv. 1-2.

Human nature is full of apparent contradictions. This is well illustrated in the parable of the sower. The real force of the teaching of Jesus in this parable is not so much with the sower or the seed as with the soil. We might have called the parable of the soil, for it deals with the different kinds of folks and the manner in which they receive the truth.

It was Carlyle who said, "Man is the born enemy of lies." It was to older one whose powers of observation were not less keen who remarked, "I said in my haste, all men are liars." There is much of truth in both sayings. Even if both are not wholly true, there is nothing in which the influences of all men are more bound up than in truth and reality. We are everywhere hedged in by things and forces which we cannot change. There is a nature of things. Our safety and well-being depend on our knowing things as they are. Falsity exposes us to danger of every sort.

Our interests are all on the side of truth. We surely must be ready to hear all falsity. But what one believes who ever seen who has been wholly loyal to the true?

There is strange soil in this race of ours. But why say in the race? Look over the field of your own acquaintance and if at all keen of observation you will discover all the varieties of soil described by the Master in the parable in your own garden patch.

There are paths all over good thinking which have been hardened by the feet of custom and the ways of the world. Can you not remember in the days gone by when seed of good fell all over these places and you knew they ought to be plowed and made soft for the seed, but it never was? It sprouted that fell there? It was trodded down by passing feet and eaten by fowls of the air. Lost seed, barren footpaths!

What have you to say of the thorn patches and places where the underground ledges crop up close to the surface? Have you not seen these in the past years? Much of this would be wonderfully improved if we but gave thought to it, but we are lazy about many things.

Don't give this lesson go away to others; some of it belongs of right to you. You have received the word. Pray, how have you received it? You have some good and productive places in your nature. Have you no poor and barren spots? If you have, what are you saving them for? Does it pay to continually feed birds on precious seed and waste other on thorns, jungles and thin soil?

One of the lessons thrifty farmers have to learn is not to cultivate too much in area, but to cultivate well what is under tillage. That is the lesson we Christians need to heed. We spread ourselves much too thin to do it well. Intensive rather than extensive cultivation is our need. Receive the word of God and see that the soil is prepared for it. Every part of your nature needs it. There should be no footpaths for the things of the world to use, no fence corners filled with briers and thorns, no stony ground with little soil.

Study yourself a little and learn what you are and see how you can make improvement in this soil matter. Remember you will gather no more harvest than you make. Barren ground is very expensive to maintain. Can you afford to keep so much on you have?

A Byproduct of the Boer War.

An interesting testimony to the value of the Endeavor movement is given in the Sunday at home by the founder, F. E. Clark, describing work among Boer prisoners during the late war. In St. Helena alone there were nineteen societies, with a membership of nearly 1,000. In Ceylon ten societies were formed, with about 500 members, while six islands in the Bermudas had 500. Intense missionary enthusiasm was evoked, resulting in 175 young men giving themselves to missionary work. On their return to South Africa a missionary institute was promptly provided, for this missionary spirit had come to pervade the whole Dutch church as well as the prison camps. This byproduct of the Boer war will prove its noblest legacy. "Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness."—Christian, London, England.

Complaining About Our Work.

Whence comes it that we have so many complaints—such saying that his occupation is a hindrance to his advancement, that his work is for God, who hindereth no man? Whence come this inward sense and cause of guilt which torment and disquiet you? Dear children, know that it is not your work which gives you this trouble. No; it is your want of resolution in fulfilling your work. If you performed your work in the right method, with a sole aim to God and not to your own ease, your own likes and dislikes, you would have quietness and contentment in your conscience. It is a sure sign that if he have not done his work perfectly, but so imperfectly that he ought to be rebuked for it, for this is a sure sign that his works are not done to God, with a view to His glory and the good of his neighbor.—John Tauler.

The Moral Aristocracy.

Along the line of moral aristocracy blessed be God!—the poorest child can be eminent. You can have God's own certificate for faith and goodness. You were born in a garret. You can go to heaven if you obey the laws of Divine Providence as shown in history, revelation and in the cross. You started life without a friend. You may die amid a multitude of angels. You may never be a genius, you may never write a "Paradise Lost" or a "Paradise Regained" or a "Hamlet"—but you may be nothing and nobody—just as to your character, prayer, love, faithfulness, honor—why, you may belong to the Mittons and the Shakespeares and the Homers of the moral aristocracy. And remember that goodness is the only enduring brilliance. There is a splendor of virtue that is possible to the least, the lowest soul.—Joseph Parker.

Excellence.

Very few of us will have the chance of leaving our names to posterity in books or poems, or in the memory of those who come after us, but we can all get acquainted with the Lord, and many who seem to be doing nothing

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 8.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—God's omnipresence.—Ps. cxxxix. 1-12.

The word omnipresence means everywhere present—in short, that God is everywhere present when the word is applied to Him. This is one of the great attributes of God. He is everywhere. (1) He is everywhere in what is called His immanence. This does not mean pantheism or that all nature is God and the only God, but at the same time the spirit and power of God are present throughout the entire natural world, in every flower and plant and tree. (2) God is everywhere present in that He sees the entire universe from the depths of the human heart to the highest heavens. His spirit also dwells in our hearts if we are His through faith in Jesus Christ, the Son, "who loved us and gave Himself for us."

The psalmist most comprehensively sets forth the omnipresence of God. (1) He applies this truth to the individual. "O Lord, Thou hast searched me; Thou hast known me; * * * Thou compasseth my path and my lying down and art acquainted with all my ways." We can do nothing that God does not know; we can go nowhere without finding Him present. In the depths of our hearts we can think no thoughts that He cannot read and see and know. How careful, therefore, we should be of our thoughts, words and deeds! "Thou God seest me" should lend us to make our lives just what God wants them to be. (2) The psalmist also applies this great truth to space. "Whither shall I go from Thy spirit?" If to heaven, if to hell, if to the uttermost parts of the earth, "Thou art there." There is no escape from God. We can not sin against Him or reject His Son, our Saviour, and escape God. Adam and Eve tried to hide from God, but they were unsuccessful. So has every one since who has made a similar attempt. The only way to flee from God is to fly to Him, and then only can we find peace of soul and forgiveness of sin. As Augustine said, "Thou hast made us for Thyself, and the heart is restless till it rest in Thee."

BIBLE READINGS.

I Kings viii. 22-27; Isa. lxvi. 1, 2; Jer. xxxiii. 23-32; Matt. xviii. 19, 20; xxviii. 19-20; Rev. iv. 1-5.

Three Foreign Notes.

Lord Kinnaird, president of the committee in charge of the last Irish Christian Endeavor convention, in his address of welcome said that the history of the Christian Endeavor movement is one of the most marvelous of stories and that God's providence has been very apparent through it all.

In a recent address Rev. John Pollock, president of the European Christian Endeavor Union, told how Dr. Clark had once told him he hit upon a name for the society after writing the first clause of the Christian Endeavor pledge, "I will strive to do," etc. It was after writing that word "strive" that the happy thought struck him to call it a society of Christian Endeavor—a society of Christian strivers.

India Christian Endeavor tells a soul stirring story of how the Christian Endeavorers of one society conquered the universal fear of cholera among the natives and how all in Christ's name through all the nearby country as the disease appeared to sing, pray and comfort both the sick and their friends, and instead of timidity and distaste they found ever increasing joy filling their hearts as the opportunities multiplied and were seized.

Mountain Mission Note.

John Willis Baer, in an account of a visit to the Appalachian mountain region, says, "Some men who in years gone by had illicitly distilled whisky in the mountain stills, whose past lives had been stained with sin, but who had given their hearts to Jesus Christ, and at the table of the Lord it was a rare privilege for me to sit with them and listen to their testimony of the saving grace and power of the Son of God."

New Blood Constantly.

"A Christian Endeavor society," says the Texas Christian Endeavorer, "needs new blood constantly. A society consisting of the same individual members for several years without change is sure to be sluggish, inefficient, stiff in the joints and slow to mend. And it doesn't matter how good the quality of these members either."

In the Eyes of an Editor.

William T. Stead once declared that one advantage of the Christian Endeavor society is that it brings so many admirable young men and young women together that they can get acquainted and marry one another.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Whether the Democratic party has so faithful an adherent in any State in this broad land as James E. Martine, of Plainfield, may be a matter of dispute. Certainly it has not his equal in New Jersey. Mr. Martine has carried his party's banner through thick and thin, when hopes were high, and when none other could be induced to be a candidate. For thirty years, off and on, he has run for office. He's known in every farm house in Union, Morris and Warren Counties. Yet in all of these years he has never held so much of a public trust as a pound keeper.

Mr. Martine started on his career as Democracy's perpetual candidate the year he attained his majority. He had begun his part in the political drama three years before, when, as the "boy orator," he was chosen as spokesman for a Morris county delegation to the convention of young Democrats in Trenton. He took to politics like the duck does to water, and he has thrown himself heart and soul into every campaign since.

Three times he has run for Assembly from Union county, three times in Plainfield, twice for Congress and once for Mayor of Plainfield.

The True American has been unable to locate the election returns for all the years when Mr. Martine was an Assembly candidate, but the legislative manuals for 1878, 1892, 1903 and 1904 tell of five of his defeats, while the Hoboken Observer, of February 9, 1907, tells the story of his defeat for Mayor of Plainfield in 1906 by plurality of 600.

In 1878, 1893 and 1902 Mr. Martine ran for State Senator. Here are the figures:

1893—Martine, Dem., 3,533; Voorhees, Rep., 3,563.
1902—Martine, Dem., 9,561; Cross, Rep., 10,717.

In 1904 and 1906 Mr. Martine was the congressional candidate of Fifth district Democrats, both times against Congressman Charles N. Fowler. In 1904 Fowler polled 24,488 votes to Martine's 19,254. That was the year of the Roosevelt sweep. Last fall Mr. Martine was beaten by 552 plurality, Fowler polling 19,670 votes to Martine's 19,208.

Mr. Martine isn't building air castles because of the mention of his name in connection with the gubernatorial nomination. Of course, he would like to be nominated, but he wants the convention to be guided by its best judgment. He recognizes that this string of honorable defeats isn't a high recommendation in a year when victory is within reach, and he has named former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of this city, as at a gathering of Union county Democrats last week, he graciously recounted Mr. Katzenbach's strong points, and was, in turn, quite as graciously commended by his Trenton rival, who bids fair to be his successful rival.

Mr. Martine has sought the governorship before. He received a heavy vote at the convention which nominated Seymour, but the hard luck, which has followed him through all his battles, stuck right by him, and Martine "lost by the skin of his teeth."

Mr. Martine is not a professional politician. He is rather a professor of politics. He believes in his political principles as he does in his religion, and is willing at all times to make whatever sacrifices the cause he holds dear may demand of him. He aspires to office never with a view to the emoluments thereof, but solely that he may have the victory; may enable him to do something for the advancement of his creed.

Such then is the man that the Union county Democratic Committee would have the Democratic State Convention name for Governor. Faithful in defeat, ever hopeful, never grasping, he stands unique in political annals.

But Mr. Martine will not be the Democratic gubernatorial nominee this fall. The record of his sacrifices is a kindly sentiment in every Democratic heart. Could he be considered on his merits as a man, could the gloom of his political past be dissipated, his self-immolation would give him in this promising year a reward. Since the Democrats alone cannot elect a Governor this fall, and with the hard, matter-of-fact voters, who will decide the issue, sentiment will have little influence.

The Democratic candidate for Governor will be one whose battles have terminated victoriously, whose field of scope is more auspicious than that of the "Farmer Orator."—Trenton True American.

SIMPLICITY IN INTERIOR DECORATION.

A very marked change in the general character of interior decoration has occurred during the past few years in Germany. The present school of architects, painters, decorators and designers is aiming at artistic effects in which simplicity is the dominant note. The current Jugendstil seeks its results through symmetry and grace of outline, and broad, even surfaces, with effective chromatic harmonies, but discards the mass of minor accessories and the elaborate detail, which have hitherto characterized the treatment of a German interior and the art of the upholsterer.

This change was strongly pronounced last year in the exhibits of furniture and decorative designs at the industrial expositions held at Nuremberg, Zwickau and other points, and especially at the Exposition of German Industrial Art in Dresden. At the latter there were exhibits of over 100 completely furnished rooms. Nowhere were fringes, tassels, galloons, or the like visible. Woodwork was in most instances smooth and but rarely touched by the carver's tools.

DYSPEPTIC PHILOSOPHY.

The girl who says she would marry nothing less than a foreign nobleman really couldn't.

Sometimes a man loves himself for the enemies he has made.

The people who believe most in luck are those who have never had any.

Some men are so anxious to wake up and find themselves famous that they actually contract insomnia.

There are people who seem to spend all their lives trying to get even.

It is just as easy to break a promise as to make one.

A man may be level-headed and still have no difficulty in getting a hat to fit him.

Some fellows have a lot of good in them, but the trouble is they keep it there.

Some men go to a lot of bother to save themselves a little work.

Some men can't pass a saloon any more than a woman can pass a bargain counter.

It is an error to think that every bachelor has been disappointed in love as to think that every married man hasn't been.

Many a man who merely passes the hat gets a reputation for philanthropy.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE ABROAD.

In New Zealand and Australia women have had the full ballot for many years, but are rarely chosen to municipal offices.

In Iceland women have had municipal suffrage for twenty-five years and were made eligible to municipal office five years ago.

Women were given the municipal vote in England in 1869, in Scotland in 1881 and in Ireland in 1894, but they are not eligible to municipal office.

The Swedish parliament has just voted to make women eligible to municipal office. The women of Sweden have had municipal suffrage for many years, but until now they have not been permitted to hold office.

Several years ago the house of commons voted by the large majority of 172 to 72 to make women eligible as councilors and aldermen, but the bill did not get through the house of lords. King Edward in his speech opening the present parliament mentioned this as one of the measures that ought to pass.

TO UTILIZE TISSUE PAPER.

For packing glass, china and ornaments a roll of tissue paper is invaluable.

When packing hats, a wisp of tissue paper should be twisted round all upstanding ends of ribbon and wings to prevent crushing.

Dress and blouse sleeves should be stuffed with soft paper, and a sheet of it placed between the folds.

Silk handkerchiefs, ribbons and lace should be ironed between a layer of tissue paper, and the latter is a fine polisher of steel buckles and hairpins.

The tissue paper in which parcels are wrapped should never be thrown away, but smoother out and laid away in a drawer for future use.

The pad of tissue paper is excellent for burnishing steel, rubbing grease spots off furniture, polishing silver and polishing windows.

WANTS TO SEE HIS WIFE'S SLAYERS DIE

FARMER HORNER HOPES TO SURVIVE TO WITNESS DOUBLE ELECTROCUTION.

Edward Horner, whose wife and servant were murdered, has expressed a desire to see Gibson and Dorsey, the negroes charged with the crime, put to death in the electric chair. The aged farmer has been very ill since the double murder on his farm near Collingswood, but says he hopes to live to see the guilty men punished.

Prosecutor Scovel and his assistant, Mr. Wolverton, are determined that the accused men shall be tried on the earliest possible day. They declare the evidence is of such a nature that there can be no question as to the guilt of the accused men.

They will conduct the trial so as to avoid technical errors, on which an appeal may be filed, and thus delay the execution of the law. If Justice Garretson is not prevented from sitting on September 12 by other engagements, it is likely that the trial will begin then. The case will be sent to the Grand Jury on the 10th.

It is quite likely that Dorsey and Gibson, if convicted, will be the first to pay the penalty of their crimes on the electric chair under the new law. There are two other condemned murderers in the State, but a long legal fight has been begun in their behalf.

MARRIED HALF CENTURY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schermerhorn Will Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary.

LIVED HERE 23 YEARS

Local Western Union Manager Married In Jersey City September 2, 1857.

Residents of this city since 1870, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hill Schermerhorn celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home, 116 Madison avenue, Monday, Labor Day. On September 2, 1857 the couple were married in Jersey City, and have been residents of Plainfield since thirteen years after their marriage. Mr. Schermerhorn, a telegraph operator from the age of seventeen years, has been employed in the local office of the Western Union Company since he came to this city.

"Uncle Charlie" and "Aunt Sapie," as they are known to so many of the old residents of this city, made no plans for a celebration of their fiftieth anniversary as man and wife, and will entertain their friends informally at their home on that day. The two have many fast friends among the older residents of the city and are well-known locally.

A Daily Press reporter, calling at the Schermerhorn home Friday found Mrs. Schermerhorn ready to talk about her married life and about Plainfield as it was in the years gone by. "I have taken so much interest in reading the articles now being printed in the Press," she said, "So many of those events I can remember, and I find I remember so many of the people." In speaking of her residence in this city, Mrs. Schermerhorn said that the first impressions of the place were unfavorable, based on a view she got of the old Plainfield depot as she passed through the town on her wedding trip to Philadelphia in 1857. "Such a looking place! I never thought I would live here," she said, "for I judged the town by the appearance of that dreary looking building with the bell in the tower on top." But the couple did come here, however, from Burlington, N. J., when Mr. Schermerhorn was transferred to the Plainfield office. "Our first home in Plainfield was the "Octagon House" on East Fifth street, near Park avenue. Only it was on Fourth street then, where L. A. Rheaume's coal yard is now." We lived in other houses, too, I can't tell just how many, but we did live in the same house for eight years in two cases before we came to this house."

There is but ten months difference in the ages of the two, Mr. Schermerhorn having been born in 1833 and his wife in 1834. Mrs. Schermerhorn was Sapina Payne Allen, the daughter of John C. Allen, a merchant tailor who lived in Schenectady, N. Y., where she was born. She was one of three children, a brother, John, and a sister, Mrs. Charles H. Winfield. Neither brother nor sister survive, the latter being buried in the Schermerhorn plot at Hillside cemetery. In speaking about her early years, Mrs. Schermerhorn said: "I've always had a weakness for telegraph operators. My first beau, before I was sent to school at Schoharie, N. Y., was a telegrapher, and Mr. Schermerhorn I first met when he came to our house in Jersey City as a boarder. He was then an operator in the office of Western Union station in the Irving House, New York. Yes," she concluded, with a laugh, "if I ever marry again, it will be a telegrapher, only he must be more nearly my own age."

Mr. Schermerhorn is the son of the late Abraham S. Schermerhorn, a shoemaker, and was born a Hatboro, Pa., the old home of Dr. Yerkes. His father wanted him to be a shoemaker, but he never made but one shoe in his life. At the age of seventeen, he became an operator in one of the first telegraph offices in this country, a test office established at New Hope, Pa. James Worl, now living in Westfield, was the first operator there, and at his resignation, Mr. Schermerhorn took his position. From New Hope, he went to Princeton, then to the Irving House, New York city, at which time he made the acquaintance of Mrs. Schermerhorn. Later he was transferred to Brooklyn, where he was in charge of the first Western Union telegraph office in that city.

After his marriage, he went to take charge of the office at Burlington. At the opening of the Civil War, he went to Beverly, some four miles south of Burlington, where he was in charge of the army office. This was the headquarters of General Sewell, and a large recruiting station. His wife was with him, helping in the hospital, writing letters for the sick soldiers and knitting socks for those at the front. At the time of "Lee's surrender, Mr. Schermerhorn got the news unofficially over the wire on a message he was transmitting. He told his wife, and to this day cites it as the only instance he knows of a woman Keeping a secret. When asked how long she kept this news as a secret by the reporter yesterday, Mrs. Schermerhorn said: "Till the newspapers came out with the report—almost twenty-four hours."

Mr. and Mrs. Schermerhorn have no children living. Ida, their little daughter died when three months old and Charles Hill Schermerhorn, Jr., their son, who was brought to this city when six months of age, died at the age of twenty-four in 1894. He was well-know in this city, and worked as base level surveyor in the employ of the government in the south, surveying the Red river, the Yazoo river and the Mississippi as far as Alexandria. Surviving relatives are few. Mrs. Schermerhorn has a niece, the wife of Frank S. Neal, of West Front street, and a nephew, Harper W. Winfield, of Jersey City. Another niece is Mrs. Alfred Harvey, of Lansingburg, N. Y.

Residents of this city for thirty-eight years last June, the couple are active in a quiet way in various church and relief works. Mr. Schermerhorn is a master mason in the F. and A. M. lodge. He joined as a member of the Burlington lodge, and has never affiliated himself with the local lodges. He has been a member of the Old Telegraph Association, of which Andrew Carnegie is a member, since 1873. He is no believer in strikes, and has always been a faithful worker for the company. On this point of strikes, Mrs. Schermerhorn is not of the same opinion. She is a woman of exceedingly strong purpose, and of an independent nature. Her motto of life is Abraham Lincoln's motto: "Hew to the line, let the chips fall where they will." Of life philosophy, she claims that the first impulse, provided the object be a worthy one, is the right impulse, and with her principle comes first, policy second.

Though in their seventy-third year both Mr. and Mrs. Schermerhorn are healthy and active. Last Sunday they took a long walk together on the Watchung Mountains, going over Johnston's Drive to St. Mary's Convent, in course of construction on the mountain opposite Scotch Plains. Though they will not receive extensively on their anniversary day, they will be at home to their friends afternoons of this week.

Lincoln and Stanton.

There was a marked contrast between Lincoln's manner, which was always pleasant and even genial, and that of Stanton. The latter's stern, unbending visage commanded instant respect and in many cases inspired fear. In receiving visitors, and they were legion, Stanton seldom or never sat down, but stood before a high desk as the crowd passed before him and the telegraph. Many their requests or complaints, which were rapidly disposed of. He was haughty, severe, domineering and often rude. They are, too, plain plaited skirts. Stripes are by no means out of favor.

The Truthful Woman.

It is no exaggeration to say that a more or less truthful woman is looked upon with grave suspicion. What is more, nobody believes her. If she can truthfully assert previous her age to be twenty-nine everybody at once says then she must be at least thirty-five, while if she should ever be cajoled into admitting the number of proposals she had had in her youth at the opening of the season the impression that she had been very lucky to catch a husband at all.—London Ladies' Field.

"I hain't got time to talk to you; I'm late already," replied the breathless beginner as the door of his class-room closed.—Circle.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Mr. Perkins at Plainfield.

The formal opening of the campaign of Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, at Plainfield, for a renomination at the hands of the Republican county convention delegates, who will gather in this city on September 12, was the flattest kind of a failure. The scores and scores of empty chairs that greeted the Assemblyman, the character of the audience, and its lack of responsiveness to his "sensations" must have been a stinging blow to a man of Perkins' intelligence and natural pride. A lively meeting with a crowded house is expected," said Wednesday evening's issue of the personal organ of the Assemblyman, the Plainfield Courier-News. Interest in the great fight, it was pointed out, has spread all over the city and borough. But the slim meeting and the notable lack of enthusiasm showed that Plainfield, where all the "holler" has come from concerning the "great work" done Mr. Perkins, had decided to call the bluff.

That few if any over 100 persons gathered in Reform Hall Thursday evening, after it had been announced that Assemblyman Perkins had great cards up his sleeve, big discoveries to make, and an all-around smart campaign speech to deliver, we will call more remarkable. It was evident that the small crowd present at this well-advertised public meeting cut the Assemblyman deeply. He referred with forced facetiousness to the absolutely deserted galleries, and the tenor of his speech showed that he realized perfectly well that he is playing a losing game and that his campaign is not popular with the people of Union county. He almost as admitted that he was beaten. Certainly the campaign of the Westfield Assemblyman has opened most inauspiciously; and almost anyone will agree that the treatment he received in Plainfield last evening was worse than he deserved.

Posing as a reformer, Mr. Perkins does not make a good impression. His speech last evening would have repulsed the average careful citizen, who believes that great moral questions should be treated with due seriousness, and that flippancy and irreverence are intolerable in the case of a public servant. He chose before the people to give an account of himself. Mr. Perkins seemed to be laboring under great anxiety lest he should be considered a "goody-good." And in order to make him that kind of a proposition, he made a number of cheap, unwise and totally uncalled for remarks about his personal attitude toward drink, which seemed to please some of the fellows in the back of the hall.

Such remarks in view of the opposition to the Assemblyman by the local option people and the so-called "church people" looked like an undiplomatic waving of the red flag. Mr. Perkins also joked about the appreciation of his eloquence in the fight for which had been made by a fellow Assemblyman, but which he said was a little overdrawn. The assemblyman remarked that he did not pretend to be at Trenton while he had been described to be. Such talk, of course, with unthinking people, may be mistaken for independence and broadness. With others, especially at this time, it will furnish evidence of a lack of moral balance and absence of appreciation of the seriousness of discrimination both in action and public utterance.

Mr. Perkins made it plain that he was a Republican first last and all the time, and that he would not be anything else. He lashed the party and spoke with apparent pride of his persistent fight against the "new idea" folks. He had not set up on them from the start to the finish, and seemed especially anxious to have it understood that he was one of them now. If defeated he said he should still be a Republican. His interests, he pointed out, were wholly with that party. This was an important announcement, of course, in view of the Plainfield Democratic claim that Senator Colby will stump Union county for Perkins.

Those who attended the meeting expecting to be treated to a sensation were disappointed. The assemblyman did not say that he was against Dryden had been the cause of his political downfall, but the awful Kean-Dryden plot, which, when disclosed, "will break up the politics autocracy in this state," was not uncovered. Mr. Perkins blamed Tillman for setting him out. He accused the county Republican chairman of undue activity in behalf of anti-Perkins delegates. But the plot, the deep-laid political scheme, by which he would show up the "corruption" in Union county politics, were not disclosed. After Mr. Perkins' opening speech of the campaign, the county still remains the cleanest in the State, and it is beyond the power of the Westfield assemblyman or anybody else to show that political affairs in this section of New Jersey are not free from offensive bossism and wrong doing.—Elizabeth Journal.

Katzenbach of Trenton.

The rumor that Katzenbach of Trenton is the choice of the Democratic organization in New Jersey for Governor is most persistent. A Democratic Governor of New Jersey would be a logical candidate for Vice-President if the national convention were to nominate a Western or Southern man for President; so leaders like Davis, Gourley, Cornish and Hudspeth, we, it may be supposed, will control the State Convention that meets in New Jersey on September 18, would be wise to balance the names of all available candidates for President with that of Katzenbach and note how the combination sounds.

Of the Democratic candidates for Governor in New Jersey who have taken or been put into the field the Hon. Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., is the most silent and circumspect, although as Mayor of Trenton he made 357 speeches of welcome to visiting societies and organizations. Farmer Martine of Plainfield is constitutionally opposed to keeping still, State Senator Samuel S. Childs has boldly announced the platform he would like to stand upon, and Brewer Hinchliffe of Paterson, the fire and flood mayor, has only casual fits of eloquent silence. Since the proposition of his boom into the open by disinterested friends Mr. Katzenbach, who can talk like a polished Princetonian on occasion, has been mysteriously reticent.

The impression obtaining in northern New Jersey, where Mr. Katzenbach is not well known, that he is a florid, well fed, good humored, somnolent, solid and stolid nonentity picked out by the politicians to run against the Bishop's bill, does an accomplished gentleman more than a mild injustice. Mr. Katzenbach is a young man of fine presence, a graduate of Princeton, where he was president of the lawn tennis association and a renowned debater, and he has served two terms as Mayor of Trenton. A very valuable and dignified Mayor he made. His votes were plentiful and well aimed at a Republican Common Council that was a law unto itself.

Mayor Katzenbach stood for limited franchises and the economy in public affairs which consists "in not spending money." At the same time he was a loyal organization man. His appointments were very creditable to an organization man. In a word, he was an all-round Democrat, a graduate of the Cleveland school. Locally he is popular. When Franklin Murphy, the Republican candidate for Governor in 1901, carried Trenton by more than 1,000 plurality, Katzenbach, running for Mayor, defeated his Republican opponent, now Senator Frank O. Briggs, by 238 votes. Two years later the grandson of old Peter Katzenbach, who emigrated to this country some seventy years ago, was re-elected by a plurality of 1,000. Mr. Katzenbach was chosen Mayor the first time on his birthday; and he will be 40 on November 5, which happens to be election day. He is said to be something of a fatalist. The proper way to pronounce Mr. Katzenbach is Katzen-bay. These few facts about the ex-Mayor of Trenton should dispel the idea that he need not be taken seriously by his rivals and the paragraphers. Whether he is not too conservative to energize enough to call an electorate that worships Farmer Martine in spots is a question for the political strategists to consider.—New York Sun.

Mr. Perkins' Independence.

Great stress is being laid by the Plainfield Courier-News, the newspaper which turned in a night from the most ardent champion of a change in the representation of Union county in the Assembly, to the strangely-devoted personal organ of the man whom it counseled to withdraw gracefully from the contest, on the assumption that he lacked "independence." All of a sudden, without the slightest warning to its perplexed readers, this isolated Union county newspaper, lately supposed to be true blue to the principles of the "new idea" party, turned purple with indignitation at the suggestion that it was not "regular," finds the man it saw, as the rest did, to be too much handicapped to hope to win in this county, "an ideal candidate," "independent, fearless and determined." Instead of being overzealous to satisfy his own political ambitions, and weakened by opposition and by removal from this county, except for legal residence, the formerly repulsed candidate has suddenly become "a man the independent voter likes," "equipped with courage," "the people's man." Without producing a particle of evidence to show that this county or this county is "corrupt," "dominated by the voice of one" and not in favor of a "square deal," and without being able to show that anything was ever demanded of Mr. Perkins during his career as Governor by the so-called machine, the bewildered Plainfield newspaper tries to identify the Westfield candidate as among the reformers.

The well-known organ of the "new idea" following, the Newark Evening News, evidently does not agree with its former fellow exponent of "new idea" principles; and there is a good deal that is unaccountable in the endorsement of Mr. Perkins by the Colbyites of the Fourth ward, in Plainfield, unless it is understood that the "new idea" movement was so dead in this county that any kind of a prop would do. The "new idea" people are against Perkins, said the Newark News the other day. His record, it pointed out, has not been pleasing to the followers of Colby. The man now posing as a reformer, "fearless and independent," and whose official career has been endorsed by the followers of Colby—a handful at least—made the mistake, said the News, of "tying up to the machine." His head was turned and he thought he must fight reform: "that he must defeat Colby and Colby measures, right or wrong; that he ought to out-regular the regulars."

"Had Assemblyman Perkins," says the recognized organ of the Colby reformers, "had the conscientious courage of Colby; had he followed the dictates of his own good judgment; had he allowed reason instead of ambition to guide him; had he thrown off the Codding influences and the machine shackles as well, Mr. Perkins might have shown traits of statesmanship and ability that would have made him a leader in fact, instead of one in name only." Therefore seems to be a great deal of uncertainty about the courage and independence of Assemblyman Perkins in the minds of those forces which have been hurriedly assumed to be in his favor. Before the "new ideas" folks go any farther in endorsing the Westfield candidate perhaps it would be well to take the advice of Judge Runyon, who said at the Fourth ward Colby meeting in Plainfield the other night: "I think Perkins should be investigated." Possibly Senator Colby might throw some light on the man who has fought him and his measures persistently, who has out-regulared the regulars. Independence is positively a commendable thing, but it should not be confounded with surging, uncontrollable personal ambition.

The problem which faced the Republican leaders in this county was perfectly simple, in view of the fact that Mr. Perkins had lost his hold on his constituents in this county, through the fact that he has been out of the county most of the time, retaining a voting residence merely by hiring a house in Westfield, through the fact that he had incurred the strong enmity of the local option people, and owing to the fact that without good and sufficient reason there was no precedent for sending him back to the Assembly for a fourth term. The problem of the Republican leaders was to find a strong man who could, if elected, represent the county ably, as Mr. Perkins is credited with having done, and a man who without any doubt could be elected. An able lawyer, a man of scholarly attainments, of ability as a debater, a property-owner, an all-the-year-around resident of the county, and a man whose personal character not only passes muster with the people but believe that moral character is an important part of a legislator's qualifications, but which stands out as an unquestionably asset would certainly fill the bill. Such a man was found in the person of Carlton Brownell Pierce, of Cranford.—Elizabeth Journal.

CONVENTION DELEGATES OPPOSED TO PERKINS

MAJORITY INSTRUCTED TO VOTE AGAINST HIS RENOMINATION.

An inspection of the petitions filed in the rural districts of the county shows that Assemblyman Randolph Perkins won't have his work cut to secure a renomination, as a majority of the delegates nominated have been instructed to vote against him in the convention. Westfield alone of the rural districts, being the Assemblyman's home town, stood loyal, giving its four delegates instructions to vote for his renomination.

The delegates from Cranford and Roselle will favor the nomination of Carleton M. Pierce, of Cranford, who has been put forward as a successor to Perkins and who, from present indications, has a good chance of winning out. The delegation in Roselle Park and Garwood are uninstructed. Perkins is sure of 16 of the 27 delegates from Plainfield. He has but few from Elizabeth.

Week-End in Hunterdon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force and daughter, Miss Lillian A. Force, of Deer street, returned home today from Hamden, Hunterdon county, where they were delightfully entertained for a few days by Mrs. J. F. Yesterday they were driven to Bellewood Park, a well-kept place, owned and managed by the Lehigh Valley railroad company, and where about 5,000 excursionists enjoying the day. GOOD CARD AT THE RACES

Big Crowd Turned Out for Matinee Races Held at Driving Park.

OUT OF TOWN HORSES

Four Races and Steeplechase Have Many Entries by Horse Owners From New York, Newark and Vicinity.

A holiday card of four class races and a special steeplechase event drew an enthusiastic crowd to the local driving park yesterday afternoon, when purses to the amount of $625 were offered at the special matinee races held under the auspices of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association. Horse owners from New York, Jersey City, Newark, Trenton, New Brunswick, Somerville and near by towns were entered and although there had been showers in the morning, the track was in tolerable condition and about 1500 devotees of the horse turned out despite the showery conditions of the afternoon. Plainfield had the worth of their money, as far as time goes, for the racing began at 2 o'clock and it was nearly 7 when the last event was finished.

The best race on the afternoon's card was the second, a free for all. This was a close contest between Ed. Fink's "Prince Arthur" and J. T. Langan's "Prince." Though bested in the first two heats by the local man's bay, the Newarker's black won the next three heats straight and took the purse. Mayor Wilday's "Aloysia" won all three heats in the third race, though "Brown Jug," a Newark horse, made trouble and should have finished second in all the heats. In the first heat the animal ran out through the gate from the track, into the paddock and clear around behind the grand-stand. The driver was powerless, but the horse was caught by some men in the paddock and turned back on the track, finishing the race in good style. In the other heats, the horse ran well, finishing second both times.

An event of especial interest was the steeplechase, in which four horses were entered W. H. Wildey's "Silver Twist" finished ahead, followed by Joseph Dayton's "Mid o' All Work," and C. J. Fisk's "Stonewall." In the special half-mile running race L. E. Waring's brown locomotive moved the field. "L'Amanda" coming in ahead in the second heat with "Ventihe" a good second. The first trial had been a dead heat. The time, 54 seconds, was the same in both.

PERKIN'S ACCUSATIONS ARE DENIED BY SMITH

MIDDLESEX CO IS RICHER

Ratables Increase More Than $5,000,000 Over Last Year's Total.

PERTH AMBOY BOOMING

Over Fifty Per Cent. of the Increase Found There — Dunellen Is $33,000 Better Off Than a Year Ago.

As to Another Position.

After long, tiresome sessions over the tax books, the Middlesex County Tax Board has finally finished its work, and its report shows that the county ratables for 1907 are $51,603,822, an increase of $5,046,327 over last year. Perth Amboy is now more than four millions ahead of New Brunswick.

In Dunellen the net ratables total to $737,775, $657,795 real estate and $79,800 personal. The net for 1906 was $704,525. In Piscataway township, the net valuation jumped $208,879, totalling to $2,858,874 for 1907—$2,029,095 in real estate and $829,779 in personal ratables. Metuchen shows a net increase of $56,080, with a net of $1,369,624. Of this $1,205,089 is real estate. At Raritan the net valuation of $1,098,589 is an increase of $32,935, the real estate ratables being $1,049,674. The totals for the county are $51,603,822 to $46,557,485 in 1906.

With the possible exception of Woodbridge township, the actual amount of money to be paid for taxes will be far below last year. This is largely due to the fact of the reduction in the county tax rate on account of the change in the fiscal year, which enables the Board of Freeholders to make a budget for eight months' expenses instead of expenses for the full year.

ITALIAN YOUTH SHOT ON HIS WAY HOME

POLICE DISCREDIT HIS STORY OF AN AMBUSH—NOT SERIOUSLY HURT.

Mattia Imboglutti, 17 years old, a laborer employed by E. M. French, and who lives on Terrill road, is lying at his home with a bullet wound in his left groin. Early yesterday he was shot from ambush Saturday night, but the police don't take any stock in the story.

Chief Kiely learned of the shooting Saturday night, two hours after it took place, from Constable Hyndman Westcott, who was summoned by the family to attend the wounded youth. He started an investigation at once, and learned that Imboglutti, in company with Angelo Giffordo, 18 years old, was returning home from work at 6 o'clock, when the shooting took place. The shot was fired while the youths were walking near Leland avenue. Chief Kiely could find no place within revover shot, in the open field across which they had walked, that showed signs of an ambuscade. He is convinced that the shooting resulted from skylarking with a revolver, and that the boys hit on the ambush story as one that could most save them from trouble. Imboglutti is not dangerously hurt.

Denied Now by Smith

County Chairman Stamps as False Assemblyman's Assertions.

HE MADE NO DEALS

Frank H. Smith Relates the Conversations He Had With Tillman

As to Another Position.

Unequivocal denial was made by County Chairman Frank H. Smith today of the assertions reflecting on him as made by Assemblyman Randolph Perkins at the New Idea mass meeting here on Friday night. Mr. Smith in substance declares as false the allegation that he told Mr. Tillman some time ago that the organization was against both him and Mr. Perkins and that in consideration of his resignation from the assembly he would get him any appointment.

"It had not been my intention to dignify such scurrilous statements by an answer but as it appears that damage may be done the Republican cause by silence on my part, I have decided to nail the story as absolutely false. That I ever gave Mr. Tillman any promise of preferment in return for the delivery of any delegates or for his resignation from the assembly or for his declination to run again, I most emphatically deny. It was either in February or March, I am not sure which, that I went to see Mr. Tillman while he was ill at his home in Rahway. I visited him because he was physically. During our conversation, Mr. Tillman asked me about his getting the appointment of inspector of denatured alcohol. He wanted that position a year previously after much to his disappointment Senator Ackerman recommended another as a member of the Board of Equalization of Taxes. Tillman could not qualify for that position the year before because he was a member of the Legislature which created the office. At last spring when the reappointments for the full terms were made, he was disappointed to find that he could not get the place. Then he became anxious to be inspector of denatured alcohol and I promised to do all I could for him. At the visit in question, I told Mr. Tillman that I had learned that he could not hold office under the United States government while holding the State office that he did. In reply, he said that he wanted to resign from the assembly if it was necessary for him to do so in order to secure the other job. No promise was asked about the delivery of any delegates and none was given.

"Mr. Tillman would have obtained the desired appointment in March were he in Illinois. My home from Washington made it necessary for me to deal with a new man there and the work had to be done all over again. At our meeting referred to I did not tell Mr. Tillman that the organization was against him but since that time I have told him of the sentiment against third terms and he is serving his third term at this time. I want to make it very plain that at no time was there any conversation with Mr. Tillman whereby he was to deliver the delegates of Rahway in return for this appointment. For corroboration of my version of the conversation I refer you to Mr. Tillman as no third party was present.

"I admit that I have interested myself in Mr. Pierce candidacy, but I emphatically deny that I have done so at the request or suggestion of former County Chairman H. H. Kean, despite Mr. Perkins' assertions. Mr. Kean had never known and has never seen Mr. Pierce, and the interest I took in that respected member of Cranford's community was in the line of my duty as county chairman. During what Mr. Perkins is pleased to term my travels up and down the county, I found that the Westfielder was too weak to put before the people as a candidate again and as the election is going to be a very close one, I deemed it my duty as county chairman to help in obtaining candidates who would be strong before the voters. That is all I have to say."

Assemblyman Seeking Fourth Term Invades Plainfield to State his Position, and Accuses Leaders of Attempting to Override People's Will.

HE PITCHES INTO KEAN, SMITH AND TILLMAN

Reiterates That He Is No Scrub and Will Be Loyal to Ticket If Defeated—Judge William N. Runyon Praises the Westfield Man.

Speaking under the auspices of the Fourth Ward branch of the Cohesite organization, Assemblyman Randolph Perkins told his reasons, at a meeting in Reform Hall, Friday evening, for making his campaign for a fourth term in the Assembly, and some of the things that led up to it. His speech included a charge that his fellow-assemblyman, Peter Tillman, of Rahway, had entered into a deal to deliver the Rahway delegation against him in return for an appointment as inspector of denatured alcohol. He said the action of his associate, with whom he had worked, side by side, in the Assembly, smacked decidedly of a good bit to do with his fight to defeat those who sought his political annihilation. He had some things to say of the alleged disciplinary activities of County Chairman Frank H. Smith.

The meeting was attended by something over 100 men and two women. E. D. Cutting was chairman. There was enthusiasm enough, and Mr. Perkins was warmly welcomed. His telling shafts won spirited applause. There is no doubt that he had his audience with him, and that practically every man in the hall left it a Perkins booster.

Judge Runyon was the only speaker besides Mr. Perkins. He spoke before the latter, and his speech was practically a declaration in favor of Mr. Perkins' renomination. For part, he said:

"I hardly supposed twelve months ago that I should be appearing on the same platform with Mr. Perkins, and doing what I could to bring him to your favorable notice. Viewing things from the standpoint of 1907 I don't think Union county suffered from the election of Mr. Perkins. He has shown great independence in his course. He has acted according to his honest convictions as a legislator. He did not try to evade or dodge an issue to gain votes.

"He has been before the people three times. The first time he was chosen he had no opportunity to make himself known. The second year he was practically a new man, and his success in making himself known as he did speaks for his ability. I believe he acted well as a legislator. He was threatened with the vengeance of the organization when he asserted his independence in the Senatorial matter, and he stood fast.

"I take it that he has had practically but one term in which to show of what he is made. He has an honorable ambition to return to the Assembly. We have seen in other states the spectacle of national legislators being returned term after term, and the value of that policy has been recognized by New Jersey in the cases of congressmen and senators. I feel the good of that policy will be operative as strongly in our State Legislature. If Mr. Perkins is returned to the Assembly, he will gain a legislator of great credit to Union county and the State. Union county will have a strong assistful representative. It is said he is a weak candidate. How can that be said with any force? It seems to be the aim of the organization to choose candidates for the people and to force them on the electorate. The organization cannot say Mr. Perkins is a weak candidate if it doesn't give the people a chance to speak out. I feel that if the delegates were left to the people's choice Mr. Perkins would be selected.

"To involve the primary in political tactics tends to defeat the people. I feel we are being forced to accept one man and to regard another one as a weak candidate. I do not think there is right or justice in the cry that Mr. Perkins is a weak candidate. He has been in the thick of the battle. His record is largely the record of the Republican party. Can you see, voters of Plainfield, why, if he acted according to the dictates of his conscience, he should be denied another term?

"We are not trying to fight the Republican party. We are simply trying to keep the party straight, and give every citizen a right to vote as his conscience dictates. If the party cannot bear that it has gone far from its original position. We seek to do away with the planning things behind closed doors.

"Do not be prejudiced. Give Mr. Perkins a fair hearing, and if he meets with your approval step out boldly and give him your support."

Mr. Perkins was received with sustained applause. He said in part:

"Political opposition founded in personal interest or on minor affairs is likely to be determined and lasting, but opposition that is based on political expediency is apt to be swept away in an exchange of ideas. That is why I come before you to explain. Last year you voted for delegates opposed to me and I tried to elect delegates in my favor. How comes it now that our political ideas are not as far apart as then? I will say that the political ideas I had a year ago were not so far from yours at that time.

"I am a regular. I went about last year saying there were no such things as bosses in Union county. I may tell you different later, but when I told you that I believed it. I am proud of the Republican party, and have served it as well as I knew how, and I intend to go on fighting in its ranks, fighting its battle and the battle of the people.

"A party cannot win on mere promises. It must come before the people with performances. If a man comes before his constituents and makes promises he must keep them. If he fails it is the constituency's duty to retire him.

"I stand only on the printed record on the minutes. I do not seek to make compromise and take the position of a coward. How comes it that I am meeting those with friendly feeling whom I fought a year ago? Aside from our little or major differences, there is something of the utmost importance. What we should want to do is to send men to Trenton who are honest and sincere.

"I have committed a political sin in the eyes of some people. I said ; would be free from bossism. Have I or have I not? Can anyone come forward and say I took orders from anybody but the people at large? (Applause.) I dare say there are those who charge that as my chief sin. If you want honest men at Trenton, it is your duty to examine the records of candidates, and if they do not show that the candidates have kept faith with the people they should be sent back to private life. If they have kept faith, you should see to it that some boss does not relegate them.

"Gentlemen, I said I am an organization man. I am. The things that are being done against me represent disorganization. I purpose staying in the ranks. If I am defeated, and they will let me I'll stump the county for the ticket. I am no sore-head.

"This campaign has a deeper purpose than to make Randolph Perkins assemblyman a fourth time. When the assemblyman of this county learned that the people of the county did not desire Senator Dryden's re-election what was his duty? Was it not to protest against a nomination the people didn't want? If my record is to be investigated what is the verdict as to my independence.

"Now I have told you my greatest sin. When I voted against Senator Dryden it was said by the leader of the party that I had committed political suicide. That was a threat. I am now about to say something unpleasant for me to say, but it is true. What I will say I said to the gentlemen I received, face to face, for I hate a coward.

"Less than four weeks after your Senator and myself helped defeat Senator Dryden, your county chairman went to Mr. Tillman and said the organization was against Mr. Tillman and Mr. Perkins and secured his resignation from the House in consideration of his appointment as inspector of denatured alcohol and in consideration of his delivery of the Rahway delegates against Perkins. I told that to Mr. Tillman and your county chairman. From the day I learned that I became a candidate for renomination.

"The thing that hurts me is that the man with whom you have been associated makes a deal whereby I am to be relegated to the ranks. Gentlemen, I have given you the reason, why I am a candidate, and I will be a candidate right up to convention day. If I am wiped off the face of the political map, I will be there.

"At whose request has your county chairman been working to accomplish my defeat? Who has wiped former political friends to be against me. The county chairman has been up and down the county twice to secure pledged delegates against me. He acknowledged it to me this morning. Did he do it at the request of the people? At whose request? Can you guess?" (Voices: "Ham Kean.") "Oh, but you're wise guys," said Mr. Perkins.

Mr. Perkins rehearsed the reasons advanced by the leaders for refusing him another term. The fourth term plea, he said, has not applied to the surrogate's office, and the so-called opposition of the liquor men he regarded as a rehash of a fight that was settled last year. Speaking on local option opposition, he said:

"I have no quarrel with the principle of local option. Personally I like it, if it is real local option. When Compare his (Mr. Perkins') record with that of a great many in his confreres in House and Senate and Union's record, will learn that it will be difficult to select a man better fitted, to represent them.—Courier-News, Aug. 2, 1907.

Mr. Perkins' claim to re-election is based mainly upon his past record, and this will compare most favorably with that of any man in that body * * *.—Courier-News, August 12, 1907.

Has not Mr. Perkins every right to expect the support of Plainfield if he determines to again run for re-election? Has Union county ever had an Assemblyman who strove harder to do the bidding of the people than he? * * * Rather than create a breach in the ranks of the party it is hoped that Mr. Perkins will retire, for at the same time all fair-minded citizens must admit that he has been a faithful servant and one thoroughly deserving of the support of voters and party leaders alike.—Courier-News, August 15, 1907.

Look on the statute books through me, their must be more people behind it than the man who introduces it—and it must be a real local option bill. As to the bill of last year, I felt that it did not permit local option in cities or such municipal bodies—the county vote was able to override the separate community. That, to my mind, was not a real local option bill."

In closing Mr. Perkins said he had spoken plainly, without trying for rhetorical effect, because he had a serious purpose. He said one or two men in the party wanted it run so that hide-bound oaths, such as were part of feudal days, be taken, but he did not intend to fall in with that idea. He would never take an oath. He hoped none would be, as he had not been unduly harsh in his personal reference. He had no personal feeling in the campaign.

At the close of his address Mr. Perkins offered to answer any questions. Before the meeting C. B. Lucas, an anti-saloon league worker, told the reporters that he intended to ask some. He did not respond to the invitation. He said later that he didn't think any questions were necessary.

"It was a pretty poor speech," said Rev. John Wright, of Newark, assistant superintendent of the league, who was with La Rue.

CLOSE FRESH AIR HOME

Last Service of the Season Held There Sunday Afternoon.

GIFT FOR DR. CURRIE

Philanthropic Physician Receives Gold Watch Fob—Praise For Miss Florence G. Hawkins.

The last of the season's services at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home was held in the auditorium at the grounds Sunday afternoon, and the camp is now closed after its fifth year in this city. The children from New York, in charge of Miss Sara Curry, matron at the camp, and George Threshold, of New York city, were taken back to their homes yesterday morning. George E. Hall, of the camp committee, carried them to the Netherwood station in his automobile. There were about 100 of them. The camp was taxed to its utmost capacity to accommodate the little New Yorkers this year, for, though originally intended to accommodate 150 at most, there have been about 300 there most of the time.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, of the Monroe Avenue church, was the speaker at the camp for the closing meeting. George E. Hall was in charge of the meeting; there was prayer by J. D. Loizeaux and a short address of farewell by Frederick Sutro, of New York. In behalf of the mothers at the camp, Dr. H. S. Saubray, of New York, presented Dr. N. W. Currie with a handsome gold watch fob, set with diamonds as a token of their gratefulness for the medical assistance he has rendered gratuitously to the sick ones during the summer. Dr. Currie has been the "camp physician" for the past five years with the children, and has handled some serious cases among the babies and younger children.

Music was a feature of the service. Miss Florence G. Hawkins and Mrs. Ada Cumming sang "Speak to My Soul," Mary Miller, one of the New York children, sang "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherd," and Elsie and Helen Judge, two of the children, sang "God Will Take Care of You." Miss May Voorhees was at the organ.

In a short address, summarizing the work of the various committees, George E. Hall spoke enthusiastically of the faithfulness of Miss Florence G. Hawkins, chairman of the devotional committee. Miss Curry spoke briefly, thanking those who had worked for the camp, or given financial assistance for the support of her work in New York.

OLDEST TELEGRAPHER AND WIFE FIFTY YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Schermerhorn. —(Photo by Stone.)

Relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schermerhorn tendered their congratulations to the couple at their home on Madison avenue Monday on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at Jersey City in 1857. The day's mail brought letters of congratulation from those unable to be present, and their home is an abundance of costly and handsome presents, of metal suitable for a golden wedding present received by the couple. Many sent money, and up to last night, more than $150 in gold pieces had been received.

Through the entire day friends called with congratulations and gifts and the local telegraph manager and his wife were busy receiving their friends. The formal reception by Mr. and Mrs. Schermerhorn came in the evening. A collation, served by DeMolte, was the culmination of the anniversary day. Covers were laid for forty. Among those present were Vice-President William G. Besler, of the Jersey Central railroad, and wife; Mr. and Mrs. James O. Osgood, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Koons, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pelton Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Neal and family, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Meseroll, of Dunellen, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wynkoop, of Dunellen, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Edgar, Mrs. Jane Van Winkle, and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Rowland.

SAVED COUNTRY CLUB FROM DANGEROUS FIRE

DAVID SHAY AND AN ASSISTANT CHECKED A THREATENING BLAZE.

Sparks from the chimney set fire to the handsome clubhouse of the Plainfield Country Club, Sunday afternoon, threatening total destruction of the building. Prompt discovery of the blaze and the heroic work of David Shay, superintendent, and one of his assistants, prevented great damage. Mr. Shay was getting things in readiness for Labor Day, when a large number of members and their guests were entertained, and he had built a fire in the clubhouse, using wood for fuel.

Soon after the fire was started it was noticed that sparks were shooting out of the chimney. This, together, with a strong odor of smoke led Mr. Shay to investigate. He quickly discovered a lively blaze on the roof over the front porch. He hastened to get fire extinguishers and by the time he reached the roof the fire was burning briskly. Aid with the assistance of one of the boys about the clubhouse he soon had it under control and extinguished the blaze, but not until a large hole was burned in the roof.

At first it was believed that it would be necessary to call the fire department, but upon second thought Mr. Shay realized that the distance from headquarters would render the firemen's services almost useless, and besides the clubhouse being in Middlesex county that fact presented another difficulty. That the blaze did not do more damage seemed almost miraculous. It is believed that $100 will cover the damage.

Another Landmark to Go.

Through Dr. Albert Pittis several Plainfielders, as well as himself, have acquired the William Hetfield property on East Front street, just south of George Pinger's new building. It has a frontage of forty feet and a depth of 100 feet. The property is one of the few remaining of the old landmarks in the business part of the city. The new owners, are planning to remove the old structure and erect in its place a modern building.

FEMININE INTUITION.

They stood in the purple gloaming of the hazy June twilight. Above them drooped the wisteria; from afar drifted the fragrance of the dewy honeysuckles. It was an evening to inspire the heart and to thrill the soul.

"Evangeline," sighed Hector Montmorency, "I cannot begin to tell you how much I love you."

"You"—she hesitated—"you might at least try, mightn't you? If you give me but an inkling perhaps I can guess the rest."

He should have known better than to think of marrying a woman who was such a good guesser.—Judge.

Enlishing a Superior Motive.

"It's years since I've seen your wife around so much. She has always been more or less of an invalid, hasn't she?"

"Yes; but I thought it nonsense, so I told her that I would increase her allowance, she to pay her doctor's bills. She hasn't had a doctor since, nor been to his office. You see she must have clothes. Great scheme that. It's a sure cure for fashionable invalidism.—Judge.

LIFELIKE.

Lifesize—So poor Jones, the story maker, has gone out of his mind!

Stryppe—Yes! He had been going for three months on a mechanical tramp, and he couldn't get it to work.

Voice of Experience.

"In mailing an article to a magazine," asked the literary tyro, "is there any peculiar way of arranging the stamps so as to convey the idea to the editor that I am an old hand?"

"You bet there is," answered Peradventure. "Be sure to arrange enough of them on the inside to prepay the return postage, if you expect ever to see the article again."—Chicago Tribune.

Possible Explanation.

Said He—A scientist affirms that a woman's voice ascends to more than twice the height attained by a man's.

Said She—That probably accounts for it.

Said He—Accounts for what?

Said She—The fact that most men let their wives do all the praying for the family.—Chicago Daily News.

Stuck.

"If you don't want to go into a permanent decline," announced the physician, after making a careful examination, "you will have to tear yourself away from your business entirely."

"That's pretty hard to do, doctor," said his caller. "I am a manufacturer of porous plasters."—Chicago Tribune.

Inconsistent.

Edyth—I would never marry a man who leads a hand-to-mouth existence.

Mayme—What! Do you mean to tell me that your engagement with Fred is off?

Edyth—Certainly not. Why?

Mayme—He's a dentist, you know.—Chicago Daily News.

Advice Reciprocated.

"You must discontinue your piano practice for a time," said the doctor, "or it will send you to an untimely grave."

"Why don't you discontinue your practice, doctor?" she replied. "Then you wouldn't fill so many untimely graves."—Chicago Record Herald.

Time Not Wholly Wasted.

"It must be a terrible disappointment to be a defeated candidate."

"Oh, I don't know," answered the man who always tries to look on the bright side. "Sometimes it's a pretty good advertisement for a law practice or a lecture tour."—Washington Star.

Truly Remarkable.

"New York is a remarkable city, isn't it?" said the proud native.

"Yes," answered the impatient visitor, "it's the only town I ever saw where one man with a truck load of barrels could tie up an entire street car line."—Washington Star.

Those Dear Friends.

GAVE HIS MESSAGE VERBATIM.

Youth's Practical Answer Shattered Court's Dignity.

Success Magazine says: It is told of the late Chauncey Shafer, who bears the same relation to New York's "anecdotage" that Sidney Smith does to London's, that he employed in his law office a stunted youth of very tractable temperament. One day Mr. Shafer returned from lunch in a lively mood, and by token of the Madeira he had consumed, summoned Billy into his private office. "Boy," he said, carelessly, "go over to the special term and see what in h—— they're up to there." The late Judge Brady was presiding over the trial of an action involving many interesting questions of substantive law. Hence, the courtroom was empty save for the litigants, their counsel and the necessary witnesses. Judge Brady's kindliness toward women and children was proverbial, and when Billy stood against the railing of the inclosure, his face barely reaching over the balustrade, the judge noticed him immediately. He interrupted the argument of counsel and turned to Billy. "Well, my lad," he said in suave, judicial accents, "what can I do for you?" "I'm from Mr. Shafer's office," Billy replied, "and he wants to know what in h—— you're up to over here."

THE "BEST MAN'S" MISTAKE.

Wedding Fee That Surely Must Have Astonished Minister.

As the young man was donning his evening suit preparatory to keeping a social engagement he ran his hand into his pocket and was surprised to find an envelope there. On opening it he discovered $25 in bills. "Now, where in thunder did I take on all this money?" he said. "It isn't mine, for I never carry my bills around in an envelope." Then he sat down to think where he had worn the suit and how he had come by the $25. "The last place I wore it," he mused finally, "was when I was best man at a wedding a month ago. But I gave the minister his money. I remember distinctly giving him something, and it must have been his fee. If I didn't give him the money, what in the world did I give him?" He called up the clergyman by 'phone. "Do you mind telling me," he asked, "what I gave you for a fee at Black's wedding?" The answer came back very distinctly and cuttingly. "Young man, you gave me a box of vile-smelling cigarettes."

At the Same Rate.

An elderly man walked leisurely into a drug store to have a prescription filled for some trifling complaint. Receiving from the druggist a little box of about a dozen pills, he was called upon to pay about three or four times what he thought he should. The money was paid without a murmur and in silence, but, stepping off a few feet from the counter, he slowly scanned every corner of the store, almost every shelf of it, and the salesman, supposing he wanted something else, asked what he could do for him, and the reply was: "No, you can do nothing, as I'm already done for; but I'll tell you this, I've many times passed this store, but never before have been inside and made a close survey, as I have now, and, sir, I estimate you have now on hand fully $1,000,000 in stock."

Appetites of Strangers.

A waiter who always endeavored to give the best possible service to his customers supplemented an order to the kitchen attendants with the request for "a little extra in each dish." "They don't ask me for an extra allowance," he said, "in fact, they didn't know enough to ask for it, but I could see that their appetites would be equal to the supply. That is because they are strangers here. Newcomers in any restaurant or boarding house always eat more than the old-timers. Everything has a new flavor and whets their appetites. It is nothing for customers who are just getting acquainted with a place to eat as if they had been starved for a month. As a matter of fact, they have fared quite well; it's the change that makes them so voracious."

Excellence and Greatness.

In art, as in all things, a certain nuance—an abyss—separates excellence from greatness. At the Trippenhausen in Amsterdam, if you see upon entering a great picture by a master whose name escapes me; it is excellent. You applaud. Turn around—that is the Night Watch, it is Rembrandt. You utter a cry. There is greatness. Excellence has vanished. You cannot even look again at the other painting. Greatness in arts is only obtained at the cost of a kind of adventure. The conquered ideal is the prize of audacity. He who risks nothing gets nothing. The genius is a hero.—From Victor Hugo's "Intellectual Autobiography."

Always the Politeness.

A Germantown woman was not long ago watching a workman as he put up new window fixtures in her house. "Don't you think that you have placed those fixtures too high?" asked she, having reference to the curtain rolls last put in place. The workman, a stolid German, made no reply, but continued to adjust the fixtures. "Didn't you hear my question?" demanded the lady of the house. "How dare you be so rude?" Whereupon the German gulped convulsively, and then replied in the gentlest of voices: "I hat my mouth full of schrews, und I could not speak till I swallow some!"—Harper's Weekly.

TOWNSEND WILL SUCCEED SMALLEY AS MAYOR

His Votes for McKinley and Roosevelt Make a Democrat the Unanimous Choice of the Republican Caucus in North Plainfield; the Democrats Filing Nomination Papers Previously.

PARTY LINES WIPED OUT AFTER YEARS OF STRIFE

Nichols and Woolston, Republicans, and Krewson and Ludlow, Democrats, Named for Council—Brown and Tapscott Rival Candidates for Collector—Lutkins Versus Emmons for Freeholder

—Cooley Renamed for Assessor.

Accepting his own party nomination for mayor in a communication to County Committeeman Walter Linbarger, Samuel Townsend, who was later named by the Republicans as their candidate for the mayoralty at a mass meeting Thursday, now heads both tickets as the single nominee of the two parties in North Plainfield. Because of his support of the party ticket on State and county elections, the Democrats claim the school commissioner as their own.

Despite the fact that a mass-meeting of the borough Democrats was talked up on the street yesterday, the borough school, where all good Democrats were to meet to make up the party slate, was dark last night, and those assembled found it locked with barred doors when they appeared at 8 o'clock. And there was no need of a mass meeting. Once again in the history of borough politics, the Linbarger faction stole the march on the party and the borough Democratic state, with signed acceptances of the candidates, was filed with Borough Clerk Frank W. Stowley yesterday afternoon, by Linbarger himself.

Contrary to the general expectation, John C. Osgood's name does not appear on the slate as nominee for councilman. Heartily endorsed by Mr. Townsend and Mr. Saunders, he is not mentioned on the ticket. Instead, William H. Ludlow, of Dover street, a first district man, is nominated, and Councilman Frank Krewson, from the Second district, is renominated for office. Howard B. Tapscott, of the First district, is the party candidate for tax collector, and John Emmons is named for freeholder. David B. Smalley is renominated for justice of the peace.

William L. Saunders, of the First district, and Samuel S. Swackhamer, of the Second district, are the party's candidates for delegates to the State convention; John T. Chase and William S. Kiely, from the First district, and Frank Mobus and David Bodine, from the Second district, are to be on the party ticket as delegates to the county convention. Robert Trewin is the First district candidate for executive committeeman, and Walter C. Linbarger's name appears as the candidate from the Second district.

There was considerable excitement among the other faction of the borough Democrats on Somerset street when the school was found locked and dark by those who came out to make the slate. When seen by a Daily Press reporter, Walter C. Linbarger said that as a member of the committee he had heard of no call being issued for a mass meeting. "If such a call was issued," he said, "it was unofficial, for the slate is already made and, in accordance with law, the candidates' signatures have been secured and the complete ticket filed with the borough clerk in the afternoon."

Responding to a formal call issued by Mayor Smalley, borough Republicans met in Saengerbund Hall, Thursday, and named their ticket for the coming election. Samuel Townsend, who has also been picked by the Democrats, was nominated for mayor without a dissenting voice and the remainder of the slate was fixed up as follows: Councilmen—First district, Charles L. Nichols; Second district, L. B. Woolston; tax collector, George F. Brown; assessor, Dr. Justus H. Cooley; freeholder, Captain William C. Smith; constable, Lemuel Pope; delegates to county convention—First district, Thomas Doud, I. P. Runyon, B. A. Hegeman, N. B. Smalley; Second district, James K. Arnold, B. R. Waldron, W. F. Williams, Captain W. C. Smith; delegates to State convention, J. J. Stahl, Charles A. Reed, L. B. Woolston and Edmund Rushmore.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Smalley and he was made chairman and James K. Arnold secretary. The attendance was small in comparison to that of previous years and the fact was commented upon by the chairman in the course of his remarks. In his preliminary address the mayor stated that the Republicans should get together, name a candidate and elect him, but that he himself was not in line to return to the office.

"I regret the fact," he said, "that I do not know of a man to present and if there is anyone here who has a likely candidate, place his name before the meeting and we'll elect him over. There is a man, however, who has been affiliated more or less with the Republicans in the past although he is looked upon as a Democrat and I am going to mention his name—Samuel Townsend. I understand he's voted the Republican ticket frequently but he wont harm us if he turns out to be a Democrat. I am simply presenting his name and it remains for this gathering to act as it sees fit."

The Mayor then dwelt upon the other offices to be filled and the importance of selecting good men, stating the sewer and other problems confronting the borough would call for the services of competent officials. He mentioned Mr. Nichols and Mr. Woolston for the Council, Mr. Brown to succeed himself and Dr. Cooley as assessor. He declared those now in office had been rendering valuable service and it was no more than proper that they should be retained.

Referring to the freeholder nomination, the Mayor stated that North Plainfield is not represented on the Board by a Republican at present, the incumbent being a Democrat elected on the Citizens' ticket. The place, he said, should be taken by a Republican.

When the Mayor had concluded, the mayoralty question was taken up and several present spoke in favor of Mr. Townsend. L. B. Woolston remarked that he did not know what his politics are but it was a pretty hard matter to tell anyone's in the borough as so much free-lancing had been done. W. F. Williams and Dr. Cooley spoke for Mr. Townsend and the mayor stated he had received a telegram from Charles W. McCutcheon, Henry McGee and W. J. Buttfield endorsing his name. Mr. Townsend was then placed in nomination by W. F. Williams and he was the unanimous choice.

"With six good Republicans surrounding him at the end of his term," the Mayor remarked, "he'll come pretty near owning him. I'll say now that it affords me great satisfaction to know that after eight years of scrapping both parties have united on one man.

In referring to the selection of delegates to the county convention, the Mayor announced that candidates for sheriff, surrogate and assemblyman would be named. He spoke in favor of naming the present assemblyman, W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, and asserted that the office of surrogate should come to the borough.

"It is due North Plainfield this year," he said, "and when we name the man Somerset county should elect him. We pay the most of the taxes and are entitled to recognition. We have a town full of men who are capable of filling the office and I take this opportunity of mentioning Charles M. Dolliver for the place. He ran for it once before and is fully qualified."

Before adjournment was taken, the Mayor spoke for a short time on the need of the Republicans getting out and working for the election of the entire ticket. Mr. Townsend wouldn't hurt it, he said, and the opposite party could be beaten easily if everybody went to work. He also remarked that the holding of caucuses at such an early date is a mistake as many men interested are unable to attend because of being away on vacations.

Captain Smith, who was named last night with Andrew Lutkins as candidate for Freeholder, refused to accept the nomination to the ticket. Charles L. Pope, of Summit avenue, has been put up as candidate with Mr. Lutkins.

COUNTERFEIT BILLS.

The Check Letter Test on United States Currency.

The United States Government prints its currency and numbers its bills in a series of four, so that every piece of paper money turned out bears one of the check letters—A, B, C, D. The position of these letters is found in two places on all United States bills, in the upper left hand corner and in the lower right hand corner. The placing of the letter on the bill is not determined by the number of the bill. The rule is to divide the last two figures of the note by four. Should the remainder be one, the check letter must be A; should it be two, the check letter is B; three, the check letter is C, and nothing, the letter is D.

For example, I have before me a five dollar certificate. Its number is 81489736. The terminal number is 36. Divide by four. The result is seven with two over. The check letter is B.

Here is a yellow back and a gold certificate with twenty-three as its terminal number. Divide this by four, and we have five with three over. C is the check letter.

Should this rule of four fail to work on any United States currency note you may bet all you have that the money is bad. Some counterfeited bills are right to their check letters, but a great many are not so if the rule of four works the bill may be still bad, but if it fails it is surely bad. This rule applies only to United States currency and not to national bank notes.—Minneapolis Journal.

WIFE, 16, WINS SUIT OVER HUSBAND, 55

EVIDENCE IN DIVORCE SUIT OF REPEATED CRUEL TREATMENT.

Vice Chancellor Howell filed Thursday a decision granting a limited divorce to Florence Boyle, sixteen years old, wife of John Boyle, who is fifty-five years old. In her suit the wife alleged cruel treatment. Boyle has a saloon in Newark and his wife lives with her mother in Hoboken. The case was tried last month.

The wife's appearance on the witness stand created a sensation, as she seemed to be a mere school girl. She is comely, but very slight and delicate and afforded a startling contrast to her husband, who is heavy in build. He testified that he married the complainant while intoxicated and that he did not want her as a wife.

Mrs. Boyle and her witnesses testified that she married the defendant July 25, 1906, when she was hardly fifteen years old. She declared that the ceremony was performed after an ardent courtship, that her husband was perfectly sober when the marriage was performed and conducted himself decently for some time after.

Three months later, or early last October, she testified, the defendant began to drink heavily and to submit her to cruel treatment and cruelty. Several of her women witnesses testified to having seen her body covered with black and blue marks, received, she avers, from kicks administered by her husband.

The wife testified that on the occasion of her sixteenth birthday, last April, her husband celebrated the event by heavy drinking, forcing her to sleep on the floor, where he repeatedly trampled on her, knocking her down each time she attempted to arise.

In his decision the Vice Chancellor says that although the husband's witnesses denied the charges of brutality, he was forced to believe the evidence was conclusive of deliberate and natural cruelty. Continuing, the Vice Chancellor says:

"I have not thought it necessary to recite the whole of the evidence of cruelty. There were times, apparently, when the wife was treated well enough, perhaps; but I don't think that this weak, nervous, anaemic child (see evidence of Dr. Crane) should be compelled to undergo, at the peril of her life, the kind of treatment that she has already received, and would be likely to receive in the future if she continued to live with her husband."

The Vice Chancellor directs that pending a hearing to determine the extent of the husband's resources, he be compelled to continue the payment of $8 a week for his wife's support.

CAN'T MAKE CITIZENS FOR POLITICAL PURPOSES.

Demonstrated in Somerset Court Yesterday That It Can No Longer Be Done.

Somerset county at Somerville yesterday experienced the first salutary effects of the enforcement of the new naturalization law. Special Assistant United States Attorney William S. Gregg, of Philadelphia, demonstrated before a large audience in the Somerset court yesterday morning that the practise of naturalizing foreign subjects with a limited knowledge of the English language and the Constitution of the United States is a thing of the past.

Heretofore it has been the practise to naturalize foreigners of the "undesirable citizen" class in bunches, just before the fall elections. Two applicants of the more intelligent class of Italians were put forward yesterday morning as a feeler under the new law. Attorney Gregg subjected both of them to a rigid examination.

John Cieri, a tailor, who qualified in all other respects, was rejected because he had no knowledge of the constitution, and declared that Somerville was the capital of New Jersey. Cieri will be given an opportunity to study up before he is again examined on October 6.

Davino Corsi, an educated Italian, of Cocks Hill, who claims to have lived in the United States for twenty-five years and has a shoemaker shop, had a hard time to obtain his naturalization papers, because he was shy of witnesses who had known him for five years continuously. Attorney Gregg made a strong point of discovering whether the Italians were members of secret societies or had Anarchistic tendencies.

RETURNS MUST BE IN ON RIGHT TIME

OR UNION COUNTY BOARD WILL PROSECUTE ELECTION OFFICERS.

The Union County Board of Elections has determined to do away, if possible, with the delay that has always accompanied the filing of election and registry returns after elections, and declares that it will prosecute to the full extent of the law these election officers who are derelict in the performance of their duties. According to the election laws of this year, an officer who fails to make the proper return may be fined $100 for failure to return either registry or election returns. In some instances in past years officers have been so careless as to throw away registry lists after the election, thinking them useless—a direct defiance of the law that would greatly embarrass the board in case of a contest.

To awaken the officers to the necessity of making prompt returns after election the board has prepared the following circular to be mailed to each officer in the county:

"The attention of all members of the district boards of registry and election is called to sections 96, 97 and 98 of the election laws, year 1907, which sections refer to the filing of returns after elections.

"In the past few years many election officers have been very careless and dilatory causing a great deal of trouble to those whose duty it is to canvass and canvass the returns and also caused the county considerable expense.

"The County Board of Elections now gives notice to all election officers who may be derelict in the performance of their duty as provided by the above mentioned laws, that they will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

"Attention is also called to sections 22 and 24 of the election laws of 1907, which provide for the filing of copies of registry lists with the County Board of Elections."

With less than a dozen exceptions all election officers in Union county have filed answers to the questions put by the board as required by law, displaying a promptness often lacking in past years. There are ten officers who have as yet failed to file answers and if these are delayed much longer the board threatens to make other appointments. The law sets a date before which answers should have been filed, but it has never been enforced and the matter of making other appointments is left to the discretion of the board.

EARLY REVIEW OF THE NEW TAX ACT

LAWYERS FOR RAILROADS TO FILE WRITS OF ERROR SOON.

It is expected that at its November term the Court of Errors and Appeals will review the recent decision of the Supreme Court, handed down by Justice Pitney and Fort, upholding the constitutionality of the Perkins railroad tax act.

Railroad attorneys have already prepared writs of error, and are said to be about to file them, in order that the Court of Errors and Appeals at the November term may review the decision.

Although none of the legal representatives of the railroads concerned were willing to discuss the plan of action for publication, before the filing of the writs, it was learned yesterday that it will be claimed that the decision of Justices Fort and Pitney is contrary to the equal taxation clause of the New Jersey State constitution, which provides that taxes shall be assessed by general laws and at uniform rates, and also to the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which forbids the taking of property without due process of law, and prohibits legislation which shall "deny to any citizen or corporation the equal protection of the laws."

In case of an adverse decision in the highest court of the State it is said the suits will be carried to the United States Supreme Court.

DUNELLEN JAIL DELIVERY

Five Prisoners, Charged With Stealing, Succeed in Making their Escape.

CAPTURED AT HANGOUT

Arrested As Members of a Gang that Has Been Committing Thefts Along the Central Railroad.

Forcing open two cells, five prisoners escaped Thursday from the Dunellen jail. The delivery was clean and complete, the quintet working without interruption and getting away without leaving a trail for the authorities to follow.

The prisoners were captured Thursday afternoon by Chief Marshal Owen Mohan, of Dunellen, at the Greenbrook tanks. They are said to be members of a gang that has been committing thefts along the Central Railroad for some time. Mohan, who works on the road, was asked to run them down, and he had been on the watch for them for a week or more. The Dunellen authorities, as well as the railroad, were interested in the chase, because the hobo hangout at the Greenbrook tanks, where the gang and kindred characters made their headquarters, had begun to be the scene of almost daily fights and carouses. There was a row among the hoboes there on Tuesday night, in which revolvers figured, that determined Mohan to end matters speedily.

He kept close watch on the hangout, and yesterday afternoon, when he learned that members of the gang in which Mohan had local officers were looking were at the camp he acted without delay. He took five prisoners from the hangout, at the point of his revolver.

Mohan put two of the prisoners in one cell, and three in another. The third cell was full, and Mohan left vacant, because he expected to round up more of the hoboes.

The two cells were vacant Friday morning. From the signs left it appeared that the delivery started in the cell where three of the prisoners were confined. Using their combined strength, with their feet braced against the steel door, they forced a cross bar at the top of the door sufficiently to enable the slenderest of them to get out. He helped the others, and made their way from the jail, and the three of them forced open the door of the cell where their two companions were. Their work was unheard, and the five forced their way unmolested to the yard. It is supposed they completed their escape in the night.

The prisoners all come from Elizabethport. They range in years from eighteen to twenty-five. They are said to be part of the Dutch Idea gang, and one of them is wanted in Elizabeth for burglary. A reward is offered for his capture. The Central railroad police were appraised of the escape and are helping in the search for the quintet.

CATERING TO THE CONGREGATION.

On the Sunday after Senator Pettus died a stranger in New York who attended service at a west side church was surprised to hear a sermon that was little short of a funeral oration in honor of the dead statesman.

"That is the custom in this church," a regular parishioner explained. "It is visited by more out-of-town people than any other church in New York. Every State in the Union is represented every Sunday in the year, therefore whenever a prominent man in any other part of the country dies the pastor turns his talk for the following Sunday into a kind of funeral sermon for the benefit of the worshippers from that particular State."

Hinchliffe Declines to Run.

State Senator John Hinchliffe stated positively yesterday that he would not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor this fall. He has just recovered from a serious attack of typhoid fever, and says that all his spare time in the near future will be devoted to recovering perfect health. It is understood, however, that the Passaic county delegates to the Democratic State convention will name Hinchliffe as their first choice.

Canocists' Novel Trip.

Charles S. Edgcumbe and Harold C. Chapman, of Jersey City, members of the Palisade Canoe Club, are camping at Schrimp's Mills for a few days after a canoeing trip from Jersey City. They left home Thursday, going down Newark bay, through the Kill von Kull to New York bay, thence through The Narrows to the ocean, along the south shore of Staten Island to Ward's Point, where they camped for the night. They resumed the trip yesterday, paddling across Raritan bay to the Raritan river, proceeding up the stream to Bound Brook and then along Green Brook to Schrimp's Mills. The trip is an unusual one for canoeists and the young men will return home by almost the same route.

Gambling in Church.

The mania for gambling will out, no matter how carefully hedged about by the law. *Here is an illus*tration: "It took a conversation I overheard at the close of the church service last Sunday also to bring me to a realization of the virulence of the betting fever," said a Harlem woman. "I actually heard two boys betting on the skill of the sexton in snuffing out the candles. One bet 25 cents that he would extinguish each candle at the first application of the snuffers, the other that he wouldn't. I had been watching the proceedings with the same thought in mind, but it never occurred to me to bet on the outcome." New York Tribune.

Best Attractions of Independent Houses Will be Here this Season.

AND ALL K. & E. SHOWS

Partial List of Fine Productions to Be Offered Local Theatre-Goers By Mr. Counihan.

The presentation of "Brown of Harvard" at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday night, marked the appearance at the local playhouse of the first of what is known in the amusement world as the "Independent" or Shubert attractions, hitherto not obtainable by the management. Because of the war which has existed between the booking magnates, Klaw & Erlanger and the Shuberts, the shows controlled by one concern could not appear in houses booked by the other but a truce was recently declared which permits an interchange in designated territory. Plainfield has been receiving only the Klaw & Erlanger, or "Syndicate" attractions, but is included in the new policy and hereafter will get all the productions the Independents put out.

This means the attractions appearing at the Lyric, Casino, Belasco and Lee Fields' theatres, controlled by the booking agents, got to mention the manager himself.. It is looked upon as one of the most important "one-night" stands in the country and is becoming as well known on Broadway as any in the East. This is due to the fact that Mr. Counihan has never let up in his progressive policy and has seen to it that the returns justified the recognition.

The bookings for the coming fall will make it a needless journey to go to New York for the best there is in the amusement line as the following partial list will show: September 7, Amelia Bingham, in her new play, "A Modern Lady Godiva;" 10, Alberts Gallatin in "Judith of the Plains;" 11, Marie Cahill in "Marry-ing Mary;" 12, Hap Ward in "Not Yet, But Soon;" 13, William Collier in "Caught in the Rain," which ran for a year in New York; 14, "The Red Feather;" 16, "The Lion and the Mouse;" 17, Adelaide Thurston in "Her Little Highness from Yonder;" 18, John Griffin in "Richard Third;" 21, DeWolf Hopper in "Happyland;" 23, Dave Lewis in "About Town;" 26, Al Leech in "Girls Will Be Girls;" 28, "The Gingerbread Man;" 30, William Hamilton Thomas Jefferson in "The Rivals;" October 1, Robert Mantell, who is already looked upon as Richard Mansfield's successor; 5, Max Figman in "The Man on the Box;" 12, Grace Cameron in "Little Dolly Dimples;" 14, Marie Manning in "Glorious Betsy;" 15, "Woodland;" 21, "The Earl and the Girl;" 22, Cole and Johnson; 23, "The Virginian;" 28, Nat Goodwin.

THUMPED AN EX-COP.

Beglowitz Tried to Help Patrolman McGinley, and Came to Grief.

James Hamilton, forty-six years old, and Thomas McHugh, thirty-one years, both machinists living at 22 West Second street, got into a fight on Richmond street, Saturday night. Somebody telephoned for the police, and Patrolman Arthur McGinley was sent up. He nabbed McHugh, but Hamilton ran off.

Former Special Officer Harry Beglowitz, who saw Hamilton escape, went after him. He caught up with the fugitive, and tried to arrest him. Hamilton is handy with his fists and knocked the ex-near-cop galley west. McGinley bagged him later, without any trouble. Sentence was suspended in both cases by Judge Runyon in the city court Monday morning.

Japanese Beer in India.

The demand for beer in India exceeds 11,000,000 gallons a year, with a tendency toward further increase. Of this quantity, 6,000,000 gallons are supplied by breweries in India, and 5,000,000 gallons imported from other countries, 93 per cent. being supplied by England, and only 7 per cent. by other countries. During 1905, 4,000,000 gallons of Japanese beer were imported into India, and the greater part of this amount was sold on trial in and about Calcutta, little being known about Japanese beer in the neighborhood of Bombay. The Japanese Consul points out in consideration that, as Indian merchants are beginning to direct their attention to Japanese trade, if Japanese beer were sent to India at low prices, selecting the best quality, it would be possible to extend the market of Japanese beer in India.

TRAINED TO FACE DEATH.

Much Care Taken in the Drilling of Cavalry Horses.

Cavalry chargers vary from 15 to 16 hands in height, and sharp rules have been laid down about their shape, action and treatment. There are regular schools where the raw four-legged recruit is trained, and his education embraces the fearless swimming of deep and wide rivers, where possibly the enemy have destroyed the bridges. It is extremely interesting to see a thousand four-legged recruits drawn up in a vast ring around the instructor, who opens the proceedings with a sharp shot from an army revolver, writes William G. Fitzgerald, in the Circle. The animals are taught to gallop fearlessly up to a line or square of infantry who are blazing away with their rifles, of course loaded only with blank cartridges. Lastly comes a charge upon batteries of quick-firing cannon. It is worth noting that, when smokeless powder came into general use, it was found that thousands of horses would bolt at the first whiff, flinching the smoke or guns using black powder balked and shied at the sinister flash and roar of cordite and melinite. There appears to be as much individuality among horses as among men. Some take the flash and report very quietly, and are passed on to more severe trials, while others rear and try to bolt in abject terror.

CHAOS IN A FERRY HOUSE.

Young Man Got Even with Crowd Which Pushed Him Aside.

A big crowd was waiting in the St. George ferry house, Staten Island, for the New York boat, all more or less bored with existence, when a young man came in and wandered idly about the room, saying that New York fare. He finally stopped in front of a penny-in-the-slot phonograph machine and dropped in a coin. A lively tune immediately started up. The crowd woke up and several loafers collected in front of the machine in order to enjoy the strains more thoroughly. More of the bored ones joined the collection till, to the surprise of the young man, he was elbowed out of the way and stood on the outside. He stared at the crowd in some resentment. Then a thought seemed to strike him. He fished up a bunch of change from his pockets and walking around the room, calmly proceeded to start every machine in the place going, including two banjo-picking machines and a device in which a needle was inserted in the place of gum. Then he quietly left the building, a picture of the sublime in magnanimity, the fox in acumen, the parrot in wit, the monkey in versatility, the ant in thrift, the spider in all that goes to make it a valued member of society. Briefly, man is more than a match for the brute. She vowed that, inspired by Algy, she made it up right off the wheel. At any rate, none of the other women present has as yet lauded it either in the ladies' home journals or "Heart to Heart Talks with Women," so may be she did. She is clever enough about other things, dear knows.

"Nothing Doing."

"Nothing doing!" Is that slang? I thought it was until last night, when I came upon the words in Dickens' "Dombey & Son." In chapter IV., old Sol Gills is explaining to his nephew Walter why the shop must be closed and the business abandoned. "You see, Walter," said he, "in truth this business is merely a habit with me. I am so accustomed to the habit that I could hardly live if I relinquished it; but there's nothing doing, nothing doing." So, you see, the phrase had its pathetic fitness half a century ago, and is not slang at all.—Watson's Weekly Jeffersonian.

Saved.

M. Jacques Bonhomme et sa femme were entertaining company of select friends. They had just got seated at table when Baptiste, the waiter, rushed into the room in a state of wild alarm, exclaiming: "Quick! a glass of wine." Everybody stared, but his wish was complied with, and Baptiste swallowed at one gulp a glass of wine poured out by the lady of the house, who inquired what was the matter with him. "Oh, madam, I am dreadfully upset. That glass of wine has done me good; it has brought me round. Only think! I have just had the misfortune to break your two large dessert dishes of Sevres porcelain."

Cargoes Worth a Fortune.

It might be supposed that the great ocean liners bring in the most valuable cargoes. They don't. The little steamers that ply between here and the mighty Amazon often bring the richest cargoes that reach the port. It is safe to say that $500,000 is the value of an average ocean liner's cargo. The steamship Graagense recently brought 4,200 chests of rubber. On a basis of $500 per case this alone was worth $2,184,500. This is outside the value of the skins, nuts and cocoa on board. Sometimes the ships bring egret plumes that are worth a fortune.

ONE OF WOMEN'S CHARMS

Sense of Reserve Said to Add Much to Attractiveness.

A woman, especially to be attractive, must preserve a sense of reserve; she must, so to speak, keep up a certain amount of mystery about herself. There is a folklore tale of a woman who, finding her domestic life unhappy, went to a white witch for a charm against the trouble. She received a flask filled with a colorless liquid, which she was directed to take and hold in her mouth whenever she was disposed to quarrel with her husband. She obeyed directions, and, delighted with the effect of the charm, went back to the witch for a fresh supply when that was exhausted. "The liquid was merely water," said the wise woman. "The virtue of the remedy consists simply in holding your tongue in keeping back angry answers." To adopt the rule, says Woman's Life, once given to a gushing girl by a friend who knew the world, "Never speak of yourself, and never say anything which is unasked for," would at first seem likely to make Trappists of all the world; yet it is to be questioned whether, after all, the advice was not wise. There always are people who like to talk, whose favor is to be won by interested listening, and good listeners are rare.

CHANCE FOR A HOME-RUN.

Schoolboy's Comment on Absence of Attraction of Gravitation.

A clever teacher, who has the power of calling out originality in her pupils, says that she would have no use for text books if she took time to answer all the startling questions asked in the class-room. One day the attraction of gravitation was under discussion, when one of the boys said that he didn't see any need of it, anyway. "It seems to me," said he, "there's no particular use in having the earth attract things. Now, when the apple fell, and made Newton think out the reason for it, that apple might just as well have stayed where it was until somebody gathered it." "You play ball, don't you?" asked the teacher. "Well, suppose you knock the ball very high, what happens?" "It falls." "But if there were no attraction towards the earth, it wouldn't fall. Don't you think that might prove inconvenient?" "My!" cried the boy; "what a bully chance for a home run!"

Joined the Dead at Their Meal.

In the medical press is a story of a man who believed that he was dead and who for that reason refused to take any nourishment. "How can the dead eat and drink?" he asked, when food was pressed upon him. It was obvious that unless something were done to bring him to his senses the delusion must soon become actuality; he would die of starvation. The strangest ruse was tried. Half a dozen attendants, draped in ghostly white, crept silently in single file into the room adjoining his, and, with the door open, sat down where he could see them to a hearty meal. "Here, who are these people?" inquired the patient. "Dead men," answered the doctor. "What!" said the other. "Do dead men eat?" "To be sure they do, as you see for yourself," was the answer. "Well," said the corpse, "if that is so, I'll join them, for I'm starving." The spell was broken, and he sat down and ate like 40 famished men.

Eating Stew Through Straws.

Doing as my Indian friends did, I seized in my turn a chunk of mutton from the kettle and proceeded to eat it. How I got on with eating the stew, however, I could not conceive, as licking one's fingers is a slow process and inadequately nourishing. On the floor table, however, was a pile of what looked like dark blue lead pencils. On investigation, I found that into the kettle and peacefully sucked until he was satisfied. It was simply sucking—not lemonade—but mutton stew, through a straw. Then he carefully proceeded to eat the straw. Sucking the stew through it had softened and flavored it for eating. I mastered the game at the first trial, writes Frederick Monsen in the Craftsman, and from that time was a devoted adherent to pibi bread, as well as to many other dishes and customs of my good friends, the Hopi.

What More Could Be Asked?

"On the way down here from up home I saw your advertisement in the paper," said "Ozzy" Hitchcock, as he entered the office of the New Notion company in his Sunday suit, his boots creaking at every step. "I'm here in the city to get work. I heard you said you're just the man we need now," and the clerk in charge surveyed his caller with an unflattering gaze. "You spoke of wanting a young man with a good address," said "Ozzy," in his loud, clear, district-school voice. "I guess Laneville, N. H., is as good as any you could find, and father has the only store in the place."—Youths' Companion.

Quality of Trustworthiness.

People would try harder for trustworthiness if they knew how lovable a quality it is. When you know you can rely upon anyone, that whatever they undertake to do will be done, that you can really pass over a share of your load to them, you cannot help liking them. On the other hand, it does not matter how amiable men be, if they are forgetful, if they are unpunctual, if they habitually neglect, they become sources of such annoyance that one's liking is apt to die out.—W. R. Nicoll.

OLDEST BANK IN THE WORLD.

One at Nineveh Seems to Be Entitled to the Distinction.

There was a kind of public record office attached to the palace and temple at Nineveh, in which it was customary to deposit important legal and other documents, such as contracts and agreements for the purchase and sale of property, marriage settlements, wills, etc. Among these there were discovered official statements as to the history and transactions of the eminent banking house of Egibu at Nineveh. Assyrian chronology proves that these refer to a date about 3,300 years before the Christian era, when Abraham dwelt at Ur of the Chaldees, as is stated in Genesis. We may, therefore, claim for this firm the reputation of being the oldest bank in the world, at least, of which we have any record, or are likely to have. The accounts are very voluminous, and cover the transactions of five generations of the house from father to son. The firm grew rapidly in importance during this period, during which they attained great wealth; for they had succeeded in securing from the king the appointment of collectors of taxes, a position which in the east always leads to fortune. They afterwards framed the revenue for several of the Assyrian provinces, with very great gain to the firm.

HAND GRENADES OF 1812.

Old Time Ordnance Found at Fort McHenry—How They Were Used.

While examining the contents of the ordnance storehouse at Fort McHenry Lieut. J. L. Holcombe, of the One Hundred and Twenty-eighth coast artillery discovered several boxes of old hand grenades which are supposed to be more than a hundred years old, says the Baltimore American. The missiles are of the earliest make used by the United States government, and were probably placed at the historic old fort when it was first erected in 1812. Owing to the way in which they were packed the grenades had only the slightest trace of rust upon them. The discovery of the weapons recalls a bit of the ancient history of the country. In explaining their use Lieut. Holcombe said that the grenades were handled only by the gunners of the ship, who, walking out upon the yardarms of the old fashioned fighting vessels threw them into the ranks of the enemy. An explosion followed which created havoc. They were about four pounds in weight and shaped after the fashion of the bombs used by anarchists, and are iron and loaded with gunpowder.

A Great City Is a Great Solitude.

But little do men perceive what solitude is, and how great a solitude; for a crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures, and talk but a tinkling cymbal, where there is no love. The Latin adage meeteth it a little: magna civitas, magna solicrept silently in single file into the room adjoining his, and, with the door open, sat down where he could see them to a hearty meal. "Here, who are these people?" inquired the patient. "Dead men," answered the doctor. "What!" said the other. "Do dead men eat?" "To be sure they do, as you see for yourself," was the answer. "Well," said the corpse, "if that is so, I'll join them, for I'm starving." The spell was broken, and he sat down and ate like 40 famished men.

A Hopping Match.

A match for hops for ten guineas, took place at Loughborough, Leicestershire, between James Shipley, of Nottingham, and a person named Moore, of Leicester. It was very closely contested, so much so that bets of four to one were laid and taken on each side. The match, however, was won by Shipley. On measuring the distance it appeared that Shipley had hopped 75 yards nine or ten inches and Moore something more than 75 yards. The latter was to have run against Shipley on the same day, 140 yards for 40 guineas, but declined, and in consequence forfeited his deposit.—From an English Sporting Magazine of 1807.

Stanley's Cat.

It is a good story of Henry M. Stanley, after his return from Africa, when writing his "Dark Continent." He used to spread his reference maps on the floor of his room, and one day, after searching for a map which he much needed, he spoke to his assistant, who found him on the floor, with Stanley's cat on it asleep. He started to turn the cat off, when Stanley said: "Never mind—don't disturb the cat. I'll get along without the map until the cat wakes up." And sure enough he did not until she rose and the famous explorer reach for his map.

Wit.

A witty man is a dramatic performer; in process of time he can no more exist without applause than he can exist without air; for his audience be small, or if they are inattentive, or if a new wit defrauds him of any portion of his admiration, it is all over with him—he sickens and is extinguished. The applause of the theater, to which performs is so essential to him that he must obtain it at the expense of decency, friendship and good feeling.—Sydney Smith.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

FATEFUL MORNING AFTER

Martine Boom Melted to Nothing As He Slept in Trenton Hotel.

EGENOLF WIELDS KNIFE

Union County State Committeeman Starts the Stampede from Plainfielder.

Philosophic as usual, showing no bitterness in his disappointment, James E. Martine returned shortly after 6 o'clock last night from the scene of the unkindest blow that the political fates have ever dealt him. He left at Trenton the grave of the most alluring, the most promising hope of his whole political career.

The end of that hope came so suddenly, its annihilation was so complete, that only a Jim Martine could have met the reverse without losing stunned and embittered. When he went to bed at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, Trenton echoed with the name and the nomination for Governor was in his grasp. When he arose four hours later Katzenbach was on everybody's lips, and the shouts for Martine sank to murmurs of sympathy. By 10 o'clock the streets and hotel corridors were thronged with Katzenbach enthusiasm, and Martine saw his fate working relentlessly out. When the convention met it resolved itself into a Katzenbach ratification meeting. The "Martine boom" so overpowering the fateful night before, took on the shrinking appearance of a complimentary vote.

Of the 1,274 votes in the convention, Martine polled only 104½, that half-vote was the only ballot from the Essex delegation, which had been so dramatically "turned over" to Martine the night before, that came to the Plainfielder. Morris county gave him 23 of its 43 votes, and one came from Hunterdon. Kalzenbach got 999½. There came the avalanche for the Katzenbach bandwagon. All the favorite sons—Congressman William Hughes, put forward by Bergen; Senator George Silzer, of Middlesex; Senator Hinchcliffe, of Passaic; former Senator Garret S. Wilds, of Somerset—were shoved aside, and the votes transferred to the victor. Even Martine's name was withdrawn, and Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, became the unanimous candidate of the Democratic State convention on early ballot.

The original Katzenbach vote was as follows: Atlantic, 43 votes; Bergen, 69; Burlington, 42; Camden, 100; Cape May, 19; Cumberland, 31; Essex, 185½; Gloucester, 21½; Hudson, 235; Hunterdon, 23; Mercer, 67; Middlesex, 49; Monmouth, 61; Morris, 10; Ocean, 24; Salem, 18; Somerset, 27; Sussex, 27; Warren, 28.

It is not customary for candidates before the convention to watch the delegates at work. Martine was at the Sterling while the convention sat, and Katzenbach remained in his room at the Trenton House. Both learned the result of the balloting as soon as it was accomplished. After the convention the successful candidate was surrounded by congratulatory friends and delegates. He held a levee for an hour or more. Martine's congratulations were conveyed to him.

The dominant characteristic of the convention were confidence and deep earnestness of purpose. When the State chairman, Robert S. Hudspeth, called the convention to order at half-past twelve o'clock he looked into the faces of as intelligent, sincere and hopeful a body of Democrats as ever assembled in Taylor's Opera House, where the State gatherings of both parties have been held for forty years.

Not since Chancellor McGill was defeated for Governor by John W. Griggs, more than a decade ago, has the party come together to select a Gubernatorial standard bearer in such a happy and confident frame of mind. To the gathered representatives of New Jersey Democracy, from Sussex to Cape May, the very air seemed surcharged with the portents of coming victory. The spirit of the convention reflected this feeling. It was bubbling over with enthusiasm and roared and cheered at the slightest invocation.

After the work had been finished and the great gathering had poured into the streets the delegates shook hands with and congratulated one another on the auspicious character of the work that had been done. The candidate nominated and the platform adopted seemed to give universal satisfaction and were hailed as presaging almost certain victory at the polls.

With the convention out of the way, Martine and his friends had time to give thought to "What did it?". Martine laid the biggest share of the blame—practically all of it—on the action of Peter Egenolf, the Union county state committeeman,

REFER THE UTILITIES BILL

Senate Adjourns After Receiving Act Providing for Corporation Supervision.

MEASURE'S SYNOPSIS

Six Commissioners Will Have Full Power to Probe All Alleged Wrongs.

Members of the Senate and House met at Trenton yesterday, but out of deference to the Democratic members who desired to attend the convention of their party an adjournment was taken, but yesterday afternoon the long looked for public utilities bill was introduced in the Senate. Following this the Senators went home until next Wednesday. The bill provides for the appointment by the Governor of six commissioners, men of more than 30 years of age, to serve for terms of six years each, at $5,000 per annum.

There are also to be two inspectors, one a civil engineer and the other a mechanical or electrical engineer. These men must hold no other State office and must own no stock in the corporations under their jurisdiction. The total expenses of the commission, including clerical help, must not exceed $10,000 per year.

Supervision is given over all gas, electric light, heat, power, water, telegraph, telephone, street railway, pipe lines, etc. Power is given to compel witnesses at investigations, and the giving of false information is made a misdemeanor. For refusal to testify a witness may be sent to jail. The commission is also to inquire into the matter of rebates and transportation charges, and to make reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The act empowers the commission, whenever an accident shall occur upon any property owned, operated or controlled by any corporation subject to the act, to investigate the cause of the accident and to meet in the locality kwhere the accident occurred. Every corporation is bound to give notice of any accident.

Further, the commission is required to inquire into the construction and operation of all corporations coming under the act and to examine complaints touching rates, rebates, charges or demands for services rendered, and all discriminations in service rendered in the transportation of personal property or otherwise. The commission is authorized to make recommendations of writing to any corporation touching the improvement of its service and the betterment of its conditions and affairs.

No corporation subject to the act shall issue any stock or bonds, merge or consolidate, sell, transfer or lease its franchise or contract for use of same, except upon the approval of the commission.

Any corporation subject to the act violating its charter provisions or general laws of the State or any order of this commission may be proceeded against in the Court of Chancery, on a bill filed in the name of the commission by the attorney general for an injunction and adequate relief from said court. Violations to be reported to the attorney general within thirty days after information by the commission.

UNION REPUBLICANS MEET.

Complete Plans for Attending State Convention.

The Union county Republican executive committee held a meeting at its headquarters at Elizabeth Monday night. County Chairman Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, presided, and said arrangements were completed for attending the State convention at Trenton on Thursday.

Postmaster A. M. Jones, of Summit, resigned as a member of the committee, and recommended that Seaman Williams, of Summit, be elected in his place. Short speeches were made by former County Chairman Hamilton Fish Kean and by John W. Clift eulogizing the good wodk of Committeeman Jones and advocating earnest labor toward the election of the county and State tickets.

Senators at Convention.

Among the interested spectators at the Democratic State convention at Trenton yesterday were State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, and State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county. "Uncle Joe," the friend of the farmers, sat on the stage away in the rear.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Walter Scott and family desire to thank the directors of the City National Bank and their other friends for the beautiful memorial floral gifts.

W. S. ANGLEMAN CHAIRMAN

Lawyer Chosen As Head of Republican City Committee to Succeed E. E. Iremonger.

BY A UNANIMOUS VOTE

County Chairman F. H. Smith Declines Place—Selection a Popular One.

Winfield Scott Angleman, one of the brightest lawyers in Union county, was elected chairman of the Republican city committee last night at a meeting held at the Casino. His selection was unanimous, showing the esteem in which he is held by the party workers, generally. He succeeds Edward E. Iremonger, the efficient chairman, who resigned after being slighted by the Colbyite powers in his own ward. He will take office immediately.

Mr. Angleman's selection was made after County Chairman Frank H. Smith and Factory Inspector Andrew McCardell and declined to allow their names to be used in connection with the office. Mr. Smith was strongly urged last night to accept the position, but he declared that his time was fully occupied with his duties as county chairman. He had held the office before, being the predecessor of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who was succeeded by Mr. Angleman.

The choice of Mr. Angleman is a happy selection, and it is believed that it will meet with general approval. He has been a member of the committee from the Fourth Ward for many years, and has always been a hard worker for his party. He is prominent in the Jr. O. U. A. M. and other fraternities. His name was suggested by Factory Inspector McCardell and met with favorable response.

FREEHOLDER FIGHT INTERESTS SOMERSET

PRE-ELECTION SITUATION IN NEIGHBORING COUNTY.

Just what the political complexion of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders will be after the coming election in November is now pretty much a matter of a conjecture. The board is at present comprised of six Republicans and five Democrats, and the latter have a chance to get a majority of the members, but it is not generally believed they will be able to do so. It is quite probable that the board will be divided the same politically as it is now, and though the Republicans elect their candidate in North Plainfield borough they may gain one on the whole county.

Bedminster, Branchburg and Hillsborough townships and North Plainfield borough elect Freeholders this fall, and each of these municipalities a hot fight is being waged. In Bedminster, which is usually in the Democratic column, William C. Paulson is the Democratic candidate, and George Crater has been nominated by the Republicans.

In Branchburg township Henry W. Baird, the present director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, is the candidate of the Republican party, and the Democrats have not placed any one in the field in opposition to him. He is sure of re-election.

There is a hot fight on in Hillsborough township between Richard W. Heagland, the present member of the board, who is a Republican, and is seeking re-election, and John S. Everett, who has been placed in the field by the Democrats. Mr. Everett was formerly a member of the board.

In North Plainfield borough John Emmons, Democrat, wishes to be re-elected. He is opposed for membership on the board by Andrew Lutkins, Republican, who was a freeholder not so many years ago.

Will Entertain Machinists.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus McKechnie, of Plainfield avenue, are parents of twins, a boy and girl, born to them Sunday morning. Each weigh nine pounds. In honor of the event, Mr. McKechnie, who is financial secretary of the local branch of the International Association of Machinists, will entertain the members on Monday night.

John Callahan, of Allentown.

Investigation of a rumor in circulation yesterday to the effect that John Callahan, of Richmond street, was fatally injured at the Allentown Fair proved to be another Callahan, of Allentown. Mr. Callahan of this city, did not attend the fair.

LANDSCAPE ARTIST WEDS

Jonas Lie Takes Beautiful Norwegian Young Woman As His Bride.

AT A QUIET CEREMONY

Marriage Takes Place at All Souls' Church, Rev. A. C. Nickerson Officiating—To Reside Here.

Miss Charlotte Egede Nissen, daughter of Dr. Oscar Nissen, of Christiana, Norway, and Jonas Lie, of Plainfield, formerly of Christiana, were married at 8:30 o'clock last night at All Souls' Unitarian church, Rev. A. C. Nickerson, the pastor, officiating. The affair was void of any ostentation, the bride and groom being unattended; neither were there any ushers. However, it was one of the prettiest of weddings and was the second to take place in this church.

The church was beautifully decorated with the season's flowers, being banked about the pulpit platform. The prevailing colors were green and white and combined to make an effective arrangement.

The bride was richly gowned in white silk, embroidered with white rosse, princess style. She wore a tulle veil, caught up with white roses and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses.

Stephen Haff, the organist of the church, rendered a program of unusual interest. The selections were chiefly those of Norwegian composers, and included several that were dedicated to the mother of the bride, who herself was celebrated throughout Norway and many other European countries as a brilliant pianist.

The invitation list was limited to a very few intimate friends of the couple, and the affair was extremely informal. Previous to the ceremony Mr. Lee received his guests, and afterwards he and Mrs. Lee were the recipients of the congratulations of their friends. An informal reception followed at the studio of Mr. Lie, where for the present the couple will make their home. The bride received many costly gifts, and both she and Mr. Lie were generously remembered with congratulatory messages from abroad, as well as many relatives and friends in this country.

The wedding is the culmination of a pretty romance which had its beginning in the Norwegian mountains during the summer of 1906, where the couple were two of a party which spent fourteen days traveling on foot among the mountains.

Dr. Oscar Nissen, father of the bride, is one of the best known physicians in Christiana, and her mother, who died two years ago, was famed throughout Norway as a pianist.

The bride possesses exceptional beauty and isaccomplished. She is interested exceedingly in Mr. Lie's work as an artist. He is undoubtedly one of the best known among the younger artists of this country. His paintings have been hung in nearly all of the prominent galleries of the country.

14 YEAR OLD DIES AFTER AN OPERATION

Miss Jean Dumont, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Dumont, of Prospect place, North Plainfield, died suddenly this morning following an operation for the removal of adenoids performed by Dr. G. W. Endicott, assisted by Drs. DuBois and Dr. D. C. Adams. The adenoids were successfully taken out, when the patient collapsed and died within an hour.

Miss Dumont had suffered considerably from the adenoids and because her physical condition was not strong enough to stand an operation, it was delayed until such time as in the opinion of the physician she could successfully pass through it. The heart action was good, but death was due to the stagnation of blood of the lymphatic. The physicians did all in their power to bring the patient out of the collapse, but all efforts failed. Announcements of the funeral will be made later.

Fifteen Years Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Corra Ryno, of Coddington avenue, have issued invitations for the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding, which will be formally observed at their home on Saturday night, September 28. Mr. Ryno is business manager of The Daily Press.

Not After Surrogateship.

Assistant Postmaster Abram A. Regen, of Somerville, announced today that he is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for surrogate of Somerset county.

MARTINE WELL SATISFIED

Bows Cheerfully to Will of Party, He Says After Convention.

WILL WORK FOR TICKET

Lays Defeat to Influence of the P. S. C. and Prudential High Finance Politicans, Through Peter Egenoff.

"I am satisfied," said James E. Martine to a Daily Press reporter after the convention at Trenton yesterday. He had known since early in the forenoon that the nomination would be Katzenbach's, and he had had time to think over the situation. "I am disappointed, yes; the change that met me this morning startled and surprised me, but I have grown used to bowing to the will of the majority, and now that the repre*sentatives of my party have made* their choice I cheerfully accept it.

"I will most certainly work for the ticket. I would have expected Mr. Katzenbach to do it for me, and I will do it for him. They need not come to me and ask for my assistance. I will go out and work in places where it probably could not get votes himself.

"What did it? Why, the Prudential and P. S. C. influence was at work, through that man Egenolf. Of course, they didn't want me. I have always called them a band of highwaymen, and I would have gone on regarding and treating them in that light, and they knew it. Oh, I am satisfied. I would not swap my independence for all the pelf they represent. I rejoice in being a free lance in politics.

"You may say this for me, that I feel richly compensated by the loyalty and fidelity shown by my friends. As for Egenolf, I will say that if ever a man owed me gratitude, he does. When he wanted to run for mayor of Elizabeth, he asked me to speak for him, and I did; I campaigned for him on the street corners, at the shop doors and wherever my voice and my convictions might do him good. He should, I think, have stood my friend."

PLANS APPROVED FOR ADDITION TO HOSPITAL

LAUNDRY TO BE BUILT WITH FUND BEQUEATHED INSTITUTION.

The executors of the estate of the late Mrs. Catherine E. Hegeman, which was settled in August last, will soon make the contemplated im*provements at Muhlenberg Hospital* a possibility. These improvements will be in the shape of a much-needed laundry, which will be complete in every detail. The plans, which was drawn by A. L. C. Marsh, have been approved by the estate and will be submitted at the next meeting of the Board of Governors for their approval. Afterwards bids will be asked for the work.

When Mrs. Hegeman died she bequeathed her estate to her husband, Benjamin A. Hegeman, Sr., and by reason of his death later, the estate was left in such a shape that Mrs. Hegeman's intended bequest to the hospital could not be carried out at the time. The executors have since been engaged in settling the estate, and knowing the wish of Mrs. Hegeman to assist the hospital, have arranged to give the institution a complete laundry. The estimated cost cannot be stated until the bids have been received and the contracts awarded, but it is known that it will be a substantial sum.

At Essex Court Opening.

Lawyer Harry C. Runyon, of the First National Bank building, attended the opening of the September term of the Essex Circuit Court at Newark yesterday. He has a case on the calendar. Mr. Runyon heard Chief Justice Gummére deliver a strong charge to the picked grand jury, of which some startling things are expected. Mr. Runyon's case will be taken over for the term. The principals in it are Newarkers.

REPUBLICANS ALL AT SEA

State Gubernatorial Convention Tomorrow But It's Hard to Pick a Winner.

FORT IS A FAVORITE

Lewis, Sommer and Pitney Are Also In Race—Talk As to Boom For Mayor Fisk.

Although less than twenty-four hours will elapse before the Republicans of New Jersey will select their candidate for Governor, the politicians are all at sea over the probable outcome. On the face of things, Justice J. Franklin Fort appears to have a strong lead, but there are many uncertain quantities at the eleventh hour. The selection of former Attorney General John W. Griggs as presiding officer and his candidacy for the State chairmanship leads some to believe that the leaders have picked Vivian Lewis, of Passaic county, where Lewis hails from. Justice Pitney has also a powerful following. Hudson is almost solid for Fort, while Essex county, it is believed by the Colbyites, will give a majority of its vote to Sheriff Frank H. Sommer.

Unless it is quite certain that a solid vote can be obtained in his favor it is said today that the Republican leaders will not urge that Mayor Charles J. Fisk be the choice of the Union county delegation for the Gubernatorial nomination at Trenton tomorrow. It is generally admitted that the delegates from Plainfield would be unanimous for him, but that there might be some division in the sentiment among the delegates from Elizabeth. In other sections of the county it is said that he would be a popular choice.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith *and a party of friends left this after*noon for Trenton to be on the scene early. Mayor Fisk is also expected to put in an appearance there before nightfall, but this morning he said it was doubtful if he could get there by that time. Tomorrow morning a large delegation of workers will board the Union county special when it stops here. A caucus will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning by the Union delegates, and at that time a vote will be taken on the choice for Governor.

Alden Freeman, this afternoon sent out two circulars referring to Justice J. Franklin Fort and Justice Mahlon Pitney. These circulars will be distributed at the Republican State convention tomorrow.

The circular on Judge Fort reiterates the charges that have been brought against him. The circular which refers to Justice Pitney consists of extracts from the will of the late George Richards, who was a politician in Morris county.

The Essex county New Idea delegates to the Republican State convention met in Newark last night and mapped out a program governing their action at tomorrow's session in Trenton. It was decided to fight hard to obtain the nomination of Frank H. Sommer for Governor. Members of the conference expressed themselves as being well satisfied with the outlook, declaring that they have 110 of the 236 Essex delegates pledged to support Sommer, and that they have assurances of help from Hudson, Morris, Middlesex, Passaic, Union and Bergen.

A "fighting committee" was named to urge New Idea principles on the State convention. This committee consists of William P. Martin, Frank H. Sommer, Judge Benjamin F. Jones, Herman B. Walker, Jerome Congleton and Senator Everett Colby. Senator Colby was selected to make the speech nominating Sommer.

Large Gathering of Friends at Seventh-Day Baptist Church to Witness Important Ceremony.

Miss Mary Alice St. John, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Valois St. John, of Division street, and Rev. Ell Loofboro, pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church, of Riverside, California, were married at 6.30 o'clock, Sept. 10 in the Seventh-Day Baptist church. Rev. George B. The bride was gowned in white silk, trimmed with lace and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses. She also wore a tulle veil. Her attendants were Miss Nellie St. John, her sister, as maid-of-honor, and Miss Mabel Rogers and Miss Mildred Greene, as bridesmaids. The best man was Dr. George Hardick, of Alfred, N. The bridal party entered the church, while the wedding march was being played on the organ by Miss Jessie Utter, the church organist. The ushers led the way, followed by the maid-of-honor and bridesmaids and then the bride, accompanied by her father, who gave her in marriage. The ceremony was performed with a ring.

An informal reception was held afterward at the home of the bride's parents, where a limited number of friends gathered to congratulate the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Loofboro left Sept. 10 for a wedding journey, which will include many points of interest. They will reach Riverside October 1.

The groom is a native of Wilton, Iowa. He was graduated from Milton college, Iowa, in the class of 1898 and from the theological seminary at Alfred, N. Y., class 1902. For a time he was pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church, New York, and was later called to the denomination's church at Riverside, Cal., where he has been ever since.

She was the recipient of a great many handsome gifts from relatives and friends.

SIX NORTH AMERICAN ARTI-

CLES TELL ABOUT ATHLETICS.

Probable American League Champions Subject of Notable Series.

In the most exciting race the American League ever saw the Athletics now look a sure winner. Until the end of the season they will be playing at home, while their rivals Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland, are batting on the opposing grounds.

Apparently it's all over, but the cheering, and everybody in this part of the country is discussing the Athletics and their famous manager, Connie Mack. The fans want to know all about the team, who the men are, where they came from, where they live, what their habits and peculiarities are.

The North American beginning Sunday, September 1, to publish a series of six articles, which will tell this whole story. They will be written by George M. Graham, sporting editor of the North American, who, having been with the team on the northern training trip, is familiar with every step by which the club was whipped into shape by Manager Mack and formed into the present invincible combination.

Every stage of this development will be covered, and there will be new stories about members of the team, which, with Eddie Waddell, Chief Bender, Topsy Hartsel, Rube Seybold and such celebrities, includes perhaps more famous baseball characters than any team in the country.

Walt Mcdougall, the North American's famous cartoonist, both, contribute a series of drawings which will illustrate the humorous side of the recital.

The articles will also be illustrated by photographs.

Order at once, and make sure that during the next six weeks you get every one of this series on the team that looks likely to bring Philadelphia its third pennant in seven years, and which, if victorious, will play the Chicago Nationals for the world's championship.

PERKINS CHEERFUL LOSER

Makes a Sprightly Speech Pledging Regularity After Convention Nominations.

PARROT EASY WINNER

King Gets Only 36 Votes—Perkins Got 29, Seven of Them From Plainfield.

With never a scratch to show that anybody had tried to mar its complete, the slate went through at the Republican County Convention, in Turn Hall, Elizabeth, Thursday afternoon. It was a quiet affair, an energetic handful of Perkins boosters alone rebelling in making the only show of enthusiasm. Quiet, but very satisfactory. Perkins went down to defeat with a smile on his face, and before the convention closed he cheerfully pledged himself to support the ticket, and was welcomed home. He got 27 votes—seven of them from Plainfield. Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, A. L. Kerstein, of Rahway, and Assemblyman Moxen, of Elizabeth, the assembly nominee, got a overwhelming vote on the first ballot. Pierce received 110, Moxen 126 and Kerstein 10. George T. Parrott was renominated for surrogate in the same easy fashion, Bejamin King, director of the Board of Freeholders, who sought the nomination, receiving only 36 of the 141 votes.

Dr. W. H. Donaldson, of Linden, was the only man who wanted the nomination for coroner. They gave it to him without delay.

The delegates settled down to business without loss of time, and did what they had to do swiftly and harmoniously. Former Judge W. R. Codington was as wise a chairman as could have been picked ,and contented himself with a brief, pat speech. After that he kept things moving.

Six candidates for the Assembly nominations were made. Besides the major figures in the contest, Charles H. Angleman, of Rahway, and Edward J. Woodling, or Cranford, were named. The latter was the candidate of former Assemblyman William Hall, of Cranford, who had been suspected of having something or other up his sleeve. Woodling got 25 votes, Angleman got 20. Charles N. Codding, who placed Perkins in nomination, made the motion to make the nominations unanimous, and it went through quickly.

In nominating Perkins, Mr. Codding made the best-turned speech of the day. Earnestly and eloquently he presented Perkins' claim to real greatness, basing it wholly on his legislative record and not at all on how many consecutive terms other men in other offices or other parts of the State may have had. Perkins, he said, had ability, honesty, industry and integrity, and his record at the capitol was one that had never been excelled.

The speech was cheered and applauded from the rear of the hall, where a group of Westfielders and other Perkins supporters were gathered. Perkins himself heard the speech and watched the voting from behind one of the rails that run down the sides of the hall.

The Perkins votes came from Elizabeth, where he got 4; Plainfield, 7; Westfield, 8; Rahway, 4; Cranford, 3; Clark, Linden and Garwood, 1 each. Six of the Plainfield votes came from the Second Ward and one from the Third. The Second Ward delegation gave Pierce 5 votes, Assemblyman 6 and Woodling 1. The Third gave Pierce 5 and Moxon and Kerstein 6. The First and Fourth voted solidly for the slate.

King got 5 of his 36 votes from Plainfield. Rahway voted solidly for him and Westfield gave him 5. "As soon as the roll had been called former Mayor Parker, of Rahway, who nominated him, offered a motion to make the nomination unanimous, without waiting for the announcement of the count.

After the nominations Chairman Codington appointed a committee to escort all the candidates before the convention, defeated as well as successful, to the platform. Of the defeated Perkins was the only one to come forward, but he was the one they wanted. He took his place with his debonair sprightliness unimpaired, and faced the delegates, after the candidates had had their say, with a good humored smile. The promise in the smile was caught on the delegates, and they responded with a burst of hand-clapping. The promise was carried out by the speech, and as he declared himself back in the ranks the delegates welcomed him with a cordiality that seemed to wipe out the bitterness of the campaign.

He was a Republican, Mr. Perkins said, and he was glad Union county was Republican. And he hoped to stand on the platform, to advance the cause of the party. All the world loved a fighter as it loved a lover. Let them all be fighters and step forward, in spite of opposition wherever it might show itself, and see that the ticket went through from top to bottom.

He was right in the midst of the party; no quitter now or at any time. He intended to lend his voice and vigor to the election of the whole ticket. He believed the ticket would be better in every way than the one named by the Democrats.

There was no malice, no hard feelings. Until the convention, politics must necessarily be marked by strife. But it was his part to forget it all after the convention had made its choice. Not a word would he say against the party. His heart was the heart of it were his friends, and he was theirs. He wanted to be where the people wanted him. If that was leading a quiet, rural life at Westfield, so be it.

The speech was good humored all the way through. Perkinsesque jests lightened it, and not a note of bitterness could be detected. The delegates cheered and applauded its close. Surrogate Parrot made the longest speech of the afternoon. He expressed his gratitude for the renomination, and defended the custom of retaining the surrogate in office. He said the position demanded it. The other candidates made brief speeches. Mr. Pierce produced a pleasant impression, Congressman C. N. Fowler, at last, put in an appearance at the tail end of the convention and made the customary speech. He told one of the two stories that Noah packed away in the Ark, and urged the delegates to go out and take possession of the Democratic party.

The platform adopted was not long. It favors the retention of the Bishops' law, and such legislation as will give the people the fullest opportunity to take part in nominations by the primary. The latter expression was put into the platform to meet the views of the Colbyites, after it had been submitted to the committee on resolutions. C. B. Morse, of this city, was a member of the committee. The platform is as follows:

The Republicans of Union county in convention assembled, mindful of the blessings of peace and prosperity in our nation, and of the advancement of human rights, the welfare of our commonwealth and the security and happiness in our homes, recognize with gratitude the love and protecting care of the Great Ruler of the Universe, and we commend the long and successful management of our national and State affairs by Republican administrations, and congratulate the citizens of this country on the careful and judicious oversight constantly exercised in all matters pertaining to our local and municipal welfare.

It is a matter of congratulation, that the subject of railroad taxation, which has been so long a troublesome problem, is being effectively and satisfactorily solved under the provisions of laws enacted while the Republican party was in control of branches of the Legislature. The laws enacted have been upheld by the courts, and in practical operation have resulted in great gains to the municipalities in this State. In Union county there has been an increase in revenue amounting to nearly $200,000. This legislation is in accordance with recommendations in the messages of Governor Stokes, and was introduced and passed by a Republican legislature as a party measure.

The recommendations of the executive in reference to the general subject of taxation we confidently ask the enactment of laws that have resulted in the establishment of county board of taxation. While many difficulties have been encountered, and there still remain unsolved problems, nevertheless, the principle of the law has been beneficial, and will result in the ultimate equalization of the burden of taxation throughout the country.

The Republican Legislature, recognizing the general sentiment in all parts of the State in favor of some legislation to effectively control and regulate the legalized sale of liquor, passed the act known as the "Bishops' Bills."

We favor the retention and enforcement of the law, and are opposed to its repeal, or its amendment, except in such respects as will make its operation effective.

A perfect law can only be secured by experiment, and if the Bishops' law shall in its operation be found subversive of recognized rights of individuals every effort should be made to remedy the law rather than resort to new and untried legislation. We deprecate the making of liquor problem a politics) issue, and believe the taking of the question from the consideration of partisan politics would be a direct benefit to people.

We favor such further legislation concerning primary elections as may be necessary to afford the fullest opportunity for the expression of the popular will regarding nominations.

We favor the adoption of a constitutional amendment permitting a return to the plan, which so long prevailed in this State, of electing the members of Assembly from districts.

We pledge the candidates named by the convention to the faithful discharge of all public duties, the support of all measures conducive to the public welfare and pledge to them our active and hearty support.

Plainfielders were placed on all the committees. J. W. Murray, Jr., was on the credentials committee, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., was on the committee on rules, William G. De Mezza on permanent organization and County Chairman Frank H. Smith on the vacancies committee. E. L. Hand, of South Plains, was one of the secretaries.

DUKE BREAKS A STRIKE

Settled in Hour Fight of Italian Hod Carriers Who Tried to Drive Off Non-Unionists.

A THREAT TO KILL MADE

Tobacco King, Who Is Building $75,000 Addition to His Summer Mansion, Summons Police.

James B. Duke, president of the American Tobacco Tobacco Company, who employs several hundred laborers and skilled mechanics on his estate at Raritan road has a payroll of $8,000 a week, made a record as a strike-breaker Wednesday by landing seventeen union hod carriers in the county jail and breaking the back of what intended to be a sympathetic strike Thursday, in an hour old.

Mr. and Mrs. Duke recently returned to their summer home at Raritan after an automobile wedding tour through the Eastern States. Mr. Duke is now superintending the construction of an addition to his mansion that is to cost $75,000. In order to push the work the contractors Tuesday imported an additional number of bricklayers from a nearby city, but failed to get a sufficient number of hod-carriers to serve them.

Manager Smith, of the Duke estate, put a number of Italian laborers employed on the place at work carrying hods in addition to his mason hod carriers, who are also Italians, threatened to strike if the men were kept on the job. Mr. Duke refused to take his men off and a strike followed.

Yesterday morning eighteen union hod-carriers marched to the Duke mansion, drove the non-union laborers from the job and guarded the building to keep other non-union men from work. All work on the building stopped.

It was then that Mr. Duke personally conducted the warfare against the strikers. Special detectives and constables were summoned, who swooped down on the strikers, and five of them were placed in the wagons and driven to the county jail. Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, Mr. Duke's counsel, was summoned to prepare a complaint against the men. Three of the laborers who were driven from their work charges by the prisoners with assault and threats to take their lives. Manager Smith also made an affidavit charging the strikers with conspiring to damage the Duke property.

Justice Stephen held the prisoners to await the action of the Grand Jury under $600 bonds each. The friends of the strikers are hustling for bondsmen to get them out of jail.

MUNICIPALITY MUST CLEAN GREEN BROOK.

Not Up to the County, Says W. R. Coddington.

The much disputed question as to who is responsible for the unsanitary condition of Green brook and who shall clean it out, remains unsettled, but from present indications it will have to be undertaken by the officials of the city and borough through an "Board of Health" of each community. In a communication to the Union County Board of Freeholders, the North Plainfield Board of Health requested the county body to take such action as it deemed necessary, and the matter was referred to the county attorney and Plainfield members of the board.

The Union county freeholders, after a conference with County Attorney W. R. Codington, have decided that it is not their business to clean the brook, and they absolutely refuse to have anything to do with it. It is understood that the Somerset County Board of Freeholders has decided likewise.

The discussion of the matter has brought out the fact that there are a number of individuals whose land abuts on the brook on both sides, and they have certain rights in connection with the brook. If it is in an unsanitary condition at these points, it is due to the duty of the city or borough to see that the property owners make it sanitary. In all other cases, it is the opinion that the city or borough must do the work at their own expense. According to the county attorney the authority of the freeholders extend only to the county line bridges, and not a foot outside of them. If the stream is unsanitary beneath these bridges it would then be the duty of the freeholders to remedy the trouble.

Owing to the small amount of rainfall this season the brook has had but little water in it and at times it has become very objectionable to residents in the vicinity. The Union county freeholders have communicated with the Borough Board of Health stating its position in the matter.

ACKERMAN HAS BEEN ON MANY RECORD TRIPS

CROSSED THE OCEAN FIFTY TIMES—IN PENNSYLVNANIA TODAY.

State Senator E. R. Ackerman, who arrived in New York from Europe Friday, after a voyage on the record-smashing Lusitania, whose speedy trip across the ocean was chronicled in yesterday's Daily Press, was at Raritan and has a payroll of $8,000 a week, made a record as a strike-breaker Wednesday by landing seventeen union hod carriers in the county jail and breaking the back of what intended to be a sympathetic strike Thursday, in an hour old.

Mr. and Mrs. Duke recently returned to their summer home at Raritan after an automobile wedding tour through the Eastern States. Mr. Duke is now superintending the construction of an addition to his mansion that is to cost $75,000. In order to push the work the contractors Tuesday imported an additional number of bricklayers from a nearby city, but failed to get a sufficient number of hod-carriers to serve them.

Manager Smith, of the Duke estate, put a number of Italian laborers employed on the place at work carrying hods in addition to his mason hod carriers, who are also Italians, threatened to strike if the men were kept on the job. Mr. Duke refused to take his men off and a strike followed.

Yesterday morning eighteen union hod-carriers marched to the Duke mansion, drove the non-union laborers from the job and guarded the building to keep other non-union men from work. All work on the building stopped.

It was then that Mr. Duke personally conducted the warfare against the strikers. Special detectives and constables were summoned, who swooped down on the strikers, and five of them were placed in the wagons and driven to the county jail. Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, Mr. Duke's counsel, was summoned to prepare a complaint against the men. Three of the laborers who were driven from their work charges by the prisoners with assault and threats to take their lives. Manager Smith also made an affidavit charging the strikers with conspiring to damage the Duke property.

Justice Stephen held the prisoners to await the action of the Grand Jury under $600 bonds each. The friends of the strikers are hustling for bondsmen to get them out of jail.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING BIDS TAKEN ON SEPT. 30

TWO STORY STRUCTURE TO BE ERECTED ON DARROW AVE.

Completed plans for the new primary school building to be erected on Darrow avenue by the Board of Education, were submitted and accepted at the September meeting of the Board, Thursday. It has not yet been decided whether the building will be constructed of stone or brick. The architects state that the plans would be on file Friday, September 20, and that the bids for the work will be received at a special meeting to be held on Monday night, September 30. The plans were drawn by Hale & Rogers, New York architects.

The new school will be two stories in height and will be equipped with every modern convenience. It will take the place of the Washington School property which has been sold to St. Mary's church. The new location it is believed will better accomodate that rapidly growing section of the West End.

The other business considered at the meeting was chiefly routine.

Corporations Must Pay $3,362,000.

State Controller Morgan has received from the State tax assessors the fifth and final schedule of the assessments levied against the 1,400 miscellaneous corporations for the year 1907. The schedule shows taxes amounting to $302,569.54. The total number of corporations assessed for the year 1907 is 10,331, with a total tax levy of $3,382,412.13. As compared with the assessment of this class of corporations for the year 1906, there is shown an increase in the number of corporations of 101, but there is an apparent decrease in the amount of tax levied of $133,465.67.

Y. M. C. A. ANNIVERSARY.

It Will Be Observed October 26, 27 and 28; Plans Shaping.

The committee in charge of the observance has fixed on October 26, 2, and 28 as the dates of the Y. M. C. A. fortieth anniversary celebration. Eminent speakers will be secured, and the affair will close with a banquet. The committee is made up of John H. Manning, James E. Kimball, W. D. Murray, G. H. Rittenhouse, A. B. Beers, Dr. N. H. Probasco, C. M. Thorpe.

Details of the plans have not been worked out, but the affair will be shaped rapidly from now on. The Y. M. C. A. in this city was organized at the home of Alexander Gilbert at Sixth and Mechanic street (Madison avenue.) The first meeting was held on Monday, October 28, 1867.

Elks' Ball Game.

The Elks of Plainfield and Somerville will fight it out on the diamond on Saturday, September 28, at 3 o'clock, at West End Park, Somerville. The game will be played for the benefit of Somerset Hospital, of Somerville, and both branches of the order are expected to put their best players in the contest to make things interesting.

Ministers to Meet.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Raritan Ministerial Association will be held in the Forrest House in Somerville next Monday morning, at 10.30 o'clock. The paper will be read by Rev. Dr. E. Aanjore Corwin, on the organism of Scripture. The annual dinner will be served at 1 o'clock. Officers for the ensuing year are to be elected.

Mrs. E. D. Hutchinson, of Westervelt avenue, who has been visiting in Philadelphia, has returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Miller, of Union street, who have been sojourning at Asbury Park, have returned.

TROUBLES OF COURT HOUSE CONTRACTORS

LATEST HITCH INCREASES COST OF BUILDING'S ERECTION.

The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders and the contractors, William H. Fissell & Co., of New York, are having trouble of their own with the erection of the new $200,000 white marble court house for Somerset county. Not only has the work on the big building been at a standstill because of labor troubles, but the structure promises to cost much more than the price originally contracted.

It has been found necessary to excavate deeper for the foundation than it was at first thought to be, and for trenches and a water main. The deeper excavations were found necessary to secure firmer ground on which to lay the foundations. The contractors were digging in a lot of rubbish when the depth stated in the specifications was reached. A big well was discovered and this had to be filled in. The back cellar for the structure was made a foot deeper and the Somerset County Board of Freeholders was obliged to order a bill of $2,300 to cover the outside work. The members of the board demanded a rigid explanation in reference to the extras, however, before they would sanction the payment of the bill.

An effort has been made to have former freeholder, William J. Logan, employed by the county as the representative of the board to constantly oversee the stone work in the construction of the new court house, but no definite action has been taken in the matter. Some of the members of the board cannot see their way clear to employ another overseer when the county is already paying the architect for performing this duty.

THE NEW FOOTBALL RULES

The actual matter of the rules has not been materially changed owing to the satisfaction that was found with the wholesale revision which took place in the rules of 1906. The particular detail of the few alterations follows later.

Meantime, it is worth while to look over the arrangements and the headings, which will give a fair idea of the general plan.

First come the rules relating to the field and the ball. Then those relating to the number of players and substitutes, then the length of the game and scoring. Following these come definitions of all the terms used. This group of definitions is followed by rules relating to the kick-off and the position of players on scrimmage as well as kick-off, kick-out, punt-out and place-kick, also on free kicks. Then come sections covering the putting of the ball in play and the detail of the game. Following these, unlawful interference with play, obstruction of opponents, passing or throwing the ball, and on- and off-side. Then the rules relating to the necessary gain on each and distance of the kick, as well as a description of a try-at-goal.

The next two groups govern the conduct of players as well as the conduct of persons other than players. Following these penalties and the duties of the officials, with brief of rules over which each has control. Appended to these are notes giving briefly the suggestions and interpretations placed on the rules.

The main alterations are as follows: An increased length of the game. Owing to the fact that it was found under the new rules the players were rather less exhausted than in the old game, it was determined to increase the playing time another ten minutes by adding five minutes to each half.

It was voted to continue the method of two umpires, but to define their duties more specifically, so that one would aid the referee in decisions down the field. The one is practically an assistant to the referee and is called the field judge. The other, generally speaking, has control of the decisions that belong to the line-up.

The ten-yard rule is preserved exactly as before, that innovation having met with the almost general approval in that it made far less effective anything like mass plays and forced the open play which everyone so much desired.

Forward passing has been altered to a certain extent, making it less risky to put the ball first and second down. Instead of losing the ball in case the forward pass strikes the ground before striking a player of either side, the same side retains possession of the ball by losing fifteen yards in distance. When the forward pass is essayed on the third down, however, and it strikes the ground without striking a player, or is otherwise made illegally, the ball must be surrendered to the other side exactly as formerly.

A Kaffir in Cape Colony bought an American broom some months ago and, noticing some seeds in the straws, planted them. He now has a fine field of broom straw growing and may have founded an important industry.

ANTAGONISM TO AUTOS

In Approving Frelinghuysen's Views Ackerman Tells of Conditions Abroad.

SITUATION ALARMING

In Interesting Letter Union's Senator Reviews the European Feeling Toward Reckless Automobilists

His attention having been attracted to State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen's recent warning to reckless automobilists as republished in a Paris edition of a New York paper, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman of this city, who returned from abroad Friday, has joined in the views expressed by his colleague. His vigorous expression of opinion on the subject being contained in a letter sent to the author of New Jersey's automobile law from Baie. It will be recalled that some six weeks ago, Senator Frelinghuysen suggested to J. B. R. Smith that as State custodian of the automobile licenses, he revoke forthwith for second offense the privileges of those who flagrantly violate the provisions of the law, and in the Daily Press Mr. Frelinghuysen ventured the assertion that unless reckless automobiling be stopped the time would not be far distant when the people would rise up and demand that such vehicles be denied the use of the public highways. Following out his suggestion, Mr. Smith has revoked the license of State Senator James P. McNichol, the Republican boss of Philadelphia, who has been found guilty of violating the speed provision.

In his letter to Mr. Frelinghuysen, Senator Ackerman says: "I wish to congratulate you upon the warning you have uttered which is both timely and absolutely necessary. There is a growing feeling in European countries against the automobile and I am surprised to see that the French are growing restive under the arrogance displayed by those chauffeurs who seem to think that the world was made for them alone and that if other people don't get off the earth fast enough to put them off is to run over them. A few years ago the auto was encouraged as well as welcomed but now you see many signs of "automobiles" prohibited" even at such places as 'Baden-Baden and Ostend where one generally supposes everything is for the rich hose." In Switzerland no automobile can use the fine roads in the mountain passes except under rigorous conditions and in London steps are being taken to build a separate road for their use so as to lessen the record of fatalities which while the daily papers are crowded. In another direction is the automobile bus disliked and at a meeting of house-owners recently held in London, the statement was made that the advent of these machines had caused loss to proprietors of $6,000,000. In the last year by reason of tenants vacating premises because of the multiplicity of these machines with constant danger to life. As you well know I am not a hater of the automobile but enjoy taking an occasional ride in one, but at a slow speed, therefore, my remarks as above, are not inspired with an idea to fan a flame of antagonism to the automobile owner but are given as facts which exist and which must be considered if autos at express train speed are longer to be tolerated on the public highways."

Senator Ackerman said last night when questioned about his statement, that the letter received by Senator Frelinghuysen fully expressed his views and he had nothing more to add.

LAST OF LONDON'S OLD INNS.

Travelers of To-day Stop at the Tavern of Pickwick and Sam Weller.

A century ago London was noted for its coaching inns. To-day only one remains of the score or more which used the gayest of coaching parties that assembled in the comfortable parlors for an evening of pleasure. George's inn, the last of the famous taverns where the nobility of England gathered in the days of long ago, was probably the most popular that lined the roadways of the English capital. It was through his association with the people who frequented George's inn that Charles Dickens began to attract widespread attention as a novelist and writer. More than three score years ago he was a familiar figure when novelry held sway in the now antiquated tavern. Here it was that Mr. Dickens met Mr. Pickwick and the various characters he immortalized in his "Pickwick Papers" and bounded at once into popular favor as a humorist and close student of character. The attractiveness of the old inn is still maintained at a high standard, and it is to-day a favorite stopping place for travelers and coaching parties. Nothing has been removed from the place to dim the memories of the past. The same old-fashioned chairs, benches, tables and furniture are there that were in use a century ago, and the decorations have never been altered. Ownership has remained with the same family for many generations, and it is said the present owner is a direct descendant of the man who originally opened it.

QUALITIES OF THE OYSTER.

One Particularly Good Point Which Bore Might Emulate.

A San Franciscan has discovered a new method of cutting short recitals that promise to become too long-winded. An acquaintance of his, who has a local reputation as a bore, was one day holding forth in a car, when the Californian interrupted him with: "By the way, did I ever tell you the story of the oyster?" On receiving a negative reply, he continued: "It seems that when oysters are taken from the sea they either open their shells so that the juice or liquid runs out. As this is undesirable, the experienced oyster gatherer has a tub of water close at hand into which the oyster is plunged as soon as it begins to open its shell." "Well, what then?" asked the other as the narrator paused. The San Franciscan smiled. "Oh, after a while the oyster learns to keep its mouth shut," he remarked quietly.

Great Slaughter of Salmon.

In the Sea of Okotsk the salmon are suicidal and one of the most startling examples of the spendthrift side of nature may be found in the rivers that run into this sea. When six years old the salmon begin a voyage of death. According to the laws of their infancy they race in countless thousands upstream until lack of food and lack of elbow room kill them off. A recent traveler declares that, however many millions of salmon may run up the river, not one ever reaches the sea again alive. What becomes of the rivers of dead salmon? The seagulls wheel down upon the scene and feast upon their eyes, scorning anything less dainty. Bears, wolves, foxes and sledge dogs are made comfortable for the year.

To Tell Horse's Character.

It is easy to tell a horse's character by his nose, according to an army officer. If the profile has a gentle curve and at the same time the ears are pointed and sensitive, the animal may be depended on as being gentle and at the same time high-spirited. On the other hand, if the horse has a dent in the middle of his nose it is safe to set him down as a treacherous and vicious. A horse with a slight concavity in the profile will be easily scared and needs coaxing, while one that droops his ears is apt to be both lazy and vicious.

Lye Ruins Eyeglasses.

A Ludlow woman learned by experience what any chemist could have told her, that lye will ruin eyeglasses, says the Kansas City Star. The woman was making soap and splashed a drop or two of the mixture on her glasses. She took a cloth and endeavored to clean them, but was amazed to find that all the colors of the rainbow were reflected in the lenses. No amount of washing would remove the colors, and it was necessary to get new lenses.

Corn and Wheat Food.

It is a matter of custom rather than of reason that we should use so much wheat and so little corn in our daily ration. Practically all the wheat produced is converted into food for man. It is probable that not one bushel of corn in 50 raised in this country goes upon the table. That is a regrettable anomaly when we consider that two bushels of corn will be as nutritious as every bushel of wheat on a given area and that the national corn crop is four times the national wheat crop.

Cut Flowers.

To preserve cut flowers a small lump of ammonia should be put in the vase. This will not only keep them fresh, but will also help to destroy the unpleasant odor that so often arises from flowers whose stalks have a tendency to become slimy. Flowers of this description should have a wee bit snipped from their stalks every time the water is changed and also before arranging them for the first time.

ARE MOMENTS OF ANXIETY.

Those Following Winning of Derby and Reasons Why.

The anxiety of owners of race horses competing in the Derby do not immediately end as the horses pass the judges. The fatal "objection" may snatch the laurels from the victor. The possibility discovered itself over Caractacus' race. The owner had striven in vain to get a jockey of popular form to ride a life annuity of £100 a year to Gostley in case of success had been declined. A stable boy named Parsons had eventually to be trusted, and, to the surprise of the learned, he got the horse home, winning by a neck. Going to scale, the lad could not draw the weight. In breathless silence the bridle was sent for and that just enabled him to balance the scale. But now Lord Stamford appeared to object that only his own horses and two others had gone the full course. The winner and the rest were already past the starting post when the flag fell. Admiral Rous looked at his watch. "Twenty minutes," he said. "An objection to hold good must be lodged within a quarter of an hour. And so the stable boy's win passed into the records, but the owner of Caractacus declared that not for £1,000 a moment would he again endure the agony of that short period following the race.—London Saturday Review.

WEEDS THAT ARE VALUABLE.

Medicinal Properties in Many Plants Looked on as Pests.

It is not a matter of common knowledge that some of the weeds "infesting" the land will produce the crude drugs which to-day in large part are obtained by importation from abroad. Alice Hunkel, chief botanist of the government's plant industry bureau, says that the roots, leaves and flowers of several of the weed species regarded as plagues in the United States are gathered, prepared and stored in Europe, not only for useful commodities there but supply to a considerable extent the demands of foreign lands. There are weeds in this country against which extermination laws have been passed which hold in their leaves, stems or roots medicinal properties which have a value in the work of preserving the health of the nation. It is possible in ridding land of weeds in order that crops may be grown to make of the uprooted "pests" money to become, therefore, it is possible to maintain upon land given over as worthless for crop-growing purposes a weed plantation, which after the harvest will prove itself to be not less profitable than some of the tilled fields.

$350,000 in Coats of Arms.

There are sufficient people in England and Scotland paying the annual tax imposed by the inland revenue upon the use of armorial bearings to maintain a total of $350,000 each year. The great bulk of this sum is paid by people who care not an atom either about their family or their arms, but pay the tax regularly simply because they have carriages or plate heralding their coats. The families of the realm, however, use armorial emblems for decorative purposes to an extent almost incredible in the case of those familiar with them only on note paper, table silver and carriage panels.

How the Pendulum was Found.

Like many of the commonest mechanical instruments in daily use, the invention of the pendulum is due entirely to chance. Galileo, when under 20 years of age, was standing one day in the Metropolitan church of Pisa, while some painters were at work on the ceiling of the church. A suspended lamp which was hanging before the altar was disturbed in some manner, and the scientist was struck with the almost perfect regularity with which it swung back and forth. The idea of measuring time by such an instrument found instant generation in his brain, and he completed the system in use to this day.—Sunday Magazine.

Common Sense in Diet.

As man was created for a varied and mixed diet, he has abundant opportunities for selecting his food and supplying his individual needs. In most cases appetite is the surest guide to healthy digestion and proper nourishment. This certainly is the common sense view that must appeal to all rational feeders. Deal with regularity and in accordance with the demands of hunger such dishes as have always been regarded as innocuous, and remember that, as a rule, it is neither meats nor bouillon nor wine nor spices nor coffee which poison us, but their abuse."

His Vain Threat.

Here is a verbatim report of a conversation overheard in a New York elevated train: He—What would you do if some other man told you he loved you? She—Don't be silly. He—Ever busied of wheat on a given area and that the national corn crop is four times the national wheat crop. But I mean it. What would you do? She (impatiently)—I don't know what I'd do. He (fiercely)—Well, I know what I'd do. She—What? He—I'd kill him. She (serenely)—I don't suppose you'd ever know anything about it.

Mathematics in the Kitchen.

Mrs. Dickenharry—For goodness' sake, Mary, how long did you boil those eggs? The New Cook—Half an hour, mum. Mrs. Dickenharry—But didn't I tell you that three minutes was enough for an egg? The New Cook—Yessum. But I biled ten of 'em.

THE RECKLESS AUTOMOBILIST.

In another column will be found a most interesting letter addressed to State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, who just returned from a trade mission abroad in the interest of the Senate committee appointed to investigate the subject of capital punishment. The subject with which Mr. Ackerman deals is the slaughtering in England and on the Continent by the automobile, for which reckless chauffeurs are unfavourably responsible.

It will be recalled that recently the Strong Man from Somerset introduced a note of warning through the columns of The Daily Press to the Jersey class of irresponsible chauffeurs in New Jersey. In that connection he suggested to State Motor Commissioner J. B. B. Smith that the revoking of those twice found guilty of violating the admirable auto law, of which Mr. Frelinghuysen is the author. This request, which has been most admirably complied with by the State authorities, followed closely a fatality in Bernards township, due to reckless driving, occurring just when such accidents were filling the columns of the public prints.

Senator Frelinghuysen stated that in his opinion unless the automobilists generally should respect the laws, the time would not be far distant when their vehicles would be banished from the highways by an outraged public. He pointed out that the feeling against automobilists was constantly growing and that it was due solely to their own utter disregard of the mandate of the State. Following out this line of thought, Senator Ackerman in this paper today tells of the growing antagonism in other lands to the automobilist. It is a most instructive letter, and will prove interesting to those who have given any attention to the subject.

THE EXIT OF PERKINS.

Although it has a well established reputation of dealing editorially with political topics of Union county in a broad, common sense and accurate fashion, no better handling of a subject has ever been given by the Newark Evening News than that displayed in its treatment of Assemblyman Perkins' candidacy as contained in its editorial columns last night. The Newark paper shows how thoroughly it is in touch with Union county's affairs when it says:

"The political decapitation of Assemblyman Randolph Perkins was accomplished at Elizabeth yesterday, when the Republican County Convention by a vote of 113 to 99 refused to place him on the ticket for the fourth time, and named Carlton Pierce in his place.

"There is little sympathy to be wasted on Mr. Perkins. A man of undoubted abilities, usually one of the brightest members of the Assembly and far and away the strongest man of the Union County contingent, he chose the part of a political henchman rather than that of a statesman and has suffered the consequences. Even the inexplicable support some of the "new idea" men of Plainfield, whose inveterate foe he was in the Legislature, could not save him from a trip to one defeat or another.

"Mr. Perkins was warned that he would be defeated. He was told in advance that public sentiment was against him, that the Republican leaders did not want him, that he had already served three terms and was not deserving of or entitled to a fourth, that his record was extremely distasteful to local option advocates and to the majority of the "new idea" Republicans. But he decided to make the fight, and it is well that he did.

"The one thing that stands out in Mr. Perkins' favor is his refusal to vote for the re-election of John F. Dryden to the United States Senate. The only question is whether he did this in obedience to the pronounced anti-Dryden sentiment of the people of Union county or in response to Charles G. Codding, who acted for the State house ring in that emergency. The fact that Codding is the man chosen to put Perkins in nomination before yesterday's convention seems to throw a strong side-light on this question.

"Be this as it may, it was definitely settled in Union county that voting against Dryden is not of itself sufficient to establish a perpetual claim to a seat in the Legislature, particularly when the claimant is obnoxious upon nearly all other grounds. His anti-Dryden vote seems to have been accepted by Judge Runyon and a few others of the "new idea" advocates as an assurance of his interest in reform, but the majority of the Republicans in Union county could not forget that practically every other act of Perkins' was savagely inimical to their cause.

"He was a regular of regulars, a machine man among machine men, yet his conduct in the Legislature lost him the support of the regulars and gained him the opposition of the organization, the antagonism of the "new idea" faction and the contempt of the local optimists. He has been called a fighter, but the fight he put up for renomination was weak, indiscreet, evasive and shifty. In not one of his public efforts did he meet his opponents manfully and fairly and explain his record satisfactorily to his constituents. The more he said, the worse he appeared.

"No man ever elected to the Legislature from Union county has had a better chance to rise to heights of public eminence, usefulness and popularity, and no one having such qualifications as Perkins possesses has failed more completely to take advantage of his opportunities. He has had his day. He has passed from the arena. Peace to his political ashes."

LOCAL TAX RATE $1.47

Increase in Plainfield Tax Rate Amounts to 12 Cents on the $100.

FIGURES ANNOUNCED

Union County Board of Taxation Announces Rates in the Various Municipalities.

The Union County Board of Taxation at Elizabeth, has announced the tax rates for the various cities, boroughs and towns in the county, excepting Rahway and Summit, about which there is some doubt at present. The rates in those places will probably be given out tomorrow.

Plainfield's rate for the coming year will be $1.47, against $1.35 last year. This increase of twelve cents is entirely due to the increased amount of money needed for State school purposes. The law provides that on every dollar of valuation in the county there shall be paid for school purposes three-quarters of a mill. The large amount of money to be received for this fund from the railroads, if the court's decision is upheld, will not be available until next year, hence the necessity of increasing the local rate accordingly.

The rates thus far determined and announced follow:

Clark Township, 83 cents; Cranford, $1.53; Elizabeth, $1.46; Fanwood Township, $1.44; Fanwood borough, $1.53; Garwood borough, $1.53; Linden township, 85 cents; Linden borough, $1.11; Mountainside, $1.72; New Providence Township, $1.55; New Providence Borough, $1.60; Plainfield, $1.47; Roselle Borough, $1.40; Roselle Township, $1.50; Springfield, $1.55; Union Township, $1.32; Kenilworth, $1.29; Westfield, $1.79; Rahway and Summit in doubt.

As stated exclusively in The Daily Press of yesterday the county rate for the coming year will be $27.79 per thousand and the State school rate $19.14 per thousand valuation. The total county valuation has been determined at $114,454,000.

With the assistance of neighbors he returned home and has been confined to his bed ever since.

GOLFERS ARE IN FORM

Scores Show Contestants to Be Up to Best Mark.

IN CUP COMPETITIONS

E. T. Willson Wins First Honors in Play for Golf Committee Trophy—Six Scores Posted at Park Club.

The delightful weather attracted a large field of golfers to the Plainfield Country Club, and the bracing air was conducive to good playing. The majority of the scores posted in the various competitions were low and showed that the contestants are at the top of their game.

E. T. Willson won the first honors for the Golf Committee cup with a net score of 78. His gross score of 87 showed that he was playing a good game, and that his handicap of 9 was about right. An unusual thing happened when five players tied for second and third honors for this trophy. The scores for the Golf Committee cup were as follows:

E. T. Willson, 87, 9-78; Dudley H. Barrows, 79, plus, 2-81; H. G. Lapsley, 88, 7-81; Chas. A. Stover, 90, 8-81; A. Chase, 91, 10-81; S. H. Patterson, 93, 10-83; W. Lester Glenney, 81, plus 3-84; Henry D. Hibbard, 81, 3-84; D. H. Rowland, 99, 14-85; C. B. Morgan, $4, plus 2-86.

Harry Williams won first honors for the Green Committee cup with a net score of 74. The scores:

Harry Williams, 100, 26-74; C. M. Church, 103, 27-76; W. F. Merrill, 100, 20-80; C. P. Hamilton, 112, 31-81.

Five contestants were tied for Autumn cup honors, Class A. According to the rules two players must qualify each Saturday this month for match play next month. As there were five tie scores these players must play off to determine the two who shall qualify. The scores for Class A were as follows:

Dudley H. Barrows, 79, plus 2-81; H. G. Lapsley, 88, 7-81; Chas. A. Stover, 90, 9-81; L. A. Chase, 91, 10-81; Harry Williams and W. F. Merrill quaified for the Autumn cup, Class B. Their scores were as follows:

Harry William, 100, 26-74; W. F. Merrill, 100, 20-80.

Although there was a large field out at at Park Golf Club, but six contestants posted their scores in the competition for the President's, Golf Club and September cups. Dr. H. K. Carroll took first honors for the President's and scratch cups, with a score of 92, 10-82, while Miss Lydia Loizeaux finished second with a net score of 86. These scores were returned for the three trophies:

Dr. H. K. Carroll, 92, 10-82; Miss Lydia E. Loizeaux, 102, 13-86; J. B. Betts, 119, 30-89; W. V. Byard, 103, 8-95; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 105, 10-95; W. E. Lowe, 122, 22-100.

The four-ball foursome resulted in a tie between H. D. Hibbard and Charles A. Stover and L. A. Chase and E. T. Willson, each pair returning a net score of 72. This event attracted a large number of players, and the scores were excellent. The results:

H. D. Hibbard and C. A. Stover, 75, 3-72; L. A. Chase and E. T. Willson, 81, 9-72; D. H. Rowland and H. F. Fox, 89, 13-76; C. B. Morgan and Dudley H. Barrows, 74, plus 2-74; S. H. Patterson and C. C. Burke, 87, 9-78; E. A. Cruikshank and A. G. Henderson, 93, 15-78; W. Lester Glenney and Frank O. Reinhart, 77, plus 2-80; R. H. Cox and W. B. Taylor, 95, 15-80; A. E. Barclay and C. C. Riggs, 95, 15-80.

TRINITY RALLY DAY.

Exercises Mark the Resumption of School's Afternoon Sessions.

The first afternoon session since the summer schedule ended was held at Trinity church Sunday-school Sunday, and rally exercises were held to mark the resumption of regular work. The attendance was 15, and five classes reported perfect on roll call. The junior department, of which Mrs. L. R. Schofield is the head, made an especially good showing, 52 of the 62 pupils enrolled being present.

Superintendent F. E. Smith, just returned from his vacation, was at his place to welcome the pupils and teachers back. Horace J. Martis taught the lesson from the desk. Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, who has been filling the pulpit since Dr. Schenck's illness, spoke. Miss Nettie Beeching gave a blackboard talk and Miss Etta Reybert sang.

YIELDING TO YEARS.

Architectural Marvels of Middle Ages Showing Signs of Decay.

Almost every day, now, the foreign dispatches report the partial fall or the dangerous weakening of one of the famous buildings of Europe. Today it is the Vatican that is beginning to crumble, yesterday it was the Alhambra, and a dozen such announcements can be remembered before one gets back even to the recent day when the great tower in Venice came down with a crash which reechoed throughout the whole civilized world because all of that world knew about the tower.

There is really some excuse for fearing that the architectural marvels of the middle ages are nearing the limit of their endurance, and that, unless they are subjected to repairs and restorations which not many of them are likely to receive, the time will soon come when people will have to do without these visible reminders of the part of the past which forms so large a part of our history and literature. This will be a loss, indeed, and yet the restorer and the repairer are almost as much to be feared as ruthless time, and one does not call them in too eagerly, even when somebody else must pay their bills.—N. Y. Times.

AGAINST THE MIDDLE.

Why Bill Cut Out Liver and Bacon When His Luck Turned.

When Bill, the ranchman, came from Denver to New York to play the races he put up at one of the most expensive hotels in the city and took one of the most expensive rooms. Then he went broke. The proprietor of the hotel and the clerk held a private consultation.

"We will let him stay here," they decided, "but from now on we will feed him liver and bacon until he pays his bill. Nothing does he get in this house from now on but liver and bacon.

They fed Bill liver and bacon for breakfast, dinner and supper for about three weeks, then his luck turned. He forthwith walked out to a strange cafe to get something to eat. He looked over the bill of fare.

"What's this in the middle?" he asked. "Liver and bacon?"

"Yes, sir," the waiter answered.

"Give me everything on the bill of fare both ways from liver and bacon," ordered Bill.

Pious Hope.

Forty years ago the wickedest person in Allen county, Ohio, was Old Man Sullivan, who lived there. Not until he approached three-score and ten did he mellow down, and then but a little. Once when attending a raising he soliloquized thus on his own decadence:

"The ole man's been putty tuff boys. He's rassled with some mighty hard cases, the old man has. But it's about over. The ole devil is after him hard an' fas', the ole devil is, an' by n' by he'll get him. But he won't keep him long, the ole devil won't. By n' by he'll be glad to fetch the ole man back."

"Well,' spoke up Bill Petit, his fiercest foe, "all I hope is when he does he'll forget where he found you."—N. Y. World.

Jealousy.

"Talkin' about Creole jealousy," said the observant man, "I saw a specimen of Chicago jealousy the other night that had it beaten to a frazzle. A handsome fellow was at dinner with two girls, when a young woman came in, caught a corner of the tablecloth, and yanked the whole tableful of dishes and dinner off onto the floor, then walked out of the room.

"What did the man do? Followed her and made friends with her again. She was his fiancee. He gave her a $400 diamond ring afterward, they said. If she had been his wife he would in all probability have beaten her instead of giving her a present."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Impetuosity.

In spite of generations of reckless combative Irish gentlemen, it is odd that we have still to go to American literature for the classical instances of impetuosity with firearms. This is a reproach to the author, which should touch them closely. Irish gentlemen were killing and wounding each other on sight almost for centuries before America was heard of, and yet it was left for Bret Harte and Mark Twain to show up for us in the far west the type of fire-eater who carried his honor in his belt.—T. P.'s Weekly.

In a French Restaurant.

There is a certain restaurant in town of quite ambitious pretensions, but not always successful realizations. In fact, it may be described as French on a Hibernian footing. Two people who dined there the other evening were finishing their dessert when the waiter approached. With napkin in one hand and tray poised on the other, he inquired in his best Gaelic accents:

"And will yez both have dimmytassys?"

Not Worth the Effort.

"Look out!" exclaimed the man who had seen another bravely rescued from the water. "Handle that fellow carefully or he might revive."

"Brute!" ejaculated the rescuers.

"Brute, nothing," rejoined the first speaker; "I saw him rocking the boat."

YEA! A GREAT CLAMBAKE

Eagles Feast Mightily Amid the Rural Delights of Dog Corner.

"FEATURES" IN PLENTY

Ball Game For One Thing—Frank Hart's Pearl For Another, Not to Mention Pilgrims From St. Louis.

Eagles like cooked clams, lobsters and sliced watermelon. This sounds like a nature fake, but it isn't. Common or garden eagles who roost on rocks may diet on raw lamb and stray children, but the Fraternal Order birds, subdivision Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, may be kept in playful humor if fed on the light but nutritious edibles first mentioned; also steamed fish, chicken, sweet potatoes, and corn; which was demonstrated beyond the shadow of scientific doubt at Scott Terry's place, Dog Corner, Sunday afternoon.

It was a great clambake. Every one of the 200 places provided was filled; so were the people in the places. Morris, the Perth Amboy bake expert, outdid himself, and the feasters ate until they couldn't eat any more, and then ate there was a lot of stuff left. Small boys from all about the place took home clams, corn and other things, and every now and then observant nature lovers might have seen Eagles on their homeward way with lobsters clasped fondly to their breasts.

As was remarked before, it was a great bake. The members and friends lucky enough to have tickets began to gather on the scene in the morning. They had a lot of fun watching the preparations for the feast, taking a nibble at baseball and a taste of a celebrated German appetitizer now and then to keep themselves in shape for the pleasant but arduous work ahead at the tables.

Buck Anderson hoisted a baseball challenge at Dan Guinee while the wait was on, and Dan hurled a defi or words to that effect in return. Then Buck got Fred Meeker and Dan got Frank McCabe to help them, and started the game. There were others in the game, but they couldn't stay put and don't deserve any of the glory, of which there is enough to go around among all the four heroes, not to mention George Wood, who played under Meeker's name. Also Waldo Ferman. Not until he approached three-score and ten did he mellow down, and then but a little. Once when attending a raising he soliloquized thus on his own decadence:

"The ole man's been putty tuff boys. He's rassled with some mighty hard cases, the old man has. But it's about over. WALTER SCOTT, MARVELOUS GENIUS, PASSES AWAY

World Renowned Printing Press Inventor Succumbs to Stroke of Paralysis.

FUNERAL TUESDAY

Made First Folding Machine Attached to Rotary Press—Originator of Color Machines—Father of Web Press.

Walter Scott, world renowned as an inventor and builder of printing machinery and all the appliances used in that business, passed away at his home on East Front street, Saturday night at 10:20, after a lingering illness. It had been several months since he was physically able to attend to business. About five weeks ago he suffered a stroke of apoplexy and since that time had been confined to his bed. He was unconscious from Friday morning and remained in that condition until the end.

In the death of Mr. Scott Plainfield loses a valuable citizen, one who was also interested in its growth, and the printing machine trade also suffers the loss of one of its brightest and most progressive leaders, and one who, perhaps, more than any other in the business has contributed to its advancement.

As stated in The Daily Press on Saturday, Mr. Scott was born in Ayr, Scotland, May 22, 1844. He was educated at the Ayr Academy and in 1869 came to this country. After spending sometime traveling through the United States he settled in Chicago, where he immediately began the construction of printing and folding machinery. While there he built and attached the first folding machine to a rotary newspaper printing machine which was installed in the office of the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

He was the first one to place printing presses in parallel planes, one above the other with the rolls of paper at one end of the machine and the folder at the other. Mr. Scott was also the inventor of the angle bars which are used on large newspaper presses and was the first to construct the fast running color printing machines for newspaper work, the first machines being installed in the offices of the Chicago Inter-Ocean and New York World. Another invention of importance by Mr. Scott was the all-size rotary web press which cuts off any length of sheet.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS HOLD A MUSICAL RALLY

NOTEWORTHY SERVICE AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

A rally musical service was held by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church Sunday. A splendid program was presented, and the crowd of people present enjoyed the evening. The singing of Miss Angela F. Wright, of the choir of St. Joseph's church, Madison avenue, New York, and the playing of James Herbert Smith, violinist, were noteworthy. All the numbers were excellently rendered.

The program was as follows:

Piano solo, Miss Alice Morgan; hymn; scripture and prayer; selection by the Sunday school choir; bass solo, "God and Father," Marston, Mr. Herbert Byard; hymn; soprano solo, "Hold Thou My Hand," Briggs, Miss Angela F. Wright; violin solo, "Romanze," Beckert, Mr. James Herbert Smith; bass solo, "A Dream of Paradise," Gray, Mr. Herbert Byard; address; offering; soprano solo, "The Earth is the Lord's," Schneeker; hymn, benediction.

The handsome new organ just installed by the Midmer Company in Warren chapel on Watchung avenue, the borough, was tested Monday by William E. The organ is a memorial given by Mrs. Emma F. Ege in memory of her sister, Mrs. Laura A. Talmadge. Its cost was $2,500.

SCHOOL RATE DOUBLE

Members of Board Hard at Work to Fix Up Figures for Various Municipalities in the County.

The Union County Board of Taxation has announced that the county tax rate for the coming year will be $2.779 per thousand, and the state school tax $19.14 per thousand valuation. The total county valuation has been determined at $114,454,000.

The tax board has thus far been unable to announce any of the individual rates throughout the county, but hope to in a few days. The members are now working day and night to conclude their labors.

BLEACHERS FALL

At Somerville Game; No One Much Hurt; Locals Lose.

Some of the thousand persons who attended the ball game between the West End and High Bridge nines at Somerville Saturday afternoon had a narrow escape from serious injury when the bleachers on the north side of the diamond collapsed. The bleachers gave way early in the first inning, but luckily no one was seriously injured.

West End put a fast article of ball through the entire nine rounds, but could do no better than tie with the visitors, 3 to 3. Torpey's home run drive for High Bridge in the last of the ninth wrested victory from the local team. The score:

W. End	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	—3	6	2

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS

GET PASTOR'S RESIGNATION.

Congregation Reluctant to Accept Rev. Mr. Shaw's Resignation.

The resignation of Rev. George B. Shaw, as pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, to take effect January 1 next, was reluctantly accepted at a special meeting of the congregation held Sunday night. There were many expressions of regret, but after Mr. Shaw's explanation that he decided to make the change because he believed that the church at North Loup, Neb., needs him more than the Plainfield church, there was no further comment.

A committee comprising Prof. Henry M. Maxson, David E. Titsworth and Dr. Frank S. Wells was appointed to look over the field for a successor to Mr. Shaw. They will meet in future subject to the call of the trustees of the church.

BEDS AND BEDMAKING.

Many False Notions on This Important Subject Exploded.

Many people used to have an impression that to sleep on a soft bed had a spice of wickedness in it and that the harder the mattress the greater the virtue of the sleeper.

This arose in great part from the fact that feather beds were generally condemned as unhealthy, and the ignorant at once seized the idea that they were unhealthy because soft, whereas they are unhealthy because they do not permit of proper ventilation.

More and more we learn that the foundation of health lies in an abundant supply of fresh air and that the root of many a disease is in the want of it. The health many of us spend a third of our time actually in bed and in sickness much more, so it is of the greatest importance that the bed and everything connected with it should be thoroughly ventilated.

It goes without saying that the bed-room must itself be airy and the fresh air have free access to it.

From the point of view of health it is a matter of indifference whether the bedstead be of wood or of iron, but the most comfortable and at the some time healthy are those fitted with chain spring mattresses. These mattresses may be bought separately and fitted to any bedstead.

RAILROAD COMMISSION REPORTS OF ACCIDENTS

ACTING SECRETARY ISSUES STATEMENT COVERING WEEK SEPTEMBER 7.

Acting Secretary Joseph Maybury, of the State Railroad Commission, has just prepared a statement showing the number of accidents occuring on the various railroads throughout the State for the week ending September 7 inclusive. During this period there were seven killed and eight injured. Of this number there were killed one passenger, three employes and three trespassers. Of the injured, one was a passenger, one an employe, one a trespasser and five others.

On the Lackawanna Railroad, one of the persons killed was an unidentified man found between the tracks. Another was an employe who was injured in the Hoboken yards by an engine tender. Another person was killed at the East Newark drawbridge.

On the Lehigh Valley Railroad, one passenger was killed by walking off the rear end of a train which was approaching a station in Newark. The other was an unidentified man who was killed while attempting to get off a freight train.

On the Reading Railroad a brakeman was killed at Port Reading while coupling cars.

On the Erie Railroad three boys were injured at Passaic Park. The boys, it appears, went into a freight caboose for shelter, and during the time they were in the caboose a freight engine ran into it. None of the boys, it appears, was seriously injured.

On the Central Railroad, two horses were killed at Dunellen while being driven over the grade crossing at that point. The driver succumbed later. Another accident on this road occurred in the Jersey City train sheds, when a passenger was fatally injured while a passenger was fatally injured while alighting from the car when the train was moving. An employe was killed at Plainfield while attempting to cross the tracks in front of the Plainfield passenger station. A switchman at Point Pleasant also was killed.

On the New York and Long Branch Railroad a man, an unidentified man was killed, and it appears by the report that the person was sitting on the tracks and before the engine stopped he was run down and instantly killed.

On the Pennsylvania Railroad a young woman was struck at Phillipsburg and internally injured while attempting to cross the tracks while a train was approaching.

ONE MAN'S WAY

By ANNA BANCROFT COUSHAINE.

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

He was a royal good fellow, was Jack Bell, a leading light in the newspaper world and the writer of some of the cleverest bits ever published in the Call, but notwithstanding his environment, he had no love for the Bohemian life and his pleasantest hours were those spent in his own cosy flat with his charming wife and two young sisters.

Theirs had been a love match, pure and simple and five years had passed without a ripple to disturb the serenity of their married life. In the winters they had lived in town—as a rule they spent part of the summer with Mrs. Bell's relatives in Pennsylvania. The year of which I write, however, the publisher of the Call had given Jack a big assignment which would mean a couple of weeks in the Shenandoah Valley and with the golden harvest and a wealth of material for magazine work in view he had gratefully bid to the southern states.

"O, no, Genevieve, its quite impossible. I have a fine photograph of you and Beth and Meg riding a prancing animal through the Shenandoah—I'm going on horseback, you know—better go to your mother's and take the youngsters with you and have a good, quiet, restful time. I'll be back in a fortnight."

Of course that settled the matter. If Jack was going on horseback Mrs. Jack couldn't go, but his footsteps hadn't died away when womanlike she began to plan to "get even."

"Well," she said to herself, "I will go to mother's and I'll stay and stay and stay, and give him a chance to get good and lonesome, that's what I'll do to him."

The Shenandoah trip was pleasant and fruitful, but it didn't console all of the time Bell had allotted to it, and there were two days of the first night left when he got back home.

"I'll surprise Genevieve," he thought, I'll get the house aired, and have some papering done before I let her know I'm home."

He found enough to keep him busy for four days and last of all sent for a cleaning woman to come over and put on the finishing touches—then when everything was in readiness, he telegraphed Genevieve—"Had a through ticket to Buffalo, am home now, when will I meet you. Jack."

To his amazement, the telegram, brought forth no eager reply from Kentshire and in an agony of fear lest some one might be ill he called Mrs. Jack on the long distance.

"Yes, this is Genevieve, is that you, Harry?"

"Harry—well, I should say not, who the devil is Harry?"

"Well, you have a very rude, whoever you are, I guess you've got the wrong number."

"No, I haven't; I want to speak to Mrs. Jack Bell."

"Well, this is Mrs. Bell, who are you?"

"Why, it's me, dear, Jack; but I say, who is Harry?"

"Oh, is that you, Jack, well, for goodness sakes, didn't know your voice."

"Oh, you didn't. I say, who were you expecting to hear from?"

"Who was what? I can't hear very well, dear, there's something wrong with the line."

"I say, W-H-O I-S H-A-R-R-Y—"

Oh, Harry? Oh, he is—don't get me off, Central—well, upon my word, did you ever hear any thing like that racket? I can't hear a word you say, Jack, better call me up to-morrow."

What Jack Bell didn't say to that phone and later to the operator, wouldn't be worth repeating.

"Harry, Harry, I'd like to know who in—well it's the Baltimore for me, I guess, for a few days longer." And the Baltimore it was with post at the press club for many nights, in fact, so many that he was contemplating a trip to Kentshire when a letter from Genevieve arrived.

"Dear Jack:—I know you will be getting along famously, and we are having a lovely time. Sis is home and we are going out a great deal. Mother is going to New York next week for a month and I've promised to stay here till she gets back, you don't mind, do you dear? It's so easy for you to get your meals at that nice little place at the corner, Harry is here, also. Be careful not to leave the windows open when you go down town in the morning. I don't want the rain to ruin the carpets. Bye, bye, be a good boy. Affectionately, Genevieve."

"Another month, another month, eh," and the man who hated the corner restaurant, hated the cold room and was beginning to hate everything else, groaned aloud. "Another month? Well, by then she can stay two months, and I won't ask her to come home, and I won't go down there, either. Now, Mrs. John Henry Bell, if you are so dogoned fond of the country, you just stay there till you get good and ready to come home. Somehow or another he managed to get through three weeks of the month and then the spirit of loneliness oppressed him. "I'll fix her, all right. She will come home, but it won't be for my asking."

That night he took his sister and a young friend who was visiting her by name, Miss Polly Pert, to the Saturday hop at the Yacht club; next day he and Polly and sister dined at one of the down town hotels. Two or three days later the two young ladies happened in his sanctum about noon and that meant a luncheon together. Neith er sister nor Polly divined the reason for the sudden avalanche of attentions but they agreed on one point, that it was jolly good of Jack.

On Sunday Miss Katherine Bell wrote her sister-in-law a long letter in which she faithfully chronicled the good times she and Jack and Polly were having—automobile rides, theaters, boat rides and dances. Two days later Jack received a very snappy little letter from Mrs. Jack in which she said a few things that won't bear repeating and closing with this paragraph:

"Run down and spend the week end with us, Jack. I know it's expensive, but then you might as well be spending your money that way as wasting it in other directions. I won't be home for a couple of weeks yet. Lovingly, Genevieve."

"O, so you won't be home for a couple of weeks yet," groaned the lonely one. "Very well, lovingly Genevieve, nor will I go to Kentshire for a couple of weeks yet.

That night Genevieve received a telegram that made her bite her lips with vexation: "Can't come Saturday, business engagement, have promised to take Katherine and friends for a launch ride Sunday. Jack."

"O, the hateful hateful thing. I don't believe there is a meaner man in the world; he wouldn't ask me to come—well, I'll go for spite and I'll spoil that launch ride for 'friends,' too, so I will."

"Poor Gen, it's a shame to tease her so," mused Bell as he watched the wreaths of smoke curl to the ceiling of his den, "but then she deserves it. I wonder who the dickens Harry is. She never mentions him in her letters."

Was it intuition or a perfect understanding of the woman he had married that made him stop at the florists that night and order a great bunch of roses.

"Guess I'd better telephone to Mrs. Moriarity to come over and sweep up and get something to eat in the house. There's no telling what may happen."

The next morning before he was up this telegram came: "Will be home on the noon train; will expect you at the depot. Harry is with me. Genevieve."

"Harry is with her? Well, some things are liable to happen to Harry."

"Yes, this is the train from the east —O, here they are. Well, you dear girl, how ever did you manage to get along with the youngsters, and—well, who is this?" with an inquiring glance at a fifteen-year-old who was carrying the youngest of the children.

"That—O, that's Harry Maxwell—Elizabeth Maxwell's little son; he's been spending the summer with mother and I brought him on to Buffalo for a little visit."

It is needless to say that Harry was not annihilated and it wasn't until after she had gone into raptures over the roses and then dinner that Mrs. Jack remembered to express her regret at making Jack miss his launch ride.

"Why, you dear old girl, I'd miss 20 launch rides to get you back, but to tell the truth, that launch ride was a hoax, I had to say something that would bring you home."

And then they both laughed.

BOTH UPS AND DOWNS.

Pair of Comedians Have Fun with Broadway Storekeeper.

The following story is accredited to Miss Phyllis Rankin, who in private life is Mrs. Harry Davenport:

"My husband and I went into a Broadway umbrella store a few days ago," says Miss Rankin. "A sign reading 'Umbrellas, $1 up,' was displayed in the window.

"'How much down?' asked Mr. Davenport.

"'All cash down,' answered the salesman innocently. 'This is not a credit house.'

"'But I mean how much do I have to put up for an umbrella put down?' asked Mr. Davenport.

"The salesman looked a bit perplexed. 'We have them for $1 up,' he said.

"'I know,' replied Mr. Davenport, 'but I don't want to buy one up; I want to buy one down. I can put it up myself.'

"'Ah,' said the salesman, smiling gently, 'you are speaking of the umbrella, while I am speaking of the price.'

"'And now I understand, too,' returned Mr. Davenport, 'it is the price that is $1 up. Then it isn't exactly $1 down as you said?'

"'Exactly. But perhaps you would like to talk with the proprietor.'

"The salesman hurried to the rear of the store, and I overheard him explaining to his employer; also I heard remarks about an insane asylum. The proprietor came blandly forward and said, 'We storekeepers have our ups and downs, but—' At this we bought an umbrella and fled."—Bohemian.

Found Treasure in a Tree.

A singular case of treasure trove is reported from the Belgian village of Saint Omer-Capelle, where some boys climbed an old willow tree to rob a bird's nest found in a hole high up in the trunk an old leather bag.

On opening this they found it to contain what seemed to be bright yellow counters and pieces of paper, bearing writing which they did not understand. So they made playthings of the lot, and gave some away, without, however, anything being damaged.

As soon as the find reached the ears of the parents they naturally guessed the truth. Some among them, being honestly disposed, gave information to the Mairie, which after some trouble resulted in the whole contents of the bag being got together again. They were old notes and gold representing 20,000 francs.

Quick-Stern.

A pretty wedding was celebrated Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Stern, of Roselle, near Somerville, when their daughter, Miss Edith ' Stern, and Frank Wilbur Quick, of New York, were married. The bride is well known in Plainfield, where she resided a number of years ago. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. William H. DeHart, D. D., pastor of the Third Reformed church in Raritan, in the presence of about 45 guests from Plainfield, Newark, Somerville and Dunellen. After a reception the couple left for a brief honeymoon trip and on their return will reside in New York.

MR. PERKINS' DEFEAT PLEASES THE W.C.T.U.

YOUNG MAN TELLS WHITE RIBBONERS OF HIS ROUT.

In addition to the address by Miss Keron, of Elizabeth, on prison and jail work, Clarence B. LaRue, a young man interested in local option, spoke on that subject at the afternoon session of the W. C. T. U., Thursday. He gave a brief summary of what has already been accomplished in that line and his announcement that Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, who voted against the bill last winter, had failed to get a renomination was received with great satisfaction.

The treasurer's report showed that during the year there was received and expended $760 and there is a balance on hand. Considerable interest was shown in the reports from all departments, especially that of the soldiers and sailors by Mrs. M. C. Dobbins. The results in this department have been very satisfactory and encouraging.

The Union lost two members by death since the last meeting, Mrs. Eden Boice and Mrs. James Adams. The oldest members of the local Union, Mrs. Sims, attended yesterday's meeting. She is ninety-two years old.

WOULD ENLARGE ITS POWERS.

Somerville Board to Ask Legislature for Wider Scope to Borrow Money.

The board of commissioners of Somerville has decided to appoint a legislative committee to endeavor to have a bill passed to enlarge the powers of that body. Under the present charter there are no means to borrow money, except by issuing bonds. This year the board has found it necessary to erect a new engine house.

In doing so it has used up nearly all the available funds and the streets of the town are in bad condition. It is now desired to pave Main street with brick and concrete at a cost of about $12,000, and the board would like to borrow the money so that the work can be done without delay. President Charles C. Kenyon will be at the head of the committee, and will name the other two members.

LITERARY

A complete novelette, "The Mind-Reader," by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, leads the September Century, a tale rich in that notable author's characteristic insight, humor and charm, with an unusual plot holding interest to an entirely unexpected conclusion. The serials, Frances Hodgson Burnett's "The Shuttle" and Elizabeth Robins' "Come and Find Me," develop with increasing interest, while there are short stories also by Dorothea Deakin, Charlotte Wilson, Edward J. Nocton, Beatrice Danscom and Margaret Horner Clyde. A popular feature of the September Century is a freshly interesting presentation of "Racing in Its Relation to Horse-Breeding," by John Gilmer Speed, author of "The Horse in America," who takes the ground that while racing is essential to the preservation of the thoroughbred, gambling is the curse of racing.

The September number of Scribner's Magazine has many beautiful artistic features. The first novelette, "The Refugees," and full-page, "An Alarm," are reproductions in color of two effective pictures of moose, very lifelike and spirited; Arthur Symons' appreciation of the dignity and ancient beauty of "Siena" is illustrated by Pelzotto, whose delicate drawings are reproduced in tint. Charles S. Chapman, an artist who writes his own text, describes adventures in the woods with a "cutter," whose business it is to "cut" the various accumulations along the skidways. Mr. Chapman's pictures represent the loggers in the woods in winter.

Those who have been familiar with the Burr McIntosh Monthly in its small form are surprised that the very slight enlargement should have added so greatly to the beauty of the magazine. The September number of the second issue in the new form and contains the usual quota of exquisite portraits of stage celebrities and of people of note, both men and women.

Upon a tract of about 600 acres near Murfreesboro, in Pike county, Southwestern Arkansas, some 100 miles from the city of Little Rock, more than 130 diamonds have been found within the past year. In size, they vary from a few carats to 6½ carats; in color, from dark brown to the high-prized blue-white.—From "Has Kansas a Diamond Field?" by Robert S. Lanier, in the American Review of Reviews for September.

Women and Secrets.

He—Well, I don't know of any country where secrets leak out more than in Russia.—Yonkers Statesman.

Discreet.

"Is he a man of discretion?" "Sure. When he writes a letter to a girl whom he addresses as 'Darling Baby' he uses the type machine and doesn't ever sign his initials."

TESTING BULLS WITH AUTOS.

How Mexican Learned Whether Animal Was a Fighter.

That the automobile can be used with great success in determining the courage of young bulls intended for the bull ring has been demonstrated by Pedro Fernandez Somellera on his Isidro hacienda in this state. The novel experiment was made a few days ago with a 22-horsepower car, says a Guadalajara letter in the Mexican Herald. On all haciendas where fighting bulls are raised the young animals are "tested" with a view to determining their future fitness for the bull ring. Those that prove their courage are marked and left to grow up for future contests. Up to this time the tests have been conducted by men on horseback, armed with pikes like picadors. But Mr. Somellera, who is an enthusiastic motorist, this year decided on an innovation by introducing the motor car in place of the horsemen. Accordingly, after the young bulls had been herded into a large corral, the machine was driven into the inclosure. The occupants were armed with the usual pikes. The experiment proved an exciting success. Several of the young bulls charged the machine at full speed, and it was only by clever driving that the car and its occupants were kept clear of the horns of the surprised and apparently indignant animals. The bulls that attempted to mix with the automobile have been credited with exceptional bravery, and they are expected to bring fame to the San Isidro hacienda by their future performances in the bull ring.

NOW THE PORCELAIN HOUSE.

New Invention May Make It a Building Material—Advantages.

The use of porcelain has long been known in China, but is now likely to make its appearance in western countries, and we are assured that the porcelain house is one of the possibilities of the near future. It is made practicable by the invention of a method of making large sheets of porcelain about an inch thick, which has the strength without the bulk of an ordinary brick built wall. Among its advantages is rapidity in building. With sheets of porcelain a good sized house can be constructed in a few days. It is damp proof, too, and will not decay, and is at the cost of very little labor. Colored glazes take the place of wallpaper, and pictures can be painted instead of being hung on the walls. Again, it is easily portable. A porcelain house can be taken down when the owner desires to move and re-erected on another site. When it comes, these advantages, combined with its cheapness, are bound to make it popular.—Montreal Standard.

Smokestacks in Italy.

In Italy every important city, except only Rome, is now surrounded with a ring of chimneys in full smoke. The government exempts from taxation a "zone" of factories around each town. The traveler's first view of Venice as he crosses the lagoon comprises 13 smoking chimneys; the moon, seen from the Lido, rises from a filthily thickened horizon; Verona has a bouquet of active chimneys near her station; Brunelleschi's dome at Florence and the quaint tower of the Palazzo Vecchio stand aloft against a horrible brown sky; the former orange gardens of Genoa are deep in dirt, grime and "fog" for the making of soap. When Rome, too, has lost her limpid horizon there is one Roman lover, at any rate, who will go there no more.

Nothing Else to Do.

Several teachers who were assigned to the city playgrounds were discussing the duties and diversified ambitions of the tots in their charge as to what they hope to be when they "grow up." A teacher told of one little girl who in all sincerity gave her a reply that was not likely to make her wish. "Would you like to grow up, children, when you become a young lady?" was the question. "No'm," was the emphatic reply. "What would you like to do?" persisted the teacher. "If I was pretty I'll be an actress," came the answer. "But suppose you are homely?" asked the teacher. "Well, then, of course I'll have to be a teacher," said the child.—Philadelphia Record.

Power of the Waves.

The power of waves, says M. Brounin, in La Nature, is the sum of the efforts, one dynamic and due to the orbital movement of the water particles, the other static, and dependent on the height of the center of gravity of the mass raised above its normal position. Between the destructive and constructive actions of the tots in their charge as to what they hope to be when they "grow up." AT HOME WEDDING Ceremony Performed by Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson—Couple Leave for Their Honeymoon Trip.

Miss Edna Burr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel De Vere Burr, of Central avenue, and Charles William Buckalew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Buckalew, of West Fifth street, were quietly married at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, performed the ceremony. Only the members of the immediate families were present at the wedding, and the only attendant was Hudson C. Burr, brother of the bride, who was best man.

An informal reception followed. Later the couple left for a wedding journey. They will reside at 25 Rockview avenue, the borough, upon their return. The bride was the recipient of a wealth of gifts from relatives and friends.

The bride was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1900. In 1901 she entered Mt. Holyoke College, from which she was graduated in the class of '05. She was then engaged as teacher in the Grammar School here, where she remained for two years. Last summer she taught special classes at the Y. M. C. A.

The groom is employed by the Ashton Valve Company, of New York.

MAYALL-M'GINNES.

Former South Plainfield Pastor a Benedict.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Lizzie McGinnes, of this city, and Rev. Nelson Mayall, formerly pastor of the South Plainfield Baptist church. The ceremony was performed at the Baptist parsonage, Peekskill, N.Y., on Labor Day, in the presence of a few relatives and friends.

Mr. Mayall supplied the pulpit of the Baptist church, South Plainfield, while the church was looking for a successor to Rev. J. A. Cubberly. He was an excellent preacher and pastor and popular with the people. Both he and his bride have many friends here. They will reside at Wheelock, where Mr. Mayall is the pastor of the Baptist church.

LITERARY

In The Circle for September, Ernest K. Coulter writes of "The Big Brothers and the Children's Court" with such enthusiasm for the splendid results which those "Big Brothers" are achieving in the lives of the children of the tenements that the article is an inspiration which must leave its marks in the lives of the readers.

"Current Literature," remarked Upton Sinclair as he looked over the September issue, "is the most indispensable magazine in the United States." The issue in question, like its predecessors, brings the reader into touch with the world's literary currents. There is nothing scrappy about it and nothing dull. Every article is well digested and brilliantly illuminates the questions dealt with.

The Popular Science Monthly for September contains the following articles: "The Problem of Age, Growth and Death," by Prof. Charles S. Minot; "A Scientific Comedy of Errors," Prof. Simon Newcomb and F. B. R. Hellems; "Notes on the Development of Telephone Service," Fred De Land; "Mars as Seen in the Lowell Refractor," G. R. Agassiz; "Herman von Helmholtz," "Linnean Celebrations in Sweden," "Radium Emanation and the Transmutation of the Elements."

Variety of interest is the keynote of the September number of The Travel Magazine. The month of it does between the big seasons of summer and winter migrations it gives the publishers an opportunity to present several articles of unique interest and more general character than we can find space for in our special numbers. And from the handsome red and green cover throughout the whole number the issue is delightfully seasonable.

The September number of the National is filled with an abundance of high-class fiction and verse, and it is a number that will appeal to magazine readers at this time of the season.

Among the special articles is one by Sidney J. Dillon on "The Des Moines Plan," dealing with the new method of city government in Iowa's capital, and "Levelling Our Population," by Carlyle Ellis.

Perhaps the most significant contribution to Success Magazine for September is the article "Will Roosevelt Run?" by David Graham Phillips. Mr. Phillips believes that the importance of the work which the President has begun and the belief of the people in its necessity will compel him to accept another nomination and election.

BRUTE HE COULD HANDLE.

Brother Jones Was a Few Thousand Beyond His Capacity.

It was a little out-of-the-way church just after the foot washing had been observed, which is a custom followed by that particular religious sect of people, that the preacher announced that the congregation would join in singing hymn No. 23, "My Soul, Be on Thy Guard; Ten Thousand Foes," etc. Jones, a red-faced, broad-shouldered giant, tried to put on a lot of energy and sing tenor, for this was a special occasion, and he seemed to be the whole church, since he was musical director, and the only choir they had, as well as janitor and deacon; in fact, he did everything but preach. Jones rose up and in stentorian tones began to sing in a pitch too high. When he got to the second line ("Ten ten thousand foes," etc.) it was necessary for his voice to rise beyond his capacity, and he broke down. The congregation began to titter, and a brother in the front row said: "Years like Jones' prove a leetle too high." And the old gentleman in his shirt sleeves, over in the amen corner, rose up with a judicial air and drawled out: "S'pose we just try 5,000."—Judge's Library.

HAD BORROWED A PAST.

Pittsburg Man's Unique Scheme for Pleasing His Bride.

There is a man in Pittsburg who will be married in a short while, and will occupy the house a few rooms of which he has used during his bachelor days. He takes the greatest pleasure in showing his intimate friends about the place, and is especially delighted at the astonishment they express when his own "den" is reached. He has always been a quiet, studious fellow, but as refitted the room gives the appearance of the lounging place of a regular rounder. There are racks of long pipes; photographs of actresses are stuck about the chimney glass; a shelf of beer steins runs all the way around the room, and a few feminine gloves, handkerchiefs, and fans are scattered about. "Great Scott, Jack!" the last visitor gasped, "where did you get this outfit, and why?" "Bought out a college fellow," was the complacent reply. "Just think how pleased that dear little girl will be when she sees all the truck and thinks how much wickedness she has won me away from!"—Harper's Weekly.

Sleep and Old Age.

There is no question that the quantity of sleep required steadily diminishes from infancy to old age. This is a rather interesting exception to the general rule that, as in so many matters, old age returns to the needs of infancy. As regards sleep, old age is more remote in its needs from infancy than in any other period of life. If elderly persons take a good sleep during the first few hours, and if they have not lost that delight in reading which we all had in youth, but which so many of us curiously lose, their case is not to be grieved over. The value of sleep, the earliest hours of sleep, by the way, has been proved by psychological experiment. The popular phrase "beauty sleep" is well warranted. It is the early (the deepest) hours of sleep that make for health and beauty.

A Queer Habit.

*A New Jersey dog has a most pecu*liar habit, which is that regularly every Sunday and holiday he fights with some of his canine friends. Ordinary fights there are much too peaceable dog imaginable, and would no more think of picking a quarrel than of refusing a bone. But always on Sundays and holidays that it is he celebrates. Out he starts spoiling for a fight, tail erect and head lowering. He never fails to find one, either! Why he does this no one has ever been able to find out, but there seems to be something in the air on those special days that excites his fighting instincts, and he never misses an opportunity.

A Plant Prophet.

There has been found recently in Cuba a strange plant which has extraordinary powers in forecasting not only atmospheric, but seismic disturbances. When these are to occur twigs and leaves perform peculiar movements, each having its definite significance. By observing them weather forecasts can be made from two to seven days ahead, and earthquake forecasts as much as 26 days in advance over an area of 300 square miles. Volcanic eruption and accumulations of fire damp in mines can also be predicted.

Scientific Farming.

A Scottish laird took his new plowman to task for not having furrows which were the result of his work. "Your drills are not nearly as straight as those Angus made," he said, severely. "He would not have left such a globe as this." "Angus didna ken his work," was Tammas, complacently contemplating his employer with an indulgent gaze. "Ye see, when the drills is crookit the sun gets in on a' sides, an' 'tis then ye get early 'taties."

Sunshine the Great Disinfectant.

Let plenty of sunshine into your house. Sunshine is the greatest of disinfectants. It will also discourage "bugs" of all kinds, great and small. No room is fit to inhabit if the sun never shines into it for a couple of hours daily. Carpets and hangings? Yes, of course it will fade them. If you value your carpets and hangings more than the health of yourself and family by all means keep out the sun.

G. O. P. GREATEST PARTY THAT EVER HAPPENED

CHAIRMAN CODINGTON SAYS SO IN TAKING CONVENTION CHAIR.

With their fellow-townsmen in the chair, the Plainfield delegates and lookers-on at the Republican convention in Elizabeth Thursday, felt quite at home in the party councils. As they were doubly honored by the selection, because Former Judge Codington made a most efficient chairman.

As soon as Amos Andrews and C. B. Morse, appointed for the purpose, had escorted him to the platform, he took quiet but effective control of the convention, and kept things going smoothly. His speech was brief but to the point. He was greeted with applause, and vigorous handclapping marked the close of his remarks. He said:

"Gentlemen of the Convention:

"I thank you for the honor conferred. I consider it a great honor to preside over a convention of delegates representing the Republican party, which is the greatest political party that now exists or ever has existed, in this, the greatest nation on the face of the globe, the United States of America; the party from whence come the Lincolns, the McKinleys, the Roosevelts; the party, not of promises, but of performances; the party which advocates the greatest good to the greatest number.

"Union county, one of the twenty-one subdivisions of the State of New Jersey is, and always has been an important factor in the politics of the State. It has furnished timber for every position within the gift of the people, from the lowest to the chief executive; and today, gentlemen of the convention, her sister counties are looking to you to put in nomination, such men to represent you in the legislature and in the county government as will maintain the highest moral and political influence which Union county now exerts, and you are expected to nominate such candidates as will command not only the support of every Republican voter within the county, but as well, a large portion of the Democratic vote; so that when the polls are closed on election day it will simply be a question of majority."

THOUSAND ATTEND CONCERT.

Attractive Vocal and Instrumental Program Enjoyed.

More than a thousand people gathered on East Front street, opposite the Woodhull & Martin building, Friday, and enjoyed the band concert, arranged by Benjamin La Vere. The program comprised all the latest selections and the popular airs of the singing by William Redmond and Eddie Weston. The new popular song, "Since Arrah Wanna Married Barney Carney," was one of the hits of the evening, and the vocalists were recalled several times.

The band music was excellent, and judging by the enthusiasm shown by the crowd, it was enjoyed. The crowd was somewhat inconvenienced by the location of the band stand, as it was directly on East Front street, where trolley cars were passing every fifteen minutes.

Burns-Gullberg.

Miss Ethel Louise Gullberg, of this city, and Thomas Joseph Burns, of Elizabeth, were united in marriage Wednesday at the home of the bride, 703 South avenue. Rev. Arthur Peck performed the ceremony in the dining room of the house beneath a floral bell of clematis. The bay window was decorated with clematis and palms. The bride was gowned in white silk crepe de chine and carried a shower bouquet of asters. The maid of honor, Miss Alice Gullberg, a sister of the bride, was gowned in pink silk mulle and carried pink asters. The best man was edward Burns, a brother of the groom.

*The groom is employed by the Jer*sey Central as a roadway man. The guests waited at the North avenue station to bid the couple good-bye, but they took the train at the Netherwood station. The presents consisted of a $100 check, a piano and silverware. After their return from a trip to Niagara Falls the couple will reside at 710 South avenue, where the groom has furnished a home.

Firemen's Parade.

Great preparations are being made for the great firemen's parade in Somerville on Thursday, October 10. One of the attractions will be the old globe trotter, Harry Wilkes, who has a record of 2:13¼, and is 32 years old. He will be hitched to a high-wheel sulky and will follow the veterans of the New York Firemen's Relief Association in the line of parade. An experienced horseman, Louis Noll, who has handled the richest and most numerous trotters, will drive him. Harry Wilkes is the property of former Senator William J. Keys, of Somerville.

Dr. Bleick Weds Miss Harris.

Miss Ida Mae Harris, sister of Mrs. George Sackett, East Fifth street, and Dr. Theodore E. Bleick, of Newark, were married Wednesday night at the home of the bride's sister, Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Elizabeth. The wedding was a very quiet one, only the relatives and a few friends being present. The couple will reside in Newark, where the groom is a practising physician.

W. A. WESTPHAL IS DEAD

bile accident. She and William Stanbery, of Scotch Plains, who has since died, were riding in his automobile near Dunellen, one night, when the machine collided with a rig belonging to William Harrison, of that place. Mrs. Westphal received fatal injuries and died a day or two later without regaining consciousness. A few months later Mrs. Stanbery committed suicide at her home in Scotch Plains, and it was but a short time afterward that her husband died.

For a number of years Mr. Westphal was engaged in the grocery business with his father, Frederick Westphal, their place of business being at Liberty and West Fourth street. The son became greatly interested in politics and was one of the leaders of the Republican party in the Fourth Ward. He was elected to the Common Council from that ward and served several terms. He was afterward made the party nominee for freeholder from this city.

After his retirement as freeholder he purchased the livery business of Frank Lee and Edward Sorts on West Front street, but his health was such that he was unable to attend to it properly. He afterward closed out the business, and while he retained his residence here, spent a great deal of his time in Newark, where his son was employed. His daughter, Miss Ada Westphal, was employed as a school teacher. They both survive him.

POLICEMAN RISKS LIFE

TO STOP A RUNAWAY.

Flynn Held On, Although the Animal Was Rushing Toward Show Window.

A nervy stop and a narrow escape marked a runaway on West Front street Saturday. The rig was that of George Fatouros, a fruit dealer. Policeman Charles Flynn made the stop, and Joseph Angermaier, an aged street laborer, had the escape. The horse, a powerful young gray, that has a skittish temperament, started wildly down West Front street, just after turning from Park avenue, when loose breeching fell banging about its heels. It rushed into the thick of the Saturday morning crush of vehicles, threatening a smashup at every jump. Flynn, standing at the corner of Park avenue, rushed after it.

Fatouros, who was driving, sawed wildly on the reins, and the horse swung in toward the sidewalk. Almost in his way was Angerbauer, scraping the curb. Flynn yelled a warning, and the old man barely leaped aside in time.

The horse came crashing up on the sidewalk, and headed straight for one of the plate glass windows in Scheuer & Co.'s grocery store. Flynn caught the bridle as the horse leaped on the walk, and hung on in spite of the rush toward the glass. He won the struggle, and pulled the horse down a few feet from the window. The only damage was to Flynn's white gloves. He'll have to buy a new pair.

Society of Revolution to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Revolutionary Memorial Society of New Jersey will be held at the Wallace House, Washington's headquarters, in Somerville, on Saturday, September 21. Members from Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield, Trenton and other cities will attend in large numbers. The speakers will be the president, Richard F. Stevens, of Newark; Mrs. Althea Beedle, of Paterson, and Hon. Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth. A luncheon on the lawn, under the historic elms, will be served at noon.

In Philadelphia a goat chewed off the tails of Policeman Gilbert's coat while the officer was watching a pair making love.

IT'S KATZENBACH

After Caucus Cast Majority Vote for Martine, Egenoff Brings About Farmer-Orator's Defeat.

UNION STANDS SOLID

Essex and Camden Also for Plainfielder—Surrender to the Corporations—Hudspeth Chairman.

The corporations, it appears, nominated a Democratic candidate for Governor at Trenton Tuesday, former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, of Trenton, being the man selected. The "Farmer Orator," the time-honored foe of corporate influence in politics, went down in defeat fighting to the last. Credit for the surrender of the party to the corporations is said to be due to Peter Egenoff, of Elizabeth. Thus ends the tale of a party's base ingratitude to its most fearless and loyal fighter in campaigns extending over a period of forty consecutive years.

The convention was called to order at 2 o'clock in Taylor's Opera House. State Chairman Robert S. Hudspeth, of Hudson, was selected as chairman. Long before the convention was called to order it was evident that the corporations had gotten in their work, and the opposition party had made an unconditional surrender. Even Somerset county was placed in the anti-Martine column. Union stood loyal to the last.

At 1 Tuesday morning Martine's triumph looked like a certainty. Several hours later came the turn in the tide, when the insurance agent arose from his seat at a meeting of the State committee and declared he would not stand for Martine. Shortly after midnight there was a caucus of all delegations. Martine secured 752 of the 1203 delegates to the convention, 602 was necessary for a majority and the Plainfielder was in session.

James E. Martine.

fielder was an easy winner. His chief opponent, Mr. Katzenbach, sent a message of congratulation to the Union county candidate conceding his election. Martine retired about 2 o'clock, when the State committee was in session.

At 9 Tuesday morning, when the "farmer-orator" learned of Egenoff's strange action, he accused the latter of being inspired by the corporations. Martine declared that he had been outspoken in his condemnation of the alleged methods of the Public Service Corporation and the Prudential Insurance Company. To them he laid his defeat, declaring that Egenoff's move had been inspired.

There was a general breaking away when the various delegations learned Tuesday morning of Egenoff's strange conduct. Somerset county decided to cast its first ballot for former State Senator S. A. Child, that county, and then to go over to Katzenbach. Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer is one of the Somerset delegates, and it has been declared all along that he was opposed to Martine.

Union remained to the last, as did Essex and Camden counties. Essex has 186 votes. Union 76 and Camden 85, about a third of the entire convention vote. Hudspeth was one of the chief Katzenbach boomers.

Brigadier General D. F. Collins was chosen chairman of the Union county delegation. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of this city, was made a member of the committee on credentials. Somerset organized by choosing former Congressman A. A. Clark chairman. Horace Coddington was made secretary and S. S. Swackhamer a member of the committee on resolutions.

The special train carrying the Union County Democratic delegation reached this city at 9:10. The train was made up of seven coaches, about four of which were filled. The delegation from Elizabeth and other towns between that place and Plainfield numbered over a hundred, a majority being from the county seat.

The following members of the Plainfield and North Plainfield delegation got aboard the "special.":

David J. Carney, S. S. Swackhamer, J. A. Staats, John P. Owens, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., Clarence E. Teel, Levi Kline, Patrick J. Reville, J. V. F. Dilts, Edward Lynch, De Witt C. Ivins, Walter Linbarger, Joseph Sheppard, W. H. Harding, Stephen H. Schlelt, John H. Van Winkle, Jr., William A. Coddington, Ira Hurlbut, Edward M. Van Buren and Richard A. Boyce. It is expected that William J. Saunders, of the borough, will join the local delegation at Trenton.

Each member of the Union county delegation was provided with a handsome badge, bearing the picture of James E. Martine, their choice for the gubernatorial nomination. There was a feeling among the whole delegation that the "Farmer Orator" would receive the nomination, and before the train left Plainfield Mr. Swackhamer remarked: "It certainly does look like Martine."

Delegations were picked up at Dunellen, Bound Brook and Somerville, after which the train ran through to Trenton. There was great enthusiasm among the Democrats and a strong feeling of harmony seemed to prevail.

At 2 Tuesday afternoon Martine conceded his defeat. Egenoff's reasons for opposing Martine were that he was a friend of William J. Bryan and that he was not a winner. He added that he was too radical.

It is said that Governor Stokes made the remark Monday that Katzenbach would be nominated and that Senator Smith was really for Fort, the Republican candidate. It is rumored that the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Prudential Insurance Company and the Public Service Corporation were back of the fight to defeat Martine. These corporations it is alleged, favor Fort for Governor.

The platform to be adopted declares, among other things, flatly for direct nomination, including that for United States Senators, for the abolition of the voting machine, and the County Board of Assessors; for a franchise tax and for the regulation of public utilities, similar to that adopted in New York.

who threw a bombshell in the committee and the Union county delega*tion by declaring against him.* Martine said unhesitatingly that Egenoff represented the Prudential-P. S. C.-Pennsylvania Railroad influences, and that the high finance political bosses would not hear of anybody but Katzenbach. Their power proved to be strong enough to dominate, Martine declared, and that was all there was to it.

Survey of the field in the quiet of the day after, however, leads to the conviction that other influences besides the bitter work of Egenoff contributed to the collapse of the Martine boom. A look to New Jersey for part of the explanation, at least. The heart of the delegates from the southern counties was not in the Martine cry, and the leaders could not deliver the vote. The delegations gave away from them overnight and even the redoubtable Billy Thompson could not hold them to the standard of his choice. The southern delegations were not so large, but their votes totalled sizeably, and the effect of the swing was strong in its impulse toward the reverse stampede.

The Union delegation was bitter toward Egenoff as they returned home. If the promise of their sentiment is construed, there is an hour of reckoning ahead for the man who defeated the wishes and the hopes of his county. One significant thing developed almost immediately after the convention. General Dennis F. Collins, who managed the Martine campaign, announced that he would be a candidate against Egenoff for election to the State committee next spring.

It was generally reported yester*day morning that Egenoff had gone* before the State committee and made a flat declaration against Martine, but this Egenoff denied, and brought other members of the committee forward to substantiate the denial. He acknowledged, however, that he did speak against Martine to James Nugent, and there is no doubt at all that he spoke against the Plainfield*er in the caucus of the delegation.* However he made his sentiments known, he instilled them into the minds of the State committee, for members came to Martine in the *morning with tidings of what Eg*enoff had said.

MAN GONE, WIFE DIES OF A BROKEN HEART.

Grieving until the last because her husband had not returned to her, Mrs. Phoebe Thomas died at Millville yesterday of broken heart. Six weeks ago George Thomas, a Civil War veteran, disappeared after having drawn his three months' pension. It is now thought that he may have been murdered, as a thorough search of all South Jersey has failed to reveal his whereabouts.

It is positively known that the man was robbed of his watch, as that was returned several days after his disappearance. His friends who were with him on the night of his disappearance state that he became intoxicated and wandered away from them.

FIREMEN PLAN PARADE

Preparations Are About Completed for a Big Turnout at Somerville.

"UNCLE JOE" MARSHAL

Many Companies Accept Invitation for Demonstration Planned for October 10—Supper a Feature.

Preparations are about completed for the grand firemen's parade to be held in Somerville October 10, under the auspices of the Somerville Fire Department, and the event promises to be the leading one of its kind in the history of Somerset county. Arrangements have been made to accommodate thousands of visitors on that day.

The following companies have accepted invitations and will be in line with a band of music: Exempt Firemen's Association of New York (accompanied by a famous military band); Old Jersey Blues, with band of ten; Flemington Fire Department, Raritan Fire Department, Washington Engine Company No. 1, of Washington, Warren county; Resolute Hook and Ladder Company, of Morristown; Stattington Fire Department, of Statington, Pa.; Hackettstown Fire Department, of Hackettstown, with visiting chiefs and ex-chiefs from Newark, New Brunswick, Plainfield, Trenton and other cities.

The Somerville companies in the line of march will be the West End Hose Company, Central Hook and Ladder Company, Lincoln Chemical Engine Company and the Somerville Engine Company.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen will act as grand marshal, and he will have for his aides Clarence E. Case, Herman F. Moosbrugger, Dr. J. F. McWilliam and Captain Joel Wilson. The parade will form at 2 p. m., and the Hudson River Military Academy Cadet Corps, of Findeene, will act as escort to the grand marshal.

The visiting fire men and the other guests will be tendered supper in the different churches of Somerville.

Will Give Silver Tea.

The choir of the Church of the Holy Cross will hold a silver tea Thursday afternoon, September 19, from 4 to 7 o'clock, in the rectory, 30 Washington avenue. The mothers of the silver-voiced youngsters are exerting all their culinary ability to prepare delectable dainties such as cakes, crullers, etc., fudge and candies, which will be on sale at the tea. The members of the altar committee will assist Mrs. George A. Warner in pouring tea. The rectory will be hospitably open to all.

FOR WINTER EVENINGS.

Identification a Good Game for Fiction Readers.

A good game for a company of fiction readers is called identification. It is easily arranged and never fails to "take" with intelligent people.

When the amusement is about to begin the hostess distributes among her guests large extra strips of cardboard on which are the names of fifty character, male and female, extracted from standard or popular novels, who must be identified.

This is done by writing opposite the name of the character in title of the novel in which it figures. Each player may have a separate list, or one list may be given to each pair of partners who work together to complete it.

In preparing a set of characters for selecting those which fill title roles or who are too familiar to the reader.

A good beginning for such a list would be:

Babbie ("The Little Minister").

Dinah Morris ("Adam Bede").

Nydia ("The Last Days of Pompeii").

Kate Hardcastle ("She Stoops to Conquer").

Adam Moss ("A Kentuck Cardinal").

Little Eve ("Uncle Tom's Cabin").

Blanche Amory (" Pendennis").

Rosamund Lydgate ("Middlemarch").

Sir Lucius O'Trigger ("The Rivals").

Josephine March ("Little Women").

Sancho Panza ("Don Quixote").

Edward Fairfax Rochester ("Jane Eyre").

Miss Euphemia Dundas ("Thaddeus of Warsaw").

Noddy Boffin (" Our Mutual Friend").

Mrs. Malaprop ("The Rivals").

Mary Tearle ("The School for Scandal").

Quilp ("Old Curiosity Shop").

Eugene Marchbanks (" Candida").

Lucy Dashwood ("Charles O'Malley").

Phineas Fletcher ("John Halifax").

A popular or standard novel would make a good choice in prizes, to be awarded for the longest list of correct answers.

—The Plainfield Opera Company will hold its first meeting early in October to determine upon its plans for the coming season. There is some talk of giving "Robin Hood."

COUNCILMANIC NOMINEES

Iremonger, Randolph and Suydam for Councilmen-at-large.

ARNOLD A CERTAINTY

Runyon Opposition Unlikely—Shellbarger a Possibility for Councilman-at-Large.

It is quite certain now that there will be no bitter contests at the Re*publican city convention on Wednes*day night, October 10, when a city judge, three councilmen-at-large, a city treasurer and minor officers will be nominated. The organization is in absolute control and things will run smoothly. Former City Chairman Edward E. Iremonger, of the Second ward; W. W. Suydam, of the Fourth ward, and either Councilman Charles Randolph or Joseph Shellbarger, of the Third ward, are the probable candidates for councilmen-at-large.

The choice of the Colbyites, E. Henry Depew, of the Second ward; Juan Babcock, of the Fourth ward, and Duncan W. Taylor, of the Third ward, were defeated at the primaries and will not, therefore, figure at the city convention. Duncan W. Taylor is considered a splendid man for the place, but the friends of Mr. Iremonger point to him as an equally capable citizen.

There is no question about the renomination of City Treasurer William F. Arnold. He is considered an ideal official and some of the Republican leaders say that he will have the job for life. Every influence is being brought to bear by the Republican leaders on the privates in the ranks, particularly the delegates from the Fourth ward, in favor of an unanimous renomination for City Judge William N. Runyon.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF WALTER SCOTT

FOLLOWING EPISCOPAL SERVICE INTERMENT MADE AT HILLSIDE.

The funeral services of Walter Scott, who was so widely known throughout the country as an inventor and builder of printing machinery, were held Tuesday afternoon at 3 from the late residence on East Front street. There was a large attendance of friends, including many business associates from New York; also the large force of employes from the Walter Scott Printing Machine Company. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, conducted the services.

The floral tributes were many and handsome, including a large standing wreath from the directors of the City National Bank, of which Mr. Scott was one for a great many years. The employes from the works also sent a beautiful floral tribute, while there were several smaller pieces from friends and neighbors.

All but two of those who acted as pall-bearers, are directors of the City National Bank, the exceptions being Dr. B. Vass. Hedges and David E. Titsworth. The other bearers were Louis K. Hyde, James T. Closson, J. Fred MacDonald, Francis DeLacy Hyde and William F. Arnold. The burial took place in the family plot at Hillside cemetery.

Out of respect to Mr. Scott the works were closed after his death and they will probably not be re-opened until the latter part of the week.

THE SECRET.

HE.

Have my eyes not told the secret
That has long been in my breast?
Have you, as I lingered with you,
Never known or never guessed?
Need I bear of you to listen,
Need I grope for words to tell,
Since my glances have betrayed me,
Since you know the truth so well?

SHE.

Yes, your eyes have oft betrayed you;
All that you could tell I know;
I have learned your heart's dear secret,
You revealed it long ago;
By your sighs and by your glances
All that you could whisper now
I have learned with glad assurance—
But repeat it, anyhow.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Age.

First Boarder—It was an easy matter to classify the stone age, the bronze age, etc., but this age with its many and wondrous inventions, what name will fit?

Second Boarder—Judging by the eggs (and other grub) we get nowadays, it strikes me stor-age would be about right.—Judge.

ADORABLE SPRING.

Ethel—Oh, yes, I adore spring. It is so like childhood, you know.

Howard—Oh, yes; very squally for the most part.—Cincinnati Inquirer.

The Bargain Hunter.

From store to store she hastens,
And will think the day well spent
If on all the things she purchases
She saves but half a cent.
—Judge.

Scheme Didn't Work.

Mrs. Slimpurse—It's all nonsense to talk about managing a husband by silent appeals to his good nature. It can be done. If you want anything you've got to say so right out. You know this horrid old hat I've worn for two seasons?

Mrs. Makeshift—Yes; and I suggested that you should quietly put it on and let him see you wearing it.

Mrs. Slimpurse—That's just what I did—exactly what I did; and when I proposed to walk down the town with him he said, "I'm afraid all this finery will make my old clothes look shabby!"

The Metropolitan Habit.

In an Italian mission school in New York city the teacher was giving a lesson on the life of Lincoln.

"And remember, children," she said earnestly, "when Lincoln went to school it wasn't as easy for him as it is for you. He had to walk miles and miles and miles."

"Why didn't he ask for a transfer?" asked a little boy on the front seat.—Judge.

A Frightful Rumor.

Percy—My word! It's the first I'd heard of it. What agitated the dear boy so?

Cecil—Some anonymous writer has declared that In the very near future valets will no longer be fashionable.—Puck.

Pay Day Not Eternity.

"Young man," said the serious gentleman, "did you ever pause and think that each tick of the clock brings you another moment nearer to the end of your existence?"

"I was thinging of something of that kind this very minute," cheerfully replied the youth, "only the idea struck me that each tick brought payday that much nearer."

Up to Uncle.

"Oh, uncle, do give mother her pretty diamonds back again."

"What on earth do you mean, darling? I haven't them."

"But I heard mother say that she has had to let you have them since her last bridge party, and won't be able to get them back for a long time!"

Animals That Roam.

"Now, Johnnie," asked his teacher, "when you go to the country in summer what animals do you see roving about?"

"Boarders," was the prompt reply.—Judge.

Was a Postman.

Spencer—Miss Whiston told me that her father was a much traveled man of letters.

Ferguson—So he was. He had the biggest round of any postman in the district.

His Last Wash.

Tramp—I looks like a tramp, ma'am, but I ain't. I'm a sailor, ma'am. I was wrecked and washed ashore.

Unsympathetic Lady of the House—Well, you ain't been washed since, I'll wager.

"GET THE FIRST $1,000."

Ancient Axiom That Has Sat Many Men to Saving.

"Get the first $1,000. After that money-making is easy." This is the old-time sage advice of the hard-headed, self-made man. That axiom has set many men to saving. They fix upon that sum as the glittering forbeard of a fortune something to be made. To a man on a small salary —a salary, say, out of which something can be saved weekly without too much deprivation—the advice is good. There is something in it that acts as a stimulus to economy. And who will deny that economy is a good thing or that any truth that lights the way to it should not be known? Many men, therefore, have been buoyed up in their economies by the belief that the first $1,000 is the hardest to get, and that afterward all the rest would be easy and the good things of the world that follow a bounteous supply of money would be within easy reach, says a writer in the Denver Republican. It is a pity that the man who invented that saying could not also have told us with equal advantage how to turn the $1,000 ever and make two of it. It takes a long time to make a wage-earner see that "money works." His idea of making money is to work for it himself. It never occurs to him that money works much easier than he can and without any of the hardships he himself experiences—that is to say, until he has got the first $1,000. That usually makes a young man feel like a financier, and he talks wisely of investments.

STYLES OF 4,000 YEARS AGO.

Tend to Prove There Is Nothing New Under the Sun.

For women archeology assumes a deeply interesting phase in the question which has been raised by Signor Mosso as to styles in dress as they existed 4,000 years ago. Signor Mosso, the eminent authority on ancient Etruria, Latium, Pompeii, and early Crete, has concentrated his great experience and knowledge on elucidating this bypath of science from his Cretan studies. The general result has been to confirm the old dictum that there is nothing new under the sun. Even the "latest fashions" are antiquated. Signor Mosso finds that 4,000 years ago the ladies of primeval Mycenae wore hats pretty much as they are seen in the drawing-rooms of Paris to-day. They knew what crape trimming was, had tartans before the Scotch, understood the mysteries of corsets lacing in front, short wide sleeves, metal belts, and a style of dress which an imitative nineteenth century, that considered itself original, dubbed "Empire." Their principal colors in robes were orange, yellow, blue and purple, which rather upsets the claim of the Phoenicians to have "discovered" purple.

Properties of Gold.

Pure gold is unaffected by the atmosphere either at ordinary temperatures or when the metal is heated. It is also proof against the action of common acids when used singly. Moreover, says the Jewelers' Circular Weekly, it confers its properties more or less upon copper and silver when these metals are alloyed with it. Thus, for example, 12 karat gold will withstand the action of nitric acid and the atmosphere at ordinary temperature, but some of the copper will be oxidized during annealing. Nine parts of gold may be alloyed with ten parts of platinum in an ordinary crucible and fire, but such an alloy will not be uniform; a large proportion of plat*inum will free itself from the gold on* solidification and a homogeneous alloy of the two metals cannot be obtained.

The Grave of Goldsmith.

That Oliver Goldsmith was buried in the churchyard of the Temple has been placed beyond doubt by the entry in the register. But the stone on the north side of the Temple church, around which the enthusiasts of the Goldsmith club gather, has been placed on a spot purely conjectural, for the exact position of the grave has never been discovered. The real site was remembered as late as 1830. In that year the sexton, a very aged man, who apparently was present at the burial, still venerated an elder tree, which, he said, marked the site of Goldsmith's grave. This elder tree seems to have stood a few feet south of the present stone, near the old vestry.—Westminster Gazette.

The Charming Woman.

Of all the women born into an ungrateful and unappreciative world none can compare to the really charming one. We go to the beauty and gaze in awe at the bluestocking, hug the "dear things of our acquaintance" and thump the "good sort" on the back, but in the presence of a personality which "charms" do we remain in speechless and almost breathless fascination. Truly of every such woman can it be said which was said by St. Simon of one of the most fascinating women of his time, that she walks "like a goddess on the clouds."—L'Inconnue.

Tact.

The right kind of a wife never harps upon her husband's misdeeds, still less does she "throw him in his misfortunes. No woman should marry a man unless her love for him be of the sher which hopeth all things, believeth all things, and is not easily provoked," says Home Chat. The right kind of wife helps a man when he fails or encourages him to try again, instead of railing at him for the stumble after he has risen to his feet.

WHITE RIBBONERS MEET

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Mrs. Tomlinson Speaks On the Necessity of Effecting Political Action—Oratorical and Musical Contest at Night Session.

Looking back on a year of activity and progress, the county organization of the Women's Christian Temperance Union held its annual convention at the Presbyterian church, of Dunellen, which is included in the Union county body, yesterday, and started on a new twelvemonth under most promising conditions. The attendance was large, eighty delegates being present at the afternoon session. All the towns in the organization, Plainfield, Elizabeth, Rahway, Westfield, Cranford and Dunellen, were represented. There are eight unions, Elizabeth and Rahway having two each.

The convention opened at 10 o'clock, with the crusade psalm. Mrs. M. P. Tomlinson, of this city, the president, was in the chair. The secretary, Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of this city, was at her desk. Mrs. Ramsey Blair offered the prayer. Mrs. W. W. Casselberry extended the greeting of the Dunellen union, and Rev. W. W. Casselberry, of the Presbyterian church, and E. C. Dutcher, of the Methodist church, extended the greeting of the churches. Mrs. D. D. Irving, of Cranford, made the response.

Mrs. E. A. Parse, of this city, was made chairman of the resolutions committee. After the organization of the committees and some other bits of routine business, Mrs. Tomlinson presented her annual report as president. In part, Mrs. Tomlinson said:

"Given a society of Christian women with world wide organization, praying unceasingly, planning wisely, working with tireless energy toward the abolition of the liquor business, and its twin infamy—the house of shame—but never reaching the goal, it necessarily follows that to their inspired intelligence must come the thought, 'Why are our prayers unanswered? Why are we unsuccessful? Why do men and women, boys and girls still rush headlong into perdition by way of the saloon, in spite of all our prayers, in scorn of all our tears?'

"Pursuing the matter to its logical sequence, woman found herself in the realm of politics; for politics is the science of government, and the liquor traffic is permitted—nay—licensed and fostered by government, which is but the will of the sovereign voter registered at the ballot box and expressed by statute. Then woman, with her purpose fixed against the deadly foe; her feet swift and fearless in stern pursuit; her heart hot with indignation, and sore with grief determined to follow wherever her enemy leads, and smite him in his lair, halts short when she is told to hear the imperial voice of government declare that the saloon is the protege of law and licensed to prey upon the home; its work of destruction is as lawful as her own pure love and so to spite of all her pleas and tears, her passionate appeals and her brave endeavors, the rum power entrenches itself behind the ballot box, whither she is forbidden to come, although immigrants in our land only a few days can have the privilege of citizenship, and a Christian nation will have it so. Impelled by the voice of God, the W. C. T. U. has stood at the parting of the ways and said to the Christian voter 'this way leads to home protection, righteousness and peace, and that way leads to home desecration, the dominance of sin and the destruction of my people. In God's name choose the right.' All reformers must suffer for their convictions. 'Twas ever thus, and sometimes query whether there would not be a greater number among that class now, if the paths were easier to tread, and there were no ills in the way, but the battle is not to the strong alone; it is to the vigilant, the active, the brave.

"One of the great hindrances to reform is that so many Christians say 'We cannot mix religion with politics.' Why not? If politics is the science of government, and if politics is balloted and established in righteousness and truth, what higher standard can we possibly attain to or hope for? If our politics in county, State and nation is not built on the highest platform of truth and morality, whose fault is it? Who is responsible? The citizen is the monarch of the ballot box, and who is the citizen? Not woman surely for she is deprived of casting her vote for God and humanity and can only use her influence, and many times that is very little; for many men will not cast their ballots as their wives

MR. MURPHY CHAIRMAN

Former Governor's Selection as State Committee Head Approved.

ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY

State Committeemen In Session at Trenton—Fort to Speak In Union County.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy, of Newark, was appointed chairman of the Republican State committee at a meeting held at Trenton today. His name was suggested by former Justice J. Franklin Fort, the party's Gubernatorial candidate, and it met with unanimous approval. Mr. Murphy will open his headquarters at Newark at an early date.

Mr. Fort assumed County Chairman Frank H. Smith, who held the proxy of former County Chairman Hamilton S. Kean at the State committee meeting that he would deliver as many speeches in Union county as desired, and would render all possible assistance in this district. Mr. Murphy announced that he would hold himself subject to the orders of the national committee, and had received assurances that speakers of national importance would help in New Jersey's campaign.

Failing in his ambition to become chairman of the State committee, the Governor is said to have endeavored to secure the appointment of Senator Bloomfield Minch from his home county as member-at-large, in order *to have a staunch friend on the com*mittee for the next three years, in the event of himself not being returned from Cumberland county next year, when all the county members' terms expire.

David Baird was not in accord with this plan and insisted that the South Jersey member-at-large ought to be Senator William J. Bradley. Congressman Henry C. Loudenslager, of Gloucester, considered himself the man and said so, but David O. Watkins, present county member from Gloucester, would not stand for Loudenslager, and as an easy solution of the problem the candidate is believed to have determined on a personal appointment and selected Senator Robbins, of Burlington, the county in which Mr. Fort was born.

KATZENBACH ACCEPTS; DODGES EXCISE MATTER

DEMOCRAT ADMITS SEEKING NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR.

Former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, was formally *apprised of his nomination for Gov*ernor by the Democratic State convention at noon yesterday. The ceremonies took place in the Colonial room of the Trenton House, which was thronged with Democratic leaders from all over the State, as well as numerous local friends and admirers of the nominee. Former State Chairman William B. Gourley, of Paterson, as chairman of the convention which nominated Mr. Katzenbach, made the notification speech.

After the notification committee, which consisted of the chairman of each county's convention delegation, for the honor, he frankly confessed that he had sought the nomination, but had made no pledges or promises, he said, of political preferment, if successful. He said the platform as adopted meets with his approval. Declaring that the issue to be determined is good State government, he said nothing of the excise question.

Funeral of W. H. Miller.

The funeral service of William H. Miller was held from the late home on Park avenue yesterday afternoon, and was private. Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, officiated. There was present a delegation from the Elizabeth Lodge of Elks, of which Mr. Miller was a member, and the pallbearers were members of that lodge. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes.

Loot Out For Frost.

Householders who care anything about their flowers and plants are cautioned to be on the lookout tonight for a light frost. Weather Prophet John Neagle received word today that there is likely to be a slight frost in exposed places in the interior. There has been a decided change in the temperature during the past forty-eight hours, the thermometer registering 65 degrees this morning.

Secretary Robbie Recovering.

Secretary Kenneth Robbie, of the Y. M. C. A., is recuperating after a week's illness at Norwich, Mass. He will return to his desk next Monday. Philip Van Arsdale is in charge of the office during his absence.

FORT REAPPOINTS KEAN

SOMMER ALSO NAMED

Franklin Murphy and Samuel K. Robbins the Other Two Appointees.

Joan W. Griggs, as chairman of the State Republican convention which nominated John Franklin Fort for Governor last Thursday, announced yesterday, in accordance with custom, the four men selected *by the candidate to serve as mem*bers-at-large of the Republican State committee, one of whom the candi*date designates as chairman.*

The four notified by Mr. Griggs of their appointment, and each of whom, it is said, has agreed to accept the position tendered are: Franklin Murphy, of Essex, Frank H. Sommer, of Essex; John Kean, of Union, and Samuel K. Robbins, of Burlington.

It is soon as the names of the mem*bers-at-large were formally an*nounced Candidate Fort said he had tendered the position of State chairman to former Governor Murphy, and that State headquarters would be opened in Newark as soon as the ne*cessary preliminary arrangements* were completed.

While the nominee refuses to dis*cuss the manner in which he arrived* at his selections, it is understood that each of the four was named without suggestion or solicitation on the part of any person or persons, with the exception of Sheriff Sommer, whose name was presented as the choice of the "New Idea" wing of the party in preference to others who had been suggested.

DEDICATION EXERCISES AT FAITH CHAPEL

ADDITION TO EDEFICE CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING.

Under the auspices of the Baraca Class and the Philathea Women's Bible Class, the commodious new addition to Faith chapel was dedicated, last night. There was a large attendance of members of both classes and friends and the entertainment *and social features were greatly en*joyed.

The program was opened with an address of welcome by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson, who also congratulated the organizations upon securing such well-adapted quarters for their meetings. He spoke of the phenomenal growth of the Baraca Class and the more recently organized Philathea as well as the Junior Baraca Class, of which L. W. Randolph is the leader. Mr. Musson is the teacher of the senior Baraca Class and U. B. Crane teaches the women's Bible class.

The musical program included vo*cal selections by a quartet comprising* William Holmes, Mrs. A. J. Stigliz, Mr. and Mrs. David Patterson, *accompanied on the piano by How*ard Case. There were also soprano solos by Miss Leila Druse, accompa*nied by Miss Florence Dickerson*, while William Holmes gave several solos, and Whitney Frazee gave cornet solos.

Other addresses were made by L. W. Randolph, U. B. Crane and William Drake. After the program all adjourned to the new addition, where refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. The chapel was elaborately decorated for the occasion with flowers, while large streamers bearing the names of the Bible class organizations occupied a prominent place. The members were congratulated upon their excellent work and the fact that they have in so short a time secured the needed class rooms.

BUILDING IMPROVEMENTS

Silbert to Erect Large Building on East Front Street.

BUYS FROM MARSHALL

Acquires 47 Feet Front Adjoining Hotel Waldorf—To Build a Three Story Structure.

*An important realty deal was ef*fected today when Marcus Silbert, the Park avenue jeweler, purchased H. W. Marshall's valuable property on East Front street, just east of the Hotel Waldorf. It has a frontage of forty-seven feet and a depth of about 180 feet. The buildings are among the few old structures now remaining in the business section. The stores are now occupied by Cyrus Boice, as a cigar store, while the other store is used as a pool room and barber shop.

Mr. Silbert plans to tear down the old buildings and erect a handsome modern structure three stories in height. He will occupy one of the stores himself. Owing to the lateness of the season he will not begin to build before next year.

U. B. Crane, of West Front street, has purchased the property on the east adjoining the remaining portion of this old property, while Dr. Albert Pittis recently purchased the remaining portion of this old property, extending from that of Mr. Crane to George Finger's new one story building. This means that eventually the property will be improved with modern buildings which will greatly improve that part of East Front street.

NOMINATE MR. STEENGRAFE

South Plainfielder on Middlesex Republican Ticket for Assembly.

THE COLBYITES LOSE

Steengrafe the Only "New Idea" Man to Win—Mr. Fort's Ring-Speech.

J. Franklin Fort, the Republican candidate for Governor, addressed the Middlesex Republican county convention at New Brunswick yesterday. It was his second campaign speech, and he was greeted with cheers. The "New Idea" men submitted a reform platform, but it was voted down, 60 to 46. Dr. Frank D. Crowther, former Assemblyman, of Perth Amboy, was named for surrogate; Edwin McKeag, for city attorney; William Stults, of Cranbury, and Archibald Steengrafe, a "New Idea" man, were named for the Assembly.

Other nominations were: For freeholders, Frank H. Pownall, of Jamesburg; J. E. Montgomery, of South Amboy; George S. Bunting, of Piscataway; William Stacey, of Perth Amboy, and A. L. Mundy, of New Brunswick. For mayor of New Brunswick, Theordore Whitlock. Mayor Drury W. Cooper refused a renomination.

In his convention speech Mr. Fort said:

"The keynote of the campaign is harmony. We are more united today than we have been in the last three years. Up our way everything is a love feast. There is no controversy and everybody is happy. Last night at a meeting at East Orange Colby and Sommer and Dalrymple and the rest of the regulars and "New Idea" men all stood shoulder to shoulder and pledged for the success of the campaign.

"And why not? This grand old Republican party is big enough for all. It is grand enough and courageous enough to meet any issue. If it is right I will stand for it, and if it is wrong it will throw it out and stand for that which is right and just.

"If by your votes I am elected Governor, the door of the executive chamber will be open to every Republican in the State of New Jersey, and there will be no back door. Every man who is a Republican and supports the principles of the Republican party will stand on an equal footing with every other Republican, and every man, be he Democrat or Republican, will get the same hearing and receive the same consideration on any question of State policy.

"Let us go into the campaign in a broad, catholic spirit. United, let us stand together, and by that doing achieve success, not only that the Republican party may win—no, that is too low a motive—but to see that some good may come through victory to the whole State."

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Miss Caro B. Gano Is Now "Sweet Sixteen."

Miss Cora B. Gano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Gano, of 170 Grove street, celebrated the sixteenth anniversary of her birthday last night by an informal gathering of friends. Covers were laid for ten. The home was attractively decorated. Golden rod and ferns were used in the parlor, and the color scheme in the dining room was red and white. A feature was a red and white birthday cake, which occupied a place in the centre of the table, surrounded by sixteen candles.

Miss Gano was generously remembered by her friends, receiving a large number of gifts, including a collection of post cards from far and near. Guests were present from Annandale, Raritan and this city.

Funeral of Mrs. Shotwell.

The funeral service of Mrs. Edmund V. Shotwell was held from the late home on East Fifth street, yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including many of the older residents who had known Mrs. Shotwell during her residence here. Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Shotwell was a charter member and active worker, conducted the service. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were A. L. Cadmus, William H. Shotwell, Theodore J. Pruden, Myron Heath, Louis Heath and Walter Heath. The burial was in the North Plainfield cemetery.

James E. Church, delegate to the national convention of the National Protective Legion, recently held at Buffalo, will give a report of the gathering at the meeting of Plainfield Legion in the Coward building tomorrow night. Among the interesting things he will describe will be the imitation of 1,000 persons in one class in the presence of about 5,000 members of the order.

JUSTICE FORT UNANIMOUSLY NAMED FOR GOVERNOR BY REPUBLICANS, RESIGNS FROM BENCH AND IN STIRRING SPEECH ACCEPTS NOMINATION

Dramatic Climax When "He Hands Resignation to the Governor and Boldly Outlines His Attitude.

COLBY IN THE SADDLE

Standard Bearer for Home Rule, Though Plank Was Kept Out of Platform—A Convention of Thrilling Incidents.

Justice John Franklin Fort was named for Governor by the Republicans Thursday afternoon, after one of the liveliest conventions the party in this State has ever held. He developed a surprising, if not altogether unexpected, strength on an informal ballot, and on the formal roll call only 115½ of the 1,157 votes in the convention were cast against him. Of those, 110½ went to Sheriff Frank H. Sommer, of Essex, candidate of the New Idea section, and the remaining five to Justice Mahlon Pitney, regarded as one of the strong candidates the day before.

Fort's overwhelming strength on the informal ballot was not counted upon by his most sanguine supporter. The delegations had been left free from "pressure," and not the faintest suggestion of slate-making was over the gathering. Fort sentiment gathered strength all morning, and by noon he was the leading candidate. Still, none of the delegations had heard anything like the sound of a whip, there was a strong undercurrent of feeling for Pitney, and Vivian Lewis gained in adherents and second-choice sentiment all the time. The "up-in-the-air" feeling resulted in a curious state of uncertainty on the part of the delegates and the observers in the convention hall when Chairman Griggs gavel called the body back to business after recess. Predictions of Fort's nomination were freely made, but all the forecasters hastily added that if he didn't "get it" on the first ballot he wouldn't "get it" at all. Which means that up to the very minute of the voting of the ballots were sure that the Essex jurist was to be the honored candidate.

The result of the informal ballot made the doubts appear ridiculous. The votes piled up for him steadily, and the nomination became a foregone thing in short order. On that ballot Fort received 753 votes. All but six and a half votes of the Hudson delegation were for him. Essex gave him 121. Union gave him 48½ at first thought, then changed and cast 67 votes for him. In that first thought, Plainfield stood 2 for Fort, 6 for Lewis, 2½ for Sommer and 1½ for Pitney.

Lewis proved to be the closest contender, mustering 276 votes. Sommer's 120 put him next, and Pitney finished a bad last with 96½. On the formal ballot all the delegates except the Colbyites swung for Fort.

There was a moment of hesitation and the delegates waited tensely for a motion from the Essex Independents. "Get in line, Essex," came the cry from the balcony, and the call swelled. Senator Colby would hurriedly abort his supporters, urging them to do the graceful, the politic thing. He had some trouble, apparently, but his words were heeded, and suddenly Judge Jones, of East Orange, on a mighty cheer from the delegates by moving that Fort's nomination be made unanimous.

The nomination spread the balm of harmony and enthusiasm over what had been a most acrimonious convention. From 2 o'clock until long past 5 the Colbyites and the supporters of the liberal Sunday, headed by Carl Lentz, of Essex, had fought hard to force their ideas into the platform. Neither the Home idea nor the Colbyite extremist planks framed by George L. Record met with the approval of the majority of the delegates, and there were a good many of them who allowed their disapproval to be heard without waiting for parliamentary routine. Major Lentz was howled at, and Record had an uphill time making himself heard. The latter's speech brought forth adenunciation speech brought forth a demonstration from all restraint but for the unyielding mastery of the chairman. The delegates interrupted Record time after time, and the chairman finally arose with grim determination showing in every line. He was *there to see that the spirit of a Re*publican convention was observed, he told the disturbers, and he would hold the convention in session until Mr. Record had finished, if it took all night. The noisy ones recognized the master, and quieted down. There was no more trouble.

The fight on the platform was bitter and wearing. After it was all over, the platform as the Resolutions Committee presented it, with a simple pledge to maintain the needed excise legislation that had been accomplished, was adopted. Heat and excitement marked the debate. On the question of the adoption of the Essex idea, which was the Colby proposition for the local control of the excise question by vote, the convention was polled, resulting in 537 votes for and 619 against it.

When the nomination had been accomplished, the delegates were weary, and the warm work of the afternoon had left its taint of bitterness here and there. Then came Fort, summoned by the convention, and his coming swept all the weariness and bitterness away. His first action after the roar of greeting had subsided was dramatic in the extreme. Placing his hand in his pocket, he walked across the stage without a word, bent toward a box, withdrew his hand, and placed a plain envelope in the grasp of Governor Stokes. Then, after a pause, the nominee spoke:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention—I have in your presence handed my resignation to His Excellency Governor Stokes, and, having laid aside the honorable office of justice of the Supreme Court, I am now ready to take up the duties you have cast upon me.

"I stand before you with a profound sense of the honor done me by your choice of me as your candidate. For ten years I have been out of politics, and during that ten years I have not even attended a political meeting. I come, then, much as a raw recruit to your ranks, ready to learn again some of the old ways and to get back into the old lines of political action.

"I can say that this nomination came to me without personal solicitation of any kind. If there is any one in this convention hall who will rise in his place and say I have ever asked him to vote for me, or that I have ever asked any other man to ask him to vote for me, I will decline the nomination."

There was such a tumult of applause at this that the candidate was forced to wait for it to subside before resuming.

"More than that," he finally went on, "I do not have to thank any man for the nomination. I stand fre and independent as any man in New Jersey. No faction do I represent. I am unwilling to stand as the representative of anything but the grand old Republican party.

"At this time there is a good deal of independence abroad. Independence is a good thing and every man has a right to hold and express his own opinions. If I am elected I pledge my word to every man within the sound of my voice that I will know no man, no individual, no faction; but I will know solely the party as a party standing for the people.

"It is right that you should know something at this time as to what I believe. I have not yet read your platform—I haven't had time. But I am willing to take something on faith from the Republican party.

"I tell you now that if I disagree with anything it contains I will say so frankly. I think that what is in the platform is right. I don't know whether it is in the platform, but I believe in direct nominations at the primaries.

"I believe in an authoritative expression of the popular will in the selection of United States Senators. This cannot be made obligatory under the constitution, but it is present, but if there is an expression of the will of the people in some way at the primaries or the election it must certainly be as obligatory on the Legislature as if it were written in the constitution.

"I stand for an effective and efficient civil service in our State, and favor a law that will bring this about.

"I believe with all my heart in the doctrine of home rule."

There had been applause at the statement of each of the candidate's beliefs, but the home rule declaration was the signal for an outburst that was remarkable. Essex county's delegates arose as one man and cheered and cheered again. They waved their handkerchiefs and shouted their approval in every key. The rest of the convention seemed relieved, too, and joined in to make the demonstration even more exciting.

"I believe that each municipality should control in the matter of its police regulations," the speaker went on, in outlining what he takes to be views on the excise question.

"I think I can say, in view of the position I have occupied, that I am opposed to vice and crime and criminals in every form. The proverb of Solomon is as true today as it was when it was written thousands of years ago: 'Right exalteth a nation and sin is a reproach to a people.'

"I am not going to talk about railroad taxation now. It is too long a subject to take up here.

"Recently, while I was in Europe, some investigations were made. I do not know what was the actual result of these investigations. I have not had time to look them up since I returned. I have had lots of hard work to do in the last few weeks. But I do want to say that it appears to me that the Governor of the State of New Jersey should be more responsible for the management of State institutions than he has been permitted to be in the past.

"The Governor should be a member of every State board and comission. There should be a law like that passed through the efforts of Hughes, in New York, that would make the Governor, with these large powers that I have suggested, do his duty or be held accountable.

"This is the opening battle of the great campaign that will begin a year from now. This is a skirmish, and we are taking our place in the lead. I do not care whether the fight goes on under the leadership of Taft or Hughes, of Fairbanks or Cannon; let the battle go forward so that the triumph of 1907 in New Jersey shall blaze the way for the greatest victory by the greatest party in this, the grandest country that the world has ever known."

It was the nominees' first political utter ance of any sort since he accepted appointment as Common Pleas Court judge ten years ago.

After it was all over and the delegates were swarming about him to grasp his hand, Sheriff Frank H. Sommer, of Essex, one of the central figures in the great body of men, and a defeated candidate for the nomination, assured the nominee, as he had the delegates, of his hearty support in the campaign.

Senator Everett Colby, of Essex, and the Sheriff, the men who are the leaders of the New Idea wing of the party, accepted the invitation of Judge Fort to tour the State and speak in his behalf. Mayor Mark M. Fagan and Colonel Samuel D. Dickinson, of Jersey City, leaders of the warring Hudson county factions, were apparently equally pleased and ready to support the candidates and platform.

Senator Ackerman, County Chairman Smith and Mayor Fisk were well pleased over the result of the convention. Mr. Smith declared that the party had picked a winner and that the judge was the ideal. These were the sentiments of Mr. Fisk. Mr. Ackerman shared their belief.

"The convention," said the senator, "was absolutely free from any boss rule. The right of each delegate was fairly and honestly recognized in every instance. It was a convention of free speech. At times the situation was dramatic. It was a representative gathering of the very best elements in the Republican party. The platform may be said to be conservatively progressive and in accord with the advanced ideas of the people. The legislative record of the Republican party indicates that the pledges will be made a positive performance.

"I think Judge Franklin Fort will, I am sure, prove to be an ideal candidate. He will most certainly be elected. His nomination has brought harmony out of seeming discord, and it was delightful to see the many different factions at the close of the convention all enthusiastically singing the words of the refrain, 'We are a united party and we won't vote wrong.'"

JERSEY WATERMELON CROP IS A WHOPPER

PRICES TUMBLING AND FRUIT SELLING AT $9 A HUNDRED.

Burlington county's watermelon crop, taken as the standard of Jersey's output, is turning out to be a whopper, if not a record-breaker, despite predictions to other wise, made earlier in the season. Farmers were joyful over high prices obtained for the first melons of the year, but the public is now having its inning.

Where the housewife was paying 50 cents for any sort of a melon three weeks ago, prices have tumbled until the fruit is now selling in the market at $9 a hundred, with prospects of a still further decline from the ripening crops.

Many farmers are shipping their entire melon crop by canal to the upper Delaware valley, where prices, such as obtained here early in the season, are still steady.

TOBACCO.

Northern Florida and northern Georgia can boast of some of the largest tobacco plantations in the world.

It is said that one-eighth of the revenues of the United States is derived from the tobacco industry in one form or another.

According to statistics compiled by a tobacco expert, 4,500,000 acres of ground are now required to grow the world's tobacco crop.

Odd Name For a Mile.

A Burman mile is about equal in length to two English miles. The word mile in Burmese means "to sit," and a mile is the distance that a man goes before he considers it necessary to sit down.

BRILLIANT CAREER OF G.O.P. NOMINEE

Eventful Political and Professional Life of Justice J. Franklin Fort.

HIS RISE A RAPID ONE

First Appointed a District Court Judge by Democratic Governor—Seated in Supreme Court.

J. Franklin Fort

John Franklin Fort, the Republican candidate for governor of the State, was born in Pemberton, Burlington county, on March 20, 1852, and is the son of Andrew H. Fort, who still lives in Mt. Holly. His father was in 1866-1867 a member of the House of Assembly, and his father's brother was Govenor George H. Fort, who held the executive office from 1857 to 1860. Young Fort remained in Pemberton until he was 21 years of age, leading the life of a farmer's boy, and having his share of the country boy's hardships. His early education was secured in Miss Nicholson's private school in Pemberton, and after that he went to the Pemberton Academy, where his teacher was Charles E. Hendrickson, a warm personal friend of the judge, and in recent years his fellow-worker on the Supreme Court bench.

Justice Fort's next tutor was William Hutchison, afterward well known as "John Sands," under which name he wrote articles for the New York Sun. He then went to Mount Holly Institute, conducted by Charles Aaron, and from there he went to Pennington Seminary, from which he was graduated in 1869.

Preparation for the Bar.

In the fall of 1869 he entered the law office of former Chief Justice Edward M. Paxton, who was then a well known practising lawyer in Philadelphia, but six months later returned to New Jersey and entered the office of Ewan Merritt, in Mount Holly. In order to help pay his expenses while studying law he taught school at Ewanville. He was also in the office of Colonel Garret S. Cannon, at Bordentown, from which place he went to the Albany Law School, where he was graduated in 1872 with the degree of LL. B. Among his most intimate friends and a room-mate at the law school, was former Chief Justice Alton B. Parker, candidate on the Democratic ticket for President of the United States in 1904. This friendship continues until the present time.

Returning from law school without having attained his majority. Fort again entered the office of Ewan Merritt, and in November, 1873, having just passed his twenty-first months, he was admitted to the bar.

Campaigned for Grant.

When Mr. Fort returned from law school the Greely-Grant campaign of 1872 was in progress, and he entered that campaign for General Grant with vigor. During the next three months he made twenty-seven speeches in South Jersey. In the winter of 1873 he was made Assistant Counsel for the Assembly, and he also held the same position in 1874, earning money enough to reimburse his father for every cent the latter had spent on his education.

Justice Fort went to Newark at the solicitation of John W. Taylor, then president of the Senate, who was at that time the Senator from Essex. Hardly had he settled in Newark before he became interested in politics, and in 1876 went on the stump for George A. Halsey, who was defeated by Governor Bedle in his campaign that year for the Governorship. His first speech in Newark was made from the porch of Mr. Halsey's house on the night of the nomination. After that he toured the State with Mr. Halsey, making many speeches. Shortly after this Mr. Fort married Miss Charlotte Stainsby, daughter of former State Senator William Stainsby, of Newark.

In 1878 Governor McClellan appointed Mr. Fort a judge of the District Court in Newark, and he was reappointed by Governor Ludlow, but resigned the office in 1886 to practise law.

His Rise in Politics.

After Judge Fort quit the District Court bench he practised law for ten years, having a large and lucrative business. In 1884 he was elected delegate-at-large by the Republican State convention to the national convention, held at Chicago. At that place, with six others, he acted independently and voted for George F. Edmunds, of Vermont, for President, until the latter was dropped, and then voted with the rest of the Jersey delegation for James G. Blaine, whom he loyally and vigorously supported after the convention. In 1889 he was chairman of the convention which nominated General E. Burd Grubb for Governor, and toured the State with him and was greatly disappointed at his defeat. He was also chairman of the Griggs convention in 1895, and was a speaker with the latter in the "whirlwind" campaign of that year, which resulted in the election of the first Republican Governor in thirty years. In 1896 Judge Fort was a delegate to the national convention at St. Louis, at which McKinley and Hobart were nominated, and, assisting for New Jersey, he placed the name of Garret A. Hobart before the convention. He was also chairman of the committee on credentials at this convention, and presented the majority report for that committee, which read the notorious J. Edwad Addicks, of Delaware, out of the Republican party. Judge Fort's speeches denouncing Addicks and later nominating Hobart gave him a national reputation as an orator and resulted in frequent and frequent demands for his services upon the stump in other States throughout the the union.

Appointed to Supreme Court Bench.

Governor Griggs appointed Mr. Fort judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Essex county in December, 1896, and on May 4, 1900, he was appointed a justice of the Supreme Court by Governor Voorhees. The date of his appointment was the anniversary of the date of his coming to Newark.

Since his appointment to the Supreme bench, Justice Fort has sat in many of the counties of the State, and made many friends in all. He has presided over the courts of Morris, Sussex, Monmouth, Middlesex, Ocean, Union and Hudson counties, and at the present time is the presiding justice in Hudson. While in Monmouth county he directed the movements which drove the gamblers from Long Branch in 1902, and they have never secured a foot hold there since.

In all of his stumping tours Mr. Fort has paid his own expenses, and he has been a liberal contributor to the Republican party for its campaign expenses for many years.

Drew the State's Probation Bill.

Justice Fort was the first man to advocate indeterminate sentences and the probation system in New Jersey, and drew the bill under which the latter is now operating throughout the State. In 1898 he made a tour of European prisons under a commission from the United States, and reported upon them upon his return. The idea of probation and indeterminate sentences was such a new one that when Justice Fort drew the original bill providing for them for the Senate and House he had trouble in getting any one to father it. A hearing was given on the bill and Judge Fort appeared in its behalf, with the result that it passed by unanimous vote in each House with the exception of one man.

Justice Fort removed from Newark to East Orange in 1889, and has lived at 51 Arlington avenue, north, in that city since that time. He has three children, Mrs. Margretta Fort, Franklin W. Fort, a lawyer in Newark, and Leslie R. Fort, editor of the Lakewood Times and Journal. Justice Fort attends the Presbyterian church, and is a trustee of the Main Avenue church at East Orange, and of the Spring Lake Presbyterian church, at which latter place he owns a summer cottage, and spends five months in the year. He was active in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church for many years when in Newark.

His Private Life.

In his domestic life he is very happy. His home is his delight. It is a typical American home. No one who has ever entered it has failed to get the charm of the delightful hospitality and cheer always there. He is a man of exceptional social qualities, genial, kind and true. No one ever heard him utter an unkind word against any man, nor did any one ever hear an obscene remark or improper story from his lips. He will do a kindness for any one, even at a sacrifice to himself.

He is a man with few recreations. He is devoted to the law and his judicial duties. They have been to him a delight.

He is no respecter of persons; rich or poor approach him with equal ease. He probably knows as many people as any man in the State.

Justice Fort has been president of the Sons of the American Revolution of New Jersey since 1905. He is a member of the American Bar Association and the New York and East Orange Republican Club and the Essex Club.

HOLY CROSS BOYS HOLD A SILVER TEA

PROCEEDS TO MEET OUTING FUND DEFICIENCY.

The disagreeable weather did not interfere in the least with the attendance at the silver tea held at the rectory of the Church of the Holy Cross, Thursday afternoon. The rooms were crowded with patrons, the affair being given by the members of the boys' choir to make up the deficiency as a result of the outing last summer. The net proceeds were about $45.

The rectory was tastefully decorated for the occasion and the choir boys, attired in dark clothing with Eton collars and white ties, made an attractive picture. The boys were assisted by Mrs. George A. Warner, who poured in the tea room; Miss Gertrude Pearson at the candy table and Miss Ida Davis at the cake table. All articles purchased at the tea were delivered at the homes of the purchasers by the choir boys.

A feature of the afternoon was an informal program of vocal music by the choir boys. At the suggestion of the rector, Rev. George A. Warner, they assembled in the music room and gave several selections which were popular at the summer camp. *The patrons at the tea heartily ap*plauded the boys.

The tea was planned chiefly by the boys themselves and their mothers' support was enlisted through the contribution of home-made cakes. Those in charge were much pleased with the success attained and it is believed that the amount realized will about cover the indebtedness.

BARBER ISSUES DEFI.

Will Meet Allcomers for Hair-cutting Championship.

Frank Deluca, of 144 First avenue, Elizabeth, has issued a challenge to every barber in Union county to contest with him for artistic tonsorial championship and will bet $500 he wins. The contestants must show their skill in four different styles in haircutting.

This challenge came about through a dispute in the barbershop in which Deluca was employed. He was the head man and had five others under him. These five, during a dull moment yesterday morning, started an argument about who could cut hair the best, but all agreed that each had it all over the "boss." Deluca resigned on the spot, seeing that he had lost the respect of his subordinates, and ten minutes later issued his challenge.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of James M. Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver B. Leonard, of Mercer avenue, to Miss Marion Thompson, daughter of Mrs. William Thompson, of this city.

Brilliant Hair.

Our ancestors, the Saxons, dyed their hair blue, green or orange, according to taste.

STATE C. E. CONVENTION

Committee in Charge of Program Has Done Its Work.

TO BE HELD ON OCT. 9

Notable Speakers Among Those Who Will Take Part in New Jersey Gathering.

The committee arranging the program for the twenty-first annual New Jersey Christian Endeavor convention, to be held in the Peddie Memorial Baptist church, Newark, Oct. 10 and 11, has completed its work. The speakers secured by the committee after six months' work are among the leaders in Endeavor activity, and include Miss Grace L. Jones, superintendent of the New York junior department; Rev. Dr. William Patterson, pastor of Bethany Presbyterian church, Philadelphia; S. D. Gordon, the author of "Quiet Talks on Prayer," and who has spoken this year at the Northfield and Sagamore Beach conferences; Bishop Alexander Walters, Eastern leader in colored church activity; Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn; Rev. Dr. Frederick J. Stanley, secretary of the American Sabbath Union; Rev. Dr. D. Case, pastor of the Hanson Place Baptist church, Brooklyn; Rev. Dr. C. H. Tyndall, of Mt. Vernon, and Rev. Dr. John W. Phillips, of Binghamton, N. Y.

As the State union becomes of age at this convention an added interest is being taken in the coming gathering by New Jersey Endeavorers. A new feature this year will be a conference of district secretaries and county and local union workers, to be held on the morning of the opening day. The State secretary, Miss Ida B. Stephens, of Hackettstown, will be in charge of the secretaries of the New York State Endeavor Union. John L. Clements will take a prominent part in the conference. Among the topics to be discussed at this conference are: "How Shall the City Union Be Constituted" "The Executive Committee and Its Functions," "The Congress' Plan; Meetings, Members, Methods," "Committees; Lookout, Prayer-meeting, Junior, Intermediate, Evangelistic, Bible Study, Prison, Fresh Air, Correspondence," "Some Secrets of Successful Committee Work," "The Pastors' Advisory Board; Is It Essential?" "The County Union Calendar Problems," "Is a Congress Possible? If Not, What Should Take Its Place?" "Are Sectional Divisions Advisable?" "Its Intervisitation an Advantage?" "Are Rallies Practicable?" "Can Department Work Be Made a Success?"

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs Christian Harris, aged 44, of Elizabeth, N. J., is the mother of twenty-two children. There are three pairs of twins.

Mrs. Ida Webster, of Pratt county, Kan., last year harvested 8,000 bushels of wheat and 3,000 bushels of corn from the 800 acres she owns. Every acre of this was cultivate under her supervision.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., is a petite, piquant young woman with a slightly retrousse nose, large dark blue eyes, masses of wavy dark brown hair and has a pink and white complexion. She usually affects enormous picture hats.

Mrs. Emily R. Lincoln has been pointed by Governor Hughes to succeed her late husband, George I. Lincoln, as New York State agent of the the Onondaga Indians. She is also postmistress for the tribe and superintendent of the Iroquois Indian school.

Mme. Patti speaks Italian, Spanish, Russian, German, French and Portuguese perfectly, and of course her English is faultless. Her memory is prodigious, her repertory consisting of more than eighty operas, of which she knows every detail by heart, cadenzas and words included.

Frances Bradley Storr is a little Doncaster child preacher who is electrifying Yorkshire just as Evan Roberts roused Wales. She is the 12-year-old daughter of a working woman, who is at present the police court mistress.

Cocoa.

Happily there is one beverage, says Table Talk, that children love dearly that may be given them without question—cocoa. It is so rich in nourishment if made as it should be, with milk, that it ranks as a food rather than a drink, and is particularly useful in nourishing a child who dislikes milk by itself.

Yucatan.

Yucatan is a compound Indian name, meaning "What do you say?" which was the only answer the Spaniards could obtain from the natives to their inquires concerning a description of the country.

A Lost Opal.

The finest opal of modern times belonged to the Empress Josephine. It was called the "Burning of Troy." Its fate is unknown, as it disappeared when the allies entered Paris.

Indian Violins.

The Apaches have three different kinds of violins, each having but one string and played with a small bow.

FARMERS EARN MILLIONS

Wonderful Change in Their Financial Condition in This Country.

PAYING OFF MORTGAGES

Demand for Cotton Growing Rapidly, Making Low Prices Impossible.

"Notwithstanding the fears in the early summer that the long, cold spring would bring disaster to the crops," says the Manufacturers' Record, "it is now assured that once more nature will bless the country with abundant harvests. It is true that the phenomenal yields of corn and wheat last year may not be quite equaled, but it is also true that the output will exceed the average of recent years, and at the same time the increase in the value of farm products is likely to be sufficient to offset the decline in the aggregate yield. There may be a decrease in wheat of possibly 75,000,000, but with the price more than 20 cents a bushel above the corresponding time last year there ought to be a net increase of $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 in the value of the wheat crop over that of 1906. With an increase in the price of corn and cotton the falling off in these crops will likewise be doubtless offset by higher values. Thus the farmers of the country are once more to be blessed with a vast income—an income so great as compared with five or six years ago that it is difficult to comprehend the magnitude of the gain.

"The value of farm products in different years has been as follows:

Years.
1880	$2,212,000,000
1890	2,460,000,000
1900	4,717,000,000
1905	6,415,000,000
1906	6,795,000,000
1907	*7,000,000,000

*Estimated.

"These figures bring out several remarkable facts. Between 1880 and 1890 there was a gain of $248,000,000 of farm products, or only $254,000,000. Between 1890 and 1900 there was a gain of almost exactly ten times as much, or $2,256,000,000. But possibly the most striking fact in this remarkable exhibit of the ever increasing prosperity of the farmers is that the gain in the last seven years between 1900 and 1907 of $2,283,000,000 is only 9 per cent less than the total gain of twenty years between 1880 and 1900. The gain of $2,283,000,000 is a gain of nearly 50 per cent. in that time. This gain in seven years is almost equal to the total value of the farm products of the country in 1890. In the latter year the capital invested in all engaged in agriculture was $287, almost exactly the same as in 1880, while at the present time the per capita of all engaged in agriculture is about $600.

"Under these remarkable conditions we can readily understand the wonderful change which has taken place in the financial condition of the farmers of the entire country. Burdened as the West was ten years ago with farm mortgages, as the South was until 1902 or 1903, both sections are now to a very large extent free from such indebtedness, the aggregate of farm loans probably being smaller than at any time since 1905. The prosperity of the farmers is seen not only in the paying off of hundreds of millions of mortgages and in the building of better homes, but also in the heavy deposits in the country banks throughout the West and South.

"Every banker in all the agricultural regions of the country has been impressed during the past few years with the great increase in the deposits of farmers, and in many portions of the South a large proportion of the deposits in the country banks are made up of surplus accumulations of the agricultural classes. Such a fundamentally sound condition it is scarcely possible, however, unwise may be the anti-corporation legislation of the day, for the country to again sink into the depths of panicky times such as we have had in the past. So far as the Cotton States are concerned, it is quite safe to count that this section will receive for its cotton and cottonseed an aggregate of $800,000,000.

"The world's demand for cotton has been growing at such a rapid pace that we are not likely to see low prices for a long time to come, if ever again; and whether this year's crop fulfils the estimate of the bulls or the bears, the price will doubtless be so regulated by market conditions as to give the great total of $800,000,000. Of this sum Europe will probably pay into the South to meet its bill for cotton at least $500,000,000, and with such conditions there must of necessity be great business activity."

Beautifying Vine Street.

William C. Krausse has purchased the two dwelling houses next west of his own property on Vine street, the borough, and is moving one of them back several feet in order that the front will be on a line with the other houses, and he then intends to put both the properties in good condition and rent them to only desirable tenants.

A PLAINFIELDER ABROAD

Some Random Thoughts of Local Man Touring in Foreign Climes.

NOTES OF INTEREST

American Travelers Should Beware of Bad Coins—Quaint Signs Which Amuse the Foreigner.

BELLAGIO, September, 1907.

If a traveler desires to get really cooled off in the summer time he should visit the Italian lakes. This statement seems to partake of the paradox, yet if any one of your readers had been with me a short time ago at a famous hotel in Como he would have, I am sure, willingly set his seal of approval as to the veracity of my remark as above cited. That evening she wind howled and blew as it does during a March cyclone in New Jersey, and the next day saw many men wearing overcoats for comfort.

Sheltered as the lakes of Como, Lugano and Maggiore are from the glacial blasts of wind that are wafted over the Lepontine hills, yet they absorb just enough of the iciness of them to radiate a temperature both crisp and invigorating. That the season now has arrived must sound a note of gladness to the hotel proprietors, who have managed to financially survive the very rainy earlier months of the year, for the wet season was prolonged to an extent far beyond the memory of the oldest hotel keeper. It was not so only in England, Belgium, Germany, France, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal I hear the same thing. In beautiful Devonshire during the month of May in Italy, but everywhere in Europe. In and June it rained almost continuously, and while it depleted the pocketbooks of the bonifaces yet it produced a luxuriance of foliage, a wealth of flowers and an abundance of crops hardly ever excelled.

As to the Autos.

While in France, Italy and Spain the automobile is still in the eyes of those able to afford them. The conveyance par excellence, yet in England, Belgium, Baden and Switzerland they are now regarded with the favor originally bestowed, and many stringent regulations must be complied with at the present moment that only a few years ago were not considered desirable to suggest on account of the pleasant possibilities that it was hoped the auto would develop. Although the season is now on the wane the mention of the first auto in the St. Moritz region is announced, and the refrain from states "rigorous restrictions to its coming were imposed by the Grisons government," that being the governing body of the Canton in which St. Moritz is located. Recently on a protected highway in Switzerland a big automobile was driven 1,261 miles in twenty-four hours, so the press reports state, and while a few stops were made yet while running it averaged sixty-six miles per hour. Were it not known that if such vehicles are allowed to use the highway why not allow trams controlled by tracks the same privilege, and the reasoning being in favor of the locomotive because of its slower speed, you now see trams moving in streets heretofore unaccustomed to the sight; notably is this so in Ostender, Bruge, Brussels, Luxemburg and Switzerland.

Traveling Americans are prone to notice anything out of the ordinary in foreign countries while passing over with toleration any eccentricity obtaining in their own. Owing to the many ties that bind us to Great Britain, I am sure John Bull will not be offended if I remark on some of the signs which were prominently observed while passing through various English cities. "The Spotted Cow Hotel" was the sign that hung above a very respectable appearing hotel in the north of England, and a few minutes later we read, "Shaving, Hair Cutting and Repairs," endeavoring to attract the attention of those more seriously inclined to pay heed thereto than ourselves.

"The Hen and Chickens" Hotel is a well kept inn in the west of England, while "Hogg & Hogg," butchers and provision dealers in a very large business within a stone's throw of the Caledonian depot of a large northern centre, while the sign "Our prices are like a sinking ship, going down, down, down," must have originated during the period when accidents upon the sea were of more frequent occurrence than at the present time. Mr. E. Trickey holds himself out to be an honest hotel proprietor, while there is a Quiet street in Bath, where Mr. Cats are "attended," while a "Botanical Brewer" in Maidenhead and "Godliman" and "Bread" street in London did not escape our observation.

Much attention is being paid to the British workman of late at the present time. His hours of labor are shorter. If he is hurt he must be paid for his injuries under the new limited liability act, and the inner man is provided for through the medium of restaurants, not only cheap, but good. At these restaurants you can get a hot pot of tea for one penny, a fresh fried egg for the same amount, and I have on more than one occasion partaken of a very good lunch for the sum of 4½d or 9 cents.

When we remember that according to figures stated by the bishops of London, that 1,292,000 persons in that great city have an income not exceeding 21 shillings per week per family it shows how important it is that these cheap restaurants should exist.

A wave of socialism is spreading over England, and the propaganda must be making itself felt, for a decided Sunday school movement established fact, the school visably parading itself on Sundays in char-a-bancs, liberally placarded with the fact that its sponsors are those that fight for their principles under the red flag.

Those who are making their initial trip to the continent should scrutinize carefully the money they receive in change if they would preserve themselves from loss and humiliation. In the Latin union, consisting of Belgium, France, Italy and Switzerland the current coins of each country are legal tender in each other country, yet you must remember that unless Helvetia, represented by a female figure is standing erect on the obverse of Swiss coins is the coin good, for if she is sitting down the coin is an uncurrent one and worth but the price of old silver. These remarks apply to the one franc pieces and a little would be written as to what five franc pieces are good.

While drachmas of Greece are frequently tendered you by tradesmen. So much one might stand, but when the pesos of Chili and the copper 2 cent pieces offered to you in payment you wonder where the imposition will end. Do not be surprised either if you find an occasional lead piece in your change. The places are not unknown where a box of these pieces is kept to pass off on the unsuspecting.

In Switzerland, the postoffice does the work of the express companies at home, and trunks are as easily handled by the diligence as by express in that country as a bundle of papers is in ours, and it is not an infrequent thing to see jars of cream and boxes of eggs transported in the same fashion.

All some of the fashionable continental watering places the menus of the restaurants are not priced, the intention evidently being to obtain the utmost from a customer within the limits of reason that his pocketbook will stand, and while the food thus furnished is delicious and attractively served, yet I do not believe that it appeals to Americans to be charged two prices for anything. This allegation is not made upon hearsay alone, but from actual experience, with documentary evidence to substantiate it. At these fashionable restaurants the dining room is placed next to the promenade, the distance between the diner and the outside being separated but that measured by the thickness of a pane of French plate glass, and I have seen as many as 200 of the poorer members of society literally pressing their noses against the pane watching the beautifully gowned and bejeweled members of the upper ten, with their escorts, enjoying a meal with delicate wines and delicious viands running probably into as many francs per meal as each spectator receives pfennigs a month, for a most a speaking appeal of trying to content themselves with the sight of others enjoying in abundance what they may never have the means to know, and thereby seeking to engender feelings other than those of friendliness towards the participants behind the glass. Such ostentatious display of eating and acting is not helpful to the putting down of the socialistic movement.

No wonder we hear of an International Anarchistic Congress holding forth in Amsterdam. R.

COURT HOUSE DELAYED

Work on Structure Resumed But the Corner Stone Ceremony Postponed.

BIG MARBLE BUILDING

Cost of Structure $200,000—Extra Work to Place the Blocks in Place.

Work on the new $200,000 white marble court house for Somerset county at Somerville was resumed Thursday, after being at a standstill for two weeks, but it will not be in readiness for the ceremonies incident to the laying of the cornerstone on Tuesday, October 1, as planned.

The bricklayers, who were called off by the National Bricklayers' Union, because the contractors were employing non-union men on their work in other parts of the country, have been allowed to go back on their job and the foundation walls of brick are being rapidly laid.

A framework fully fifty feet in height has been erected in the centre of the excavation. On the top of the framework has been placed a double derrick for hoisting the great marble blocks into place.

A number of stone masons are now laying the stone walls which will set off the face of the building and bricklayers are facing up the marble with layers of brick.

COLLINS A CANDIDATE TO OPPOSE EGENOLF

COUNTY LEADER ACCEPTS CHALLENGE FOR A FIGHT.

When the Democratic committee of Union county will elect a member of the State committee next April to succeed Peter Egenolf, there will be a contest for the place, and the opposing candidates will probably be Mr. Egenolf himself and General Dennis F. Collins.

After Mr. Egenolf had made his speech in the Union county caucus at Trenton Tuesday prior to the State convention it developed that Mr. Egenolf is not yet reconciled to the leadership of General Collins. Egenolf was one of that wing of the Democracy which strenuously opposed Collins a few years ago and sought to read him out of the party, but against which faction the general has steadily made his way to the front till he grasped the undisputed leadership both in city and county, and came within an ace of making himself the most prominent State figure by the nomination of Martine for the chief justiceship a month ago, and for most a speaking appeal of trying to content themselves with the sight of others enjoying in abundance what they may never have the means to know, and thereby seeking to engender feelings other than those of friendliness towards the participants behind the glass. FORT BRINGS HARMONY REPUBLICANS PLATFORM

Nominee Declares Colby and Planks As Framed By Delegates at State Convention Sommer Assured Support as Soon as He Was Named. at Trenton Yesterday.

NO SECRETS TO HIDE ALL ARE CLEAN CUT

Aldeu Freeman, the Scold, Dissents and Says the Nomination Was Decreed by Corporate Power. Unequivocal Declaration of Principles and Ideals Upon Which Fort Will Make Canvas.

J. Franklin Fort, Republican nominee for Governor of New Jersey, who resigned as a Supreme Court Justice as soon as he was nominated, broke his silence on political matters Friday by giving out an interview at his home in North Arlington avenue, East Orange, N. J.

"I intend to enter into this campaign," said the ex-jurist, "with all the earnestness there is in me, and to make as strong a fight for right and my party as I possibly can. I shall go through the State and meet the people fairly face to face. I shall be frank on each and every one of the issues, and will meet all propositions as they are brought before me. I shall have no secrets to hide from any one, and every citizen of the State will know just where I stand and how I stand on each issue. I fear absolutely no question or issue. I have made no alliance with any one, and the people of each State elect me, as I know they will, a fearless and independent administration will be given them."

Explaining what he meant in his convention speech by "home rule," ex-Justice Fort said: "That exactly what I said; I am heartily in favor of home rule."

"As it refers to the excise question or Sunday selling?" Mr. Fort was asked.

"I mean just exactly what I said," declared the nominee. It is not a new doctrine to me, for I have long advocated it. I never doubted and never supposed any one could question the principle that every municipality should have the right to regulate its own self-government as it wishes. I may have something further to say on that subject when I go on the platform.

"And I want to say, that I am immensely pleased with the attitude of the convention that nominated me. It was a particularly harmonious convention, and the platform adopted is a grand one. Any candidate would feel proud to run on it. I shall heartily advocate every principle laid down in its various planks."

"I also greatly appreciate the attitude of the Colby or 'New Idea' element in the party after the nomination. Senator Colby, Sheriff Sommer, and many others of their associates crowded about me and told me they were for me to a man and would fight and work hard for my election. Senator Colby declared he would do his utmost for me, and said he would stump the State with me. I told him that I would ask him to do so, and was particularly pleased with his willingness to do so. Sheriff Sommer said he would speak for me also, wherever and whenever I wished, and I will most gladly accept of his proffer, too."

Justice Fort's resignation was presented at the State House, Trenton, yesterday. He left only one case uncompleted.

Alden Freeman, who went down to the State Convention in Trenton on Thursday as a delegate from East Orange, yesterday made a vigorous denial of the statement that Justice Fort was the unanimous nominee for Governor of New Jersey on the Republican ticket.

"I desire to correct the published reports that the nomination of Justice Fort was made unanimous," said Mr. Freeman. "When the motion was put, the East Orange delegates in the row of seats in my neighborhood voted nay most emphatically. We arose and left the floor of the convention as a final protest against the nomination of Justice Fort."

RAILROAD EVADED TAX IN MIDDLESEX COUNTY

ASSESSOR FINDS SOUTH AMBOY COAL PILES SMALLER THIS YEAR.

The Middlesex County Tax Board has fixed the rate of taxation for the several townships throughout the county. In South Amboy the assessor last year found $450,000 worth of coal stored there by the Susquehanna company. He assessed it, and the railroad company appealed, but the assessment was sustained in the courts. The coal company this year cut down the supply, so that only half of the amount of last year was there when the assessor visited the place this time. The tax rate of the several townships follows:

New Brunswick, $1.90; South Brunswick, $1.84; East Brunswick, $1.56; North Brunswick, 87 cents; Cranbury, 92 cents; Monroe, $1.28; Madison, $1.28; Sayreville, $1.20; South Amboy, $1.85; Perth Amboy, $1.72; Woodbridge, $1.64; Piscataway, $1.24; Raritan, $1.60; Dunellen, $1.83; Helmetta, $1.28; Jamesburg, $1.54; Milltown, $1.70; South River, $1.64, and Highland Park, $1.67.

FRIENDS OF MISSIONS IN ALL DAY SESSION

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN HOLD INTERESTING MEETING.

For the purpose of enthusing the members in the fall and winter work for foreign and home missions, an all-day public session of the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary Societies was held in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church Wednesday. The services were largely attended.

The Foreign Missionary Society met in the morning, and Miss Noll, the president, was in charge. The usual exercises were held and reports were received from all parts of the foreign mission field, showing what has been accomplished during the past year. There was a discussion as to the advisability of forming missionary study classes, and a committee comprising Mrs. Peter B. Bodine, Mrs. W. H. Hamilton and Mrs. Howard A. Pope, was appointed to look into the matter and report later. It was the opinion that the classes would be formed.

Luncheon was served at noon by a committee from both societies, after which the afternoon session was taken up with a discussion of matters pertaining to home mission work. Mrs. Howard A. Pope, the president, was in the chair, and after receiving reports from the home mission field, the members enjoyed an interesting talk by Mrs. William Ludlow, of Westfield, who presented extensive notes on the missionary conference held at Point Pleasant, Lake George, during the past season. The talk enthused the members and encouraged them to greater efforts.

In the evening the membersof both societies, together with other members of the church and congregation, attended a meeting in the chapel, which was addressed by Mrs. Cochrane, a missionary to Persia. She is engaged in medical mission work in that country, and she gave a concise and comprehensive account of her labors among the natives of that country.

MARRIED AT ST. MARY'S.

Theodore A. Martin and Miss Anna F. Swedling, of 1 Hampton avenue, were married Wednesday afternoon at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church. The ceremony took place at 3 o'clock. It was witnessed only by immediate relatives.

A wedding supper was held after the ceremony. Following the supper, Mr. and Mrs. Martin left on a honeymoon trip. They will travel for several days.

The groom is engaged in the express and trucking business. He is an ex-policeman, and has served in the navy.

Junior Endeavorers Elect.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society, of the West End Tabernacle, has resumed its activities for the fall and winter. These officers and committees have been chosen: President, Miss Eoale Romond; vice president, Miss Grace Squier; secretary, Miss Helen Taylor; treasurer, Miss Annie Bowman; chairman of the prayer meeting committee, Miss Edna Sterling; chairman lookout committee, Miss Bertha Stryker; chairman visiting committee, Miss Dorothy Bowman; chairman social committee, Miss Florence Taylor. The society meets every Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Republican Platform Declares for Home Rule.

The Republican party again presents to the people of New Jersey an account of its stewardship and offers its record of faithful execution of pledges as a guarantee of future performances.

We indorse the administration of President Roosevelt as courageous and patriotic, distinguished by intelligent, earnest and successful efforts to promote the welfare of all the people. Continued prosperity has been maintained in every branch of industry, and the position of the nation at home and abroad is stronger and better than at any time in its history.

We indorse the wise, progressive and successful administration of Governor E. C. Stokes.

The Republican party came into power after a long period of misrule, during which the State government had been administered in a spirit of partisan greed; actual dishonesty had marked many transactions; the State's money had been expended without authority of law, necessitating a diversion of the school fund to save the party then in power from the odium of a State tax; political power had been perpetrated by the creation of partisan officeholders, and by legislative gerrymanders; by thec orruption of the ballot and by the wholesale pardon of convicted criminals.

To remedy these abuses and rescue the State from misrule and disgrace, the people called upon the Republican party. Its fourteen years' record is a story of high performance of this duty and of increasingly high standards of good government.

Republican administrations have pursued a consistent policy of advancement and reform.

Republican legislation drove the gamblers' vice from our State and pledged her constitution to its perpetual banishment.

It inaugurated a system of publicity in appropriations. It has inaugurated a policy of using the surplus of the treasury for the payment of local school taxes.

In the fulfillments of its pledges to give a fearless and thorough consideration to the long standing problems of equal taxation as between railroads and other property, it has passed the laws declared valid by the courts of the State, which have increased the revenue of our municipalities and raised the State's income from less than $1,000,000 to over $3,500,000 per annum, $2,500,000 of which is by law distributed to the local taxing districts for school purposes.

The Republican party has inaugurated a policy of taxation of corporate franchises and by which the State annually collects a large sum for distribution to the taxing districts. We favor such systems as will compel franchises to bear a just share of the burden of taxation as compared with corporate and individual property.

A Republican Senate has twice passed a civil service reform act which has been defeated by the present Democratic House of Assembly. We pledge ourselves to the enactment of a comprehensive civil service measure in the interest of higher efficiency in administrative affairs.

The Legislature has passed resolutions favoring an amendment to the federal constitution of the election of United States Senators by popular vote; and until such amendment has been adopted we favor the enactment of a law, for expression in some authorative way by the voter of his choice for United States Senator.

We believe in the separation of State and municipal elections and to that end favor a constitutional amendment providing that national and State elections shall be held in even years and municipal elections in odd years.

We have enacted legislation for the reform of our petit jury system, and we pledge a continuance of our efforts for a better system of selecting grand juries.

Our primary law—a Republican enactment—has done away with violence and fraud at the primaries and has enabled voters to express their choice and exercise their will in the nominating conventions. We pledge ourselves to such amendments of the law as will simplify and improve our primary system. We favor the modification and simplification of the present primary law in the respects in which it is now cumbersome and intricate; and we believe that the most effective method to accomplish such purpose is a direct primary for candidates for all municipal and county offices, including Senators and Assemblymen, and we favor such an amendment of the primary law as will accomplish this end, with proper provisions for judicial review and recount.

The party has already undertaken the question of supervision of public utility corporations, with a view of increasing the efficiency, safety and economy of service in the interests of the public. We pledge ourselves to enact a law providing for a commission with ample jurisdiction and powers to enable it to regulate such corporations effectively and authoritatively.

The Republican party has accomplished needed reform in excise legislation and pledges itself to maintenance of it.

The policy of State aid for good roads was inaugurated by the Republican party, and this policy has placed New Jersey first in the nation in its road system. The Republican party stands pledged to its continuance.

We favor the pending amendment of the constitution providing for the creation of Assembly districts, passed by the present Legislature upon the recommendation of a Republican Governor.

We favor a law providing that all moneys collected for or belonging to the State shall be paid into the State treasury, and that no disbursements of State funds shall be made except upon the audit and warrants of the Comptroller.

We believe in simplicity of government and we favor consolidation of all departments and commissions of similar character, and regret the failure of the Democratic House of Assembly to co-operate with the Senate to that end.

We pledge ourselves to correct any and all abuses that may be found in any State department or institution, and to hold all officials to a strict accountability for faithful public service.

We call the attention of the people to the incompetency of the Democratic House of Assembly, to the disgraceful scenes that marked its proceedings, to its absolute control by the lobby, to its refusal to pass laws for the improvement of the civil service, to pass laws for the reform of the grand jury system, to permit the submission to the public of th equestion of separation of the State and municipal elections, and to the reform measures passed by the Republican Senate.

DREW FORTY YEARS OLD

WAS BANKRUPT IN 1875

Member of Faculty Saved It From Ruin—Its Halls Once Splendid Mansions.

On November 6 Drew Theological Seminary, the well known school of theology situated at Madison, will celebrate its fortieth anniversary. Drew Seminary is a Methodist institution, and is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, as a very excellent school for the instruction of Methodist preachers. The grounds of Drew were known at one time as the "Forest," and comprised the estate of William Gibbons, who, with his brother, Aaron Ogden, formed a steamboat company, the rival of Livingston and Fulton. The mansion, known as Mead Hall now, was in the old days considered one of the finest structures in the country. Mead Hall stone and along Madison Avenue, the massive iron gates and the stone porter's lodges are memorials of former grandeur. Asbury and Embury halls, which flank the right of the mansion, are buildings of the original estate.

Drew Seminary no doubt owes its existence to the counsels of the Rev. John Parker, the intimate friend and pastor of Daniel Drew, a wealthy New York broker, who left $270,000 for such an institution. Mr. Drew spent about $500,000 in order that the seminary might be formed. In the spring of 1875 Drew failed and the endowment for theological expenses was swept away. Professor John F. Hurst, president of the seminary, and Professor (now president) Henry A. Butts, with mighty efforts and through the generous aid of friends of the seminary, raised the amount needed to run the seminary. The growth of Drew Theological Seminary has been fast, and over 1,500 men have pursued their theological education there.

The grounds of the seminary are exceedingly beautiful, and one would hardly think that a college harboring probably 200 students, was situated there. Mead, Asbury and Embury halls are the original buildings of the estate, the former being used for the president's and registrar's offices, while the two latter buildings are used for the dining hall, students' store, tailoring shop and laundry agency. The Cornell Library, which is situated in the central part of the campus, was the gift of John B. Cornell and others, being built in 1888 at a cost of $90,000. It is one of the finest buildings on the campus and contains over 80,000 volumes, exclusive of pamphlets, etc., making it the largest library in any theological seminary.

In 1895 Hoyt-Boyne Hall, the largest dormitory at Drew, was completed at a cost of $100,000, and was the joint gift of William Hoyt, formerly president of the board of trustees, and Samuel W. Boyne. The president's house and the old administration building, probably the finest appearing structure at Drew, was dedicated in 1899, and cost over $100,000. The furnishings of this building are splendidly wrought and beautifully adapted to the needs of the work. The two friends of the seminary, who made this gift, have withheld their names. About forty years of earnest labor by some of the best minds and hearts in Methodism have given Drew Seminary a character distinctively its own, and the best thought of today is assimilated to the traditions of the past in a manner conducive alike to scholarship and evangelistic fervor.

BATTERY TO BE IN LINE.

Orangeites to March in Elizabeth's Old Home Parade.

Preparations for the Old Home Week celebration at Elizabeth are rapidly nearing completion. Contributins in aid of the project are being received daily. Richard C. Jenkinson, of Newark, sent a check for $50 this morning. Total contributions to date are $1,892.

The decoration of the city has already been begun. Several mercantile houses in Elizabeth have placed an order for extensive decorating, and it is believed that this feature will be unsurpassed in the history of the town. Flags have been extended from every trolley pole for several miles on both sides of Elizabeth avenue, Broad street, First, Third and Trumbull streets. There will also be quite an electrical display. The parade, of course, will be the biggest feature of the celebration. A request to be allowed to march was received from the famous Battery A, of Orange, today. It will be granted gladly.

First actual steps to bring the sanitary disposal of sewage about were taken by the borough council Friday night at a special meeting. "And whereas, The statements contained in the reports of the sub-committee of seven appointed by the committee of fifty heretofore appointed by this body, which reports were filed with the borough clerk March 1, 1907, and July 24, 1907, respectively, recommending the installation of a sewerage system in accordance with general plans and specifications of Messrs. Herring and Fuller filed with the borough clerk March 1, 1907, and that contract be entered into with the city of Plainfield for the disposal of the borough's sewage, meet the approval of this council, as already declared by a former resolution.

"And whereas, This council has under the law no power to commit the borough to the project of installation of sewers until after consent thereto in writing signed by the owners of a majority of real estate in the borough according to its assessed valuation as stated in the latest assessment for the purposes of taxation made therein, is presented to this council, nor until the same shall have been assented to by a majority of the legal votes cast for and against such proposition at an election in said borough,

"And whereas, In the judgment of this council an attempt should be made to obtain such consents and assent.

"Now, therefore, Be it resolved by the mayor and council of the Borough of North Plainfield that Charles A. Lee, William G. Debels, Andrew J. Kenney, George F. Brown and J. V. E. Vanderhoef, and any majority of them, be and are hereby appointed city commissioners to take charge of the matter of obtaining the aforesaid consents in writing and presenting the same to this council as a basis for its further action on the subject of the installation of a sewerage system."

FIRE HORSE LOSES LIFE

DRIVER NOT BLAMED

Department Officials Say He Was As Careful As Possible—New at the Work—$100 Fire, Horse Worth $350.

A $100 fire in one of the negro rookeries of Battle Row, Fourth street and Plainfield avenue, led to the death of a $350 horse Friday. The horse, one of the grays attached to the chemical engine, had its leg broken in a tumble as it turned the corner at Liberty and Second streets, on the way to the fire, and was shot.

At the fire headquarters no blame for the animal's fall is attached to William Claasen, who was driving. First Assistant Chief Jennings said this morning that investigation had shown that Claasen was driving carefully and making the turn in good order. The street was slippery from the rain, and Spot, the horse, lost his footing in swinging around. The engine ran into the animal and the front wheel broke its right hind leg. Claasen was thrown to the pavement in front of the railroad to the sidewalk, when the engine stopped, but escaped with bruised hips and knees.

Dr. L. D. Pocock, the department veterinary, was called and examined the animal. He ordered it shot, and Policeman Charles Flynn put the animal out of its pain.

Hose Companies Nos. 1 and 3 proceeded to the fire, which was in the middle house in the row, occupied by Mrs. Ella Hoston, and put it out. The cause of the blaze, which raged in an upstairs room, is unknown.

Claasen was off duty today, recovering from his bruises. He is not a regular driver, William Jaeger, the chemical engine driver, is on his vacation. The horse was between five and six years old. It went into service about seven months ago. The department regarded it as the least desirable one of the team.

Councilman Herbert Buxton was a bit cut up when he heard of the accident. He picked the horse out for purchase in New York. He said he had asked Claasen to be not allowed to drive the team, because he was afraid of his youthfulness and inexperience. At headquarters this morning it was said that Claasen had always done his work carefully, and was regarded as dependable.

On the street today it was said that the apparatus was being driven at a high rate of speed.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY AMONG FIRST BAPTISTS

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO ARRANGE FOR ORGANIZATION.

At a largely attended meeting of the young people of the First Baptist church, held Friday night at the suggestion of the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, plans were discussed for service for the fall and winter, and definite details will be decided upon soon. The committee consisting Dr. Norman H. Probasco, chairman; Miss May Shreve, Miss Marguerite Serrell, Harold Robins and Harry Woodland was appointed to draft rules for organization and outline the nature of the work. The committee will also nominate officers and will report at a meeting to be called by the pastor.

After the business there was a delightful social hour, the pleasure of which was enhanced by several piano and violin solos by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and Martin A. Korff. A feature was the singing of college songs by a quartet, comprising Gideon Pond, Jr., Harold Scarborough, Clyde Doane and Guyon Fountain. Refreshments were served by a committee appointed for that purpose.

Wesley Johnson, of East Seventh street, has sold her property at West Seventh street and Monroe avenue to William Lodge, of Westfield. T. E. Bodine, of this city, has leased his property, 120 Kimball avenue, Westfield, to Morris Hulett, of Brooklyn.

County Tax Rates Completed.

The Union County Board of Taxation has completed the work of determining all of the tax rates throughout the county, the rates at Rahway and Summit being the only ones not announced with the others earlier in the week. The rate for Rahway is $2.10, and that for Summit $1.82. There was also a change in the rate at Roselle township from $1.50 to $1.25.

UNWILLING BRIDE SAVED AT LAST MINUTE

Rejected Suitor Forced Girl at Pistol Point, to Go Before a Minister to Wed.

She Appealed to the Pastor for Protection and He Promptly Seized the Bridegroom.

Believing her life to be in jeopardy, Miss Belle Crouse, daughter of the Rev. N. P. Crouse, of Stanhope, was forced Thursday afternoon to accompany her frantic and discarded wooer, Percy C. Bissell, also of Stanhope, to the residence of the Rev. Dr. Charles N. Griffin, in Asbury Park. Here she was saved from an unwilling marriage by calling upon the minister for protection.

Miss Crouse has been stopping with her parents at an Ocean Grove hotel. Her father is the pastor of a Presbyterian church in Stanhope. They were forced to leave their North Jersey home in order to protect Miss Crouse from Bissell's unwelcome attentions. The youth, who is a student at the State Normal School, Trenton, learned of the girl's whereabouts, and arrived at Ocean Grove Thursday.

Meeting the girl on the street, Bissell, who was greatly excited, demanded that she marry him immediately. She flatly refused and begged him to leave town. Miss Crouse says she pleaded with him for nearly two hours. Finally Bissell said he had a revolver, and that if she refused to marry him he would shoot her and then himself. He showed the girl a loaded revolver, and she, being alarmed, agreed to accompany him to Dr. Griffin's residence in Asbury Park and there marry him. She knows Dr. Griffin, and says she consented to accompany Bissell because she believed she could escape him at Dr. Griffin's house.

Calling a carriage, the couple were driven to the Griffin residence. The minister had inquired as to their ages, and was proceeding with other questions, when Miss Crouse broke down and told her story. Dr. Griffin threw his arm around the young woman's neck, it is said, and after a brief struggle succeeded in quieting him. He was held a prisoner until Miss Crouse had returned to her boarding place in Ocean Grove, when he was released. Miss Crouse had barely entered the hotel when Bissell arrived, broke through a window and demanded to see her. He was told that she was not at home, and left the place. Later he was arrested by a policeman and ordered to leave the resort at once, which he did.

Bissell's courtship of Miss Crouse had been strenuously objected to by her parents. Bissell is a member of the First Presbyterian church of Stanhope, sang in the choir and taught a class in the Sunday school, and his parents are leading members of the church. The girl's father on Monday of this week told his daughter things which caused her to write Bissell a letter at the Normal school in Trenton, refusing to have anything further to do with him. On Wednesday Dr. Crouse, Mrs. Crouse and their daughter came here, stopping at 76 Lake avenue, Ocean Grove.

Upon the receipt of Miss Crouse's letter, young Bissell left Trenton and went to Stanhope. Finding the parsonage closed he came on to Ocean Grove.

It developed yesterday what action he would take against Bissell. Miss Crouse's father said that he understood the young man's parents had planned to send him South. Mr. Crouse said he would be satisfied if the young man left Stanhope, and he would see to it that he did. He will tell of Thursday's happenings, he said, to his congregation on his return home.

WATCHMAN FRIGHTENS BURGLARS FROM OFFICE

YELLED WHEN HE SAW THEM AT WORK ON NEIGHBORING PLACE.

One of the watchmen employed by the Krom Machine Works, North avenue, did a neighborly turn for the J. D. Lolzeaux Lumber Company, which does business across the way from the machine works, Friday. He scared two burglars from their office.

The watchman, one of six on duty at the works, saw the burglars at work at the side of the lumber company's office. He yelled at them, and they took flight. The watchman was armed, but as the fleeing men had not set foot on his own place he did not feel safe in shooting at them.

The crooks did no damage at the lumber office. They had hardly begun preparations to break in when the vigilant watchman discovered them.

Local Ministers Will Attend 85th Annual Presbyterian Meeting.

AT ATLANTIC CITY

Moderator to Be Elected—485 Pastors Will Attors Will Attend the Ses-

Presbyterian ministers from all over the State, including those from Plainfield and North Plainfield, will attend the thirty-fifth annual session of the Synod of New Jersey, which will be held at Atlantic City, beginning Monday night, October 21, and will continue the two following days. The session will be opened with a celebration of the Lord's Supper, and following this there will be the annual sermon by the retiring moderator, Rev. I. Alstyne Blauvelt, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Roselle.

The first order of business will be the election of a new moderator. The presbyteries take turns nominating the moderator, and this year the honor falls to the Presbytery of Morris and Orange. Next fall Newark will have the privilege.

The pastors will have the several Presbyterian churches in Atlantic City, with the co-operation of their sessions, are making ample arrangements for the entertainment of the ministers and elders at various hotels. Last autumn, when the synod met in Asbury Park there were present 218 ministers and seventy-three elders. In the State there are 485 Presbyterian ministers and 1,670 elders.

The synod is addressed by representatives of all the boards of the church, each man being allowed twenty minutes to present the needs of his department.

Some of the clergymen from the Newark Presbytery, who will probably attend, are Rev. Dr. David R. Frazer, of the First church; Rev. Julius H. Wolff, of the Third German Presbyterian church, the permanent clerk of the synod, and stated clerk and treasurer of the Presbytery of Newark; Rev. Dr. Isaiah B. Hopwood, of the Calvary church; Rev. Dr. David W. Lusk, of the Sixth church, and Rev. Joseph F. Folsom, of the Clinton Avenue church.

The other officers of the synod besides Mr. Blauvelt and Mr. Wolff are: Vice moderator, Rev. William P. Finney; stated clerk, Rev. Dr. Walter A. Brooks, of Trenton; recording clerk, Rev. John W. Kerr, of Elizabeth; treasurer, Rev. Dr. Eben B. Cobb, of Elizabeth, and treasurer of synodical home missions, William P. Stevenson, of Roselle.

Dr. Brooks will send out the call for the regular docket of business about October 1. There has been a large increase in members this year, the total communicants in Presbyterian churches being 79,029, which is against 78,024 last year and 74,783 the year previous. This year there have been added on examination 3,448, and on certificate 2,313.

Aside from the 485 ministers there are sixteen licentiates, five local evangelists and eighty-eight candidates for the ministry. There are 351 Presbyterian churches in the State, 597 deacons. Persons to the number of 1,219 were restored to membership, 1,962 dismissed to other churches and 1,062 removed by suspended roll and 1,051 died. There are 267 members in the Presbyterian Sunday schools of the State. Adults to the number of 1,022 and children to the number of 2,146 were baptized. The congregational expenses of the churches last year amounted to $1,201,415, and the sum contributed to missions and benevolences was $345,119.13.

STRANGE AILMENT FATAL

Dr. F. S. Adam's Death Supposed to be Due to Chargres Fever.

CONTRACTED IN GUATEMALA

Dr. Frederick S. Adams, formerly of this city, who for many years had been recognized as a geologist of note, and whose contributions to science in the past fifteen years have ranked him among the foremost scientists of the day, died on Friday in the J. Hood Wright Hospital, New York, after a brief illness, which the physicians of the hospital were unable to diagnose. His death was due to a fever the exact nature of which the physicians were unable to determine, but which he had contracted while on a trip to Guatemala in the interest of a mining firm of New York city.

Dr. Adams was born in Virginia fifty-five years ago. He was a descendant of Samuel Adams, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was graduated from the University of Maryland, and later took a course in medicine at the University of Heidelberg. For some years he practiced his profession both in this country and abroad, but later his attention was drawn to the broad fields of chemistry.

During the years that he spent in his new field of endeavor Dr. Adams worked out and originated over 3,500 new formulas. One of his achievements was the discovery of the synthetic process of making amalthia, from which can be later produced synthetically pure rubber.

The discovery of malleable bronze, which could be worked either during the hot or cold stage, was one of the scientist's most remarkable achievements. This has been known for some time as "delos metal," and, while almost attaining the hardness of steel, it can be produced at much less cost.

On July 25 last Dr. Adams accepted a commission from the International Mica Company, of 41 Wall street, New York, to investigate certain mica mines to which they held the rights in Guatemala. After an exhaustive examination of the property, in which he spent much of his time in the interior among the swampy sections of that country, he left for his return trip to the United States sixteen days ago. For five days he was held in quarantine at Punta Gorda, British Honduras, where, according to the regulations of the country, his temperature was taken daily. Through this test he passed, his condition at that time being normal.

No symptoms of any virulent disease developed until he reached New Orleans on the last lap of his journey, when a fever, which defied all known remedies, developed. On his arrival in New York several days ago he went to the home of a friend, Theodore Thomas, of Thomas, at 200 West Ninety-ninth street, New York, where his condition became so alarming that it was thought better to remove him to the hospital.

The physicians attached to the case were unable to determine the exact form of fever of which he was a victim. It was supposed by them to have been a fever, well known in tropical countries, called chagres fever, which may be in the system for months before developing.

A son by a former marriage is at present living with his grandfather in Ecuador.

Dr. Adams resided in West Seventh street until his removal from Plainfield a few months ago.

Highlanders Lose to Brookside.

The Highlanders, of this city, who claim the city championship outside of the City Amateur League, were defeated by the Brookside A. C. in a six-inning game Saturday afternoon, the score being 6 to 5. Conshee pitched a fine game for the Brooksides.

Miss Helen Hyde Entertains.

Miss Helen Hyde, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Charles Hyde, of Mountain avenue, who leaves October 1 for Dobbs Ferry, where she will attend school, gave an informal dinner party and dance at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday night for a few of her friends. Covers were laid for twenty-four, and the affair proved to be a delightful one.

Change Court Day.

It was announced this morning that the District Court sessions would be held hereafter on Thurs*day, instead of Tuesday, morning.* The change is made for the convenience of the lawyers, who have found their out of town engagements more frequent on Tuesdays than on Thursdays.

DRYDEN TROPHY BATTERED.

The Dryden trophy, offered in 1903 by Senator Dryden as a prize in the annual marksmanship tournaments at Sea Girt, was sent to the war de*partment at Washington, D. C.*, yesterday so badly battered and tarnished that it is a question if it can ever be repaired.

BIG HIGH SCHOOL, RECENTLY BUILT, ALREADY CROWDED

Lack of Accommodations in $125,000 Structure Necessitates Emergency Measures.

MAY NOW BUILD WINGS

Superintendent's Secretary Alleges That Out-of-town Pupils Have Not Caused Present Condition.

Notwithstanding the fact that when the new Plainfield High School was erected a year ago at a cost of about $125,000, exclusive of furnishings, it would meet the school requirements of a high school for several years to come, the increased enrollment this year has rather upset the calculations of the Board of Education, and a question of sufficient room in the new building now confronts the authorities. Only last week it was necessary to take the drawing room on the top floor and make use of it for a class room. Under present conditions it will only be a question of a short time when it will be necessary to build a wing or two on the building.

Some believe that the crowded condition is attributed to the fact that children from Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Dunellen, Bound Brook and South Plainfield have been admitted to the local school. In speaking of this phase of the question, Frank B. Clark, secretary of the Board of Education, says that the outside children are so generally distributed throughout the various grades that they do not materially affect the condition. The total enrollment of children in the public schools this year is considerably over 3,000, a substantial increase over that of last year.

The erection of a new primary building on Darrow avenue at a cost of $90,000, exclusive of furnishings, will not relieve the crowded condition at the high school, and if more room is to be had it can only come through the building of additions to the present building. This may not be necessary this year, but if the increase continues as it has during the past two or three years or even longer period, the additional room will have to be secured within the next two years at least.

For some time there has been a growing demand for another school in the West End, and last summer the Board of Education purchased a desirable piece of land on West Front street, between Marinero and Clinton avenues, where it is hoped to erect a building in the near future.

That the education of Plainfield children is costing the taxpayers a considerable sum is realized, but a majority of them, it is said, believe it to be money well expended. It was the increased amount of money needed this year for schools that jumped the local tax rate from $1.35 to $1.47, but it is hoped that Plainfield will benefit largely next year through the extra revenue expected from the railroad's share of the State tax.

WATER COMMISSION HAS BEEN DORMANT.

Several Months Since Body Has Held a Meeting; Secrecy of Sub-Committee.

Summer lethargy secured such a strong hold on the municipal water investigating commission that it has been several months since a meeting was held. A member of the commission was seen today and he declared that he was totally ignorant of what was being done. At the last meeting of the commission the engineering committee was authorized to go ahead with its investigations, for the purpose of learning the exact conditions and what it would be possible for Plainfield to do toward securing a municipal water supply.

What the committee has accomplished is not known by other members of the commission, but it is likely that a meeting will be held sometime this fall to receive the report of the body. Whatever investigation has been made has been done with the utmost secrecy as the members are supposed to be collecting valuable data which will help the commission to decide the advisability of recommending the purchase of the present water plant or establishing an independent one.

Hope Chapel Choir Outing.

The members of the Hope Chapel choir spent a pleasant time on New Market Lake Saturday night, and after a row all adjourned to a nearby hotel for supper. The affair was arranged by Miss Edna Eckert and Frank Rimmer.

OPERATIC ASSOCIATION IS LIKELY TO DISBAND

ITS PRODUCTIONS HAVE BEEN GIVEN AT A LOSS.

The members of the Plainfield Operatic Association have made no efforts thus far to plan for the fall and winter work, and the present indications are that the association will not present any operas this season. Ever since the association was formed, with but one or two exceptions, the productions have been given at a loss, and those at the head of the organization do not feel like continuing under such conditions.

The operas given by the association include "Pinafore," "The Chimes of Normandy," "The Pirates of Penzance" and "Mikado," in addition to a popular concert, but the expense has usually been so heavy that there was little chance of any profit. One opera given for the benefit of the Day Nursery did net a small profit, but as a rule there was a substantial loss.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, as the president of the organization, has been generous, and on several occasions made it possible for the members to continue their work, but he cannot be expected to continue to stand financial losses. There was some talk of presenting "Robin Hood" this season, but this has been found inadvisable, owing to the many strong attractions at the New Plainfield theatre. It has been found by experience that persons who patronize theatricals would rather see the professional rather than the amateur, and there is an apparent lack of local pride. Heretofore, William Holmes, the director for the association, has been willing to contribute his efforts without charge, at a loss to him from other sources. This he is not willing to do in the future, and the chances are that nothing will be done this season.

It is expected that a meeting will be called within a short time and steps taken to disband the organization. This will be done unless some more attractive proposition is presented that would warrant the maintenance of the association, and at present this does not seem likely.

CLINTON AVENUE GETS THIS GAME BY FORFEIT

WESTFIELD NINE REFUSES TO RESUME PLAY AFTER RAIN STOPS FALLING.

After six innings of close playing, Clinton Avenue got the decision from Westfield, in the second game of their series, at Crescent Oval, Saturday, by forfeit. The ruling and a difference of opinion between Umpire Dalley and the Westfielders as to the fitness of the field for further play, caused the trouble.

The rain tumbled down after six full innings. The score was three to two in Westfield's favor, and the game had all the marks of a gingery struggle all the way. Westfield had just a shade the better of things, but the Plainfielders had it in them to wrest the lead away and are sure they would have done it.

When the rain started Dalley called the game for twenty minutes. At the end of the time the downpour had ended, and the umpire ordered the game on. The Westfielders objected, maintaining that the field was too wet for play. Clinton Avenue was ready to go on, and Dalley patiently waited for the Westfielders to change their ideas. When it was quite certain they would not certain the notion of playing, he declared the game forfeited to Clinton Avenue, 9 to 0. There was not much hard feeling, but Westfield felt a bit aggrieved over the turn of affairs.

PROBLEMS OF CHURCHMEN

Knotty Questions to Come Before Triennial Convention of Episcopalians.

DIOCESAN DELEGATES

Deputies from the diocese of New Jersey to the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which will meet in triennial session at Richmond, Va., beginning Wednesday, October 2, and continuing three weeks or more will begin to leave this vicinity Monday, September 30, although most of them will not start until Tuesday, October 1. Bishop Scarborough will have to be present some time before the convention opens, as he will attend several commission meetings. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, this city, will attend the session.

Bishop John Scarborough, of the diocese of New Jersey, will also attend, and the deputies from that body are: Clerical—Rev. Dr. Alfred B. Baker, rector of Trinity church, Princeton; Rev. Dr. W. Stanley Jones, of St. Michael's church, Trenton; Rev. Dr. Borden Shepherd, of Christ church, Riverton, and Rev. James Stoddard, of St. Andrew's church, Mt. Holly. Lay—John N. Carpenter, of New Brunswick; William D. Oliver, of Burlington; Harry Humphreys, of Camden, and Charles E. Merritt, of Mt. Holly.

At the Boston convention of 1904 a canon that no Episcopal minister should be allowed to marry a divorced person while the former husband or wife lived went through the house of bishops, but was lost in the house of deputies. However, there was a compromise, and an amended canon known as Canon 19 which put so many barriers around a clergyman officiating at such marriages that most of them have been extremely particular ever since. But there are still many who favor the same rule which the Roman Catholic Church has, and the principal exponent of this belief is Bishop William Crosswell Doane, of Albany, brother of the late Monsignor Doane, of Newark, who is giving much of his life to this battle. The bishop calls upon all to take a stand against all divorce.

The twenty-third annual conference of Church Workers Among Colored People will be held in St. Augustine's church, Asbury Park, September 17-20.

The whole church seems to be divided on the question. There seem to be as many against the creation of colored bishops as are in favor of such a movement, and numbers are exploiting their ideas through the church publications. All are agreed that it is a condition that must be met.

The house of bishops, representing fifty-four dioceses, will be presided over by Right Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, of St. Louis, president of the house, he being the senior member in point of service. One of the questions which, it is said, will come up is as to whether it would not be better to elect from the floor a bishop to preside rather than to place all of this burden upon the eldest, who is too apt to be enfeebled by age.

PICKED HIS POCKETS WHILE HE WAS ASLEEP

CHARLES ROSE LOSES HIS WAGES ON TROLLEY CAR.

Charles Rose, employed as a motorman by the Public Service Corporation, was "touched" Saturday night, while returning to his home at 126 Watchung avenue, from Dunellen, after completing his day's work. He was making the trip home on a trolley car and being tired, quickly fell asleep. In the meantime someone boarded the car and took a seat with Rose. Before he reached this city, the stranger left the car.

When Rose arrived home he went down in his pocket for his hard-earned cash, intending to put it away for safe-keeping, when to his great surprise he discovered that his roll had disappeared. Being unable to get any trace of the stranger or his money, there is no possible chance of Rose securing the return of the cash. The theft has been reported to the police, but Chief Kiely gives Rose little encouragement as to regaining his money.

SOMERSET W. C. T. U.

Annual Convention to Be Held in Millstone On October 7.

The twenty-second annual convention of the Somerset County W. C. T. U. will be held in the Reformed church at Millstone on Tuesday, October 1. The morning session will open at 10 o'clock, with Mrs. Deborah F. Peeke, of Millstone, the county president, in the chair. After devotions the Millstone pastors will extend greetings and Mrs. Peeke will respond. Committees will be appointed and superintendents of departments will make their annual reports.

NEARLY ELECTROCUTED BY BROKEN LIGHT WIRE

LEWIS M. WILLIS ESCAPED DEATH BA FRACTION OF AN INCH.

On his way home from the matinee races, Saturday afternoon, Lewis M. Willis, of South avenue, had a narrow escape from death by electricity. As he walked beneath it at the corner of Leland avenues, a heavy electric light cable snapped, and one of the sections, sputtering fire, dropped on him.

The deadly end missed him by a fraction of an inch. The cable struck the ground with staggering force, but the bare point of wire did not come into contact with him. He realized the danger and leaped away from the wire just as the flashing end coiled toward him.

The blow from the cable did not harm Mr. Willis, but he had a shaky feeling for a while as he figured how close he came to electrocution.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

One of the most remarkable railway bridges in the world is that which connects Venice with the mainland. Built on 22 arches, it is 12,050 feet long.

After many years of deliberation and delay Berlin has taken the first practical steps toward the construction of an experimental line of suspension or overhead railway, with the cars hanging from an elevated rail.

India will be the first country to attempt to put the mono rail method of locomotion to practical use. The government has granted $5,000 to Louis Brennan to experiment with his gyroscope trains, and he is soon to build a model car forty feet long and twelve feet wide to run there.

MRS. SHOTWELL DIES AT FOUR SCORE AND TEN

THE WIDOW OF EDMUND SHOTWELL SUCCUMBS TO INFIRMATIES.

Mrs. Edmund Shotwell, one of the oldest residents of the city, died early Saturday at her home on East Fifth street, aged 90 years. She had been in feeble health for a long time, partly due to a fall at her home, which resulted in the fracture of a bone. Since that time she was unable to go out.

Mrs. Shotwell was born at Woodbridge, and she and her first husband moved to this city early in life. He died several years later, after which she married Edmund Shotwell, who has also been dead a number of years. Mrs. Shotwell was especially well-known in religious, missionary and temperance work.

She was one of the charter members of the First Presbyterian church, and maintained the deepest interest in all its work throughout her life. In speaking today of her Rev. Charles E. Merritt, pastor of the church, said that "she was a faithful servant and represented the highest type of goodness." Her unceasing interest in the cause of foreign and home missions made her a most valuable worker. As a member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union she was always advancing the cause of temperance. Although her physical condition prevented her from being active of late, she will be greatly missed in this line of work.

Mrs. Shotwell's nearest surviving relatives are a brother, who resides at Metuchen, and three granddaughters, Mrs. A. V. Searing, Jr., Mrs. Russell Hand and Miss Jessie Pruden, all of this city.

CLUBDOM SWELLED BY ANOTHER "ORGANIZATION."

First Nighters Launched at Iroquois With First-Night Dinner.

Something new in local clubs came into being last night. Under the guidance of Jerome Leary, of the Hotel Iroquois, the First Nighters was—or is it "were?"—organized at the Park avenue hostelry. The idea is to organize a body dedicated to the enjoyment of initial performances at the theatre and of such other innocent amusements as make evenings pleasant.

Marcus Hoyt, who has a record as a real first-nighter, was elected president. Mayor F. Scott Lewis is vice president, and D. J. Carney is prompter—otherwise secretary.

The First Nighters launched themselves in the club world with due appropriateness. The inevitable dinner was the first formal affair held at the hotel under the new dining room management, and it was tendered by the management. Steward Daniel Weber, who has an awe-inspiring record as a cookery expert to people known name for and from New York papers, prepared the dinner himself. It was up to the record. The table was handsomely decorated. The dinner had one feature noteworthy above all others. There were no speeches.

Approaching Wedding.

Invitations have been issued by Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Westcott, of Fanwood Borough, to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Lillian Fancher, and Edward Frank Howe, of Troy, N. Y. The event will be celebrated Saturday night, October 12, at 7 o'clock at the Baptist church, Scotch Plains.

Ned Wentworth's Likeness

By HELEN DICKENSON.

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

He was waiting patiently. The expression on his face was anxious, rather than careless. His eyes were fixed on the girl near him, as though trying to read the thoughts that were framing in her mind.

"Well, Alice, aren't you ever going to tell me what you think of it? Is it good,—or bad; or, is it both? Suspense is wearing you know, and man's patience limited."

"The photo sets my thoughts to wandering, Ned, but I will forward your patience and suspense. That picture is as near perfect as anything of its nature I have ever seen. It really could not be more life-like, and be inanimate."

She spoke the words slowly and deliberately, as though thinking as she went. The words were all he could have expected, yet, something in their tone suggested a vague feeling of disappointment. There was to them, as though unconscious of its presence, a smothered note of sadness, and it was this that made the man ask:

"Does that quite cover it?"

"No, not quite, Ned. It is the picture of a real man, alive, fearless, honorable. The jaw is strong and firm; mouth, tender and humor; the nose has the clear-cut lines of an Apollo, and the eyes—they are beautiful. Their depths are deep, deep, down, and their ring is true. The high, broad forehead stands out boldly in its might of fulness and intellect. There is forcefulness, daring, and withal, a gleam of kindness about the face, to which one would never appeal in vain. It is the face of a man from whom we should expect big things, high ideals and a character above reproach. I have been reading the face in the picture, Ned, and it is all I have said. Is it enough?"

A glance at the man's face, looking into hers, must have shown her that it was indeed enough. With her description of each feature, the expression on the face had brightened, and when she finished, none could doubt. least of all herself, that she had said one word too much. It was the face in the picture, with the additional coloring and beauty of life.

The words set his heart to pounding. The warm blood mounted to his brow, and the joy of living and breathing brought a radiant sparkle to his serious gray eyes. Yes, indeed, it was the face in the picture.

"Alice Hamilton," he said gravely, "I would never have accused you of flattery. Is this your first offense? Tell me, Alice, do you really think I am the embodiment of what you read in that face?"

The quiet seconds hurried onward. At last, raising her eyes, until they looked straight into his, she said:

"No, Ned, I not only don't think you are what that picture says you are, but I know you are not."

Perplexity and surprise shut out every other emotion from his countenance.

"How can I be so different from my own likeness, Alice? Be serious, won't you?"

"Do you want me to be honest, Ned? I am afraid if I am it will hurt, and you can't stand hurts very well. Don't ask me to play the ostrich, unless you are prepared for the keen edge of the knife."

"I am afraid I shall have to ask you to perform it just the same. What is there about that make up by photograph so much a counterfeit?"

"Well, I will tell you, Ned. It is another instance where all that glitters is not gold. Instead of the strength one expects to find, they find, not a weakness, but only a negation, for that which is wrong. A stubborn, obstinate resistance to any condition or influence that shows you are wrong. I have sometimes wondered if there was ever another, who could manipulate his conscience so skillfully as you do. You can always reason yourself into making it approve, when if you would only stop, and listen, you could hear the inner voice trying to reason you into recognizing the right from the wrong. You admire lofty ideals, especially when personified in men, but that is not the type of man you seek. No, rather the reverse, and oh, it is so easy for you to pat yourself on the back and say, 'Well, anyone would have done it. I can't make conditions, and after all, it is just as people look at things.' You are a giant in intellect. You could think great things, but you could not accomplish them. Before your thought grew cold you would decide it would entail too much bother. You are kind enough, but even that resolves itself into unkindness. If another appeals to your sympathies, a woman especially, there is nothing you would refrain from doing for her, and there, again, you would lose sight of that delicate dividing line, between chivalry and honor. I know you so well, Ned. Forgive me for saying these things. They do hurt; I knew they would, but you wanted the truth. I have tried to be fair, but I can't help seeing you as you are, can I?"

The gladsome curves, the radiance and sparkle were all gone now, and the little straight lines were but the outward semblance of the inner hurt.

"Are there no offsets to these detestable things, Alice? Is there nothing in me that counts?"

"There are hosts of things that count, Ned. You may be as good as the majority, but you could be away ahead of them if you would only be honest with yourself. If you would stop trying to make things that are wrong, seem right. If you would only use a little of your granite will and determination in pursuance of things worth while, instead of following some phantom success that can't do otherwise than ultimately accomplish your ruin. And the greater the talent a man has, the harder it is to forgive his abuse of it."

Ned laughed a hard little laugh.

"Thank heaven, I have some brains. There doesn't seem much else to congratulate myself over."

In her keen desire to awaken this man to a realization of the pitiful waste he was making of the great gifts with which nature had endowed him, Alice Hamilton had arraigned him with all the severity she could muster, and she had lost sight of the fact, notwithstanding it might all be true, that Ned Wentworth had a sense of feeling equally as susceptible as her own, and the hardest part of the hurt was the knowledge that she had given him her own estimate of his character.

She was not slow to realize this, as she caught the expression on his face, and knew that her words had brought it there. Then she did—just what a generous-hearted, impulsive, flesh and blood girl would want to do, try to take back the words her earnestness had led her into saying.

"Don't pay any attention to me, Ned. I did not think it would matter quite so much, and what right have I to pass judgment on you, anyway. Just forget all those abominable things, will you, and remember I said you were good and kind, and that you had ten times as many brains as half the men with whom we associate. I do know that, and so does anyone else who knows you."

In her endeavor to impress upon him her sincerity, she came close to him, and let her hand fall upon his shoulder. It was the one action that his equilibrium could not coolly withstand just then. He drew the girl to him, almost roughly, and with an expression she had never before seen on his face, he said:

"It would not matter so much, Alice, if the things you have told me were not all true. But they are. You know it, and so do I."

"But, Ned, you don't need to keep on letting them be true, do you?"

"Well, it is a mighty hard task for a man to mould himself all over again, and you are the only person on this earth for whom I would care to try. Alice, Girl, if I undertake it, will you help me?" And the answer was:

"Ned, that is why I told you,—because I wanted to help you."

MEAN TRICK OF COLLECTOR.

Unfortunate Debtor Not Even Safe In Sacred Edifice.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the noted explorer, was talking in New York about his idea of trying to reach the South Pole with automobiles.

"Polar exploring in automobiles seems a very radical innovation, almost a shocking innovation, doesn't it?" he said. "It seems almost as shocking as the innovation that was employed one Sunday night upon a Brooklyn doctor. The doctor was in church. He occupied a front pew. The church was crowded, the preacher preaching eloquently; a perfect silence reigned. But suddenly a man dashed in at the door. He held up his hand for the preacher to pause. Then he cried:

"'Is Dr. Henry Smith here?'

"With all eyes centered upon him, Dr. Henry Smith rose slowly in his front seat and turned round.

"'What is wanted?' he said. He had the grave, weary air of a man who is almost overburdened with the responsibilities heaped upon him.

"'Are you Dr. Henry Smith?'

"'I am.'

"'Well, doctor, I am Cache & Co.'s new collector. When will it be convenient for you to settle that little account of theirs?'"

TOO ALL-FIRED GENEROUS.

Traveler Unable to Appreciate Alkali Ike's Generosity.

A railroad reporter declared in Upton Sinclair's hearing that freight rebates were sometimes granted purely out of generosity.

Mr. Sinclair, smiling, exclaimed:

"Admit that to be true, and then your generosity is no better timed than Alkali Ike's. A traveler arrived late one night at the Palace hotel in Tin Can, and, being very tired, he ordered his dinner to be served in his room. As he was peacefully eating his bear steak, he heard a loud noise downstairs, a bang, an oath, two quick crashes, and then a bullet shot up through the floor and wounded the traveler in the leg. Putting down his knife and fork, he rose and began to hop about the room with loud groans. Suddenly the landlord burst in on him.

"'What did that char bullet go to?' the landlord exclaimed, laughing. 'Oh, air ye hurt, stranger? Well, now, that's too bad! Ye see, Alkali Ike and Redface Leary had an argyment over their liquor down in the bar, and fit it out fair and square. Redface fired fust and missed, and Ike—the all-fired generous cuss!—he fired in the air.'"

Standardized Sausages.

There is nothing to be said against a well-made sausage which is prepared with sound meat. On the contrary, it affords a valuable, convenient and appetizing food, and that being so, the sausage should be standardized so as to prevent its being loaded with a cheap substitute which is nearly always bread or broken and waste biscuits.—London Lancet.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Sept. 29: "Liberal toward God." "They all did cast in of their superfluity, but she of her want did cast in all that she had, all her living."—Mark xii. 41-44.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

(Topics and Scripture Lesson: Prov. xxvi. 5-6; Prov. xi. 24, 25; II Cor. ix. 6-15; ix. 6-12.

One of the surest tests of religion is the mode of money getting, not alone gether the amount given, but rather the sentiment which lies back of and prompts the offering. The spirit of a gift cannot be told by the price tag of the dealer. That represents only the cash he received, and has little to say to the giving. The real gift is to be estimated by the thought, the effort to get and the outgoing of soul on the part of the giver.

Few things in life are of more worth than the privilege of making gifts. This is often lauded on the other side, which is a serious mistake. The receiving can never produce the happiness which giving does so long as human nature remains what it is. Real joy comes from doing for others then in having others do for oneself. That is the way we are made. Look around you for awhile and watch things and folks and you will see it for yourself, and the glow of the new discovery will come to you. Such experience you will not easily forget. But if you ever know it you must discover it for yourself. No amount of telling it by others or repetition of the words and facts by yourself will give you a grasp on the truth. It must be you see it with your inner eyes and feel it at the center of your being will you understand and believe it. Each one makes his own discoveries and builds his own religion.

This is profoundly true in all that touches our relations to God. And there is such a variety of ways of giving to His cause, ranging all the way from the trivial and almost thoughtless penny-in-the-collection-plate kind and earnest. At one of the fashionable summer colonies for all our land during the past season the annual fair in aid of the local church was held on the grounds of one of the wealthy residents. Milk from his dairy sold for $1 a glass. Soda pillows to the number of 200 sold for $20 apiece. Five thousand dollars was the net profit of this fashionable function. And some of the truly faithful officers who subsequently became opposing commanders in the Civil war.

FASHIONS LATEST IDEAS.

In the very newest neckwear, fagoting is applied in many different ways. Fagoted bands are much used to outline shaped collars of heavy linen or organdie.

The elastic belt, imitating pompadour ribbon, is a novelty. The pink ones with flowers in dull pastel tints are particularly lovely, especially when worn with a gold buckle.

Embroidery is prettier and more fluffy than ever before. Fine hand embroidery and masses of ruffles are the dainties that can be worn with evening gowns.

There are very attractive tailored shirtwaist suits are worn with a white tailored skirt, made with turn-down collar and turnback cuffs, embroidered in a tiny design and scalloped on the edges.

The decided color of the moment is green. Shades of Nattier or Copenhagen blue. Green in dark emerald, lettuce, spinach or onion peel shades are the most popular. Bluish-green is very fashionable for some gowns.

SOMETHING NEW.

Quite the smallest pretties things imaginable are the feathered hatpins that have arrived recently from Paris.

They are shown in endless variety. Humming birds offer themselves as particularly charming and adaptable, owing to the rich color of their plumage, and there are also some dear little peacocks in realistic colorings, and a distinguished note is shown in black crows.

The fascinating are these feathery hatpins that they almost amount to trimmings.

WOMAN AND HER POCKET.

Why cannot female ingenuity devise some receptacle, approved of by fashion, asks the Onlooker, which will enable its wearer to bestow a small article, say a penny or a railway ticket, in a powder puff, with some degree of certainty of being able to find it when wanted at five minutes' notice?

When one is waiting at the train gate, the inevitable flurried female is sure to show us, on being asked to show her ticket, fumbles about in an overcrowded reticule, almost disrobes to reach an inaccessible pocket, and in the end discovers that she has mislaid it between the palm of her hand and her glove, which has to be removed laboriously.

The time wasted may make all the difference between catching and losing an express.

A HAT HINT.

Hats may be renovated by dipping a piece of black material in a little liquir ammonia poured into a small basin of cold water and gently sponging the hats all over. They need not be made really wet. Hang in a warm place and brush occasionally as they dry. You can almost fancy you have new hats.

Doctors in Germany.

In Germany if a doctor is wanted suddenly in the night, instead of flying round in a cab or rushing wildly from house to house, one goes to the nearest emergency station and fetches one of several doctors who are always on night duty in their turn.

SIRES AND SONS.

Senator Heyburn, of Idaho weighs more than any other Senator.

Lord Euston, the distinguished son of the aged Duke of Grafton, is never lost in a crowd. He is six feet four inches in height.

Horace Goodrich Brown, of Collinsville, Conn., rode a bicycle until he was nearly 85 years old. He has been in the employ of one firm for sixty years.

Barnum and Bailey are in charge of the Burlington (Vt.) railroad station. Barnum is agent, and Bailey is the train dispatcher. The two never, however, been in the circus business.

The only surviving veteran of the Mexican war in Vermont is John Merrill Goodwin, of Ryebate. His four great-grandfathers served in the Revolutionary war and his father in the war of 1812.

Major Paymaster Eugene Coffin, of Manila, has had his left arm amputated, the result of infection from the handling of money in paying troops. He is a veteran of the Civil war and a member of the McKinley negligent.

The Duke of Devonshire has seven stately homes—six in England and one in Ireland—each of them fit for the entertainment of royalty, not one of which, as he confessed the other day, he has yet lived long enough in to explore thoroughly.

The languid grace and philosophic claim which distinguished Mr. Balfour's predecessor in the premiership never desert him, even in the stress of golfing. Even when he is badly bunkered his strongest ejaculation is said to be "Botheration!" or "This is indeed baffling!"

John Fritz, ironmaster and inventor, famous for his perfection of armor plate processes, celebrated the eighty-fifth anniversary of his birth at his home in Bethlehem, Pa., August 21. He was born in a blacksmith in 1828 and in his long career has been identified with almost every important step in the process of making iron and steel.

Thomas Read, who was orderly for Major Robert E. Lee of the Fourth Infantry during the Mexican war, is still living in Minneapolis at the age of 82. Captain Ulysses S. Grant was quartermaster of the regiment, and the veteran Read delights in reminiscences of the two officers who subsequently became opposing commanders in the Civil war.

FUN GOT HIM IN TROUBLE

MARDI GRAS VICTIM

Brooklyn Man Mistook Plainfielder For Thief When Latter Grabbed For Its Neckties.

Stanley Bates, of this city, has had his fill of Mardi Gras festivals at Coney Islands. He got mixed up in the horse play at the celebration on Thursday night, and was a prisoner in the Adams Street Court, Friday. The young man, who said he was a Columbia student, was arrested on complaint of Harry E. Schmidt, of 276 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn.

Stanley had been watching several young men amusing themselves pulling at the neckties of others in the crowd. Suddenly he turned and saw Bates over two detectives. Later Mr. Schmidt became convinced that Bates had meant no harm, and Magistrate Hyland discharged the youth.

"No more Mardi Gras for me," said Bates, as he made tracks for this city.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

To the Ranks Once More.

James E. Martine, one of the ablest, most earnest and most conscientious statesmen in the State of New Jersey, has once more been delegated to the ranks, and will take his appointed place, as he has many times before, without loss of self-respect, and with as strong sentiments as ever in the ultimate success of Democratic principles. Possibly he may have a few more poignant regrets this time, for it was a worthy desire on his part to be the banner-bearer of his party in the State, but it is not likely that any one will know of them except himself.

Several years ago James E. Martine was casually named for Governor in a Democratic State convention, but then, as now, the party leaders threw their influence for another man, and Mr. Martine was not heard from after the first ballot. But he was not then known as well as he is now. He has grown great since his party's defeat in

STEPS TAKEN TO ERECT HOME FOR JR. O. U. A. M.

Past Officers of Four Local Councils Plan Organization For That Purpose.

COMMITTEE SELECTED

T. E. Currin, Jr., Chairman—Somerset, Franklin, Benevolent and Plainfield Represented.

Steps were taken last night at a meeting of past officers of the local councils of the Jr. O. U. A. M. toward forming a Past Councilors' Association, with the ultimate purpose of securing more hearty co-operation among the members of the lodges and eventually erecting a modern building which shall be the home of the Jr. O. U. A. M. of this city, and in every way adapted to its needs.

The movement was started by Thomas E. Currin, Jr., of Franklin Council, and the proposition met with hearty response on the part of officers in the other councils. There are now over fifty past councilors identified with Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, and it is believed that a strong organization can be effected. It is also the purpose to make the new association a sort of governing body for the councils in deciding matters of importance concerning them, and while their acts will not be binding on the different councils they will be largely governed by them.

The question of establishing a home for all four councils to go all together a new one. It has been under discussion for some time. It is confidently believed that such a structure can be erected and supported through the revenue from each council as well as through the rental of stores that would occupy the ground floor, and possibly offices on the second floor.

Representatives of the four councils have been appointed as a committee, with Mr. Currin as chairman. The next meeting of the committee will be held Wednesday night, October 2, at which time more definite plans for completing the consideration of past councils will be considered. The question of erecting a Junior building will be decided later.

PLAINFIELD ESCAPES DAMAGE FROM EQUINOX

TAIL-END OF STORM SWEEPS OVER CITY; OTHER PLACES SUFFER.

Plainfield felt the tail-end sweep of an equinoctial storm Saturday afternoon. No damage was reported here, but the rest of the metropolitan district was not so fortunate. The storm started at 4 o'clock, with the sky overcast by inky clouds. The wind rose to a gale and threatened damage for a while, but the blow eased up in a short time, before anything happened. There was some play of lighting, but not much and big storms go.

Other parts of New Jersey were not so fortunate. Many trees were blown down and numerous places were struck by lightning. At Morristown the temporary buildings which have been erected for the Morristown Field Club show suffered severely. The wind tore the roof from one barn and carried it bodily into a ravine a quarter of a mile away. A lot of fruit was blown down.

Sidewalks and roofs of other buildings were torn away and telegraphic pieces were strewn over the baseball field and golf links. Pieces of tar paper used for roofing made the air black in one section and large pieces were blown half a mile away.

At Hackensack trees were blown across the trolley tracks. At Teaneck one fell directly in front of a moving car, and only the promptness of the motorman prevented a wreck.

To Ride at Essex Fair.

Marcus Hoyt, who rode Ida G. under the wire first in the running race of the matinee meet Saturday, will pilot the mare in a race at the Essex County Fair Thursday afternoon. He is confident he will win. Ida G. has some of the best blood of the turf in her, and Mr. Hoyt has won her so she runs with all her spirit for him.

Matriculate at Smith.

Among the young students from this city to enter Smith College this season are Miss Frederika Mead, daughter of Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, of Sixth avenue front, and Miss Blanche Buttfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Buttfield, of Rockview avenue.

Decreasing Fuss.

The Vacuum Cleaning Company laid off a half dozen hands on Saturday, owing to a slack condition in certain departments.

Miss Barbara Fleming and Miss Sarah E. Schuyler were playing in the final round of the women's singles when the storm came on. PARK CLUB WON BY DOMINIES GOOD PLAY

MIDDLEBROOK CLUB DOWNED BY SCORE OF 10 TO 9.

The Park Golf Club team turned the tables on the team from the Middlebrook Country Club, of Bound Brook, Saturday, defeating its rivals by the close score of 10 to 9. Part of the match was played during the worst of the rain storm, and play was extremely difficult. In the first match between these teams earlier in the season, the Middlebrook Club team won out by a large score, not even permitting their opponents to score a point. On Saturday the Parks put up a better game, and being well acquainted with the course, were able to make their drives and puts count to good advantage.

The older members of the home team won the game, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Dr. H. K. Carroll and Reuben Knox each scoring three points, while W. V. Byard scored one point. For the visitors Albert Gano, E. Pettit and W. Sperling did the scoring. As each team has now won a match, the deciding one will be played on the Park course Saturday, October 12. The summary for Saturday's match follows: On Saturday

Parks—A. H. Corning, 0; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, 3; Charles B. Morse, 0; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 3; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 0; Reuben Knox, 3; W. V. Byard, 1; A. W. Kenworthy, 0; Nelson A. Miller, 0. Total, 10.

SOME EXCITING HEATS

Bay Prince Gets Senior Cup and Maud C. the Harris Cup—Bobs for Greca Trophy.

The largest crowd of the season, outside of those at the money meets, attended the matinee races at the Gentlemen's Driving Park Saturday afternoon, held under the auspices of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association. The high class card offered was a strong attraction, and lovers of trotting from all parts of the county and other sections were there.

Aside from the trotting races and running event, the feature was the exhibition of fancy riding by Miss Adele von Ohl, of this city, who appeared on "Aristocrat," a horse of extreme high action. The animal, of the saddle variety, performed in a way that won applause from the vast crowd, and the graceful manner in which he was ridden by his daring rider made the exhibition one of the stellar attractions. In addition to the many fancy and daring tricks performed by "Aristocrat," perhaps the best was that of a thirteen-foot jump, made clean and clear. Miss von Ohl showed herself to be master of her steed at all stages.

The trotting races, the running race and all but one heat of the third event were run off, when the heavy shower which passed over the city brought the sport to a sudden terwere offered in each class by individuals and the association, and the races furnished plenty of sport for the crowd. Only two heats were run in Class C, and no decision was given. It will probably be finished on Saturday, together with Class D and other events.

Although there were but two entries in the running race, Marcus Hoyt, on "Ida G.," and W. H. Wildey, on "Yentihy," it was an exciting one. It was a half mile go, and "IdaG." won easily in 52½ and 51⅘.

The judges for the races were Nate Robbins, W. H. Greason and Adam C. Blair. David C. Smalley was the starter, while C. M. Stirling and J. Wesley Johnson were the timers. The summary follows.

CALKIN WINS HONORS IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

FINISHES FIRST FOR COMMITTEE CUP AT THE P. C. C.

There was a large field out at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday, but the heavy thunder shower which passed over the city the latter part of the afternoon interferred with the play to such an extent that a majority failed to complete the round and post their scores. There were a few that braved the rain and finished the eighteen holes. Leighton Calkins won the honors for the Golf Committee cup with a score of 84 from scratch, while Stuart H. Patterson finished second and Frank O. Reinhart third. The leading scores for the trophy follow:

Leighton Calkins, 84, 0-84; Stuart H. Patteson, 96, 10-86; Frank O. Reinhart, 86, plus 3-89.

A. G. Henderson won first honors for the Green Committee cup with a net score of 78. These scores were posted:

A. G. Henderson, 92, 15-78; C. C. Burke, Sr., 89, 9-80; W. L. C. Glenney, 109, 18-82.

In the play-off of the tie of the foursome played a week ago, L. A. Chase and E. T. Willson beat Henry D. Hibbard and C. A. Stover, with a score of 88, 9-79. The defeated pair turned in a score of 83, 3-80. As those who tied last week for the Autumn cup, Class A, other defaulted or failed to complete the round. It was decided that the contestants must play off next Saturday to determine who shall qualify for match play next month.

YOUNG WOMAN HELD UP

Highwayman Attacks Servant Girl at Scotch Plains.

VICTIM IS PROSTRATED

Miss Mary Dubinskie Makes Heroic Struggle But Stranger Man Got $10 Booty—Attack at a Lonely Spot.

Miss Mary Dubinskie, employed as a maid by Charles Sternheim, at Scotch Plains, was the victim of a hold-up, while returning to her home from Elizabeth at 9:30 o'clock last night. She was walking along Park avenue, between the Meadow bridge and the Episcopal church, when a man jumped out from behind some bushes and attacked her.

The stranger grabbed the woman by the throat, almost choking her to death. He beat her about the face and head. She fought the highwayman with all her strength, and was about to give up, when Miss Sadie Melinsky and Miss Annie Bowlske, two friends, with whom she had visited in Elizabeth in the afternoon came along. The thug heard their footsteps and made good his escape, leaving Miss Dubinskie in the street to her own fate. The stranger took $10 from the woman's pocket.

The shock was a severe, nervous shock and from severe injuries inflicted, Miss Dubinskie was unable to reach her home alone. With the assistance of her friends she was finally taken there and a physician was summoned. Today she is confined to her bed.

Early in the afternoon the three women went to Elizabeth by trolley to visit some friends. Miss Dubinskie left Elizabeth for home about 8:30, reaching Scotch Plains ahead of her companions. At first she decided to wait for the next car, thinking they would be on it, but changing her mind she started to walk home alone, when she was encountered by the highwayman.

The crime in Scotch Plains are so aroused that it expected that the appointment of extra policemen for night duty will be demanded of the township committee.

RIVALS FOR GOVERNOR MEET AT SPRING LAKE

KAT ENBACH AND FORT ARE NEIGHBORS AT SUMMER RESORT.

By leaning over the fence that surrounds his summer home at Spring Lake, former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, can shake hands with his rival for the Governorship of New Jersey, former Justice J. Franklin Fort. The two candidates for Governor will be seen summer neighbors for years and the best of friends. The little Katzenbachs play about the lawn of the Fort cottage, and there has never been any sign of friction between the two men of opposite political faiths.

Fresh from Thursday's convention, in which he promised to give the people of the State good government if he was elected, Mr. Fort went down to Spring Lake Friday afternoon, and Mr. Katzenbach was just ahead of him.

"Can't wish you success, judge," said Mr. Katzenbach, "but next to myself I don't know of any man I'd rather see Governor."

"That's about the way I feel," replied the Republican candidate, "but I'm going to do my everlasting best to give you the worst thrashing you ever got."

The two men didn't look like real rivals at all, and the people of Spring Lake are wondering for which they will vote because they like both and both are good fellows. The resort, Mr. Katzenbach is preparing his speech of acceptance of the Democratic nomination, because the committee of notication will meet him in Trenton next Tuesday or Wednesday and the date of the convention has done and explain that the people of New Jersey would be looking to him to carry the standard for good government through the coming campaign. He is receiving hearty assurances of support from active men in all parts of the State, and they are not Democrats alone, but prominent independent voters who have an abiding faith in the breadth and character of the man chosen by the Democratic convention.

Oddly enough election day is Mr. Katzenbach's birth anniversary, and friends recall that several important events have occurred on particular one have happened in his career. He was chosen Mayor of Trenton on one birthday, and his friends say it is an omen of success.

Dr. Zeglio Withdraws Claim.

The claim of Dr. P. J. Zeglio for $401.50 against the estate of the late John Rehman, of Warren township, has been withdrawn, and the settlement of the accounts of the estate in the Somerset County Orphans' Court, has been laid over for two weeks. This is the case in which Judge Schenck ordered the exceptions to the account withdrawn. The suit in the Supreme Court for the same claim, it is said, has also been withdrawn.

WHITE RIBBONERS MEET

and mothers might wish, so her influence is lost in these cases upon the desert air. May God hasten the time when women will be classed with sane people and her rights restored to her. Until then may the men arise in their God given right and powers and demand a righteous government.

"Hold more public meetings. It keeps our work before the people. Observe the Red Letter Days, and see how they will inspire renewed hope and courage. Hold social meetings. Invite to them those you especially want to win. Do not be discouraged if the people do not come. Invite them again. Hold membership contests. I wish that each union would strive to have an increase of twenty-five members next year. See if your teachers are teaching the right things in your schools relating to temperance. Hold teachers' receptions that we may come in closer touch with them. Let us work against cigarettes. Have a series of medal contests. There is nothing better for a sentiment than medal contests. Have a public installation of officers. Hold mothers' meetings, and invite the mothers not belonging to the union. Keep plenty of good literature and pass it at your meetings. There are so many good leaflets, to be obtained for the asking. Have a Bible reading every business meeting send a report of the work done during the month to the daily papers."

The other important features of the morning session were the reports of the treasurer, and the election of officers. The secretary reported a membership of 521, a gain over last year. There are 85 honorary members, and 286 members of the Loyal Temperance Legion, the junior branch of the work. The treasurer received $251 during the year, and expended $270. The financial condition of the organization is highly satisfactory.

The officers were all re-elected They are: President, Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, Plainfield; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. L. Rarick, Dunellen; recording secretary, Mrs. T. C. Bodine, Plainfield; treasurer, Mrs. Mary T. Cox, Cranford; honorary vice presidents, Mrs. Scriven-Stoddard, Elizabeth; Miss Julia A. Barker, Rahway.

After noontide prayer, adjournment was taken for lunch, which was served in the basement of the church. The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock, with scripture reading and prayer, by Mrs. J. L. Manning, of Dunellen. Most of the afternoon was taken up with reports from county superintendents on the different departments of the work. The reports were presented as follows: L. T. L. Secretary, Miss May Hewett, Plainfield; Work Among Foreigner, Mrs. L. Ussing, Cranford; Medical Temperance, Mrs. A. F. Schmidt, Elizabeth; Scientific Temperance Instruction, Mrs. D. D. Irving, Cranford; Sunday-school Work, Mrs. M. Van Voysis, N. B. Smalley; Literature, Miss Emma L. Starr, Westfield; The Press, Mrs. L. H. Noe, Elizabeth; Medal Contests, Mrs. E. R. Fuller, Rahway; Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. C. W. Scott, Dunellen; Franchise, Mrs. Emma Inhouse, Mrs. Anna M. Hammer, Westfield; nfUermented Wine, Mrs. Scriven Stoddard, Elizabeth; Soldiers and Sailors, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, Plainfield; Prison and Jail, Miss S. J. Keen, Elizabeth; Sabbath Observance, Mrs. M. Winter, Plainfield; Purity and Mother's Meetings, Miss Julia A. Barker, Rahway; Railroad Men, Motormen and Firemen, Mrs. E. A. Purse, Plainfield; Flower Mission, Miss M. L. Inderhill, Rahway; Social Meetings and Red Letter Days, Mrs. M. F. Francis, Elizabeth; Legislation and Petition, Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, Plainfield; Christian Citizenship, Mrs. H. W. Smith, Elizabeth.

Miss Howlett's report on the Legion was particularly interesting. Good work has been done; a gain of fifty members was made, and a cottage Legion formed in Rahway. Plainfield made the banner gain, adding 35 new members; the total membership here is 65. Miss Howlett made a strong plea for co-operative effort among the members to advance every department.

The convention adjourned for supper at 5:30 o'clock. The evening session was largely devoted to a musical and oratorical contest. Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson won the oratorical prize with an address on the work, and Miss Orrel L. Wrench won the music prize, with a song, "The Sister's Prayer." Each received a silver medal. Mrs. T. C. Bodoine presented the oratorical medal, and Mrs. H. C. Dutcher presented the music medal. Both made eloquent little speeches. The other numbers on the program were as follows:

Solo, "Hold Thou My Hand," Mrs. E. A. Chapman, Elizabeth; recitation, "Saloons Must Go," Miss Emma L. Starr, Westfield; recitation, "How Mrs. Hennessey Saved Her Boy," Miss May E. Howlett; solo, "The Battle Song," Miss Nancy Randolph, Plainfield; recitation, "The Cloven Foot," Mrs. W. Scott; recitation, "Hans Prinkerhoph on the Benefits of Drinking," Miss Orrel L. Wrench.

Miss Beekman, of West Front street, who has been in the Adirondacks for several months for the benefit of her health, has returned greatly improved.

John Hand Camp No. 28, Sons of Veterans, is planning for a fair to be held for one week in Co. K armory. It will open on December 2.

CARDS LEAD TO MURDER

SHOT HIM IN THE BACK

Savero Killed Sasone After Demanding His Money Back—Three Shots Fired.

After quarreling over a game of cards in a back room of a fruit store at Raritan, in which he claimed to have lost $1, Samuel Savero waylaid Joseph Sansone and shot him twice in the back about dusk Saturday, killing him instantly. Savero, Sansone and a number of other Italians had been gambling all the afternoon and drinks were frequently passed around. Savero claimed Sansone was cheating and demanded his money back. Becoming abusive, he was put out and then broke the windows of the place with stones.

When Sansone was on his way home Savero fired three shots in quick succession and Sansone fell into the gutter. Savero walked over to the prostrate body and again shot it. Then, with the revolver in his hand, he ran to his home. Policeman Hickey found him hiding in the garret of his home on Girst street. He was arrested and later brought to the Somerset county jail.

Both men were married. Sansone was a barber and worked at White's house, and Savero worked in the woolen mills at Raritan.

SCOTCH PLAINS SHUT OUT BY RAHWAY NINE

DARKNESS BEFORE STORM ENDS THE GAME IN THE SEVENTH INNING.

Brilliant fielding, timely batting and Mundrane's work on the slab featured a combination against which the Scotch Plains A. C. was unable to score in its game with the Rahway A. Darkness, caused by the approaching storm, ended the contest after Mundrane had walked, with none down, in Rahway's half of the eighth. Score:

NEW DIVORCE LAW FOR NEW JERSEY

IT FORBIDS THEM FOR OFFENCES NOT RECOGNIZED ELSEWHERE.

Any one who is entitled to a diporce under the present law of the State of New Jersey, but who has postponed it, had better look up the new law, which goes into effect January 1 next, on the subject.

This law recommended by the Uniform Divorce Law Commission and adopted by the present Legislature with some slight amendments, does not change the statutory grounds for divorce in New Jersey, but does make it very radical condition. It is this: If a person sues for divorce in New Jersey on grounds furnished in another State, the decree will be refused if the offense is not recognized in the other State as sufficient for divorce.

For instance, in New Jersey adultery and desertion are recognized as grounds for absolute divorce and cruelty for limited divorce. In New York adultery only is recognized. A New Yorker suing in New Jersey for divorce for a desertion committed in New York, cannot obtain a decree here after January 1 next.

A South Carolinian could not obtain a divorce here on any ground whatever, the offense taking place in South Carolina, because no divorce is permitted in that State.

It is likely that all divorce cases in which proceedings are instituted before January 1 will be decided under the old law, even though the decision comes after that.

WORK AT THE LIBRARY

Miss Adams Tells of the System Used in Interesting Statement.

METHOD EVERYWHERE

Staff Always Ready to Help Those In Need or Desirous of Advice As to Reading Matter.

Interesting facts as to the work of carrying on the public library form part of the detailed statement submitted to the board of directors by Miss Emma L. Adams, who resigned as librarian yesterday. In part Miss Adams' statement is as follows:

"One test of a library's efficiency is the availability of its resources. That not only every book, but all such miscellaneous material as periodicals, bound and unbound, pamphlets, maps, music, pictures, etc., may be instantly accessible presupposes organization and method. Records are necessary and accurate catalogue classification, magazine, bindery, etc.

"Books are locally arranged as follows: Commonly used reference books and bound volumes of more popular magazines, in main building at right, overflow in second and third stories of stack. Children's books in main room, opposite delivery desk. Stack (first story), bulk of circulation books, general and Babcock; (second story) restricted, overflow reference and less used circulating books; third story) bound volumes of government and reference books, folios, files of newspapers (bound and unbound), files of unbound periodicals, music, photographs, maps.

"Classification throughout is by the Dewey decimal system, modified slightly. The card catalogue is in dictionary form, i. e., entry is made under author, title and subject, and all these entries are arranged in strict alphabetical order; large subjects are subdivided, and complete system of cross references brings only related matter. For many years Cutter's rules and the Albany State Library school rules have been followed in cataloguing new and recataloguing old books.

"The more important pamphlets are treated as books, i. e., accessioned, catalogued, etc. Others are uncatalogued, but classed.

"Periodicals awaiting binding are kept in their assigned reference cases in the reading room until completion of the volumes, others are tied up in volumes and era kept in the third story. Maps are listed on slips, ready for cataloguing, while photographs are catalogued and placed devised for indefinite future growth. Clippings of bibliographical matter are classes, catalogued and kept in manilla envelopes, as are also the library's reading lists after removal from the public tables. All these are indexed for reference, and to prevent duplication of work. A scheme for the care of music, including classification, cataloguing and method of circulating has been worked out, and only awaits time of the cataloguer.

"The following lists have been published: Fiction, history and travel, biography, supplemental fiction; periodicals, the revised A. L. A. juvenile list, bought in quantity is kept on sale at the desk. A revised list of periodicals supplements the annual report just published, which is the second published report of the library directors. Bulletins, which chiefly take the form of reading lists, are published weekly in the local papers, and I take this opportunity of thanking the Daily Press and Courier-News. Exhibits as a means of extension of knowledge of the library's resources have been made from time to time. This system I have described fully in the Library Journal of August, 1902.

Deposit stations form and must continue to form as the library occupies its present location, the most effective method—in proportion to expense—of reaching the people at a distance, especially those who stand in greatest need of books. It is thoroughly organized in schools and factory, and it should be extended until it takes in every responsible organization which can provide necessary facilities, dotting the poorer sections with these little centres of influence. Between library and school, effective co-operation exists here; public, private and parochial schools bear witness to the library's helpfulness, and the library gladly acknowledges the substantial aid of a goodly number of devoted principals and teachers.

"While the library stands ready to assist all clubs, its most definite work is done with the Monday Afternoon Club, which annually publishes a list, prepared by the librarian, of the library's books on subjects of club study. Cordial relations also exist between the Mothers' Club, the Sesame Club and others.

"The class formed last year for the blind brought much pleasure to a number of these unfortunates, and greater independence to several who

ARREST ITALIAN LABORER AS A MURDER SUSPECT

MAN ON STREET PAVING JOB ANSWERS DESCRIPTION OF FUGITIVE.

The police received a circular from Niagara Falls yesterday, describing an escaped murderer. The man "wanted" is Giacomo Fanella, an Italian laborer, accused of shooting Mrs. Mary Tallery to death in Niagara Falls.

Sergeant Overbaugh read the description over carefully last night, as is his wont with such papers. This morning his attention was attracted by one of the laborers at work in the street paving gang on Park avenue. He answered the description of the fugitive in almost every way, and Overbaugh placed him under arrest.

In every item of the description cited, Mike Marasciano, the name given by the prisoner, answers completely, excepting in height. He is a trifle under the height as described.

Salvi Velardi, the Italian foreman of the gang, is sure the police have the wrong man. He says the prisoner has worked for him since last spring, and has not been out of the city long enough to have done what is charged. The police say the man has been to New York several times, and they will hold the suspect until it is certain he is not the man wanted. Word will be sent to the Niagara Falls police as soon as Chief Kiely returns this afternoon.

PLEADED GUILTY TO FIRING FATHER'S HOME

JOHN SPRAGUE REMANDED UNTIL FRIDAY FOR SENTENCE.

Before Judge Atwater in the Court of Common Pleas, at Elizabeth, this morning, John Sprague, of this city, pleaded guilty to the charge of setting fire to his father's home on West Front street last July. A statement was made in his behalf by Lawyer T. W. Nash, Jr., and he was remanded until Friday for sentence.

Sprague is a well known local young man, and his arrest was brought about by Chief Kiely, just after he had turned in an alarm for a slight blaze in his father's house. His actions appeared suspicious to the police officer and he was taken to headquarters, confessing within a short time that he had started the blaze in order to "get square" with his parent for a fancied grievance. It was thought at first that several other incendiary fires might have been caused by him, but a thorough investigation disproved the fact.

Sprague's case was to have been taken up by the present grand jury, but he waived indictment in order to receive quick disposition.

PORTRAYING "KING LEAR"

MANTELL IS AT HIS BEST

Mansfield's Successor Seen in Shakespearian Play Here Last Night.

Robert Mantell, who has been hailed as America's foremost actor since the death of Mansfield, appeared at the New Plainfield theatre last night in "King Lear." With a company of unusual strength the play was presented with great satisfaction to a large and critical audience and Mr. Mantell's portrayal of the crook-back tyrant was a triumph of histrionic art. The actor is no stranger to local playgoers as he was seen at Music Hall several times during its career.

Mr. Mantell's repertoire includes six Shakespearian roles but his greatest success has always been with "Lear." In this character he leaped to fame in a single night in New York and wherever he has presented it since his standing as an actor has been established in the first rank. His first great hits were made twenty years ago as Jack Herne in "The Romany Rye" and Loris Ipsanoff in "Fedora."

The supporting cast included several of the best known Shakespearian actors in the country.

Sanitary Experts Meet.

The thirty-third annual meeting of the New Jersey Sanitary Association opened at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel, Atlantic City, yesterday. Drs. V. DanD. Hedges and N. H. Probasco, and Health Officer Leon H. Thurlow, of this city, are at the gathering. There was a symposium yesterday afternoon, on the ideal milk of the future, a subject in which the local health board is much interested.

Sesame Club Meeting.

The Sesame Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Tennant, 750 Kensington avenue, on Thursday, October 3. Vacation experiences will take the place of current events.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard are back from the Adirondacks and will be at "The Gables" for the winter.

HOW PRICES HAVE RISEN

They Are Still Going Up; Particularly in Staple Lines.

GROCERIES ARE SOARING

Flour Way Up, Too, and Bread Will Be Increased, As Well As Cake and Pastry—Some Figures.

It is costing Plainfielders a good bit more to live than it did a year ago. There is really no need to tell housewives and householders that the cost of pretty nearly everything they have to buy has gone up steadily from ten to twenty per cent. for the most part, and ever more in some cases, since last year, but probably the harried payers of bills haven't had time to take a comprehensive view of the situation, and do not know just how much more quickly the dollar melts in its passage back and forth over the counter.

To crown the general rise and mark the inexorable character of the advance, the increase is about to affect the price of bread. Bakers here say they must raise the price to seven cents a loaf or cut down the size of the loaf. Cake and fancy pastries will go up in some cases as much as twenty-five per cent.

According to bakers the necessity for the increased cost of bread is due to the higher prices demanded for flour, which they claim have advanced from twenty to thirty per cent.

A canvass of several large wholesale grocery establishments seemed to confirm their statement. According to the information given at these establishments, flour has advanced from $5 and $5.25 per barrel in 1906 to $6.50 and $7 per barrel at the present time, a price unattained before. This is attributed to the high price of wheat, now selling at $1.02 a bushel, compared to eighty-eight cents last year.

Upon good authority it has been stated that in nearly every staple carried by wholesale grocers there has been a general increase of at least ten per cent., butter, for instance, selling at the present time at highest winter prices. Cheese and condensed milk have undergone a similar increase and even sugar shows the effect of the skyward flight of prices.

Canned vegetables have all advanced ten per cent., and in many cases twenty. Canned corn is selling at $1.25 and $1.40, which is considered high in midwinter, owing, the wholesalers say, to the light crop throughout the country. Apples are hard to get even at the price, $3 and $4. Sweet potatoes are twenty per cent. higher than last year. The following schedule of gain prices was obtained from a local grocer:

Bran, per ton in 1906, $22 to $24, now selling at $28 to $30.

Feed, per ton in 1906, $26 to $28, now selling at $33 to $35.

Hay, per ton in 1906, $18 to $20, now selling at $22.50 per ton.

Wheat sold for 87 to 89 cents per bushel in 1906, now $1.02.

Corn sold for 60 cents per bushel in 1906, now 70.

Oats, in 1906, $1 per seventy-pound bag, now $1.40.

Within the past twelve months an increase of fifteen per cent. has been charged on all suitings used by tailors, and a corresponding advance has been made in the cost of ready-made suits. According to clothiers in the city, a suit which would be sold for $15 last year sells now for $17. The same condition prevails in regard to furnishings, such as handkerchiefs, shirts, undergarments and neckties. The price of the last named has not been advanced, but the quality of goods has deteriorated, according to a retailer.

The price of hats is ten per cent. higher this year than last, according to the statement of a dealer. The price to the consumer is about five per cent. higher, he said, as half of the increase was borne by the retailers.

The price of shoes is higher than last year, although the percentage of increase is smaller than in the case of shoes sell for but little, if any, more than they did last year. The retailer pays more for them, however, and the manufacturers say that the advance is due to the increased cost of leather and wages. Most of the manufacturers are running overtime, however, and have orders for months ahead, so they are more or less independent. The cheap grades of shoes, however, have advanced in price from twenty-five to forty per cent.

The price of cotton goods has advanced from ten to forty per cent. Department and dry goods stores have to pay proportionately more to the manufacturer, according to the story told yesterday. Calicos have advanced over forty per cent., percales twenty-five per cent., and so on down to cheesecloth, which has gone up ten per cent. The increase is attributed to the manufacturers, but explained, it is said, by the prevailing high price of cotton, now selling around 12 cents per pound.

The cost of meat went up about a month ago 2 or 3 cents a pound for the most desirable cuts of steak and roast. Some cuts have gone up as much as forty per cent.

"As the price of lumber is much higher now than it was twelve, or even six, months ago," said a furniture dealer, "the price of furniture was forced up. This is especially so in the better grades of furniture, such as mahogany and walnut, the latter being practically unobtainable. Ten per cent. would be a conservative estimate of the increase."

"Our bills are at least ten per cent. more than they were last year," declared a druggist this morning. "Such articles as opium and camphor are just about twice as much as they were twelve months ago. The Japanese are paying their war debt with camphor," he explained, "and that, of course, answers for the increase. They own the entire supply. Opium is 150 per cent higher, as is laudanum. Glycerine is fifteen per cent. higher. I should say that ten per cent. has been added all along the line. An increase were made, although some articles have remained stationary while others have gone up.

"This same increase applies to druggists' sundries. Absorbent cotton, for instance, is a great deal higher than it used to be, and the amount a consumer gets for a nickel is about sixty per cent. of the amount he received in 1906."

And how about wages? Henry J. Gotsch, vice president of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, says that wages have not been increased over one per cent. during the year, if that much.

"In only a few trades," says Mr. Gotsch, "have wages advanced at all. The greatest advances made during the year were to carpenters and plumbers, who received but little over five per cent. I do not know a single instance where wages in any line have been advanced as much as fifteen per cent. In fact, I do not know of ten per cent. general advance of wages in any line. Grocers' clerks, railway employers, clerical men, laborers, tinners and factory hands have remained at a standstill. Just where wages were twelve months ago, so far as wages are concerned. If an average were made I doubt very much if the wages paid workers in all lines today are even one per cent. higher than they were a year ago."

BOWERS WAS POSITIVE HE WASN'T OBSTRUCTING

BUT PERSONAL TESTIMONY OF JUDGE CHANGED HIS OPINION.

City Judge William N. Runyon was proceeding along Park avenue to his home at a late hour last night when his feet struck something soft and yielding in the shadow of a brick pile near East Fourth street. Striking a match to learn what it was, he discovered a man stretched full length across the walk in a drunken stupor. The fellow was in such a position that he was apt to cause passersby to fall and hurt himself and the magistrate summoned the police.

In court, this morning, the stranger gave his name as Jacob Bowers, of Asbury, and stated that he had taken a run down to Plainfield to visit friends. He "lowed" that he might have been drunk all right but he was positive that he hadn't gotten in anybody's way.

"Are you quite certain that you weren't obstructing the walk?" Judge Runyon asked him.

"Just as positive as I know Hunterdon county had a good peach crop this year," was Bowers' reply, not having been told who it was that fell over him. He was informed the next moment by the magistrate himself and the look of amazement that spread across his face was a sight to behold.

"Judge with the goods" was all he said but as the court had personal knowledge of the quietness of his jag he got off with a suspended sentence and a warning to hike back to Asbury.

Advance Excise Fee.

Disagreeing with the grand jury, which recommended that liquor license fees be made $1,000 throughout the county, but deciding that some increase was necessary, Justices Swayze, Dixon and Atwater, sitting at Elizabeth, have decided that an addition of $50 to the old fees in places of over 3,000 inhabitants, where the court grants the license, be made. Hereafter licenses in such places in townships and boroughs will be $200. In issuing the order yesterday, Justice Swayze said the $1,000 would amount in some cases to prohibition, and he did not feel the court had any right to override the legislative action by such indirect means. Judge Atwater granted a number of renewals of inn and tavern licenses.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force, of West Front street, are parents of a son, born to them on September 25.

MADE CANDIDATE PREACH

Presbytery Listened to Mr. Mark Half an Hour and Gave Him Certificate.

DR. ALISON'S ADDRESS

Secretary of National Temperance Society Gives Interesting Talk On Work In Which He Is Engaged.

One of the most important features of the afternoon session of the thirty-ninth stated meeting of the Elizabeth presbytery yesterday, was the examination of R. A. Mark, of Woodbridge, for admission to the ministry, so that he might accept the call to the Presbyterian church at that place.

Mr. Mark was graduated from the Princeton Theological Seminary last June, and immediately sailed for his home in the North of Ireland, where he was married. He had preached in the Woodbridge church for six months and his work was well known.

Mr. Mark was present with two elders from the Woodbridge church, ready for the examination. After considerable debate as to whether the time for the ordination should be fixed before the examination, it was finally decided to examine the candidate. Rev. J. O. McKelvey questioned Mr. Mark in theology, while Rev. J. T. Kerr examined him in church history. S. C. Parry, stated clerk, satisfied himself and the ministers as to the young man's knowledge of Greek, Hebrew and Latin.

This being concluded the question arose as to whether Mr. Mark should be asked to preach a sermon. Some of the ministers were inclined to excuse the candidate, believing that he was not prepared, while others thought he should be given a thorough examination, including the opportunity to preach. The question was put to vote and it was decided that Mr. Mark should deliver a sermon.

The candidate was conducted to the platform by the moderator, and for over a half hour he held the close attention of the assemblage while he delivered a fine sermon, from Acts 16-25. Before he concluded one of the ministers who had been so insistent on hearing the candidate, arose and said that the discourse was exceedingly interesting, but he would like to suggest that Mr. Mark close it, as it was the hour was getting late. The candidate complied with the request, after which he was admitted to the ministry and presented with the call from the Woodbridge church.

Later it was announced that the ordination of Mr. Mark would take place at Woodbridge on Thursday, October 10. The moderator will preside. Rev. William C. Rommel will preach the sermon, Rev. J. T. Kerr will deliver the charge to the people and Rev. Dr. Cobb will give the charge to the pastor, with Rev. Dr. J. G. Mason as alternate.

The afternoon was well occupied with reports of various departmests and transaction of general business. One of the interesting addresses was that of Rev. Dr. Alexander Alison, general secretary of the National Temperance Society and Publication House, New York City. He spoke earnestly of the part the church should take in promoting temperance and set forth clearly that it is the duty of the church to lead. He declared that temperance teaching should begin with the children in the Sunday-school, and that if the churches and ministers should unite in advocating temperance, the newspapers would join in the movement. He decried the method of some temperance organizations, who seek to attack politicians in carrying their point. He also touched on local option and the opening of the saloon on Sunday, and said that he hoped the time would never come when these places will be found doing business on the Sabbath. He added that the practise had been found to be a course to London, where the saloons are open on certain hours on Sunday.

The question of the brotherhood among the Presbyterian churches was spoken of by Rev. Dr. Whittaker, of Elizabeth. He said that it is not a multiplicity of societies for men that is desired, but a method of awakening the latent power in men. Conferring with this Rev. W. W. Casselberry, of Dunellen, presented a report showing that nearly every church in the presbytery has a brotherhood or men's association of some kind. Elder Samuel J. Berry, Jr., of Elizabeth, who has been particularly active in the brotherhood movement, made a few remarks, explaining its purpose.

Preceding a brief report by Rev. Dr. J. G. Mason, the treasurer of the Presbyterian church, showing that $12,299 had been given to the presbytery for home missions during the past year, Rev. J. E. Stuchell, of Rahway, gave a stirring report on evangelistic work. He said that within the jurisdiction of the churches

MISSING DEED TIED UP A REALTY TRANSACTION

UNRECORDED TITLE FOUND AMONG MR. COWARD'S EFFECTS.

Through the purchase of a large tract of land situated between Tier's pond and the Watchung Silk Company's mill, in the borough, an unrecorded deed, dated 1847, has been found. The discovery came about through its purchase by a syndicate, composed of Eugene M. Laing, Henry Leifke, J. Worth Coddington, B. Donald.

The title could be traced back to the estate of the late Joseph B. Coward, but beyond that it was impossible to go. A futile search was made among the records at Newark, the deed having been made when Plainfield was a part of Essex county.

While H. H. Coward was searching among the effects of his father recently, however, he found the lost deed from the receivers of the old Cases Beach private bank of this city. That institution failed in 1847. The deed was made out to Cornelius Boice, father-in-law of Joseph B. Coward, and in that way it came into the latter's possession and was concealed among many other effects for a great many years. The finding of the deed removed all hitches and the title was passed yesterday.

It is the intention of the new owners to cut the property up into building lots.

It is possible that at the meeting of the Borough Council Friday night the question of making a park there will be introduced and that some action may be taken.

C. B. TYLER TAKES PLACE OF HIS FATHER

MAYOR APPOINTS HIM MEMBER OF HOSPITAL BOARD.

Cornelius Boardman Tyler, son of the late Col. Mason W. Tyler, was elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, held last night. He will take his father's place on the board. A letter was also received from Councilman W. S. Tyler in reference to the resolutions passed respecting the death of his father, expressing the appreciation of the family over such action.

Owing to the resignation of Miss Emma Adams, as librarian, the board appointed Miss Florence M. Bowman, the former assistant, as acting librarian, and an additional $15 a month was voted to her as salary. Miss Anna Kinnan was appointed assistant librarian, at a salary of $20 a month, from October 1.

MEN'S CLUB ELECTS.

New Officers of Congregational Organization—Meeting Night Changed.

Officers were elected by the Men's Club of the Congregational church, last night, at the annual meeting, the first session since the summer suspension. Dr. Frank T. Clawson was made president, Sidney Dunning vice president, Dr. H. V. Hubbard, secretary, and Charles Stelzner, treasurer. The latter was re-elected.

The club discussed a project to hold two special Sunday night meetings during the year. The proposition was laid over until the next meeting, when a committee will probably be appointed to take up the matter.

The meeting night was changed from the first Tuesday night in the month to the second. At the next meeting, November 12, the new entertainment committee, which has not been appointed yet, will present a program. The club has forty members.

"Le Celigne" Will Appear.

Under the auspices and for the benefit of Ebenezer Baptist church, a concert will be given at Reform Hall tomorrow night by the great "La Celigne." The program will be of exceptional merit. It will include a one-act playlet, written by Carlos de La Celigne, better known in Plainfield, which is his home, as Charles Smith. The play is entitled "A Case of Identity." There will also be impersonations of various theatrical stars, including Vesta Victoria, Anna Held and Joe Welch. The assisting artist will be Mlle. Rosario Fauchouette and a capable company. Among the patronesses for the affair are Mrs. E. T. Wilson, Mrs. Nelson Kenworthy, Mrs. William Murray, Mrs. A. B. Laing, Mrs. Henry Dunbar, Mrs. Harrison Coddington, Mrs. Allan Coddington, Mrs. W. H. Tier.

Missionary Rally.

A missionary rally will be held at the Young Women's Christian Association Thursday night. W. D. Murray will speak. All girls will be welcome.

Big Mass Meeting to Be Held In New Plainfield Theatre at Which All G. O. P. Nominees Will Be Present.

Although the Democratic nominee, Frank S. Katzenbach, will be "in our midst" on Saturday the real opening gun of the gubernatorial campaign will not be fired until Wednesday night, October 16, when the Republicans hold a big mass meeting at the New Plainfield theatre. Mr. Katzenbach's visit will be a purely informal one for the purpose of holding a heart-to-heart talk with his vanquished rival, James E. Martine, and other lights of Democracy in this vicinity. But when J. Franklin Fort comes to town his entry will be the signal for a harmony meeting of all factions of the much torn local Republican organization and the real work of converting voters will be begun.

A galaxy of leaders, including such men as State Senator Everett Colby, and Sheriff Frank Sommer, both of Essex county, will accompany the standard bearer.

At a meeting of the Republican city committee, last night, Chairman Winfield Scott Angleman appointed a committee to arrange for the reception of Fort, Colby and Sommer. Mayor Fisk, Judge Runyon, County Chairman Smith and others will figure in their entertainment. A brass band will be engaged for the mass meeting. The nominees for assembly, Messrs. Kinsley, Moore and Pierce, and the candidate for surrogate, George Parrot, as well as the members of the local ticket, including those of councilmen-at-large, will occupy seats on the platform.

When James E. Martine was informed of the intended visit of Mr. Katzenbach on next Saturday, the farmer-orator expressed himself as highly pleased over the prospect of entertaining the Democratic candidate for governor. "His visit is news to me," said the farmer-orator, "but I assure you that I am no sorehead and however much I may keenly feel my unexpected and sudden defeat I have none but the best of feeling and highest regard for Mr. Katzenbach. If there is no one else to greet him, you may rest assured that Jim Martine will be on hand. Anything he may ask I will do."

While Mr. Martine hides his true feelings over his defeat, his close friends declare that nothing in his whole political career of forty years has effected him so much as his turndown for the gubernatorial nomination. When asked the direct question whether the treatment he had received at the hands of the convention dictated would be followed by him the worst blow he had ever felt, Mr. Martine frankly admitted that such was the case. "Yes," said he, "nothing in my whole life so disappointed me. I know that James Smith, Jr., and other good friends were loyal to the last but the work of Peter Egenolf and others was a hard blow for me to bear."

Board of Estimate Meeting.

To consider the question of adding to the sum fixed for the erection of the new school at Darrow avenue the Board of Estimate will meet at the Mayor's office this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The Council has not yet voted on the first recommendation of the board, and it is understood that it will be a simple matter, attended by only a few formalities, for the Council to increase the appropriation if it sees fit to do so considered and the city fathers desire to act on the recommendation.

Part on Court's Advice.

Peter Volsine was arrested at his home on South Second street yesterday afternoon on complaint of his wife, who charged him with abusing her. The testimony in the city court this morning disclosed the fact that they have lived unhappily for months, and that the breach is too wide to be bridged. Judge Runyon advised them to separate, and his advice was welcomed. They agreed to divide their possessions and part as soon as they returned home.

Meeting of College Club.

An interesting meeting of the Women's College Club was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Jessie Munger, of Washington avenue, when plans were made for the winter's work and entertainment. Tea was served at the close of the meeting.

Missionary Meeting.

The Women's Association of the Congregational church held its first meeting of the fall yesterday afternoon. A new missionary barrel was started, and an informal tea was enjoyed. Letters from missionaries were read.

KATZENBACH SPEAKS

So Does Martine—Pitched Into G. O. P. for Fair—A Martinesque Platform Built.

James E. Martine and Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., who got the nomination for governor that the former thought was coming to him, met at the Democratic County Convention in Elizabeth, Wednesday, for the first time since the political chill struck the Farmer Orator at Trenton. The meeting was noteworthy chiefly for what did not strike the eye. As far as anyone could see, Mr. Martine hadn't a recollection but of the pleasantest character. He greeted the gubernatorial candidate cordially, and when the ever-faithful admirers named him chairman of the convention he made the usual, fiery, Martinesque call for the uprooting of Republicanism, and referred, on the possible occasion, to "Governor Katzenbach."

Mr. Martine's week of quiescence seemed to have done him much good. He was in fine oratorical fettle, and words flowed and gushed from him in a measure to rouse envy in breasts not so well constructed for gusts of eloquence. It was whispered today that the rush of Martine words clogged the wheels of the convention and made it late, but who will believe that? To be sure the convention did not end until 1:30 o'clock, but if the delegates agreed to hear the chairman speak that they could not bring themselves to did anything until he finished, is a hint of blame to be launched at him who gave freely out of the fulness of his vocabulary.

It was a half somnolent convention, anyway, and Martine alone saved it from dulness. Katzenbach by himself could never have done that. He is engaged in teaching conservatism how to be conservative, and has put exciting remarks from him. If Martine hadn't been there to satisfy the Democratic craving for denunciations and words to that effect, the convention would have finished its business in a short time, for the slate was all made up.

These nominees were placed under the standard, between Martine speeches: For assemblyman, William E. Tuttle, Westfield; Thomas Girtanner, Rahway; Fred Reike, Elizabeth; for surrogate, Le Roy Gibby, Summit; for coroner, Dr. E. J. McElhiney, Elizabeth. Gen. Dennis F. Collins, who managed the late Martine campaign, was temporary chairman.

Candidate Katzenbach spoke briefly. He held the Republican party up to scorn, but he didn't say anything on the excise question. Martin P. Deverin, of Trenton, also spoke. He used a stock speech assailing the Republican State administration, he referred to the recent investigations, and spoke of graft. Oh, it was terrible!

Mr. Martine's speeches were not marked by personal reference. He decried Republicanism and things Republican with his usual energy, and did not pause, as his hearers had wondered if he would, to drop a few sobs for the murder of that assassinated nomination.

The platform adopted hits a sound as if somebody has been listening at Republican keyholes. It favors, among other things, "real equal taxation," election of United States Senators by the people, public utilities commission, the separation of State and municipal elections, the creation of assembly districts, direct nominations, strict enforcement of penalties for bribery at the polls, home rule, and the abandonment of voting machines.

GIFTS FOR UNION COUNTY.

Mrs. Emily Williamson Will Make Formal Presentation of Portraits Wednesday Next.

A presentation will take place next Wednesday at the courthouse in Elizabeth before the Court of Special Sessions convenes.

Mrs. Emily E. Williamson will give to the county of Union the splendid oil portrait of her father-in-law, the late Chancellor Benjamin Williamson, and also the portrait of his father, Isaac H. Williamson, who was the last Federalist Governor of New Jersey and held the office twelve years, from 1817 to 1823. There will be addresses by Mrs. Williamson, donor of the pictures, and by Chancellor Edward R. Stewart, Prosecutor Nicholas J. Englehart and former Governor Foster M. Voorhees.

Invitations to attend the ceremony were sent out yesterday by Mrs. Williamson to the members of the Union County Bar Association, county officials, the Mayor and City Council of Elizabeth and to several prominent men in Elizabeth and Newark. The Board of Freeholders have already been invited.

Miss Linda Rowland, of Bound Brook, has been visiting relatives in town.

Mrs. William Springer, of Newark, has returned home after a visit with Plainfield relatives.

NOTHING BUT AMMONIA COULD STOP THIS FIGHT

PRETTY MUCH THE WHOLE WEST END SAW IT.

Not since Tommy Muir's South American donkey collided with a circus wagon on the corner of Grant avenue and West Fourth street three years ago have the residents of that section seen so much excitement as was witnessed Saturday, when a ball pup belonging to Foster Johnson, of Grant avenue, and George O. Stevens' white mongrel engaged in an agonizing combat that lasted twenty minutes. According to old residents who watched the conflict, it was the greatest dog fight in local history. At any rate the cries of the combatants brought to the scene the members of Hose Company No. 3, many housewives who hadn't yet gone down town to do Saturday morning shopping and all of the domestics in the vicinity, who slipped out of the kitchens while their mistresses were absent.

The battle came about like this. Coal Magnate Stevens was on his way to his West Front street office and Johnson was trimming his grass with a lawn mower in his front yard.

"Are you going to the Elks' ball game in Somerville this afternoon?" asked Stevens of Johnson.

"I guess not. I'm thinking about going over to Philadelphia and see Detroit," replied Johnson.

The conversation had gotten thus far when the Stevens canine butted in on the Johnson lawn mower, and Johnson's dog, which was snoozing on the porch with one eye open, assumed hostilities by letting out a series of challenging bow wows that invited war. The Stevens dog was not to be nonplussed, and made a savage lunge at the Johnson bull. Both dogs grappled. The ear attack was started by both dogs, and for ten minutes they rolled about the lawn tied in a bundle, so as to speak. The blood flowed and the yelping aroused the neighborhood.

Stevens and Johnson shouted themselves hoarse in attempts to get the infuriated brutes to desist, but their efforts were in vain.

"Christy" Manning, who lives across the way from Johnson, and who is considered a "doggist" and somewhat of an authority on canines, was aroused from his slumbers. The racket gave him an impression that the fire department was called out to extinguish a blaze. So not to be caught napping, he arrived on the scene in his rubber boots and attired in his brand new fire hat. Manning displayed great bravery by throwing himself in the midst of the fight, but he was unable to separate the struggling brutes.

"The only way out of it," said "Christy" to the owners of the dogs, "is to call out the fire department and squirt the hose on 'em. They will fight until sunset and then they will lay down and die."

Running over to his home for his fire trumpet, which saw service in the 60's in New York, "Christy" shouted to Jimmy Kelly, of Hose Company No. 3, who was viewing the excitement from the fire house.

"Jimmy, bring up three lengths of hose here double quick. There's a big dog fight."

But before the order could be obeyed Johnson collected his senses and ran into the house and grabbed an unopened bottle of ammonia, which he had purchased in the spring with the intention of killing off the potato bugs in his garden. With the neck broken off in a jiffy the contents were dashed into the faces of the dogs. With a few sullen growls, the dogs loosened their hold and backed off, and the fight was over. "Christy" Manning, after looking carefully over the mangled brutes, officially declared the battle a draw. The Johnson dog slunk away to his coop in the back yard, while the Stevens' pup folowed his master to the coal yard.

The crowd yawned big sighs of relief. The housewives returned to their kitchens to complete the unfinished puddings and pies for Sunday dinner and Mr. Johnson went about his grass cutting.

SOUND REQUIEM OVER SILLY VERTICAL FAD

FUTILITY OF A BYGONE SCHOOL PET EXPLAINED BY SUPERVISOR.

Without a single note of regret, save at the damage it had done to the public school system, the committee on text-books of the Newark Board of Education Tuesday night reviewed the passing of the fad of teaching vertical handwriting in the schools of Newark. The futility of it was remarked that New York, Chicago and most of the other important cities that, like Newark, has been enticed away from beaten paths by the allurements of the vertical fad, are following the lead of this city and are restoring the study of the slanting form of penmanship.

The discussion was brought about through a request made by Charles W. Slocum, supervisor of writing, to have the committee on writing slips to be used hereafter in the teaching of penmanship done by an engraver of his selection, whose work he recommended. The school department adopted the style involving the use of model writing slips some months ago. A contract to print many thousand of these was given to a local firm, which was also to prepare the engravings from models supplied by Mr. Slocum. A sample chart prepared by an engraver was displayed by Mr. Slocum to the committee. It showed the letters to be incorrectly aligned and varying in size.

Mr. Slocum explained that by altering the original plan of awarding the contract, with the preparation of the dies included, to the extent of having the dies separately made under model forms and owned by them the absolute property of the board, much better results would be obtained, both in respect to the accuracy of the models and the ultimate cost to the board in materials. By comparing the cost of issuing loose model slips according to his plans, with the old cost of providing the pupils with copy books Mr. Slocum showed the committee that the saving to the board would be just $2,000 a year, or the amount of his salary.

Poor Results Shown.

The worse than negative results that came from the adoption of the round hand or vertical system in the local schools were frankly shown up by Mr. Slocum during the discussion of the present method of teaching his slant system. He told the committee that if it was desired he would produce from his office specimens of the bad results of the teaching of the vertical method in the Newark schools.

"I have fully 25,000 specimens," the supervisor said, "showing that where the children thought they were producing vertical handwriting the result was nothing more than an ugly backhand."

Another reason given by Mr. Slocum to justify the change to his plan of teaching the slant method by means of the copy slips was that he has found true that many of the teachers are incapable of writing perfect models on the blackboards for pupils to follow, while they arefully competent to guide the children in following the copy slips.

Dr and Mrs. Stephen Staats, of Bound Brook, have been spending a few days with friends in town.

JUDGE WARNS PARENTS

Will Enforce Law Against Those Who Allow Children to Run Wild.

NAUGHTY LADS THESE

Stole Candy, Chewing Gum and a Bicycle—Father Comes In For Individual Rebuke After Court Makes Statement.

Small boys with lax morals took up most of the city court session Saturday. Judge Runyon used the two cases in which they figured as a text for a sharp warning to parents of mischievous children.

The prisoners were Frank Green, George Blount and Walter Hallwell, who figured in raids on a chewing gum machine and a candy wagon, and Dominick Marra and Thomas Callahan, who stole a bicycle from a house on West Front street. They were all turned over to Capt. Irwin, of the probation office.

After rebuking the boys, Judge Runyon said:

"Parents of such boys as these may not know it, but there is a law for them as well as for the boys. Under the New Jersey statutes it is now possible to bring parents who allow their children to run loose without proper control before the bar. Parents of precocious young ones, whose prococity runs in the direction of thieving and disorder, will find themselves in serious trouble if they do not set themselves earnestly to the task of curbing the children's instincts in immortality. The law no longer holds the child alone responsible for perverted nature, and I purpose holding the parents to strict accounting in every case of this sort that is brought before me.

"In regard for the responsibility of parenthood is at the bottom of many of these cases, and hereafter I will use all the power conferred by the low to hold parents to their full duty toward their children, or see to it that they suffer for failure. I decide this statement of the law, which may not be any too well known, to be as widely published as possible."

The judge had scarcely stopped speaking when Lawrence Greer, father of one of the boys, spoke up and offered to bring witnesses to prove that his boy was something or other—presumedly an angel. He didn't get a chance to finish the sentence because the magistrate interrupted curtly.

"Mr. Green, do you doubt for a moment that your boy was mixed up in this thing?" he asked sharply. Mr. Green remembered that the boy had acknowledged being in the affair, and said he didn't. "Well, what sort of a father do you call yourself to stand here at this time, and attempt to *uphold the boy?" demanded the magis*trate.

Green hastily retired to the crowd outside the rail.

Y. M. C. A. ALLEYS GO.

Swallowed Up by Enlarged Locker Room and Nobody Is Sorry.

The bowling alleys at the Y. M. C. A. have ceased to be. The enlargement of the locker room has swallowed them up.

There is no regret among the association bowlers. The alleys were the worst in the State; there was no runway, no room for the pin boys and the alleys themselves were in a thoroughly dilapidated state. One strip of board was found to be so rotten that it was unfit even for flooring. So there is no regret over the passing among the athletes; they are just pleased to get ample locker room.

Miss Martin's Wedding Day.

The wedding of Miss Helen Sprague Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprague Maartin, of Hillside avenue, to Henry David Bushnell, of Pittsburg, Pa., will be celebrated in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Saturday, Oct. 19. Mr. Bushnell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bushnell, of Central avenue.

Business Men's Class.

The business men's gymnasium class will start at the Y. M. C. A. on October 7. The business men are to have a special and attractive locker room, with steel lockers, for their exclusive use.

AIDS TO BEAUTY.

Small white spots which often appear on the nails are caused from bruising.

Thin arms should be washed twice a day with a fine lather of soap, rinsed well, dried thoroughly and then rubbed vigorously. This treatment will bring the pores into action and induce a healthy condition of the skin.

It is nonsense to think that soap and water and a complexion brush will cause a growth of hair on the face. Superfluous hair is more likely to grow on a dust-laden, oily skin. Soap, hot water and a complexion brush used every night are necessary to get the face clean. A good cream will counteract the drying effects of the soap.

Alfred W. Dunavan, of L. W. Randolph's pharmacy, returned to his position today after a two weeks' vacation.

WARREN CHAPEL'S RELIC

ONCE WAS FIRE ALARM

For Quarter of a Century It Was Property of Borough Department, Being Gift of President Johnson.

It was used by the fire department across the brook for nearly a quarter of a century, and was abandoned about three years ago when a more modern method of giving alarms was adopted. The old bell was found to be too small to be used in connection with the Gamewell system, and a larger one purchased. At that time William Debele took possesion of the old bell and during the past three years it has been stored away in his barn. When the members of Warren chapel planned to erect a new place of worship, Mr. Debele thought it would be an excellent idea to hang it in the cupola of the edifice. Securing the consents of others interested it was finally presented to the congregation.

The bell has been removed from Mr. Debele's place and within a few days will be put in position at Warren chapel. In connection with the history of the bell, some have believed it was the one that was suspended in the old West Second street fire tower, but others dispute this, and the weight of opinion seems to show that the bell was never used in the city. It is about twenty inches at the base and weighs nearly 200 pounds and will answer the new purpose for which it is intended.

The first class of the afternoon was for novice horses, and was won by Charles W. McCutchen's Piccadilly Sweetheart, a ribbon winner of the previous day. W. J. Buttfield's Miss Banahan won the blue over E. C. Rich's Amanda Baron in the class for single roadsters. Class 23, for saddle horses, saw the first appearance here of Miss Mabel B. DIRECTOR NOT NAMED BY STATE HOSPITAL BOARD.

Massachusetts Man Appears in Race as Successor to Dr. Ward, Eliminated to Four.

Action has again been deferred in the matter of the selection of a medical director at the State Hospital for the Insane to succeed the vacancy caused by the dismissal of Dr. John W. Ward. The board of hospital managers met at the institution Wednesday for the specific purpose of naming a new medical director, but at the suggestion of the medical committee of the board the appointment was postponed until October 8, when another special meeting will be conducted.

It was explained that the reason for this delay was to give the medical committee an opportunity to further investigate the merits of the various applicants for the place. There are more than thirty candidates, but according to what is regarded as most excellent authority the field has been eliminated to four and possibly two even. It is said that the physicians being most seriously considered for the place at the present time are Dr. William H. Hicks, senior assistant at the Essex county hospital for the Insane, and Dr. C. A. Cotton, who holds a similar position at the asy*lum at Danvers, Mass. The other two* who are regarded as likely condidates are Dr. John C. Felty, acting medical director at the Trenton institution, and Dr. C. K. Cossatt, second assistant physician at the Morris Plains asylum.

The name of Dr. Cotton has been but recently injected into the contest for the place, but it is understood that the board has received some very high recommendations in his behalf. It was also stated that physicians acquainted with Dr. Hicks's ability as an alienist have written to the medical committee commending him for the post.

Between now and the next meeting of the board, the medical committee will visit the Essex county hospital, Morris Plains and the Danvers institution, where it will interview applicants and make a personal inspection of the work under their charge.

Funeral of Mrs. H. S. Edwards.

The funeral service of Mrs. Harriette S. Edwards, widow of Captain George Edwards and daughter of the late Rev. Jesse Pound, will be held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry R. Phillips, on Rockview avenue. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, of which Mrs. Edwards was a member, conducted the service. A quartet, comprising Mrs. Theodore Mantz, Miss Etta Yeager, William J. Talmey and Joseph C. Martin, sang a number of the service. The body was taken to Rossville, S. I., for burial in the family plot.

Miss Naomia Staats, of the local telephone exchange, and her mother, have returned from an extended western pleasure trip.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Oct. 6: "Christian stewardship." The principle approved. "These ought ye to have done and not to have left the other undone."—Matt. xxiii, 23.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Ps. xix, 13, 29; Lev. xxv, 30-32; Luke xvi, 1-13.

God's ownership of the earth and all it contains is the plain teaching of all parts of the Christian Scriptures. It is as clearly the teaching of reason and experience. He is God by right of making and keeping. He created and He alone preserves all that is. Man is here not as an accident, but by deliberate purpose of God as a part of His world plan. He is not given any title deeds to any part of the domain. He is God's tenant and servant, a tenant at will, liable at any time to be called to account and to surrender up of his holdings. He is a steward intrusted with property for which he is responsible and will account or later be asked for a reckoning.

All is on the most reasonable terms. He shares in the profits according to his fidelity and also receives many favors unearned and not given as reward of merit, but as clear bounty and good will from the Lord of all.

The terms of the stewardship are to "do justice, mercy and faithfulness." These are the weighty things of God's law. Besides these, there are minor ordinances and observances which should not be left undone, but should never be elevated into the chief place of duty. Among these minor matters of the law is the duty to give of one's "substance according to his ability" to the cause of God and humanity.

Abraham gave a tenth of the spoil taken from the robber kings to God's priest, Melchisedec. Jacob dedicated to God a tenth of all the increase of his possessions. In Israel it became a law that a tenth of the land, a tenth of harvests and flocks and herds belonged specially to God. In some Christian lands at some time this tithe of the earth's fruits and cattle has been exacted by law for the support of the church.

Considerable effort has been made recently in many parts of the church to induce the young people to enter upon systematic habits of giving and to set aside certain of the income for purposes of benevolence.

It is an excellent plan for every one to regularly put aside a certain proportion of the income for religious uses and to keep strict account of it. It checks extravagance, gives a wholesome deeper interest in the progress of the work of the church and often shows how little one has been entered into the earnest work of God's kingdom.

Several items need to be firmly settled in this regard. Shall there be a rigid rule of proportion laid down in the New Testament as to the amount of the giving. One-tenth is a good proportion and can well be adopted by multitudes of our young people who are making their own way. Many should give more. Some ought to give less. Each must settle the matter for himself. Secondly, all one has should be sacredly used as a trust for God and administered in the wisest manner.

Thirdly comes a principle many have not attained to, but which is vitally important. It should be settled early in life the limit beyond which one will not increase property for his own use, but will dedicate to benevolence all surplus directly for the advancement of God's work in the world. This whole matter of Christian stewardship needs treatment in a broader and more reasonable way than it has usually been handled. It is easier to follow the Pharisees' rule than to follow that of Christ, but it is not so well to the end.

Silent Suffering.

This grace of silence under trial is one of the most beautiful and difficult graces, but it is one of the most pleasing to God and most conducive to strength and beauty of Christian character.

None of us loves to suffer, and we all shudder at the thought of being probed or the amputating knife. But when the infinite love is engaged in setting out a selfish lust or cutting off a diseased limb our duty is to submit.

"Keep still, my friend," says the surgeon to the patient in the hospital, "for restlessness may produce false cuts and aggravate the process."

If the brave fellow is wise he will say, "Doctor, go as deep as you choose, only be sure to fetch out the bullet."

Ah, the battlefield often requires less courage than the hospital. The onset of service, with drums beating and bugles sounding, does not so test the mettle of our graces as to be thrown down wounded or to be compassioned by

CLEAR UP SEWER MUDDLE

City to Take Charge of Work Abandoned in Turn by Two Contractors.

WILBUR'S NOVEL PLAN

Contractor Quits Job Alleging That An Underground Lake Has Retarded His Work.

Notice having been served on City Engineer A. J. Gavett, by D. W. Wilbur, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., of his refusal to complete the Southside sanitary sewer work, according to the terms of the contract created by Peter Morgan, a special meeting of the Common Council was held last Monday to take the necessary steps toward completing the work. Engineer Gavett was authorized to finish the job according to the terms by employing such men and purchasing such materials as will be necessary and to charge the same to Mr. Wilbur.

Another resolution was adopted providing for the serving of a notice on Mr. Wilbur to produce satisfactory evidence that he has paid for all materials used by him and discharged all claims for labor in addition and thanks to protect the city from having further claims made against it.

In his notice, served on Mr. Gavett, Mr. Wilbur stated that by reason of the failure of the city to notify him of the existence of a large subterranean lake or deposit of water under the line of the sewer proposed to be built under the contract with Peter Morgan, of which the city is alleged to have full knowledge, that he would refuse to proceed further with the construction of the sewer unless the municipality should agree to indemnify him as a contractor from any expense or cost made necessary by the existence of the deposit of water. Mr. Wilbur added that he would complete the contract if the city would indemnify him as requested, but unless such agreement were made he would abandon the work. This he did on September 27, and it was necessary that action be taken at once so that no time be lost in doing the work.

The meeting Monday was called to receive the report from Engineer Gavett on the non-completion of the work under the original contract with Peter Morgan, the engagement of D. W. Wilbur to complete the work, the notice from Mr. Wilbur to Mr. Gavett; for the purpose of obtaining a clear idea of the situation. Mayor Charles J. Fisk was asked to explain the matter. He reviewed the sewer work from the time the contract was given to Peter Morgan, taking occasion to refer to the action of Thomas J. Cusack, who was acting attorney for Mr. Morgan, and who, as he said, took Mr. Morgan's money and left the city.

Notice was then served on the Metropolitan Surety Company and other interested parties. In the meantime the Warren Foundry Company and others secured attachments on materials furnished by them for the work. Later with the consent of the surety company, the pipes were purchased from the Warren Foundry Company, and arrangements were made with D. W. Wilbur to complete the contract. He placed John Sutcliff, of Poughkeepsie, in charge of the work. Recently it appeared that Mr. Sutcliff was running short of funds, and Mr. Fisk explained that on a technical point, claiming that there was a subterranean lake at the point of excavation, he refused to go on with the work unless the city would indemnify him against loss.

It was further stated by Mr. Fisk that notice was served on the city last Thursday by Mr. Wilbur that he refused to go on with the work under the present circumstances. Then Mr. Gavett took the matter up with Corporation Counsel Marsh. As a result all of the necessary legal notices were served on teh interested parties. This was done yesterday, and at the suggestion of Mr. Marsh it was decided to have the city complete the contract.

Mr. Fisk added that there is but one thing for the city to do and that is do the work itself. He explained that with the amount of the bond furnished by the Metropolitan Surety Company, which is $5,000, and the balance appropriated for the work, it is believed that the sewer contract can be finished without added expense. Peter Morgan, it has been learned, left a number of unpaid claims, but it is thought that the 10 per cent. held back on the contract price will go a long way toward satisfying them. It is said that Mr. Wilbur is willing that the sewer work shall proceed under the city's direction as authorized Monday, but matters stand now he will probably lose $5,000, the amount he indemnified Peter Morgan for to the Metropolitan Surety Company. Mr. Sutcliff is expected back today, and Mr. Gavett will probably arrange him to superintend the completion of the contract.

There is an intimation that there may be some trouble in installing the pumping station because of the presence of so much water, but the city engineer has plans under way which he believes will help to obviate the difficulty. It is believed that the work can be finished in a couple of months.

MR. AND MRS. RYNO WARMLY CONGRATULATED

WITH FRIENDS THEY CELEBRATE 15TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Corra Ryno observed the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding on Codington avenue, Saturday night, and despite the disagreeable weather fifty friends from Newark, Orange, Elizabeth, Somerville and Plainfield joined in the celebration. The home was attractively decorated with golden rod and ferns, the arrangement in the hall and parlor being particularly effective.

During the evening there was an informal program of vocal and instrumental selections, including piano solos by Miss Emma Hazel Ryno, daughter of the host and hostess, and vocal solos by Mrs. Thomas J. Lynch and the singing of popular selections by others. Refreshments were served. The couple received many handsome and useful gifts, including a number of pieces of cutglass.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryno were married on September 28, 1892, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, officiated, assisted by Rev. Elias Thompson, of Satskill, N. Y., a cousin of the bride, and Rev. John Thompson, of Trenton, an uncle of the groom. The wedding moved from Duer street to Grandview avenue and then to Codington avenue, their present home. Mr. Ryno has been connected with The Daily Press for many years, and both he and his wife enjoy the friendship and esteem of a large circle of friends. Congratulations and regrets were received from relatives and friends in Nantucket, Conn., Phillipsburg, Philadelphia and many other places.

BRING HOME STRING OF HORSE SHOW RIBBONS

MISS HOOLEY AND MESSRS. BUTTFIELD AND M'CUTCHEN LUCKY.

The Morristown Horse Show closed Saturday afternoon with the judging of nine classes. The collapse of the flooring in a section of the boxes amid a downpour of rain marred the pleasure of hundreds of spectators. A mild panic which followed was soon quelled.

The afternoon's judging started with the award to Miss Mabel B. Hooley of the blue for her entries in the pairs of harness horses. Miss Hooley also captured a blue in the class for saddle horses, her black mare, Delight, taking the first award. Her string, as well as those of W. J. Buttfield and C. W. McCutchen was very successful in winning prizes throughout the three days of the show. The Plainfield horses winning prizes on Saturday follow:

Class 35—Pairs of harness horses over 15 hands and not exceeding 15.2 hands, won by Miss Mabel B. Hooley's Quaker Maid and Dorothea. Charles W. McCutchen's Piccadilly Sweetheart and Pickininny Sweetheart, third.

GOLF CUP COMPETITIONS

Play for Greens and Golf Committees and Autumn Cups at Country Club.

DEFY THE DOWNPOUR

During the Heavy Showers, on the Links at Both Club Were Many Enthusiasts.

While the heavy rain on Saturday caused a postponement of the matinee races and the baseball games, it did not stop the play of golf on the local links. During the heaviest of the downpour both the courses at the Plainfield Country Club and the Park Golf Club were well occupied. Many, however, were unable to complete the eighteen holes and but a limited number of cards were returned in the various events.

At the Country Club, Dudley H. Barrows won first honors for the Golf Committee cup, with a net score of 76, Charles A. Stover finished second with a 77, while Julius Erickson came in third with an 84. The leading scores posted follow:

Dudley H. Barrows, 74 plus 2—76; Charles A. Stover, 86, 9—77; Julius E. Erickson, 91, 7—84.

The point winners for the Green Committee cup were E. A. Cruikshank with an 85, George S. Clay, a new-comer, with a 91, and George E. Cathcart with a 100. The scores:

E. A. Cruikshank, 101, 16—85; George S. Clay, 113, 22—91; George E. Cathcart, 104, 4—100.

In the play for the Autumn cup, Class A, the two who qualified were Julius E. Erickson, 91, 7—84; W. Lester Glenney, 85, plus 1—86. George S. Clay, with a score of 113, 22—91, was the only one to qualify for the Autumn cup. Class B, and this means that some will have to draw a bye. In the playoff of the tie of September 14 for the Autumn cup, Class A, Dudley H. Barrows, with a score of 74, plus 2—76, and Charles A. Stover, with a score of 86, 9—77, qualified for match play next month.

While there was a good field out at the Park Golf Club, only four players returned their cards in the weekly competition for the President's. Golf Club cups and the September trophy. Thus far W. V. Byard has qualified for match play for the monthly cup, and the tie between Morse Carpenter and H. P. Morse will be played off this week to determine who shall play with Mr. Byard.

L. R. Thurlow, with a net score of 86, won first honors for the President's cup and the September cup. Charles A. Reed received second honors, while C. B. Morse and W. V. Byard were third and fourth. For the Scratch cup, the point winners were Charles A. Reed, C. B. Morse and L. R. Thurlow.

The leading scores posted were as follows:

Charles A. Reed, 101, 12—89; Leon R. Thurlow, 110, 14—96; W. V. Byard, 106, 5—101; Charles B. Morse, 110, 7—102.

FIREMEN GET A SCARE.

Joker Impersonating Councilman Mellick Rakes Them Over the Coals.

Some joker had a lot of fun with Firemen Kelly and Fitzgerald, at the West Front street engine house Saturday night. The joker called up the house on the telephone, and, pretending he was Councilman George P. Melick, gave Kelly and Fitzgerald, one after the other, stern rebukes for allowing three lengths of the city's hose to be used in separating fighting bulldogs on Saturday morning, as averred by a humorous writer in The Daily Press.

The firemen were fooled, and agitatedly explained how innocent of wrongdoing they had been. When "Mr. Mellick" rang off, Kelly called up Chief Doane and told him of the "councilman's" vexation. The chief lost not time in calling up Mr. Mellick's house, and learned that he hadn't been in the city for a week. If Kelly and Fitzgerald had known Mr. Mellick at all they wouldn't have been fooled; some of the language the "councilman" used was decidedly undressed. A friend of the firemen heard of the hoax shortly after it was played, and told them of it. They are looking for the joker.

STATE LINES.

There are 1,500,000,000 people in the world. They could all be set down in the State of Texas, and each person could be given one-ninth of an acre of ground on which to live.

New York has for many years been one of the few large States in which persons could marry without first securing a license. The Legislature has finally passed a law to go into effect on January 1, making it a misdemeanor for any authorized person to solemnize a marriage unless the parties to it have first obtained a license from the proper officers.

Women's Club Work.

Mrs. Edward S. Robinson, of Westfield, a former president of the Woman's Club, and one of the most active workers in that organization, has been appointed to the important position of chairman of the program committee at the State Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held in Orange, October 25 and 26.

learned to read. By arousing interest of the clergy and social workers this work might reach a larger number.

"All formalities other than those necessary for safeguarding the books have been disregarded. The public have always had access to the mass of the books; guarantors are required only where applicants are minors or are unknown at home. The library has been extended to a daily all-day circulation, and one evening. Sunday afternoons have been added to the reading room hours, and this attendance shows steadily increasing use. The two-book system has been for years in successful operation. Students' cards are issued to adults following individual course of study, by which a number not exceeding six books may be taken at a time, with time extension to eight weeks. Teachers may borrow extra number of books with time extension. North Plainfield residents have library privileges at a nominal sum—or, if Plainfield taxpayers, without charge. Persons leaving town in summer have time extended on books.

"Lists for clubs or individuals are prepared on request, and a large number of less formal suggestions made to those appearing to want help, while the regularly changed books on the recent and timely shelves offer silent suggestion to the large number who browse. Aside from A. L. A. list, these aids, together with careful selection and the published lists above referred to, have combined to bring about the high grade of reading evidenced by our circulation, particularly of fiction. From a percentage of 85 plus per cent. (including fiction and juvenile fiction) issued in the library's first year of circulation, year ending May 31, 1887, the percentage has decreased to 61 plus (including adult and juvenile fiction), a gain of 24 per cent. for the more solid reading, or limiting the comparison to adult fiction alone as there were but few children's books provided in 1887—there are 30 per cent. less books of fiction loaned now than in 1887. While not in the least depreciating the value of good fiction, we may reasonably take pride in these figures, which show the growing appreciation of the higher educational opportunity the library has ever felt its highest duty to offer.

"Books are reserved on application. Renewals may be made by mailing the library card, postal or by telephone. The telephone is also used for reference work.

"Records are so kept that a book not on the shelves can be instantly located as out in circulation, at a deposit station, at bindery or in repair department. Records of applicants, both by number and name are kept, overdue notices sent when a book is a week overtime, and a messenger sent if two weeks over time. Almost no books are lost in circulation. Duplicates and subscriptions are recorded daily and monthly account rendered. Before replacement on shelves, each returned book is examined, and if out of condition is put aside for repair, rebinding or withdrawal as the case may be.

"Of the 221 periodicals regularly received, each is noted in the periodical register, marked and placed in its binder or file, and previous numbers filed. As volumes are complete they are tied up, and if belonging to bound sets, sent to the bindery with directions. Others are filed in the third floor. All periodicals, bound or unbound, are entered in the card catalogue. A list of current periodicals is kept in the reading room, and a list of Poole sets. The extent of this division of our reading room is shown by the length of the published periodical list.

"The bindery department is a most important feature that has been close to my heart. If it had been permitted me to see a children's room such facilities as the modern library provides, I should not feel that I could have much less regret. But we have the essential feature, a fine collection of children's books. Co-operation with the schools, and with the Mothers' Club is established. When a new building becomes a possibility the needs of this department can be more fully met, and if a reading room in the business quarter is started by all means should there be a corner, at least, where children would be welcome. There is a great need of this, as may be seen from the large number of children—even here—who have no play ground but the street.

in New Jersey are to be found 107,268 foreigners. In presenting statistics he said that 3,000 foreigners are naturalized daily in New York, an average of six a minute, or a new Plainfield every nine days. In Perth Amboy seventy inhabitants out of every 100 are foreigners. The speaker wanted to know what the churches proposed to do to bring the Gospel to these people. In his opinion they have been playing at home mission work. He advocated the employment of a field secretary and the use of the public schools for night classes and places of amusement, with a view to keeping men out of the saloons. These suggestions were embodied in resolutions, together with one urging that help be given to the Bloomfield Seminary and that an evangelist at large be engaged.

The afternoon session was concluded about 6 o'clock, when the assemblage adjourned to the chapel for supper. An hour later the presbytery reconvened and finished up the business. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herrigs and Rev. W. H. Corbin were re-elected trustees for five years, and the pulpit of the Madison Avenue church, Elizabeth, was declared vacant, the pastor, Rev. Herbert K. England, having accepted a call to a church in Brooklyn. After transacting some minor business the presbytery adjourned at 9 o'clock, to meet during the intervals of the synod, which will convene at Atlantic City during the week commencing Monday, October 21.

CHARGE ON MAN'S DEATH

Justice Swayze Brings Weeks Killing to Grand Jury's Attention.

AS TO P. S. C. LIABILITY

If Gross Negligence Be Found to Have Been Present, Individuals As Well As Corporation May Be Indicted.

In his charge to the grand jury at the opening of the fall term of the Union County courts at Elizabeth, Tuesday, Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze, made a strong statement in reference to the liability of the Public Service Corporation for the death of Terence Weeks, of Netherwood, who was killed by a broken electric light wire.

He said that he understood that the verdict of the coroner's jury held the Public Service Corporation liable for Mr. Weeks' death, but that the same degree of negligence which would hold the company in a civil suit for damages was not the same as would be required to hold the company criminally. To justify the indictment of the company it should be shown that there was a reckless disregard for human life on the part of the company. The length of time the wire was allowed to be in the street should be ascertained, and the question of the insulation should also be looked into. All the facts surrounding the matter should be carefully inquired into by the grand jury. If the jury found the company had been grossly negligent, the corporation officers directly in charge of the department controlling the wire could be indicted individually, as well as the company as a whole.

The Weeks case was the only matter of special character requiring attention from the justice. The charge was brief.

The Plainfielders on the jury are Elmer E. Runyon, F. A. Pope, Augustus G. Jenkins and William A. Woodruff.

There are seventy-eight cases on the Supreme and Circuit Courts list for the week's term from Plainfield. Judge Vail will commence the trial of cases on October 14.

JEFFERSONS SUCCEED FINELY IN "THE RIVALS"

THEY SHOW MORE THAN MARK OF GENIUS IN THEIR ART.

Of all the professions, none demand so much personality as that of acting. It consists entirely in individuality. Without a magnetic personality, an author is doomed to mediocrity. A successful actor understands men. He understands life. He understands himself. He knows what he can do. He develops his accomplishments. He realizes what he is incapable of doing. He avoids attempting something beyond him. His art is within him. It is his individuality in its most advanced state. It is his individuality alone that carries him to success.

That they are distinguished examples of the value of irresistible personalities and artistics souls, Joseph and William W. Jefferson proved at the theatre Monday night in "The Rivals." In the case of each, their respective methods of procedure were entirely different, neither of them work alike,—yet alike, they are both successful.

Both of the young men have a wonderful schooling in the technique of their art. Their father was the one great unquestioned authority on the art of acting. From infancy, they have basked in an artistic atmosphere. As boys, they were drilled and coached by the father. Their teacher did not instruct "Joe" Jefferson blindly do as he said. He believed in personality. He encouraged their individuality. He only developed their artistic possibilities. The result is that the sons have absorbed the father's wonderful understanding of the theories of acting. This is utilized by the young men in conjunction with their natural inborn understanding. Their performances are exquisite specimens of detail work. Every characterization given them fairly bubbles with their own individuality.

Both of the young Jeffersons have strong characteristic traits and both are equally successful, although their methods are as different as day and night. Their performance last night proved a source of rare enjoyment to the audience. Of Sheridan's master work one can say nothing at this day. Here it is enough to say that the Jeffersons do it full justice, and in it meet the requirements of their

PRESBYTERY IN SESSION

Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Herring, the Moderator, Preaches the Sermon.

REPORTS ARE READ

Resolutions Passed On Death of Ralph Voorhees—Members Visit Warren's New Chapel.

The seventy-ninth stated meeting of the presbytery of Elizabeth convened at the First Presbyterian church this morning at 10 o'clock with a large representation from the churches in the presbytery. The morning session opened with devotional services and the sermon by the moderator, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, concluding with a prayer which constituted the presbytery meeting.

After the roll call, Rev. C. J. Culp, of Bound Brook, and Rev. L. D. Calkins, of Nassau, were invited to sit as corresponding members. There was a pleasant reference by Rev. W. J. Steans, of Westfield, to the fact that the degree of doctor of philosophy had been conferred on Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring by the New York University.

Rev. J. T. Kerr, of Elizabeth, presented a report of exceptional interest on church extension and synodical home missions, showing that a great deal has been accomplished during the past year. He laid especial emphasis on the work at Garwood, where a new chapel was erected, and the mission work has been carried on there with much success. The report showed that the gifts from churches in the presbytery for extension and synodical home missions amounted to nearly $15,000. In nearly every case each church contributed its quota to this work.

The report carried with it a resolution on the death of Ralph Voorhees, of Clinton, who was a generous contributor to the home mission work, he having given nearly $5,000. A copy of the resolutions was directed sent to the widow.

Rev. W. J. Steans, of Westfield, presented a report on foreign missions, and he stated that more than $17,000 had been contributed to the work during the year, a net gain of $252.

Arrangements were made for auditing the books of the treasurer and other accounts of the presbytery, and at 12:45 adjournment was taken for dinner, which was served in the chapel by the women of the church.

Upon the invitation of Rev. J. C. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, many of the members of the presbytery visited the new chapel on Watchung avenue after dinner and before the afternoon session was called to order at 2:30 o'clock, when reports from all the different departments of work were received.

MARTINE TO WELCOME NOMINEE KATZENBACH

"I'M NO SORE HEAD" SAYS THE FARMER-ORATOR.

James E. Martine, the victim of a party's ingratitude, will be on hand Saturday to extend a welcome to his successful rival for the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, Frank Katzenbach, when the latter pays a visit to Plainfield. No one else has volunteered to do the honors and therefore Martine, whose valuable services to his party have been appreciated by everyone except those in that organization, will meet the Trenton man at the station and entertain him during his stay here.

"I don't know anything about Mr. Katzenbach's visit to Plainfield on Saturday except what I saw in The Daily Press," said the farmer-orator this morning. "If the candidate of my party honors us by a visit, you may be sure that I will be present to give him a hearty welcome. I hope he will be my guest during his stay here. Yes, I feel my defeat, but Mr. Katzenbach is a fine fellow and deserves well at the hands of the people of New Jersey. 'Im no sorehead, and I'll be on the spot when our candidate reaches town."

Races Postponed to October 12.

More than 200 people gathered at the Plainfield Driving Park Saturday afternoon to witness the races under the auspices of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association, and it was a great disappointment that the rain interfered with the program. Miss Adele Vosseller was present and ready to give an exhibition of fancy riding on "Aristocrat" and "Rifle," but it was decided that the grounds were too wet. The officers of the association announced to the crowd that the races would be held on Saturday, October 12, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Late experiments have suggested that warts are due either to an ultramicroscopic germ of a soluble toxin. Healthy tissue inoculated with blood from a wart has developed a growth of new warts. No cultures have been obtained.
